ANGLO-INDIAN SOCIETY.

Salary Decides a Briton's Standing in the Orient.

Anglo-Indian society is strictly official. The male exile's status depends upon the number of rupees he draws each month from the Government. An "Assistant District Superintendent of Police" may be the younger son of a baronet, with an ancestry going back to the Conquest. But he must take in to dinner the Eurasian wife of the "Opium Wallah" — a "Government servant," who is paid a salary of similar dimensions. The "Collector," who gets the equivalent of a thousand pounds a year, is paired off with the sister of the officer commanding the local regiment. In all probability, the lady has a supreme contempt for the "civilian's" social standing, although her unpretentious parents may have kept a Bayswater boarding-house. In the large "stations," railway employes, tea and indigo planters, barristers and business men have a bowing acquaintance with the officers of the British infantry regiments, and they are welcomed in native infantry messes. British cavalry officers and their wives, however, seldom tolerate them, though impecunious subalterns (with an eye to the main chance) make a point of cultivating bank managers. Occasionally, the officers of one corps do not encourage friendly relations with those of another, the womankind of these warriors being only too ready to obey the mandate. Under these circumstances, jovial Anglo-Indians who are anxious to make friends of everybody—from the "Commissioner" down to the "Acting Additional Traffic Manager," who occupies a lowly position in the railway office—loathe (with exceeding hate) Rawalpindi, Secunderabad, Bangalore, Lucknow, Meerut, and other large military "stations" where cliques abound.

The "Mem-Sahib" is not over-burdened with household duties. For many months in the year, the appalling heat (which reduces the liveliest lady to the verge of apathy, dispels any good intentions she may have formed. Besides, it is not customary for the mistress of the house to pry too closely into the uncleanly mysteries with which the native servants surround themselves. Even the strongest-minded "Mem" is staggered by the sights which await her in the "bowarchi whanah," as the kitchen is known. Nor is she encouraged to take an interest in her servants and their children. Should she condescendingly pat little Ahmed's fat cheeks, little Ahmed's papa will straightway accuse her of regarding his offspring with the "evil eye."

Bronze Statuettes.

An interesting exhibition of bronze statuettes by Anthony Van Wouw was inaugurated recently at the Fine Arts Society's galleries by Sir Richard Solomon, who deputed to Dr. Engelenburg, one of the South African delegates at the Imperial Press Conference, the task of introducing the personality of the Boer sculptor.

Anthony Van Wouw's nationality is betrayed by his subjects rather than by his style, which is the result of sound training in the European art centres. He has chosen his models from among his own people and the indigenous black races, whose varied types he renders with considerable realistic force. Nor is this realism confined to the faithful reproduction of racial characteristics; in several cases, as in the statuette of a "Kaffir Eating Mealies" and the pathetic group "Bad News," he endeavors, with marked success, to convey a suggestion of the arid, stony veldt. There is something of monumental dignity in his little seated figure of "Paul Kruger in Exile." Of peculiar interest are the two figures of "Voortrekkers," designed for the corners of the Kruger monument, which was commissioned from the artist before the outbreak of the war.

Lord Lonsdale's Set.

There are few better all-round sportsmen in the Empire than the Earl of Lonsdale, who is taking such an active interest in the Travel and Sports Exhibition, due to open next month at Olympia. He rides, shoots, motors, boxes, yachts, and is an expert slipper of greyhounds. Horses, however, have been the hobby of his life, and on matters connected with them his opinions are of great value. Once Lord Lonsdale made a bet he would drive twenty miles in less than an hour. The roads were bad, but the weather was worse. For the first five miles his lordship drove a four-in-hand, a pair for another five miles, rode postilion of a pair for the next five, and completed the remainder of the distance by driving a single horse for the last stage. The entire journey was covered in four and a half minutes under the hour.

Engine-Cleaner as an Artist.

Another romantic struggle for fame is illustrated by the career of Mr. Alfred Hudson, who has had a picture accepted for this year's Academy in London. He started life as an engine-cleaner, and in the course of time was promoted to his present post of chief clerk in the locomotive department of the Northeastern Railway at Leeds. He developed a passion for art, but had no money to purchase the necessary equipment. By exercising the strictest economy, however, he was able to save out of his wages sufficient to procure some brushes and paint. He has exhibited in different parts of the country.

A Witty Entry.

Mme. Ghosal, the daughter of the Maharajah of Cooch Behar, the Indian prince whose magnificent attire makes him one of the most picturesque figures at Court, can be very witty on occasions. Once, when staying at a country house, she was asked to write down a thought in an album, and seeing that someone had inscribed the somewhat sententious phrase, "Do right, and fear no man," she took the pen and promptly wrote underneath, "Don't write, and fear no woman."

Reclaiming Holland.

Since the 16th century the Dutch have reclaimed more than 1,000,000 acres of land from sea, lake and river.

IRELAND.

George Meredith's plea for home rule is embodied in his last poem, "Ireland," which leads off "Scribner's" for July, accompanied by a hitherto unpublished portrait which was painted in 1897 for J. M. Barrie by Amy Draper Sumner. We quote three of the seven stanzas:

Fire in her ashes Ireland feels
And in her veins a glow of heat.
To her the lost old time appeals
For resurrection, good to greet;
Not as a shape to spectral eyes,
But humanly maternal, young
In all that quickens pride, and wins
To speak the best her bards have sung.

May she not call herself her own?
That is her cry, and thence her spite
Of fury, thence her graceless tone
At justice given in bits and bits.
The limbs once raw with gnawing chains
Will fret at silken when God's beams
Of freedom beckon o'er the plains
From mounts that show it more than dreams.

A nation she, and formed to charm,
With heart for heart and hands all round,
No longer England's broken arm,
Would England know where strength is found,
And strength to-day is England's need;
To-morrow it may be for both
Salvation: heed the portents, heed
The warnings, free the mind from sloth.

WOULDN'T CONFIRM BOY.

Anglican Vicar Refuses Sacrament to Canadian Lad.

The Rev. F. W. Clarke, vicar of Caldicot, South Monmouthshire, England, has refused to allow a Church lad, a Canadian, to attend his confirmation class because the youngster is a member of the Boys' Brigade, which holds its meetings in the Wesleyan school-room. The lad has been brought up in the Church of England, his parents belong to the Church, it was at the invitation of the curate that he presented himself at the vicar's confirmation class, but the vicar asked him at the close of the class if he belonged to the Boys' Brigade, and, when informed that he did, said, "We must draw the line somewhere."

The complaint seems to be that a church lad, though willing to claim full membership of the Church, should have been guilty of the grievous sin of "schism" by belonging to an unsectarian organization, and attending a Bible class in connection with the Boys' Brigade, in which simple Bible teaching is given. The vicar called upon the father of the lad, Mr. Arthur C. Luff, and said: "We must draw the line somewhere. Seeing he is in the brigade, we cannot very well confirm him." Mr. Luff said: "Very well; that finishes the matter."

To an interviewer, Mr. Luff observed: "It is strange to me, after living for fifteen years in British Columbia, where things are so different." When invited to give his version of the matter, the Rev. F. W. Clarke said he hoped no newspaper would interfere in a matter of this kind—"this is a matter which must be left to the clergy to deal with."

Mr. Alfred Kemp, the Wesleyan evangelist, who has charge of the Caldicot Boys' Brigade, said they were absolutely unsectarian, and told the boys to attend what place of worship they pleased, but several members of the Boys' Brigade were asked to leave the church Sunday school because of their membership, and a lieutenant of the brigade left the church choir for the same reason. The curious thing is that the brigade have attended Bogiet Church, where the Archbishop of Monmouth preached to them. But Boys' Brigade members are not wanted in the parish church of Caldicot.

From Journalism to Playwriting.

Quite a number of popular playwrights served their literary apprenticeship as journalists. J. M. Barrie was a reporter on a Nottingham paper before he came to London. Henry Arthur Jones wrote articles and stories from boyhood, and did not enter a theatre until he was eighteen years of age. Hubert Davies was for some years a journalist in America, while Hall Caine, after being trained as an architect, became a journalist and leader-writer on the staff of the Liverpool Mercury, and after coming to London wrote for the Athenaeum, Academy, and other papers.

Cecil Raleigh, the author of so many Drury Lane dramas, wrote for Vanity Fair, and was at one time sub-editor and dramatic critic for the Lady. Cosmo Hamilton has filled the editorial chair of the World. Adrian Ross has done much journalistic work, while it would be impossible to say how many papers and periodicals George R. Sims has written for.

Haydn Manuscript as "Rubbish."

Dr. Cummings, principal of the Guildhall School of Music, in an address on Haydn at the rooms of the Incorporated Society of Musicians, Hanover square, a few days ago, said that some time ago he visited a second-hand music seller's in St. Martin's lane and purchased a Haydn manuscript for two shillings and sixpence. The manuscript was rescued out of a sack of what the music seller described as rubbish.

Had It Lowered.

Sir Augustus Harris once settled the pitch question in his own offhand fashion. A famous prima donna of his opera company came to him complaining that the piano used for vocal rehearsals was too high and asking that it might be lowered.

"Certainly," replied Drurialanus, with a bow. "Here, Forsyth, have a couple of inches sawed off the legs of this piano."

Improvement.

"Have you noticed that your daughter has learned much since she has been going to boarding school?"

"Yes. She has become quite expert in her handling of the chafing dish."—Smart Set.

The Wings of Love.

"Time flies," they say, my dear, and I
Am excited it's true.
But, gentlemen, what makes it fly
So fast when I'm with you?

The Voice of the Consumer.

"What difference can a new deal make,"
They heard him tearfully exclaim,
"If still the same old people take
The same old referee to the game?"

RELICS OF ANTIQUITY

BRITISH SOCIETY MAKES BIG DISCOVERIES AT THEBES.

Professor Petrie Tells of His Excavations in Egypt—Palace of Pharaoh Mentioned in Bible by Jeremiah Is Found at Memphis—Golden Ornaments Are Found Along With Mummy.

An interesting lecture describing the work of the British School of Archaeology in Egypt during the last season was delivered by Professor Petrie the other evening at University College.

The work was divided into two portions. During the early part of the season extensive explorations were made in the hitherto unexplored valleys of Qurneh, the country of Thebes, and several most valuable finds were made.

One of the most interesting of these was the discovery of an undisturbed tomb of the period of the eleventh dynasty, B.C. 2500, and of a curious Osiris chapel of a king named Sankhkara. More important was the find of an untouched tomb of the seventeenth dynasty, about B.C. 1600—the simple furniture of which was very remarkable. Among the objects were a number of vases with a string network of most remarkable fineness, by which they were attached to a carrying pole, like a milkman's yoke. Shrine bags of wonderful workmanship were also found and a chair of pretty design, with a knotted string seat.

The tomb in which the mummy was found was evidently that of some person of importance, for a gold necklace, gold bangles, and a girdle of curious Nubian pattern were found. There was found also a small private temple, built by a high priest named Hebenamd, who associated himself with Ramesse II.

At the end of one of the waddies leading into the desert as a modern chief's tomb, near to it were small oval houses and jars of offerings containing water and food—a curious survival of the ancient customs.

At Memphis the work was directed to the exploration of a large mound over sixty feet in height, and which will take many years to dig out. At a depth of about ten feet the remains of a large edifice—about 400 feet long by 200 feet broad, with massive walls fifteen feet high—was discovered. It proved to be the palace of Apiries, or the Pharaoh Hophra of the Bible, B.C. 588, who is mentioned by Jeremiah. It was a large edifice, consisting of many halls, or rooms, and two very large quadrangles, as well as servants' quarters, and in these latter were the fireplaces and ovens for cooking the royal dinners.

The central hall was a large space about 100 feet square, which had been covered by a cedar wood roof, supported on columns 50 feet high. A large gateway, built of older material of the time of the twelfth dynasty, was found, the walls of which bore a series of interesting sculptures, representing the installation of the crown prince as vice ruler. During the excavation of the palace very large quantities of scale armor were found, much of it of very fine work, in steel, iron and bronze, probably borne by the Greek mercenaries of the king, and which had been hastily thrown away.

One of the most beautiful finds here was a silver-and-gold rest of a royal palanquin. It was of solid silver, weighing nearly two pounds, and in the centre was a head of the goddess Hathor, with a gold face and with a bronze wig inlaid with gold and blue—one of the finest works of art ever discovered. The exploration of the Temple of Ptah produced many interesting objects, among them a number of terra cotta heads of foreigners who had come to Memphis during the Persian rule—Europeans with the customs Spanish matador feature and side whiskers, Kurians with their cockscomb hat, as described by Herodotus.

Very remarkable were two heads, with very modern turbans and distinctly Afghan features, no doubt Parthian allies of the Persian king. Two temples of Meneptah, the Pharaoh of the Exodus, have been found. The discovery of the palace mound is most important, for no doubt stratified under it are the ruined palaces of many dynasties, perhaps even that of Menes himself.

A Romantic Gift.

An altar frontal, which has just come into the possession of the Roman Catholic Church of St. John's, near Norwich, England, has a pathetic interest attaching to it. About 18 months ago Col. Noyes died suddenly while on his honeymoon. His young, grief-stricken widow sent her bridal robe to the nuns of a convent in Bloomsburg, where four skilled embroiderers have been engaged upon it ever since. The altar frontal is eight feet long and four feet deep, and it is designed in three panels, depicting beautifully executed figures. The first of these is an allegorical likeness of the late Col. Noyes, who is represented as a mediaeval knight. The arms and mottoes of Col. Noyes and of the widow's family are embroidered over the panels.

Explanation Called For.

Alfred (whose sporting opportunities have been limited by parental decree)—Papa, what does it mean by bass on balls?

Papa (who is reading an account of the latest heavyweight fight)—Alfred, you could better employ yourself with your Sunday school lesson. I'm too busy now to explain.

Alfred (still thirsting for knowledge)—Did it mean the same as bass on balls when you telephoned last night that ma mamma was away you were going out on a bat?

Mamma (who is always listening)—Benjamin Ridgely, you will take time right now to make two explanations, with the most important one coming to me.

Lake Huron Islands.

There are some 3,000 islands in Lake Huron.

Scipio Africanus.

Scipio Africanus was one of the greatest soldiers, save Julius Caesar, in Roman history. He defeated Hannibal and his Carthaginians at Zama, a city of Carthage, on Oct. 19, in the year 202 B. C., and gave to Rome the ascendancy over the then known world.

Opalescent Glass.

Opalescent glass for use in the manufacture of stained glass windows is made in this country in a manner which cannot be duplicated, and this material is shipped all over Europe.

A WELSH FESTIVAL.

Eisteddfod Is Opened by Musicians in London.

In a pretty glade in Kensington Gardens, in London, near the Serpentine, the Welsh bards celebrated recently the ritual of the Gorsedd, which marks the opening of the national eisteddfod.

According to the ancient tradition, the rites must be performed "in the face of the sun, the eye of light," and though the somber skies made it impossible to carry out the letter of the law, it was fulfilled sufficiently in the spirit by the performance of the rites in a druidical circle erected in the open air.

The circle consists of unhewn stones, outside of which three other stones are placed. In the centre of the circle is the Maen Llog, a large stone supported on three others.

A trumpeter, standing upon this stone, sounded the Corn Gwlad, thus formally opening the Gorsedd, and the prayer of the Gorsedd was recited in Welsh.

The bards, in their blue, green and white robes, presented a striking spectacle, and the insignia of his office rendered Dyfed, the archdruid, a notable figure. With his flowing white robe, oakleaf crown, and golden torque of horseshoe shape, he was impressive indeed as he mounted the Maen Llog and cried aloud thrice in a voice of thunder the formal challenge, "A oes Heddwch?" (Is it Peace?).

"Heddwch!" the assembly shouted and Dyfed sheathed again the eight-foot sword which, in symbolic rite, he had half drawn from its scabbard.

Speech-making in Welsh followed, and then the bards and onlookers trooped off to the Albert Hall, where the eisteddfod met.

The proceedings at the hall during the morning were disappointing in a great many ways, and there appeared to be a deplorable lack of organisation.

The best singing was heard in the chief choral competition, in which the first prize went to the Carnarvon Choral Society, and the second to the Llanelly Choral Society.

At the afternoon meeting Mr. Balfour made a most interesting speech in praise of music.

"Music has ever been one of the great arts in which Welshmen have excelled," he stated. "There cannot be a gift which carries with it higher pleasures—pleasures more easy of attainment, pleasures which leave no after-sting, no after-taste of evil, but which raise and must raise the whole level of civilised pleasures among the people who practice them.

"Music knows no national barrier; music is not subject to the limitations which unhappily beset language. Music speaks to men of all races and of all tongues."

Costly Pennies.

Who was Wigla? Numismatists know, and gave £449 for two of his silver pennies at Sotheby's. Wiglaf, or Withlafe, as his name is sometimes spelt in the old chronicles, was that King of Mercia tributary to Egbert, first King of England, and held nominal sway between 825 and 839. His silver penny, without bust, with a cross in centre and a pellet in each angle within a beaded centre on the obverse, and lunettes and pellets on the reverse, caused exciting bidding, which reached £275 (Spink). Only one other of this particular type is known, and it is fortunately in the British Museum. Another Wigla penny, with a rude head in a circle and a cross-crosslet in centre of reverse, realised £174 (Lincoln). This was found at Dorking in 1817. The sale was that of the famous Rashleigh collection. A penny of Egberht (786-791)—not to be confounded with Ecgberht, son of Offa of Mercia, but the King of Kent mentioned in old charters—without a bust, but with the King's name, made £153 (Lincoln). Only three other coins of this type are known, two being in the Hunter Museum, Glasgow. An East Anglian penny of Eadvald, 819-827, realised £82 (Lincoln), and one of Jaenberht, who was Archbishop of Canterbury between 765 and 790, £36. This was discovered near Notley Abbey, and wears the names of Offa and the Archbishop. In the digging of the foundation for the Martyrs' Memorial at Oxford, another of this prelate's pennies was found, and this fetched £20. A penny with the disdemed bust of Cynethryth, who was Offa's Queen, made £30 (Spink).

Lord Balcarres as a Walker.

It was Lord Balcarres, a trustee of the National Portrait Gallery, who announced the saving to England of Holbein's picture, "The Duchess of Milan." His lordship has crowded much good work into his thirty-seven years of life. Not only has he distinguished himself in the cause of art and architecture — he is a trained architect—but he has also served the state in the House of Commons as one of the Unionist Whips. A notable characteristic is his rapid walk. "Burns' gallop is nowhere in it with Balcarres' walk," growled a recalcitrant member on one occasion after being fetched back to the never-ending divisions while trying to escape. "It's no good unless you are streets ahead."

Helping the Enemy.

A coal heaver was getting in a load of coal in the suburbs of London. He was shoveling in the coal at a good rate when he was startled by a terrific yell from the house adjoining.

"Wot the dickens is the matter?" queried the coal man, starting up.

A dishevelled looking individual made his appearance at the door.

"Matter, you thickhead!" shouted the man, frantically endeavoring to pull his hair up in slots by the roots. "You are putting the coal down the wrong hole. My wife's people live there!"—London Tit-Bits.

Self-Supporting Blind.

Of the students at the Royal Normal College for the Blind, South London, Eng., nearly 90 per cent. are self-supporting.

The footprints of Dyspepsia have been directly traced to the Stomach nerves. When these "inside nerves" fail, indigestion and stomach distress must surely result. For this complaint druggists everywhere are supplying a prescription known as Dr. Shoop's Restorative. First, these tiny inside Stomach, Heart and Kidneys nerves fail. Then gas bloating, Heart Palpitation, or failing Kidneys follow. Don't drug the Stomach, or stimulate the Heart or Kidneys. That is wrong. Strengthen these failing nerves with Dr. Shoop's Restorative. It is the nerves, not the organs that are calling for help. Within 48 hours after starting the Restorative treatment you will realize the gain. A test will cost you nothing. Sold by all Druggists.

FORTUNE FOR FARMERS.!

C.P.R. Land Commissioner Expects Big Money From Wheat Crop.

Montreal, Aug. 25.—"With ordinary harvest conditions, this season's grain crop should be worth at least 125 million dollars to the western farmers," said Mr. F. T. Griffin, land commissioner for the Canadian Pacific Railway, at Winnipeg, to the Star, this morning. "The demand for harvesters has been very great, but I understand that at the present time the supply is well up to the demand."

August time tells on the nerves. But that spiritless, no ambition feeling can be easily and quickly altered by taking what is known to druggists everywhere as Dr. Shoop's Restorative. Within 48 hours after beginning to use the Restorative, improvement will be noticed. Of course full health will not immediately return. The gain, however, will surely follow. And best of all, you will realize and feel your strength returning. Outside influences depress first the "inside nerves" then the stomach, Heart, and Kidneys will usually fail. Strengthen these failing nerves with Dr. Shoop's Restorative, and see how quickly health will be yours again. Sold by all dealers.

PATENTS PROMPTLY SECURED

NEW ZEALANDER ON ENGLAND.

Sir Robert Stout Delivers a Sharp Criticism on Old Land.

Sir Robert Stout, ex-Premier and present chief justice of New Zealand, has very definite ideas on the consequences of England's failure as world-power. Sir Roberts knows the Antipodes as a man who has spent nearly all his life there, going out from the Shetland Islands at the age of 14, and returning to Great Britain for the first time now at the age of 65. He also knows New Zealand as one who has been chiefly concerned in building up the Island Dominion.

In an interview with the navy builder of 1895, Wm. T. Stead, he declares that England suffers chiefly from slackness and illogical views. The non-Conformists, for example, wish to disestablish the church, and at the same time establish religion in the parish school.

Laborers are very slack in their methods, and three men are needed to do the work of one. The young Englishmen are not equal to the New Zealanders and the farms are not well cultivated. There is lack of enterprise, care and energy on the part of the manufacturer. As a result Americans captured the best part of the New Zealand trade. The habit of fuddling, on which $800,000,000 a year are spent in England, is another source of national weakness noted by Sir Robert.

"We hope there will be no war," said the New Zealander, "and if war should come we hope Britain will be victor. But do not make any mistake about it. If by any disaster any foreign power were to dictate a peace in London which transferred New Zealand to the conquerer, the next day we should hoist the Stars and Stripes, the only other flag save that of the Union Jack under which New Zealanders would live."

Sir Robert should pay a visit to Canada.

Boom on Rand.

After a long interval it is once more quite "boom time" in Johannesburg. It is generally agreed that prospects have never been so good since 1895. All classes of business are already feeling the effects of better times. Activity on the Stock Exchange is enormous, for the public have at last fairly "gone into it."

One feature of the moment is the immense amount of pegging of claims going on in the surrounding district. Thousands of claims allowed to lapse in times of depression have been taken up again, and many flotations are probable, but there are fears in some quarters that this may be overdone and produce a reaction.

The general view, however, is that the upward tendency will last. The reduced working costs on mines have made payable the working of millions of tons of reef which hitherto have not been a profitable proposition, and at the same time have immensely increased the profits of the more valuable mines.

It is regarded as a good sign that so far the improvement has not produced the mania of gambling which marked the 1895 "boom." In the commercial part of the town traders report a marked increase in trade, especially in luxuries, such as pianos, motor-cars, carriages and horses, which first felt the bad times.

There are strong hopes that the wave of prosperity will result in the opening up of new mines and that it will thus absorb the unemployed.

Two Female Quixotes.

Two women in Natal are at present engaged in fighting the whole force of the British Government. The battle waged by the Misses Colenso—two sisters—is carried on without visible signs of outward warfare, and yet it is a struggle as daring, as strenuous, and a adventurous as any real engagement. Embarked in a quixotic attempt to rescue the native chief, Dinizulu, from the coils of British diplomacy, they have spent almost every cent they had in the world. For the last five years the elder sister, Harriet, has been the guide, philosopher and friend of the native chief, and remained near him while he waited in prison until her efforts got him out, only to be tried and re-convicted on another count. The devotion of the Colenso sisters to the cause of the black chief has won the respect of even their inveterate enemies, the English foreign wire-pullers, who wish to turn the land of Dinizulu over to white explorers.

No white people in the whole of South Africa have greater knowledge and experience of the Natal natives than the two sisters. They are the daughters of the famous Bishop Colenso, first and last Bishop of Natal, who devoted his life to studying the needs and ministering to the spiritual wants of the black men.

Lady Bancroft's Lovebird.

My wife had lost a little green parrot, for the return of which I offered a reward of ten shillings, giving our address, but no name. One of the newspapers, however, had a paragraph headed, "Lady Bancroft's Lost Lovebird." It was my privilege, with others, to receive at this period our present King and Queen—then Prince and Princess of Wales—at the Botanical Gardens, when His Royal Highness produced a newspaper cutting and said: "I think I have Lady Bancroft's lost bird. One of the bread was flying about for some days in the garden at Marlborough House, and a gardener succeeded in catching it this morning. Pray go and see if it is yours, as I hope it may be; but, mind, I shall claim the reward." I replied, "Certainly, sir; it is small, but appropriate, being—half a sovereign."—From "The Bancrofts: Recollections of Sixty Years."

His Four Seasons.

An amusing story is told by Sir W. H. Holland of the answer given by a London waif to a Salvation Army captain. The zealous officer had asked the boy what work he did to provide him with food, etc., and the reply was: "I pick strawberries in the summer, I pick hops in the autumn I pick pockets in the winter, and oakum for the rest of the year."

The Bladderwort.

The aquatic plant the bladderwort feeds on animal life. The tiny bladders attached to the leaves and leaf stalks are each furnished with a door, the whole acting on the rat trap principle. Any small water creature that ventures to peep in is seized in the clutches of the murderous plant and is at once swallowed and assimilated.

Ant Proof Woods.

Use is made in the south sea islands of boxes made of camphor wood or American white cedar, because ants and other insects have an aversion for these woods. The natives use such boxes for trunks.

A HUNGRY TIGER.

Persistent Attack on a Camp Reported From India.

The Indian mail brings the story of an exciting adventure which befell a surveying party in Assam. They were attacked by a tiger. The party were working in the Lushai hills adjoining the Cachar district of Assam, and the tiger appeared at the camp of surveyor Gopal Singh. It sprang at the surveyor and one of his khalasis, but fortunately touched neither of them, and disappeared as suddenly as it had come. Three days later the tiger returned, and seized a khalasi, who was washing his cooking pots in a stream 20 yards from the camp. A native armed with a stick, rushed to the rescue, and tried to beat the tiger off. When other men arrived the brute dropped its prey and disappeared again. In a few minutes it was back again. In spite of the shouts of the natives it seized the plucky native who had gone to the rescue of the first man. Once more it was driven off, and again it returned, this time to seize a third khalasi.

Frightened away again, the beast left the camp, but the party sat up all night surrounded by a chain of fires. At daybreak they proceeded to a Lushai village. An armed party set off for the abandoned camp to collect the goods left behind. They found that the tents, bedding, blankets, and bags of rice had been dragged about by the tiger, and on a sight-rule and plane-table were marks of the brute's fangs. When Mr. Williams, the camp officer, met the party all the men were so profoundly affected that not one of them could speak above a whisper. They begged not to be sent back to the same locality, but to be allowed to work for the rest of the field season in the open cultivated country. The first man seized by the beast died four days afterwards.

NEW VEGETABLE FIBER.

Australian Marine Plant Possesses Valuable Properties.

In Australia there was recently discovered an extraordinary fiber of marine growth which by reason of the vast amount of the deposit and the remarkable qualities of the fiber is expected to prove of great commercial importance.

This fiber is the result of the sheddings of the leaf sheathing of a sea grass botanically known as Posidonia australis and so far has been found only in Spencer Gulf, South Australia, where the sheddings have been imprisoned by the action of wind and waves in the sand flats of the gulf.

The uses of the fiber are found by experiments made by competent persons to be many and varied, and it possesses unique qualities. It will spin and weave in union with wool and will also take dye equally well, being so far as is known the only vegetable fiber to do this. It is practically noninflammable, its charring point being 373 degrees F., and it is to that extent a nonconductor, unlike cotton. It does not shrink and has more resilience than kapok. It is also found to be as good for ship calking as oakum.

Blankets and cloth woven of a mixture of wool and this fiber, together with samples of the fiber in various stages of production from plant to yarn, are now on view in the sample room of one of the leading wool houses in Australia, and the manufactured articles are being most favorably commented upon by those interested in the textile industries. On account of its splendid dyeing properties it can also be used in the making of carpets; also for coir matting, hessian, bagging, woolpacks, and it appears difficult to say to what other uses with proper machinery it cannot be put.

War on Bicycles.

"Give me ten thousand well-disciplined cyclists and I will guarantee to hold up any invading army that attempts to land on our shores," once remarked that ardent believer in the utility of the bicycle in warfare, Gen. Sir Charles Douglas. In this connection he tells an amusing story. He was carrying out some cyclist manoeuvres, and found a troop of men sitting calmly under a hedge watching an opposing force of cyclists rapidly aproaching them. "Don't you worry about those chaps, sir," said the young officer. "I have peppered their road pretty well with sixpennyworth of tin tacks. Wait till they get off to mend their punctures and I will round the whole of them up in something like no time."

On the Royal Menu.

Sir Harry Johnston once had the grim experience of being captured by a cannibal king, who genially informed him that he was to form the "piece de resistance" of the royal menu that evening. "Eat me if you like," was Sir Harry's calm reply; "but if you do, the Great White Mother will send her soldiers, and you and your wives and your people will all be killed." This made the king waver, and after a consultation with his court he decided to forego the meal. But it was not enough for the captive. "You must send me down the river in your best barge," he announced, "till my white brothers meet me." And so great an impression had his sang-froid created that this was no sooner said than it was done.

Dr. Grace on Murdoch's Golf.

Here is a story about the famous Australian cricketer, W. H. Murdoch, in connection with golf. Murdoch, it seems, drove into a deep sand-bunker, and once in it was completely hidden from the view of the spectators. However, the ball came out amid the usual shower of sand, and the stroke was duly applauded. "At lunch one of the members remarked on Billy's excellent recovery, when Billy, having taken it all in quite seriously, whispered to me, 'Knew I should never get out of that blessed hole, so I took a double handful of sand and the ball and flung 'em out.'"—From "W. G.'s Little Book."

What to Push.

"Any one," remarked the old gentleman, "can build up a fortune if he has plenty of push."

"That depends upon the way the push is applied," rejoined the wise youth. "There isn't much money in pushing a peanut or a lawn mower."—St. Louis Republic.

Their Training.

"I should think baseball men would be particularly useful in the army in actual warfare."

"Why especially baseball men?"

"Because they would know better than others how to fight a pitched battle."—Boston Transcript.

ARMY CORPS CALLED OUT.

Utmost Efficiency Shown In Recent Mobilization.

A British army corps was called out for war the other day, and afforded a fine object-lesson of how quickly and effectively British troops can be organized nowadays.

Never before in the history of the British army has so unexpected, and yet so complete, a mobilization been carried out. Nearly twenty thousand men of all arms were lined up ready to entrain, and it was only by the absence of a call to the Reservists that the feat differed from what the authorities hope to effect in case of an actual or threatened invasion.

No warning of what was coming was given. At six o'clock in the morning Lieut.-Gen. Smith-Dorrien rode down to the headquarters' office and gave the order for the alarm to be sounded, followed by the order for every unit in his command to turn out as rapidly as possible, fully mobilized, and ready for active service.

The military telephones linking up the barracks were soon busy with the order, and mounted orderlies carried the summons to those officers who live out of barracks.

Some of the battalions were already in the field; the Gloucesters, for instance, having left barracks at four o'clock for a long day's operations. They were summoned back by mounted men and cyclist messengers, and within the hour every barracks was the centre of activity.

Wagons were dragged out and loaded with stores, water-carts filled, ammunition drawn from the magazines and distributed, and field dressings and emergency rations issued to the men with their metal identity discs and pocket ledgers.

For some time past the chiefs of staff have been working at this mobilization scheme to render it perfect for a sudden call, and the test that was being applied could only be equalled by the actual call of war. Indeed, among many of the troops the belief was accepted that an invasion was an accomplished fact.

The telegraph wires had carried the news to those officers and men away on week-end leave, and the early trains to Aldershot were filled with anxious soldiers, who on reaching the stations raced up to their barracks, to appear in a short space of time accountred and equipped for service.

Six hours was the time given for the units to get on parade, ready to move off, but so perfect was the machinery that in the great majority of cases little more than half that time was needed to report all ready.

From the Army Service Corps barracks parties of butchers and bakers, clerks, saddlers, and artificers marched off to join the brigade and divisional headquarters, every man having his allotted place and his special duties.

No confusion marked the preparations, and long before the allotted time was up nearly 20,000 men, artillery, cavalry, and infantry, with engineers and supply transport services, were marching out of barracks to go wherever needed.

To Punish the Mullah.

Col. Gough, says a report from Aden, according to present arrangements, will begin military operations this month against the Somaliland mullah, who has continued to harass the friendly tribes.

It is understood that the operations will take the form of flying columns, composed of mounted infantry and irregulars, which will endeavor to round up the elusive enemy.

Practically everything is now ready, and ample native troops on the spot are being supplied with white officers.

The chief difficulty is, as it has always been, transport. British agents have been buying animals all along the Red Sea, but prices have been high, particularly for camels. The Emperor Menelik has, moreover, forbidden the export of these animals from his territory.

It is thought that Sir Reginald Wingate, who has arrived in the country from Cairo, will, from his experience of Soudan "drives," be able to give Col. Gough some useful advice.

Berbera is the base of the new operations, which will cover a wide area. The British Government has for some time been collecting information as to the situation, particularly along the northwestern Somaliland border, and the authorities are very hopeful of success.

St. Fillan's Bell.

Early in the nineteenth century a bell was stolen from Killin, in Perthshire. This bell, which was said to have been used by St. Fillan, was supposed to possess marvelous healing powers, and was placed on the heads of all the mad people, who were brought to be dipped in the saint's pool, in order to complete the cure.

Popular opinion had it that the bell, which was not very large, would extricate itself from the hands of any one who stole it and return home, ringing all the way. The antiquary who finally annexed it explained his action by a desire "to abate superstition."

A Mild Reproach.

One cold morning little Elsie was being bathed by her mother, and usually her bath was a great delight to her. But this morning her mother talked incessantly while she worked.

Elsie loved her dearly and tried hard to be patient. But the lecture was so tiresome! Her mother was laying out a course of conduct for the day, and it was all so old. She had heard it over and over again.

Finally she said very sweetly, but very wearily: "Please, mamma, don't talk any more. You do make such a draft!"

Jerry Needn't Bother.

It was the beloved and lamented Monsignor Connolly, of the Church of St. John the Baptist, at St. John, N.B., who noticed an old parishioner stealing a glance at his watch as the text was read out one fine summer morning.

"It's just twenty minutes past eleven, Jerry Callahan, and at a quarter to twelve I'll be through, so you can save yourself the trouble of taking your watch out of your pocket," said his reverence, and proceeded with the sermon.

If Sick

Don't risk even one single penny!

And I will tell you why I say this.

It is because every package of Dr. Shoop's medicine is absolutely free if it fails.

No one need risk even one single penny.

Just think what this means to the suffering sick!

No risk, my purse, nothing whatever unless health like yours, or as it fail days, and without the risk of a cent, a penny, you can use either of my two [illegible]—Dr. Shoop's Restorative or Dr. Shoop's [illegible].

Then why take any chance anywhere?

Why purchase any medicine whose maker dare not back it just as I do by this remarkable offer?

And besides, I am no stranger to you. My [illegible] are [illegible] and made Dr. Shoop's Restorative [illegible] every village everywhere in the land. They [illegible] to take no chance whatever here.

For twenty years Dr. Shoop's medicines have become thoroughly established all over [illegible]. And I have [illegible] and honest and responsible druggist in [illegible] every village everywhere to act as my [illegible] agent. These selected druggists are [illegible] with the sick—and the entire risk is mine alone.

But write me first for an order.

I have an agent in almost every community—but all druggists are not authorized to grant the 30 day test.

So drop me a line, please—and thus save all disappointments and delays.

Besides, you are free to consult me by letter as you would your home physician. Do so freely and fully—if you desire. My advice and the book below are yours—and without cost. Perhaps a word or two from me will clear up some serious ailment. I have helped thousands upon thousands by my private prescription or personal advice plan.

Besides, the books will open up new and helpful ideas to you. They tell of my 35 years experience at the bedside in the home and in Hospitals. All phases of [illegible] and ruled are told of here. They [illegible] "inside nerve" no larger than a [illegible] that gives to the Heart its impulse. How the Stomach and Kidneys each have their inside or power nerve. How these organs surely falter when these controlling or master nerves begin to fail. How Dr. Shoop's Restorative goes direct to these failing nerves, and rebuilds, and vitalizes [illegible] restores the lost tone and power. APPETITE GONE—NERVES BADLY RUN DOWN

A Strong Moral Well Exemplified in Mrs. Wilson's Case

Like thousands of other people at this season of the year Mrs. E. P. Wilson was tired and worn out—wintersorely tired her health and vigor. But now she is robust and well, eats well, sleeps well, feels invigorated and braced. "For some years," writes Mrs. Wilson of Watmore, P. O., "I suffered from systematic weakness, billiousness and depressing headache, I could take little nourishment and grew thin and pale. If I ate a hearty meal the result was dreadful. Pains started at my chest, and spread all through my body going across my stomach, back and right side. I was discouraged till a friend insisted on me taking Dr. Hamilton's Pills. They made a new woman of me, and for the past eight months my health has been perfected For a good cleaning, rejuvenating medecine I urge every one to use Dr. Hamilton's Pills."

There is extraordinary and magic power in Dr. Hamilton's Pills; they bring vigor, tone, health and spirits—are compounded from the most wonderful and healing juices and essence and old and guaranteed to kindle renewed activity and strength of every system that is weak, sickly or run down from kidney, liver, stomach or bladder trouble. Alderman Morgan Has a New Fad

Ald. Morgan has a new fad now, he is going in for dogs and expects in a short time to have quite a kennell. His first purchases are a Boston bull, a Scotch terrier, and a collie. All the dogs have a pedigree and are trained to entertain the neighbors on moonlight nights and on circus days. They will also bark at all persons desirous of entering the premises and are early risers. The collie is an especially well trained animal. At 5 a.m., he will get the alderman's slippers and take them to the bedside and lick the sand piles from his master's eyes. The Boston bull assists him in eating the tough steaks, while the terrier rouses all the neighbors before breakfast. If he is successful with the dogs the Ashburnham alderman thinks he might go in for game cocks and beauty hens.

Chamberlain's Stomach and Liver Tablets gently stimulate the liver and bowels to expel poisonous matter, cleanse the system, cure constipation and sick headache. 3

Mr. G. Walter Green with a number of employees left for Toronto yesterday morning and will be engaged in installing the exhibit of machinery recently sent by the company to be shown at the Toronto Fair.

The engagement is announced at Brighton, Ont., of Miss Dora A. Lazier, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. F. H. Lazier, to Mr. Glen R. White of Trenton. The marriage will take place the fourth week in September. —Toronto Star.

When the stomach fails to perform its functions, the bowels become deranged, the liver and the kidneys congested causing numerous diseases. The stomach and liver must be restored to a healthy condition and Chamberlain's Stomach and Liver Tablets can be depended upon to do it. Easy to take and most effective. 1

PRICE OF COAL REDUCED.

Lindsay Citizens Will Have Smaller Coal Bills.

Lindsay Aug. 26.—The price of coal will in all probability be reduced in in Lindsay in the near future, as the result of a meeting held yesterday afternoon in Lindsay of the Canadian Retail Merchant's Coal Association. Mr. William Herman, of London, president of the association, and Mr. R. J. Webster, secretary, also of London, were in attendance at the meeting, three very important points were fully discussed by the members present from Lindsay and the surrounding places.

The three points discussed, providing the association can obtain them, will reduce the price of coal considerably.

In Lindsay the business assessment on the coal merchants is 50 per cent of the value of their property, while the other merchants only pay 35 per cent. In Toronto the coal merchants only pay 25 per cent. business tax, for the simple reason that they have a strong association and appealed to the Government and were granted the reduction. The towns did not appeal to the Government and the result is they are compelled to pay the 50 per cent. tax, which adds to increase in the price of coal. It was decided yesterday to appeal to the Government and ask for a lower rate, which will likely be granted.

FREIGHT RATES

Another important point discussed was the equalization of freight rates. The freight rates from Black Rock to Lindsay are $1.15 per ton, which is considered altogether too high, and the association will ask the Railway Commission to look into the matter and try and have the rate reduced to $1 per ton, which is considered a fair freight rate.

This again will tend to reduce the price of coal in Lindsay.

Another benefit that the association obtained recently was that all coal is now re-weighed at the Suspension Bridge as well as at the the bridge. Previous to this arrangement they were compelled to pay for mines and the dealers have only to pay for what coal is on the cars at the coal on the cars at the mine.

The local merchants claim that they lost considerable in a year for the reason that a certain amount of coal fell off the cars and considerable was stolen. At any rate the cars as a rule were short in weight.

The merchants also have the privilege of weighing the coal in Lindsay if they so desire, but they consider that they lose very little coal from the Bridge to Lindsay, consequently they do not weigh it here.

The two first-named points are very important and if the proposed reduction in the freight rates and the assessment are obtained the price of coal will be reduced.

Chief Howard Talks to Men on His Trip to Chiefs' Convention

The members of Peterborough Fire brigade are receiving the benefit of Chief Howard's visit to the Fire Chief's convention in Grand Rapids, Mich. The chief reported for duty yesterday noon and last night gave the first of a series of talks to the firemen. This, the men appreciate very much, and thoroughly enjoyed the one last night.

The chief told of Ald. Buller and he visiting Detroit for a few hours on the way over and of having travelled from that city to Grand Rapids with the head officials of the International Association.

On the morning after the arrival in Grand Rapids they were up early and spent two hours at the Exhibition Hall, looking at the fire fighting apparatus being shown. To begin to enumerate what was in that building would take hours. One thing, however, was a new electrical switch board. It was a most handsome affair, and was very ornamental as well as extremely useful, embodying as it does, all the latest improvements. It can be operated and installed for any kind of battery. At night it is illuminated with electric bulbs and is very pretty.

On the second day, or the first day ofths convention proper, the delegates met at headquarters, and marched in a body to the convention hall, where fully 3000 people had congregated. Rev. Dr. Sterling, a Baptist minister, opened with prayer. This was followed by an address of welcome from the mayor of the city, and from the governor of the state. Then the business of the convention was begun. Several very fine papers were read and commented upon. During the morning, Chief Howard and Chief Tremblay of Montreal drew attention to the fact that not a single Union Jack was to be seen anywhere in the city or the hall and for a while this created quite a stir. But it was explained that this was an oversight, and the Grand Rapids chief officially apologized to the Canadian delegates. After luncheon the two above mentioned chiefs with Chief Thompson of Toronto, were called to the platform and were presented with Union Jacks amid tremendous applause and cheering. More papers and more discussion followed until about 6 o'clock.

After supper the delegates were taken in automobiles to John Ball Park to see the illuminators. The chief said that he could not begin to describe them. The nearest comparison he could think of was a dream of heaven. The next morning at 4 o'clock they were all rooted out of bed and taken for a two hour drive around the city in cabs. Then breakfast and back to work at the meeting. This was the program every day, and at night there were sessions which lasted quite late.

ROBBERS BUSY.

In the hotel where Chief Howard was staying several of the delegates complained of having lost their money, but no attention was paid to it, until one morning about four o'clock the chief was awakened by his room mate who was grappling with a robber. So much noise was created that the whole house was aroused, and men and women crowded into the corridors. Chief Howard grabbed the robber, who was a guest at the hotel, just as he was going into his own room, and got him on the floor and held him until the police arrived. The man was arrested, and later the police returned and arrested the fellow's wife, also. Their room and belongings were searched. It turned out that the two were a pair of crooks, who, the police had been hunting for for years, and they belonged to a bad gang. Chief Howard was thanked by the chief of police for his assistance in the arrest.

By thistime it was 8 o'clock and time for the nightly hitch up and the lecture was adjourned for another night.

Benson Ave. Walk

shown where the city would be benefitted.

Alc. Duncan said his own opinion was that the walk should go inside, but that did not excuse Ald. Phelan's action. He believed Ald. Phelan had ignored his committee and he personally had felt sore about it all summer. There has been work done all over the city that the committee knows nothing about. So far as he was concerned only about two meetings of the Board of Works had been held this year, and there should have been two every month. He referred to the Charlotte street walk which was moved and carried at the last meeting of the council, which Ald. Phelan had ignored.

Ald. Buller said he would support the walk going outside the tree line providing the city purchased property on the other side of the street so as to widen the roadway, but not otherwise.

Ald. Gillespie thought the matter should go back to the Board of Works. It should have been settled there before and there only. The chairman should consult his committee.

City Engineer Hay arrived at this time. He said the first block of the walk was completed and a lot of foundation built. He gave the levels for the inside and the engineers for the Normal School had made his levels accordingly.

Ald. Metheral favored the walk going outside the trees.

Moved by Ald. Turner, seconded by Ald. Morgan that the sidewalk on Benson street be built outside the tree line provided the property owners graded their property to suit the sidewalk in that position and that Mr. Pentland remove his barn.

Ald. Phelan moved in amendment, that the original report of the Board of Works be carried out, viz., to put the walk inside the tree line. He got no seconder.

Ald. Turner's motion was then put and the vote resulted in a tie. It was then up to the mayor, and his worship said that he would not go back on the chairman of the Board of Works and the city engineer.

This closed the matter so far as the council was concerned.

MR. OLIVER OPTIMISTIC.

Ottawa, August 23.—Hon. Frank Oliver, Minister of the Interior, who has been in England and on the continent for over two months inquiring into immigration matters, returned home this morning. Mr. Olive takes a very optimistic view of the immigration prospects. He says that interest in Canada is steadily developing and becoming of a more intelligent character. Not so many emigrants are leaving as was the case a few years ago, but what is lost in quantity is made up in quality.

"I came over with four hundred of them on the Laurentic," he remarked, "and there was very little to distinguish the third from the first-class."

The Englishmen coming to Canada now, the Minister states, are principally from the country and provincial towns. The Scotch are sending out a good class. From Ireland the outlook is not so favorable. The people in the south particularly, are inclined to go to the United States.

There is a fairly good prospect for Belgian immigration, but the Frenchman is disposed to stay at home. Restrictions put on by Germany are keeping its people from leaving. Only 8,000 of its population emigrated last year.

Really the best outlook is now afforded by Belgium, Holland and Scandinavia, in addition to the British Isles. The greatest advertisement to the foundry is the free and satisfied settler writing home.

VOL. XXXII NO. 202 PETERBOROUGH, ONTARIO, MONDAY AUGUST 30 1909 PRICE TWO CENTS

Peterboro' Man Has Grip Returned to Him with $18,000 in Bonds

Montreal, Aug. 28. — The happiest man in Montreal today is F. J. Gosselin, cattle dealer, of 45Cresent St. Peterborough.

Exactly a month ago Mr. Gosselin was in Montreal, and lost a valise containing bonds and other papers worth $18,000. Last night he had that valise returned to him intact, not a paper being missing.

On July 28th Mr. Gosselin left his home in Peterborough on a pilgrimage to St. Anne de Beaupre. He traveled on a special train from Peterborough and carried the $18,000 valise with him, meaning to transact some business on the way here. On his arrival here he made a chance acquaintance and dined with him. It appears that he was drugged, for he awoke the next morning in a strange room, and his clothing, with $110 in cash and the valuable valise had disappeared.

After reporting the matter to the detectives he borrowed some money from a friend, and returned home. The detective found the cabman who had driven Gosselin around the night he lost the valise. He found the House where Gosselin had been drugged, and discovered that the people were honest and had been keeping the bag, thinking that the owner would return for it. They had not opened it, and were unaware of its value. He received the bag from the detectives last night.

Mr. Stratton Filed a Cross Petition and Makes 139 Charges

Toronto, Aug. 28.—Mr. James R. Stratton, M.P., filed at Osgoode Hall this morning his cross-petition against J. H. Burnham.

Mr. Stratton makes 139 specific charges against Mr. Burnham or his agents. In conclusion Mr. Stratton says:—

"The respondent did, between Aug. 10 and 26, 1908, conspire with F. E. Bradburn, M.P.P., James Keeley, E. G. Patterson and others, to corruptly influence certain electors who are employes or ex-employes of the Canadian General Electric Company, directly or indirectly, by giving or procuring or promising or agreeing to give or procure places of employment in the factories of the Canadian General Electric Company, in order to induce such employes or ex-employes to vote for the said respondent."

Mr. Stratton also charges that the respondent did conspire with James Keedry, Rowland M. Waddell Peter Gardiner, Herbert Keedry, J. C. Wilkins, and others, to corrupt electors by collecting a large campaign fund for purposes of bribery, hiring conveyances, paying transportation, treating, paying canvassers, and other corrupt and illegal acts, to corruptly influence the electors to vote for the respondent.

Dr. McPherson Does Not Want the Presidency

In the Toronto papers recently appeared the following announcement:—

Toronto, Aug. 27.—A general meeting of the O. R. F. U. will be held about the middle of next week, exact date to be announced later. Secretary Roy Clark has been in communication with a number of clubs and looks forward to a good year. Peterboro are organizing and will have a strong team in the senior series, as also will T. A. C., who were the winners last year. Central Y.M.C.A. will have a couple of teams, and the Capitals will hold a meeting any day now.

Lindsay won the junior championship last year, their first season's experience with a Rugby team, and will be out again.

As the rule allowing intermediate players to receive permits to play junior was abolished at the last annual meeting, it is hoped a strong intermediate series will be formed.

At the coming meeting of the O.R.F. U. the election of members of the executive to represent the junior and intermediate series will be held. Mr. J. C. Sherry, who was elected president, has moved to Elk City, and force of business compels him to resign his position, thus necessitating the election of a new president. The name of Dr. A. W. McPherson of Peterboro is mentioned for the office, and those who know the doctor, say no better choice could be made. He will likely be elected.

It is a well-known fact that Dr. A. W. McPherson could have the position of honor if he wished it or any other position in the gift of the association. The doctor, however, informed The Times that he did not want the position and could not take it. He can no longer afford to give the association the time so important a position would demand.

T.A.S. Annex the City League Championship Defeated Strathconas

The T.A.S. ball team put up another good exhibition of baseball at Riverside Park on Saturday afternoon and incidentally annexed the championship of the Senior City League for 1909-10. From the first innings to the last they played good snappy ball and had few errors to their credit. The Strathconas appeared to be on the field for the benefit of the T.A.S., to enable that team to display their superiority over any other ball team in the city. The Straths only got one run and that was in the ninth and looked very funny on the part of the T.A.S. infield. The losers played ball to spots and the field jollingly to them as the T.A.S. got most of their runs on wild throws, fumbles, and lack of headwork on the part of the Straths. All the scoring by the Abetusers was done in the second, third, and sixth innings. Had the boys played as well in these three as they did in the other six the score would have been much different and the game would have been closer.

For the winners Quinlan played a great game. He had been error in fielding a ball once, his throws in great form, and fanned a bunch of again. Mike O'Brien on first base, is the best man in the City League. He is not only a good first baseman, but he is a great batter, and the crowd delight in seeing him step up to the plate and swing on the horse hide. If he usually hits it and if he gets it right it is good for twooo, three bags.

The score on Saturday was 9-1 in favor of the T.A.S. and while the victory was popular one the crowd would have preferred to see a closer score.

KEEGAN PARDONED.

Mr. G. N. Gordon Successful in Getting Him Out of Central.

The secretary of state has notified Mr. G. N. Gordon that a pardon has been granted Joseph Keegan, the youth who was recently taken to the Central Prison, Toronto, together with Harold Innis, to serve a six months' sentence for entering the residence of Mr. John Landy, Bethune street, and stealing watch from the house. Innis was sent down for the same length of time on the same charge.

Mr. Gordon's application for the pardon was made on the grounds of Keegan's youth, and his previous good character. He also asked that Innis be pardoned, but has not yet received word of the minister of justice's action with regard to Innis.

NEW LIVERY.

An important business deal was put through last week whereby Mr. Morris O'Brien disposed of his livery business on Chamber street, to Mr. Merton Storey, son of Mr. J. A. Storey. The new proprietor will take possession this morning and will conduct a modern livery business. Mr. Storey is a young man of a very amiable disposition. He has a host of personal friends and there is no doubt but that he will have a very large patronage. Merton is a very good horseman and this is sufficient assurance that the horses and rigs will be kept in good condition.

Mother Screamed and Caught the Boy to Her Breast and Sprang Towards the Door—Husband Tri Towards the Door. — Husband Tried to Choke Her.

Toronto, Aug. 28]—Taxi Driver Alex. Gontier is indeed the god from the machine, for he has saved 6-year-old Almer Fred Hamilton from being stolen a second time from his mother, Mrs. C. E. Hamilton, 67 Cecil street, by his father, T. Frederick Hamilton, a typewriter salesman of St. Louis, Mo.

Shortly after full dark had fallen it was about 8.45 o'clock, a taxi turned into Cecil street from Huron street, and ran slowly along the north side, under the heavy shade of the wide-spreading elms which hems both curbs of the roadway. A woman, leading a bright little boy, crossed from the north to the south side, just opposite No. 57. The taxi too, was almost opposite when a low whistle sounded from the shade of the little verandah on the front of the house, and the motor stopped. Phe woman and child were just crossing the narrow strip of unfenced lawn before the house, when a man sprang from the taxi, and called, "Almer."

CLUNG TO HER CHILD.

The mother screamed and caught the boy to her breast and sprang towards the door. She recognized the voice. It was that of her divorced husband, and she guessed his errand. But the man was too quick for her. Just as she was stumbling up the steps the man caught her by the shoulders. Looking up she saw another man on the verandah, whom she recognized as a roomer who had come to her house that day. She called on him for help and he came to her.

But instead of helping her, this man grasped the lad, who was clinging to his mother's skirts and sobbing bitterly. Wrenching him away he ran with the screaming child to the taxi and jumped on the front of the waiting vehicle. The woman screamed and struggled desperately to follow, but her husband's fingers encircled her throat and his knee was upon her breast. The driver, Alex. Gontier, came to her aid, and, pulling her assailant away let her up. Then, as the man returned to the cab Gontier went back to his cab and the woman followed, striving to wrest the terrified child from the stranger, who still clutched him in his arms.

"HURRY YOU FOOL, HURRY."

"Get in; get in, and drive like hell!" shouted the husband to Gontier. "He's my son; I have a right to take him. Hurry you fool, for God's sake," he cried as the driver made no motion to start the car.

"You can't count me on this," replied Gontier, quietly, "I'm not doing any kidnapping."

Then the husband saw that his carefully laid plans had failed, foiled by the manhood of the chauffeur. Gontier would not move; the scream of the woman and the boy had attracted a number of people to the spot; the gathering was rapidly assuming the proportions of a crowd, and its sentiment was not friendly to the two men.

"I only wanted to see him," said the man; "let's go in and talk it over." The four, mother, son, father and the stranger whom Mrs. Hamilton knew as "Mr. West," went into the house. A few minutes later the two men came out and the taxi moved towards Spadina avenue.

A SHORT SESSION.

Next Legislature Will Finish in Six Weeks' Time.

Toronto, Aug. 29.—The day of long sessions of the Legislature has gone by. While the opening is still some time away, arrangements all indicate that the Legislature will be called about the middle of January, and that six weeks will see all the business transacted.

The fiscal year will close this year on October 31. This will give the departments time to completed reports for presentation to the House. When the session is called next winter the public accounts and the estimates will be laid on the table of the House the first week. There will be no delays, and a short session is looked forward to.

Forty Men and Six Women Eager to sell Their Blood to Miss Cele Kayser

MISS CELE KAYSER.

ARTHUR KAYSER.

New York, Aug. 28.—Forty men and six women are eager to sell their blood to Miss Cele Kayser, a pretty young girl, who is critically ill in St. Luke's hospital. Six of the men have been selected and one will be chosen.

This was a result of publication of the fact that the surgeons of St. Luke's Hospital had refused to draw any more vital fluid from the veins of Arthur Kayser, the young woman's brother, because a previous operation of transfusion in her behalf had weakened his constitution.

Miss Kayser, who is 22 years old, two years the senior of her brother is suffering from anaemia, and the medical men declare she is in imperative need of healthy blood. When the brother was rejected, much to his disappointment, the parents of the young woman advertised for volunteers, and as each one appeared he or she was sent to the hospital. The women were promptly dismissed on the suspicion that they might be seeking notriety, but the two score men were examined by the surgeon and their ranks were soon reduced to six.

Thirteen Witnesses will be Called at Inquest

The inquest tonight into the death of the late Arthur Bollard promises to prove very interesting. The report of the autopsy by Dr. Scott and Dr. Greer will be of importance, and the evidence of the several witnesses it is expected will bring out the true version of the fight which took place on Monday night between the deceased and the Jopling boys.

County Constable Moore was busy Saturday hunting up information and serving subpoenas on the witnesses. Eleven witnesses have already been notified to be present, including Miss Ada Minns. Messrs. Gordon Long, Victor Tully, Cullen and Harry Joplin.

Word was sent to Chief of Police Grassett of Toronto, to locate Herbert Marks, who with Miss Minns, are supposed to have been nearby or with Bollard when the trouble occurred. Marks is known to have gone to the Alexandra Apartments, Toronto, when he left Chemong, but he has since left there and gone to Muskoka.

County Crown Attorney R. E. Wood, K.C., states that the case will be thoroughly investigated at the inquest.

Postmortem Completed Remains Sent to Toronto

Dr. Scott and Dr. Greer completed Saturday afternoon their postmortem examination over the body of the late Arthur Bollard, who died suddenly at Chemong Friday afternoon. Dr. Scott will present the report to the coroner's jury this evening at 7.30 o'clock, and in all probability Dr. Greer will be called as a witness to corroborate the report.

Anything of the nature of the doctors' finding cannot be learned until tonight.

The parents of the deceased with Mr. and Mrs. McPherson returned to Toronto on Saturday at noon, and the remains were sent on to the city yesterday morning in charge of Mr. Donald Shook, who was a great friend of young Bollard. The funeral will be held today from the family residence on Berkley street. Several floral contributions were sent from friends and relatives in Peterborough along with the sincere sympathy of all in this district to the sorrow-stricken family.

Canadian World Hero He Sank with the Ship

Eccles of Winnipeg and Almonte, Help to Save People on Steamer Went Down to Death Calling for Ohio.

SELF-SACRIFICE OF THE NOBLEST ORDER

(Special to The Times.)

New York, Aug. 28.—The United Wireless Co., one of whose operators, G.E. Eccles of Winnipeg, perished in the sinking of the steamship Ohio off the Alaska coast today, received an account of the disaster from operator Booth at Ketchikan, Alaska, late today. Booth says: "About 1 a.m., I was sitting with my receivers clapped to my ears, having just finished working with Operator Eccles on Board the Ohio, when I was startled by hearing him call "C. Q. D., C.Q.D." I immediately answered.

"The steamships Humboldt and Rupert of the MacKenzie Bros.' Steamship Company happened to be near, and both called the Ohio, asking for her latitude. Eccles gave it immediately, and soon sent another message, 'Ship sinking fast—cannot hold out!'

"The Humboldt and Rupert both replied they were headed for the Ohio. Then came the final message—It was never finished. Passengers all off and adrift in small boats, captain and crew going off in last boat; waiting for me now—goodbye!

"I was unable to get him again," concludes Booth, "and I know he had gone down with his ship."

MIAKI BEY

(Special to The Times.)

Constantinople, Aug. 29.—Alarming news has been in circulation here for the last few days. It is rumored that the army of Miaki Bey is marching on Constantinople and an attack on the capital is feared.

A GAME CANADIAN.

Seattle, Wash., Aug. 28.—According to a wireless message last night Operator George Eccles, whose home is in Almonte, Ont., and the purser of the wrecked steamer Ohio, went below to search for the quartermaster and a steerage passenger. Unable to find them Eccles returned to his station and began sending a message. Just before the vessel made the plunge that carried her to the bottom, the operation was seen to leap from the wireless station. He fell on his head, and his apparently lifeless body rolled into the water, and was carried down by the whirlpool made by the sinking steamer.

HUNTER DOING WELL.

Prison Life Seems to Agree With Hunter.

The Post today had an interview with the governor and turnkey of the county jail, who said that Joseph Hunter, the man who is accused of shooting his wife at Bobcaygeon three weeks ago, conducted himself in much the same way as any ordinary prisoner. He did not suffer any from his confinement and ate with a keen appetite and apparent relish. Governor Jackson stated that Hunter was getting fat so well and hearty did he eat his meals.

"Does he seem to realize what he has done," asked the reporter.

"He must," answered the turnkey, "but he does not show it. In fact there is very little outward appearance of grief, thought I think he is sufferinginwardly."

"With your experience of human nature do you think the accused man is naturally inclined to criminality or was the deed done entirely under the influence of drink?" was the next question put by the reporter.

"He apparently had been drinking heavily," was the reply, "but he is deep and cunning."

"Does he ever make any reference to his crime?"

"None whatever, and I would most likely stop him if he did. He is very reticent and is probablyacting on the advice of his solicitors."

The governor says that Hunter sings a great deal, and when the Post reporter went down this morning Hunter was quietly humming some familiar little ditty.

"He looks," said the turnkey, "like a man well satisfied with himself and his work. When he was first brought in," explained Governor Jackson, "the prisoner remembered everything but the handling of strigges. The trial will be held towards the end of next month."—Lindsay Post.

Grossly Exaggerated are Many Stories Circulated of Chemong Tragedy

Inquest Into Death of Arthur Bollard Opened at Belleghem's—A Postmortem Ordered —Second Session Tonight

The death of Arthur Bollard, and the fight in which he participated on Monday night of last week are the talk of the whole district. Men, women and children are discussing it, and there is no sympathy whatever for the young man who was Bollard's opponent. Grossly exaggerated stories of the affair are in circulation and there seems to be no bounds to the imagination of some people. Nearly every person met with on the street has a different version of the affair. The stories run all the way from a friendly wrestling match to those which have Bollard all chewed and hammered to pieces.

The fact of the matter is that there is a great big doubt whether the affair on Monday night had anything to do with the young man's illness or death. The doctors who attended him refuse to express an opinion. They could find no outward signs of Bollard having been ward signs of Bollard having been injured. They state, or at least Dr. Scott stated, that he was somewhat puzzled. He had never seen a case of sickness the nature of Bollard's act just the same. He believes that the symptoms indicated inward trouble, the nature or cause of which he could not ascertain from the outside.

With these facts before them the public, should, in justice to themselves and all parties concerned, be guarded in their opinions. The inquest tonight in the county council chamber will reveal much, or at least it is expected to, as Dr. Scott will report on the result of the post mortem.

THE INQUEST.

At ten o'clock Saturday morning Coroner Dr. Gray opened the inquest into the death of Arthur Bollard. The first session was at Belleghem's undertaking establishment. The jury empanelled was as follows: Thos. Edgar, Milton Blewett, Robt. Scott, Herb. Scott, Robt. Telford, John Archer, Paul, Alex. McGregor, Sam Stenson, Robt. Bell, James Bell, James Young, Thomas Graham.

Mr. Robt. Scott, warden of the county, was chosen foreman.

Dr. Scott was the first witness called. He told of having been called to attend the late Arthur Bollard on Thursday afternoon. He reached Chemong Park about four o'clock. The young man was taken ill at 8 a.m., with vomiting, diarrhea. The patient complained of pains all through his abcomen. Took temperature and found it 101 3-5, pulse running about 144, or more than double normal. Witness examined heart and body but found no evidence of trouble.

The deceased said to the witness that during the scuffle on Monday night he had been caught in the privates. The doctor could find no swelling. Witness then waited around the park until about 5 o'clock. Deceased's mother said that he had passed some blood through the bowels. When witness left the patient was resting more comfortably.

Was called to the 'phone at 7.30, Thursday morning, and learned that deceased was very much depressed and he did not think he would get better. The pulse was gone from the wrist. Witness got two nurses who were at the park. Then he telephoned for Dr. Greer who got out about 10 o'clock. They applied all the restoratives and stimulants they could think of. The bowels passed some more blood. The doctors came to the city. In the afternoon the witness returned to the park with Dr. Halliday, and the young man died at 3.30 o'clock.

When asked to state the cause of death the witness said he preferred not to until he had performed a post mortem.

He never had a case like it before. There was no bleeding of the bowels.

Mr. D. O'Connell was present and witness told him that he did not expect the patient would die when he first saw him.

The coroner instructed Dr. Scott to perform the post mortem.

It was moved by Mr. Thos. Graham and Mr. Nelson Blewett, that Dr. Scott have an assistant at the post mortem examination.—Carried.

The inquest was then adjourned until 7.30 o'clock on Monday night.

Regiment Goes to Perth Instead of Brockville

The trip of the 57th Regiment to Brockville on Labor Day has been cancelled on account of outbreak of typhoid fever there. The regiment will instead go to Perth for the holiday and the men are assured of just as good a time as if the original program was carried out. A meeting of the officers was held on Saturday night when the above decision was arrived at.

Perth is a very pretty town of 6000 or 7000 people, and one of the features of the trip will be a sail down the little canal to the Rideau.

The weekly drill will be held tonight and all the men who wish to go next Saturday on the trip are requested to turn out tonight.

Armouries Built Too Low for the Grade of Collegiate Institute

Will the grade of the lawns and walks around the Collegiate Institute be lowered? Or will the appearance of the new armories be spoiled by having the grade too high? On Saturday afternoon representatives of the Dominion Government and of the Collegiate Institute were in consultation at Central Park. It appears that the armories have been built too low for the grade of the Collegiate Institute and to go ahead with the grading around the armories with a change will make quite a noticeable difference in the lawns.

A proposition was made to the Board of Education by the Government's representatives to lower the grade of the Collegiate lawns and walks to harmonize with the grade of the armory, the government to bear all the expense.

The members of the board of Education considered the matter, but decided to give no definite answer until Mr. Fuller, the chief architect for the government arrived in the city on Tuesday. He will address the board at its regular meeting tomorrow night. If he can convince the governors of the schools that the change will not alter the appearance of the Collegiate or will improve it the board may grant the request. Until then nothing will be done.

Cold in the Chest

Had Suffered for Weeks—Used Fourteen Different Remedies Without Effect.

CURED QUICKLY BY NERVILINE.

No stronger proof of the wonderful merit of Nerviline could be produced than the letter of Miss Lucy Mosher who for years has been a well-known resident of Windsor, N.S.

"I want to add my unsolicited testimonial to the efficacy of your wonderful liniment, "Nerviline", I consider it the best remedy for a cold sore throat, wheezing tightness in the chest, etc., and can state that for years our home has never been without Nerviline. I had a dreadful attack of cold, that settled on my chest, that fourteen remedies couldn't break up. I rubbed on Nerviline three times a day, used Nerviline as a gargle, and was completely restored. I have induced dozens of my friends to use Nerviline and they are all delighted with its wonderful power over pain and sickness.

TESTIMONIAL NO. 3785

"You are at liberty to publish this signed letter, which I hope will show the way to health to many that need to use Nerviline.

FOREST FIRES.

The Forestry Branch of the Interior Department has issued an interesting bulletin dealing with the damage caused by forest fires in Canada in 1908. The bulletin, which was prepared by H. R. McMillan, assistant inspector of Forest Reserves shows that during the year 835 forest fires of serious proportions occured in the Dominion. Upwards of 188,000 acres were burned over, causing the destruction of over fifty-six million feet of timber valued, including mills and improvements, at twenty-five and a half million dollars. Twenty-two lives were lost as a result of forest fires (all in British Columbia) and 2,404 were thrown out of employment. The cost of the fires to the public was nearly three hundred thousand dollars. Quebec province headed the list with 250 fires, then British Columbia came second with 235. In Quebec, however, the value of the timber destroyed was very slight, while in British Columbia forty million feet were destroyed, at a loss of twenty-five million dollars or over ninety per cent of the total destruction by fire in Canada. The destruction by fire in Manitoba and Alberta was very light, but in Saskatchewan timber valued at over twenty thousand dollars was burned. The heavy loss in British Columbia was due of course, to the great fire in the Crow's Nest Pass country, which destroyed Fernie and entailed a heavy loss of life. The fire on Vancouver Island it is estimated, caused the destruction of twenty-four million feet of timber.

TEACHING PATRIOTISM.

The phrase which adorns the front page of the new Ontario Readers, "One Flag, One Fleet, One Throne" may not prove to be an entirely happy one, in view of the difference of opinion that exists in this country in regard to the fleet question. The Weekly Sun characterizes that part of the motto relating to "one fleet" as having the appearance of a direct attack by the Government of the Province on the policy of the Dominion Government. It may not have been so intended; but its influence for good or mischief will depend on the use that is made of it.

It is very important, of course, that the schools should teach patriotism; but it should be real patriotism. There is seldom a scarcity of fighting patriotism in any country. It is important in its time and place but it is not the whole thing. In this age of peace movements it is really more important that citizens should learn to live nobly for their country than that they should die gloriously. The opportunities for dying gloriously are fortunately few and far between; the opportunities for living honestly and bravely are always with us. The politicians might render a better service to the country, in the cause of real patriotism by setting inspiring examples than by printing mottoes. Of the patriotism which manifests itself by faithful, honest and conscientious service there will never be too much; but that is the kind of patriotism that is not always attractive to the politicians. And yet it may require more real courage and more genuine patriotism on the part of a man in a position of power and influence to resist a bribe or a "pull" in the quiet and security of the private interview than ta lead a charge in the exritement and intoxication of a battle. For the one style of hero the bands play and the cannons boom; for the other—well, virtue is its own, and often its only reward.

AWAKENING OF SIBERIA.

In the Journal of the Canadian Bankers Association recently appeared an article by Mr. Alan Lethbridge upon the awakening of Siberia and the resultant Canadian opportunities Canada, he contends, through the proximity of Vladivostock, the harbour of Siberia, which is practically the same distance from Vancouver as Yokohama should be able to supply easily and economically a great proportion of the imported goods. Machinery, including agricultural is admitted duty free. Canadian agricultural machinery is already in active competition with German and United States machines in Western Siberia,, though the latter companies have made a strong bid to capture the market through granting more extensive credit facilities. The population has increased from 315,900 in 1905 to 528,400 in 1908. There is a steady demand continues the writer, for portable engines, boilers, pumps, wire rope, lumbering and saw-mill machinery, belting, packing etc., in all of which Canada could compete if it were possible to meet German and United States prices. Although a heavy tariff will do much to crush the trade in flour, the demand for canned meats and fruit will create a market, duty or no. Condensed milk has an enormous consumption. It would thus appear that a very large market is being built up across the Pacific, in which Canadian enterprise should reap satisfactory returns.

THE CHARTERED BANKS.

The next session of parliament will be a fiscal session. The decennial revision of the Bank Act will attract unusual attention. It is safe to say that Mr. Fielding will propose few changes, but many others will be suggested by private members, and some of them will find support on both sides of the House. One reform which may be urged, will relate to the matter of savings banks. At present a large part of the savings banks business is being transacted by the chartered banks. It is believed that many of the chartered banks should confine themselves to commercial business, and that in some way, long-time deposits should be conserved for people who desire long-time loans upon real estate security for buying and improving their homes It is also felt that the government savings banks, including the post office, are not getting their share of the business and that this is due to a large degree to defects in administration! Government inspection of banks may also be insisted upon in view of recent disclosures as to the Ontario Bank and the defunct Bank of St. Johns, Quebec. Mr. Pringle the Conservative member for Cornwall and Stormont, who was defeated at the last election, had made quite a study of the Bank Act and an anxiety on the part of the banks to eliminate a critic so well informed and aggressive. Unfortunately at present the Dominion Government is a chronic borrower and it hardly has a free hand in dealing with the situation.

CALL OF THE HOUNDS.

The time has come, we think when hounds should be excluded from the annual deer hunts, says an exchange During the hunting season, the woods swarm with hounds which keep the deer in such a perpetual fever of unrest and worry that half of those killed are so discolored as to make the poorest sort of venison—practically unfit to eat. And wherein lies the "sport," when all the hunter has to do is to lean up against a tree,or sit down on a log and enjoy his smoke or his flask of—water, and quietly wait until the hounds have driven the terrified deer almost up against the muzzle of his gun! We do not call that "sport"—[illegible] deer has no chance for its life as in the still—hunt where hounds are tabooed.

But, not only during the hunting season are hounds a menace to true sport, but at all seasons of the year they are apt to break away into the forest and chase the deer on their own account. It is just as natural for them to do so as it is for a duck to take to water. The only way to perserve our antlered beauties from utter extinction is to eliminate the hounds and limit each hunter to one deer during the season. Unless this is done, the deer will soon become as the buffalo, which once roamed our great Western plains in tens of thousands but which now consist of a few hundreds carefully protected by the Government.

TRYING TO BEAT FRANK GOTCH

George Kennedy to Hunt Wrestlers in Europe and Asia.

The season on wrestling will open in Montreal on September 24th, and will be conducted as usual under the auspices of the Canadian Athletic Association.

If the efforts of Mr. George Kennedy, the manager of the Association are successful some of the best wrestlers of Europe, and even Asia, will be seen on the mat at Sohmer Park this winter.

Mr. Kennedy will sail this week on the Laurentic for London, from there he will go to Paris, Vienna, Berlin. He will also tour Bulgaria, Roumania, Turkey and Russia, and will bring back with him according to present plans half a dozen of the highest class wrestlers in the world. New York from Naples.

"We are going to do everything we possibly can," said the wrestling promotor, "to bring out to this country a man who can beat Frank Gotch. I have in view one particular man, a Turk, who has beaten some of the best men in Europe, but in order to get to him we will have a 100 mile journey on mules through the rugged hills of Turkey, but we are going to get him here the stock of the Canadian Athletic Club will go up by leaps and bounds, for we will bring the best man in America here and beat them too.

"I expect to have this man here by Christmas time, and early next year we will be surprising if the Turk does not beat him.

"In addition to the Turk I intend bringing the best men from the other countries which I visit."

August time tells on the nerves. But that spiritless, no ambition feeling can be easily and quickly altered by taking what is known to druggists everywhere as Dr. Shoop's Restorative. Within 48 hours after beginning to use the Restorative, improvement will be noticed. Of course full health will not immediately return. The gain, however, will surely follow. And best of all, you will realize and feel your strength returning Outside influences depress first the "inside nerves" then the stomach, Heart, and Kidneys will usually fail. Strengthen those failing nerves with Dr. Shoop's Restorative, and see how quickly health will be yours again. Sold by all dealers.

$90,000—7 Per Cent.

9,000 Shares 7 Per Cent Cumulative Preferred Stock ($10 a Share) Offered at Par with 40 Per Cent Immediate Bonus of Common Stock. We Reserve the Right to Withdraw Offer Without Notice and to Return any Subscription Received Too Late. Previous Offerings Were Immediately Oversubscribed.

MORE THAN A THOUSAND BANK OFFICERS, LAWYERS, PHYSICIANS, MINISTERS, BUSINESS MEN AND OTHERS HAVE BECOME STOCKHOLDERS IN THE CIRCLE PUBLISHING COMPANY WITHIN THE PAST FEW MONTHS.

Presidents and Cashiers of Banks, Presidents and other officers of Insurance Companies and of prominent business concerns who are thoroughly qualified to pass upon the soundness of such a proposition have comended the investment and have put their own money into it.

Many leading Physicians, Ministers and Educators in all the big cities of the United States and several in Europe have very highly endorsed THE CIRCLE MAGAZINE and THE CIRCLE PUBLISHING COMPANY, and have been glad to become part owners in the enterprise.

These men, and a good many splendid women, also, have known THE CIRCLE for several years and have watched it grow better and stronger constantly. They know what a sterling good property it is; they know that it is founded on a plan that ought to success, and they know that it is held always true to that plan; they know from personal experience that its business methods are good, careful, and conservative, yet aggressive and successful; they are convinced, therefore, that there is a large and very profitable career ahead of THE CIRCLE PUBLISHING COMPANY. For these reasons they have been glad of a chance to get some of its stock.

Twice we offered by letter, without any blow of trumpets, Five Thousand Shares of our Cumulative Seven Per Cent, Preferred Stock for subscription. Each time the Five Thousand Shares were promptly over-subscribed before we could finish sending out the letters to the selected list. There are only Twenty Thousand Shares of Preferred Stock in all, therefore more than half was taken up at once, and we have not offered the balance until now.

For a short time we are going to give the same opportunity to those who did not receive our letters: but as the amount is necessarily limited, prompt action will be required.

HERE IS THE PLAN: The Capital Stock of The Circle Publishing Company is $500,000, of which $200,000 is Preferred Stock with 7 per cent. Cumulative dividend, and $300,000 is Common Stock upon which all dividends over and above the 7 per cent. on the Preferred Stock will be paid. Measured by the opportunities for rapid development of the business and by the known earnings of other great magazine and book publishing properties, the dividends on the Common Stock should soon exceed the fixed dividend on the Preferred Stock, and our Plan gives you some of both kinds.

The following extract from an article in a recent number of Leslie's Weekly is to the point:

"HOW A FEW DOLLARS MADE A FORTUNE"

"Among the most interesting commercial facts in this country are the astonishing fortunes which are being made by magazine publishers.

"Every year more than the immense sum of about $60,000,000 is spent in buying advertising space and in buying copies of periodicals. A large portion of this huge amount of money becomes profits for magazine owners.

"The great popular monthly publications have risen to wealth and prominence so quickly that only $100 invested in Munsey's a few years ago is now worth between $80,000 and $12,000, and is earning dividends at the rate of $1,000 a year.

"McClure's Magazine made a profit for its stockholders of 1,000 per cent. in about ten years. The total annual income of The Ladies' Home Journal and The Saturday Evening Post, both of which are owned by the Curtis Publishing Company, of Philadelphia, is not far from $6,000,000. The Cosmopolitan, Everybody's, The Outlook, and others, are immensely profitable.

"Unfortunately, however, magazine readers have rarely had an opportunity to share in these splendid earnings. Nearly all the magazines are in each case owned by a few individuals, who receive all the enormous dividends.

"A chance to secure an interest in one of the great popular magazines, on a basis that insures absolute safety and gives a liberal share of all the profits of the business, is an opportunity that attracts the immediate attention of the shrewdest investors."

OUR OFFER IS THIS: The par value of all shares is $10. They are full paid and non-assessable. The taxes on the stock are paid in full. Nine thousand shares of the Cumulative 7 per cent Preferred Stock are offered now at ten dollars a share, par. Every subscriber for five shares of Preferred Stock will be given a bonus of one share of Common Stock and will be made also a life subscriber for THE CIRCLE Magazine without additional payment. A subscriber for any multiple of five shares will be given a corresponding number of shares of Common Stock, as bonus, and will be allowed to present a life subscription for THE CIRCLE as a gift to some relative or friend for each five shares of Preferred Stock subscribed. Additional shares of Common Stock may be substituted in lieu of life subscriptions as bonus, or vice-versa. Thus, ten shares of Preferred Stock will entitle the subscriber to two shares of Common Stock and two life subscriptions for THE CIRCLE, or four shares of Common Stock. One hundred shares of Preferred Stock will carry with them a bonus of twenty shares of Common Stock and twenty life subscriptions for THE CIRCLE, or forty shares of Common Stock.

If you can not afford to take five or more shares, you may subscribe for three shares, and with such a subscription we will give you either the life subscription for THE CIRCLE or a bonus of one share of Common Stock, as you prefer.

We must say now, however, that this offer with its bonus is conditioned upon your prompt acceptance, and we reserve the right to withdraw or modify the offer without further notice.

YOU NEED NOT SEND ALL THE MONEY NOW IF NOT CONVENIENT TO DO SO, but write at once, saying how many of the 9,000 shares you will take and how soon you will be ready to pay for them. Ten per cent. of the amount of your subscription should be sent at the time of making the reservation. If more convenient to you the total amount may be divided into several instalments. Please use one of the Application Forms below, or a copy of the same.

Just an earnest word or two: You ought to know something about the "Plan" and aim of THE CIRCLE. We are all deeply in earnest about this matter. Every one of the men and women who now control the editorial and the business policy of the magazine is pledged to the carrying onward to the highest possible success the work of making a great, high-class, popular magazine of world-wide circulation which shall portray and encourage the good in individual, social, business, and political life, rather than the evil; which shall stand for peace rather than war; which shall search out beauty rather than ugliness; which shall build up rather than tear down; which shall constantly plan and labor, and co-operate with those who are planning and laboring, to make this world a better and happier place to live in, both for the poor and the wealthy, for the unlearned and the learned, for the weak and for the strong.

This is not mere rainbow painting. It is a real and definite program, based upon strong convictions and practical plans. We know that there are many splendid men and women who are in sympathy with this program and want to see it carried out. They know, as we know, that there is a positive cure in sunshine and fresh air. The poisonous, ill-smelling places often can be purified and made beautiful just by letting in the sunlight and the sweet winds of heaven. No man can remain a pessimist who will open his eyes and his heart to the good and the beautiful around him. All he need do is to give it just a fair chance of his attention. It will surely sweeten his blood, cheer and lift up his heart, lighten his step, brighten the glance of his eyes, and inspire him in his work. There is plenty of evil to fight, and it calls for strenuous and constant effort, but the man who overcomething but the evil will never be able to overcome much of it. You who will help to support and boldly develop and broaden the work of THE CIRCLE Magazine until its influence is felt in countless American homes, satisfying the great need, recognized or unrecognized, of American life—you who will help to accomplish this will come closer to the hearts of multitudes of people and do more universal and lasting good than can be done in any restricted field. No single instrument within the grasp of any group of men can be so effective as this great, clean, purposeful magazine in bringing to pass that "Peace on Earth, Good Will to Men," for which the world has been waiting for so many centuries.

This is a business enterprise. We want to make money for ourselves and for our stockholders, and we shall do so; but this business enterprise—this sound, common-sense, money-making enterprise is inspired with an ideal; this corporation has a soul.

Men of long and successful experience in the magazine and book publishing business and in financial affairs make up the Board of Officers and Directors of The Circle Publishing Company.

This additional capital will be used to increase the circulation and advertising patronage of THE CIRCLE Magazine and to develop the profitable book publishing enterprises of the Company. No magazine in the world possesses more of the real elements of large business profit and immense usefulness to society than does THE CIRCLE. The magazine itself shows tangible evidence, month by month, of the truth of these statements.

We trust you will join with us—that you will write quickly and reserve five, ten, twenty, fifty or more shares of the Preferred Stock, and so have a part in THIS CIRCLE work and THIS CIRCLE success. Write at once, if possible, filling out one of the blank forms below.

STUDYING ESQUIMAUX.

Government Will Make Further Investigations in North.

The Canadian Geological Survey, under the late Dr. G. M. Dawson, gathered from time to time a large amount of interesting and valuable information regarding the native races. Since the death of Dr. Dawson this portion of the work of the department has been allowed to languish, but this year a fresh start was made in a direction which cannot but prove to be of great historical and ethnological interest, as well as being of particular value in allowing the people of Canada to become better acquainted with their fellow citizens who occupy the vast frozen territory which forms our northern boundary.

The present subject of ethnological research by the department is the Esquimaux race; and it is deemed especially desirable that this work should be resumed amongst them just now, because their habits are rapidly changing and becoming more difficult for scientific study, as the white man penetrates the Far North.

The Esquimaux is perhaps by his natural gifts the most admirable of the native races of Canada. There are no more intelligent and kindly people than the Esquimaux of Northern Canada, and none that so readily respond to courtesy and good will; and yet they are probably the most misunderstood and misrepresented of all native races. The expedition which was fitted out last year for the study of the Esquimaux consists of Mr. V. Stefansson and Dr. R. M. Anderson. The undertaking is by no means a new task to Mr. Stefansson, as it is the second of a series of journeys he has planned to carry out within the next fifteen years, during which period he hopes to visit and study every Esquimaux settlement from East Cape, Siberia, to the east coast of Greenland and the shores of of Labrador.

The present journey is planned to cover two years, one of which Mr. Stefansson expects to spend between Cape Brown and Bathurst Inlet, Canada, the other on the Colville river, Alaska. He believes that near the mouth of the Coppermine river there is a group of Esquimaux who have never seen a white man; them he desires to study while as yet they are uncontaminated by white influence, and before "civilized" ways change their system of living.

Dynamited by Dog.

The news of a very remarkable accident at a mining camp at Hanging Stone Lake, near Gowganda, by which one man was killed and two injured, was brought to Montreal recently by Frederick Dunn, a resident of St. Johns, Quebec, who accompanied from Northern Ontario the remains of Andrew Dunn, the principal victim, for interment at his old home just outside that city.

Andrew Dunn and companions were dynamiting a vein. The fuse was ignited and the men ran, followed by Dunn's collie dog, which picked up the dynamite stick in his teeth. The explosion came just as the dog reached the cabin and dropped the explosive.

Dunn was killed almost instantly, his skull being fractured in two places, and one of his arms and two ribs being broken. One of the other men, Sims, was stunned and badly cut about the neck, while the other miner, Hackett, escaped with a few bruises. The dog, which was the cause of the disaster, bounded away and escaped injury.

A Man of Weight.

People in many Ontario towns know Mr. Holland, of Whitby, who has done excellent work as grand organizer of the Sons of Temperance. Mr. Holland is a big man—not only big in achievement, but big in person. He related on one of his tours how he had gone into a certain place to be weighed, but as the scales went up to only two hundred and fifty pounds, he could not succeed.

One time he went to the little village of Port Robinson, where the lodge was presided over by a demure but droll Worthy Patriarch. After the customary preliminaries Mr. Holland was admitted, and as he made his ponderous way to the platform the halting Worthy Patriarch remarked dryly:

"Well! they told me Holland was coming, but I think it's all of Holland and part of Belgium."

She Didn't Go Back.

Miss Agnes Laut, whose address on "yellow journals" and how they may be got rid of, created such a stir at the International Congress of Women, has ever been noted as one with views of her own and with a courage of her convictions. In Winnipeg she is remembered as a delicate girl with definite opinions and an independent spirit that entirely belied her looks.

When Miss Laut left Winnipeg to try her fate in the big world of journalism and literature, there were not wanting those who predicted that she would soon be back at her desk in The Free Press office. Her first work was the reporting of the meetings of the Joint High Commission in Quebec, and in this she succeeded in a way that ranked her work with that of the ablest Ottawa and Washington correspondents. From that time her rise has been steady, and though she has several times visited Winnipeg, she has evinced no tendency to occupy her old desk.

The Moose.

The moose is the largest animal now existing of the deer family, standing often as high as six feet, and sometime weighing 1,200 pounds; but notwithstanding its great size, it is very fleet of foot. When brought to bay, a blow with its fore foot or horns is a very serious matter for the huntsman. Often when pursued by man they have their intelligence to thank for their escape, for sometimes, if closely followed, they double in their tracks and stand motionless in some thicket until the hunter has slipped by, when they quickly glide away. At other times they make such a commotion as to unnerve any but an experienced hunter, and thus escape.

C. P. R.'S BIRTHDAY.

Railroad is 28 Years of Age—Tales of the Early Days.

The C.P.R. did not mark in any special way the twenty-third anniversary, which occurred the other week, of the sending of the first transcontinental train across the Dominion. At the same time, in looking back to the achievements of the last twenty-three years, the official breast was inclined to swell a little with satisfaction.

It is twenty-three years since the last lines of the great transcontinental system were put together, making one long whole out of many disjointed parts.

The head offices were then on St. James street, facing Place d'Armes Square. Lord Mount Stephen was president, and Sir William (then Mr. William) Van Horne general manager.

The offices themselves were small and staffy. All was in the formative stage. The sense of stability had yet to be impressed upon the system. The general manager could be found in his shirt sleeves, Sir Thomas Shaughnessy was then purchasing agent of the company. Mr. McNicoll acted as general passenger agent. Business was done, but it was done under crude conditions.

The staff was small, and the thousand or more clerical employes now at the head office were not dreamed of.

Great railway men were then in the making. The highest was accessible. It was desirable to propitiate the public.

The visible assets were slight, and the local cartoonists of the time used to poke fun at the C.P.R. trying, with the aid of Mr. Clouston, the general manager of the Bank of Montreal, and a lighted candle, to find a surplus in the vaults of the bank.

There was the old Dalhousie Square station, which sufficed for all the business offering.

Little was defined. Able men took off their coats, but when any enthusiastic person spoke of dividends, he was greeted with an indulgent smile.

This can be said—that everybody hustled.

As Sir William Van Horne has many times said to the writer, in going over the past, "we literally took off our coats to work."

The offices were removed to Victoria Square, to the building formerly occupied by the Co-operative Association. The annual meetings were then held in secret, and it was a sight to see the local newspaper men holding up Sir William Van Horne after the meeting was over.

The tone of those meetings was vastly different from that which prevails at present. A tremendous undertaking had been espoused, but the future was dark. The Northwest was merely a name—vague, distant. The business had to be made.

Such growth, however, manifested itself in the course of a few years that it was deemed necessary to have a West End station and general offices, which the company itself could control.

In the early years the earnings of the company varied from $5,000,000 to $10,000,000 per annum. They are now something like $75,000,000 per annum.

Even after the new station and general offices were taken possession of, there were days of darkness to be encountered; and it became necessary for Lord Strathcona to come over to reassure the pessimistic stockholders, many of whom openly lamented that they had put their money into such a doubtful enterprise.

"An enterprise," said His Lordship, "which, nevertheless, will, in the course of the next few years be one of the best dividend-earners in the Dominion."

The event proved the correctness of Lord Strathcona's prophecy.

Telephones at Osgoode Hall.

Osgoode Hall, Toronto, slumbered for half a century or more, so far as telephones and other modern equipment were concerned, and then it awoke or was awakened, whichever you prefer.

A young man came to Osgoode Hall. He was J. A. C. Cameron, and like other wise men, he came from the east. He hailed from Cornwall, to succeed the late Neil McLean as referee and clerk to the Master-in-Ordinary.

It occurred to him that new office furniture would be a good thing, and, likewise, improved ventilation. He got 'em. Then he asked for a telephone.

"Why, people will bother you to death," he was told.

"That's all right," he answered, easily. "It's a good thing to be stirred up." Mr. Cameron's telephone, the first business hello machine in Osgoode, was installed. There were three 'phones at Osgoode, but they belonged to the Law Society. Then, after the Cameron innovation, came the definite decision by the Government to equip the various offices with telephones.

A Difficult Task.

A good story is told of Rev. D. Sipprell, president of Columbian College, New Westminster, B.C., and a great exponent of Methodism on the British Columbia coast. Dr. Sipprell is possessed of the silver tongue, and his flowery sermons and addresses are the pride of Methodist hearts.

On a recent trip through the Rockies, returning from a visit which the doctor was enjoying, for the first time, the grandeur of the Canadian mountains. He was talking to a little coterie of admiring friends.

"Ah!" he said rapturously, waving his arm oratorically toward a colossal pile of rock, "What would we find friends, were we to drive to the bottom of yon wonderful mountain?"

"Humph!" ejaculated a brakeman who overheard the remark, "you'd find a —— of a lot of hard work."

Place For Dullards.

Admiral Kingsmill, advocates a Canadian navy because it will provide places for our dullards. His theory has all the authority that antiquity can lend it, and no more. It reminds The Kincardine Review to recall the story of the captain who was reasoning the new middy:

"Well, boy, the old story, I suppose—fool of the family sent to sea?"

"Oh, no, sir," piped the boy, "they all altered since your day."

Staterooms and Portholes.

An experienced traveler warns intending passengers against paying from $5 to $20 extra for an outside stateroom on ocean liners. The inside room, he has found to be perfectly comfortable and perfectly ventilated, and the only extra is the outside ones sho[w]n considerable disadvantage. "They are kept locked," she says, "most of the time unless the weather is very pleasant, and even in calm weather they sometimes ship a deluge of sea water. Dirty water, too, sweeps [in] a [wa]ve above the staterooms and [po]ssibly into a portholes of a room below, and the sea [a]t the death is annoying." Why, then should one [pa]y extra for a porthole?"

ARMY CORPS CALLED OUT.

Utmost Efficiency Shown In Recent Mobilization.

A British army corps was called out for war the other day, and afforded a fine object-lesson of how quickly and effectively British troops can be organized nowadays.

Never before in the history of the British army has so unexpected, and yet so complete, a mobilization been carried out. Nearly twenty thousand men of all arms were lined up ready to entrain, and it was only by the absence of a call to the Reservists that the feat differed from what the authorities hope to effect in case of an actual or threatened invasion.

No warning of what was coming was given. At six o'clock in the morning Lieut.-Gen. Smith-Dorrien rode down to the headquarters' office and gave the order for the alarm to be sounded, followed by the order for every unit in his command to turn out as rapidly as possible, fully mobilized, and ready for active service.

The military telephones linking up the barracks were soon busy with the order, and mounted orderlies carried the summons to those officers who live out of barracks.

Some of the battalions were already in the field: the Gloucesters, for instance, having left barracks at four o'clock for a long day's operations. They were summoned back by mounted men and cyclist messengers, and within the hour ev barracks was the centre of activity.

Wagons were dragged out and loaded with stores, water-carts filled, ammunition drawn from the magazines and distributed, and field dressings and emergency rations issued to the men with their metal identity discs and pocket ledgers.

For some time past the chiefs of staff have been working at this mobilization scheme to render it perfect for a sudden call, and the test that was being applied could only be equalled by the actual call of war. Indeed, among many of the troops the belief was accepted that an invasion was an accomplished fact.

The telegraph wires had carried the news to those officers and men away on week-end leave, and the early trains to Aldershot were filled with anxious soldiers, who on reaching the stations raced up to their barracks, to appear in a short space of time accountred and equipped for service.

Six hours was the time given for the units to get on parade, ready to move off, but so perfect was the machinery that in the great majority of cases little more than half that time was needed to report all ready.

From the Army Service Corps barracks parties of butchers and bakers, clerks, saddlers, and artificers marched off to join the brigade and divisional headquarters, every man having his allotted place and his special duties.

No confusion marked the preparations, and long before the allotted time was up nearly 20,000 men, artillery, cavalry, and infantry, with engineers and supply transport services, were marching out of barracks to go wherever needed.

To Punish the Mullah.

Col. Gough, says a report from Aden, according to present arrangements, will begin military operations this month against the Somaliland mullah, who has continued to harass the friendly tribes.

It is understood that the operations will take the form of flying columns, composed of mounted infantry and irregulars, which will endeavor to round up the elusive enemy.

Practically everything is now ready, and ample native troops on the spot are being supplied with white officers.

The chief difficulty is, as it has always been, transport. British agents have been buying animals all along the Red Sea, but prices have been high, particularly for camels. The Emperor Menelik has, moreover, forbidden the export of these animals from his territory.

It is thought that Sir Reginald Wingate, who has arrived in the country from Cairo, will, from his experience of Soudan "drives," be able to give Col. Gough some useful advice.

Berbera is the base of the new operations, which will cover a wide area. The British Government has for some time been collecting information as to the situation, particularly along the northwestern Somaliland border, and the authorities are very hopeful of success.

St. Fillan's Bell.

Early in the nineteenth century a bell was stolen from Killin, in Perthshire. This bell, which was said to have been used by St. Fillan, was supposed to possess marvelous healing powers, and was placed on the heads of all the mad people, who were brought to be dipped in the saint's pool, in order to complete the cure.

Popular opinion had it that the bell, which was not very large, would extricate itself from the hands of any one who stole it and return home, ringing all the way. The antiquary who finally annexed it explained his action by a desire "to abate superstition."

A Mild Reproach.

One cold morning little Elsie was being bathed by her mother, and usually her bath was a great delight to her. But this morning her mother talked incessantly while she worked.

Elsie loved her dearly and tried hard to be patient. But the lecture was so tiresome! Her mother was laying out a course of conduct for the day, and it was all so old. She had heard it over and over again.

Finally she said very sweetly, but very wearily: "Please, mamma, don't talk any more. You do make such a draft!"

Jerry Needn't Bother.

It was the beloved and lamented Monsignor Connelly, of the Church of St. John the Baptist, at St. John, N.B., who noticed an old parishioner stealing a glance at his watch as the text was read out one fine summer morning.

"It's just twenty minutes past eleven, Jerry Callahan, and at a quarter to twelve I'll be through, so you can save yourself the trouble of taking your watch out of your pocket," said his reverence, and proceeded with the sermon.

What to Push.

"Any one," remarked the old gentleman, "can build up a fortune if he has plenty of push."

"That depends upon the way the push is applied," rejoined the wise youth. "There isn't much money in pushing a peanut or a lawn mower."—St. Louis Republic.

Their Training.

"I should think baseball men would be particularly useful in the army in active warfare."

"Why especially baseball men?"

"Because they would know better than others how to fight a pitched battle."—Boston Transcript.

VISCOUNT KITCHENER.

A Brief Biography of Soldier Who May Visit Canada.

General Horatio Herbert, first Viscount Kitchener of Khartoum—who has just completed the great work he undertook in 1902 of reorganizing the British Indian Army—was born on Midsummer Day at Ballylongford, in the County Kerry.

During his exceptionally brilliant military career the retiring Indian commander has asserted himself with characteristic confidence and unbending will, and Lord Kitchener must be accounted one of the most strenuous soldiers that the British Empire has ever possessed.

Coming of a military family, Lord Kitchener passed thirty-eight years ago from Woolwich into the Royal Engineers. Since then his career has been one of scintillating brilliance for "K. of K."—as he is now often called "for short"—has been to the fore in many expeditions and campaigns, and has "built himself an everlasting name" for thoroughness in the profession of arms.

A veritable "glutton for work," he assisted in the Palestine survey in 1874-78 and that of Cyprus of 1878-82.

Then he was sent to Egypt, and entrusted with the command of the Khedive's cavalry and the remodelling of the native army. Having effected this to his own exacting desiring, he, as Sirdar, conducted a vigorous opposition to the forces of the Khalifa. He found it necessary to build a railway to Omdurman before he finally broke the power of the prophet, annihilating the Khalifa's army in 1898.

By this time he had reached the rank of major-general and been made a K.C.B., and he came home covered with Egyptian honors, to receive the thanks of the British Parliament, a peerage, and a grant of £30,000.

In the year following, when matters seemed to be going wrong with our forces engaged against the Boers in South Africa, Lord Kitchener was sent out as Chief of Staff to Lord Roberts. Here, again, he distinguished himself for determination and dash in combination; and when Cronje had been circumvented at Paardeberg and the British flag hoisted in Pretoria, he was promoted to the commandership of the forces in South Africa on Lord Roberts' return to England.

Kitchener brought the long campaign to a close. Again the gallant fighter and fine organizer was thanked by Parliament, given a further £30,000 from the country's public purse, and raised in the peerage to a viscounty.

As a full general he was sent out in 1902 to India as Commander-in-Chief, with practically a free hand to reform the army of our great Empire of the Orient. His ideals of duty brooking no civilian interference in matters military, Viscount Kitchener soon came into conflict with the then Viceroy, Lord Curzon, and the friction ensued in the resignation of that able statesman in 1905.

Since then Lord Kitchener has practically been permitted to have his own way at headquarters in India; and on the completion of his task in the Orient, he is credited by some with hankering after overthrowing the influence of the non-military element in the War Office for good and all.

Barrister's First Brief.

My first brief I have the best of reasons for remembering particularly clearly. I was engaged for the defence in a case of robbery. Two men, the prisoners, had seized the prosecutor on the platform of Shrewsbury Station, and while one of them held his arms the other quietly rifled his pockets.

They were caught red-handed, and I had a brief to defend the prisoner who had held the prosecutor by the arms. I made the obvious defence. I urged that it was vindictive to sacrifice two victims to justice when one would suffice, that the distinction between the two prisoners was manifest, and as the one I defended had not taken any money at all it was impossible to pretend that he was as guilty as his companion.

To the amusement of everybody, not excepting the chairman—who had been careful in his summing up to sweep away my sophistries—the jury made the distinction I suggested to them, and returned a verdict of "Not guilty" against my prisoner.—"Reminiscences of Mr. A. C. Plowden," in The Strand Magazine.

A Pageant of Priests.

Pageants have so far illustrated the history of a single town or city, but the one held recently in the grounds of Fulham Palace, London, was unique. It depicted the growth and history of the Church of England.

It was split up into a number of episodes, and, beginning with the publication of the Edict of Emperor Constantine, came right down through the ages to the acquittal of the Seven Bishops in 1688. A final tableau, representing the church "throughout the world," concluded the gigantic spectacle.

The grounds of Fulham Palace, lent by the Bishop of London, were well fitted for such a purpose.

The spectators were housed in a grand stand, 394 feet in length, 90 feet in depth, and covering an acre of ground. In addition to a large royal box, there was seating accommodation for 5,750. His Grace the Archbishop of Canterbury performed the opening ceremony.

An Amiable Violinist.

Robert Browning and Joachim met one evening at a friendly gathering in London. The violinist had "obliged" without satisfying certain ladies, who entreated the poet to obtain from him another solo. Browning, feeling the delicacy of his task, discharged it diplomatically and spoke, as sometimes he wrote, so as to conceal his thoughts, while the violinist, not understanding, bowed and smiled and did not play.

As they left the house Joachim asked, "What did you mean just now?"

"Oh," said the poet, "I wanted you to give us some more music."

"Then, why did you not come and say, 'Joe, old boy, give us another tune?'" returned the amiable violinist.

The footprints of Dyspepsia have been directly traced to the Stomach nerves. When these "inside nerves" fail, indigestion and stomach distress must surely result. For this druggists everywhere are supplying a prescription known as Dr. Shoop's Restorative. First, these tiny inside Stomach, Heart and Kidneys nerves fail. Then gas belching, Heart Palpitation, or failing Kidneys follow. Don't drug the Stomach, or stimulate the Heart or Kidneys. That is wrong. Strengthen these failing nerves with Dr. Shoop's Restorative. It is the nerves, not the organs that are calling for help. Within 48 hours after starting the Restorative treatment you will realize the gain. A test will tell. Sold by all druggists.

NAVAL DEFENCE.

Dominions Share in Heavy Burden of Empire.

Winnipeg, Aug. 27.— Sir William White, former director of naval construction for the British Admiralty, was one of the chief speakers at the British Association for the Advancement of Science yesterday. Speaking at the engineering section, he said in reference to the matter of naval defence. "The maintenance of an undoubted superiority at sea in existing circumstances and in face of foreign competition is no easy task. But it is good to know that the dominions beyond the seas are ready to take a share in the heavy burden of Empire. In what way effort can best be given to this fundamental idea is a question to decide. It is necessarily a matter in which the views of all concerned must be considered, and a policy determined on which shall command hearty support from all sections of the Empire.

PROTECTION OF TRADE.

"I may be permitted, however, as a sequence to the preceding remarks on overseas transport to express that the protection of trade routes between the Mother Country and dominions beyond the seas constitut an essential duty, in the performance of which duty, especially in portions of trade routes adjacent to the colonies may render valuable service. Such a policy in no way alleges the fundamental conditions [illegible] supremacy at sea ultimately depends. [illegible] recognises the fact."

BUILDING A COTTAGE.

ENGINEERING FIELDS.

The speaker also dwelt on the importance of engineering in the foundation and development of the British colonies and dominions.

"One of the chief fields of engineering operations at the present time," he said, "is to be found in the Dominion of Canada, where governing conditions have appreciated the fact that bold enterprise and generous financial provision for the essentials of great engineering works are essential to the progress and prosperity of the country."

GEORGIAN BAY CANAL.

Referring to the Georgian Bay Canal project, he said that on the basis of careful surveys it has been estimated that a 20-foot canal could be constructed for twelve millions sterling, upon which a reasonable dividend could be paid, even if the charges of transport were somewhat less than the lowest rates of freight possible via New York.

Dealing with the proposal to deepen the St. Lawrence from Montreal to the sea to 35 feet, he said: "Ample depth of water is of the first importance in the economical working of the largest and swiftest ships, and the Canadian Government has been well advised in desiring to carry out the great scheme above described."

GRAIN LIES CUT.

Manitoba in Dire Straits for Harvest Help.

Winnipeg, Aug. 27.—That Manitoba will soon be in desperate straits unless sufficient help be immediately secured to gather her big crop, was the gist of an important statement made tonight by Premier Roblin.

"The grain in this province is not only ripe," said Mr. Roblin, "but is nearly all cut. The serious problem at the moment is how it is to be taken care of until it reaches the elevator. The supply of farm laborers is totally inadequate to the demand. Eight thousand men are wanted tonight in this province, and there are not more than 500 in sight at the moment.

"Grain that has been cut is lying as it fell from the binder, and threshing machines are standing idle. Rain or unfavorable weather at this time would do millions of dollars worth of damage, all this for lack of farm help.

"The exemptions have not been so large this year as we expected, but we still hope that those that are to follow will be more largely patronized. There is work, as I have stated for at least eight thousand men in Manitoba, and for possibly as many more in the province to the west. Wages are, I think, reasonably good, running from $2 to $3 a day, according to the strength and ability of the man. Eastern Canada is largely [illegible] the crop [illegible] provided, and it rests to them to assist as much as possible by sending all the young men they can spare to save one of the best crops [illegible]

A DREAM STORY.

The Startling Vision That Saved the Life of Lady Vernon.

The following dream story is told in "The Story of My Life," by Augustus J. C. Hare. The story was told to Mr. Hare in Rome in 1870:

Lady Vernon dreamed that she saw the butler, with a knife in one hand and a candle in the other, crossing the entrance hall, and she awoke with a great start. After awhile she composed herself to sleep again, and she dreamed—she dreamed that she saw the butler, with a knife in one hand and a candle in the other, on the middle of the staircase, and she awoke with a great shock. She got up. She thought she could not be quite well; and she took a little sal volatile. At last she fell asleep again, and she dreamed—she dreamed that she saw the butler, with a knife in one hand and a candle in the other, standing at her bedroom door, and she awoke in a great terror, and she jumped out of bed, and she said, "I'll have an end of this; I'll have an end of these foolish imaginations." And she rushed to the door, and she threw the door wide open. And there at the door stood the butler, with a knife in one hand and a candle in the other. And when he suddenly saw Lady Vernon in her white nightdress, with her hair streaming down her back, he was so dreadfully frightened that he dropped the candle on the floor and rushed off down the staircase and off to the stables, where there was a horse ready saddled and bridled, on which he meant to have ridden away when he had murdered Lady Vernon. And he rode away without having murdered her at all, and he was never heard of again.

THERE WAS NO ACCIDENT.

And the Message She Received Was Not a Practical Joke.

She was reclining in a low chair in the drawing room, thinking about her dear Willie, who had been legally her property for the space of three months, when a telegram arrived for her. Hurriedly tearing open the envelope, she scanned the contents, then fell back in a swoon. The message was from her brother in the city and read:

Will run over today. GEORGE.

Her maid at last restored her to consciousness. Her Willie run over! She could not grasp the full significance of it. One thing she would do—go to him at once. So she hastily attired herself and at length reached her brother's office, who, having sent the news, would be able to tell her all about it.

"How is he, and where have they taken him?"

Her brother stared at her stupidly.

"Oh, don't keep me in suspense! Tell me where he is."

"Where who is?"

"Why, Willie."

"At his office, I presume. I haven't seen him today."

"Then what does this mean? Isn't he run over? Is this one of your silly jokes?"

George took the telegram from his sister, read his own message, then exploded with laughter. It was a long time before he could convince her that this simple intimation that he would run over and pay her a visit was not a detestable and practical joke.

The Talker.

You'll note the man who talks too much is always working round. He never seems to hold the job which some one else has found for him because he's bound to keep his tongue upon the wag and spend his best precious time in self bouquets and brag. He stays until his story's told and then told once again, and by this time the boss' ear is overfull of pain, and he is told to take his grip, although the boss feels sad, because he's lost his other grip upon the job he had. And yet he never, never learns, but talks his jobs away, because the habit's grown on him that he must have his say. And so he talks until he dies, up to his waning breath: he's talked his chances all away and talked himself to death.

Confessions.

The woman begged the bachelor girl not to go yet awhile. She was so urgent that the girl finally sat down again. Then the two sat perfectly still and silent, looking at each other.

"I know what you are thinking," said the bachelor girl by and by.

"What?" asked the woman.

"That now you've got me to stay, you wonder why it was you insisted so. You don't know what to do with me or to say to me, now I'm here to stay."

"How did you guess it?" the woman laughed.

"I've felt just that way myself," said the bachelor girl "many and many a time."

A Bad Hole to Get Into.

A gentleman was going round a strange golf course with a local caddie, and after playing part of the way he pointed to a rather high wall and inquired, "Is there a hole over there?"

"Yes, sir," replied the caddie solemnly; "there's the cemetery over there. Don't put yourself into a hole there if you can help it."—London Scraps.

His Transformation.

Little Harold, aged six, felt very proud when he donned his first pair of trousers. Taking his three-year-old brother behind the door, he was overheard to say, "Willie, Willie do you remember me?"—Delineator.

All is not false which at first seems a lie.—Sandhare.

Mr. R. J. McLaughlin, K.C., is packing a car of household goods today and will remove to Toronto next week, when they will close their summer home at Sturgeon Point. Mr. McLaughlin will still continue his business interests in Oshawa, and will spend a couple of days each week in his office in town. Mr. McLaughlin's family will be very much missed in church and social circles, and their removal is regretted by a large circle of warm friends.—Oshawa Daily Times.

MERELY AN EYE WASH.

The Chemical View of Tears Differs From the Poetical View.

Tears have their functional duty to accomplish, like every other fluid of the body, and the lachrymal gland is not placed behind the eye simply to fill space or to give expression to emotion.

The chemical properties of tears consist of phosphate of lime and soda, making them very salty, but never bitter. Their action on the eye is very beneficial, and here consists their prescribed duty of the body, washing thoroughly that sensitive organ, which allows no foreign fluid to do the same work. Nothing cleanses the eye like a good salty shower bath, and medical art has followed nature's law in this respect, advocating the invigorating solution for any distressed condition of the optics. Tears do not weaken the sight, but improve it. They act as a tonic on the muscular vision, keeping the eye soft and limpid, and it will be noticed that women in whose eyes sympathetic tears gather quickly have brighter, tenderer orbs than others. When the pupils are hard and cold the world attributes it to one's disposition, which is a mere figure of speech implying the lack of balmy tears that are to the cornea what salve is to the skin or nourishment to the blood.

The reason some women weep more easily than others and all more readily than the sterner sex has not its difference in the strength of the tear gland, but in the possession of a more delicate nerve system. The nerve fibers about the glands vibrate more easily, causing a downpour from the watery sac. Men are not nearly so sensitive to emotion. Their sympathetic nature—that term is used in a medical sense—is less developed, and the eye gland is therefore protected from shocks. Consequently a man should thank the formation of his nerve nature when he contemptuously scorns tears as a woman's practice. Between man and monkey there is this essential difference of tears—an ape cannot weep, not so much because its emotional powers are undeveloped as the fact that the lachrymal gland was omitted in his optical makeup.—Exchange.

A Matrimonial Catch.

A remarkably active peer in the Commons is Earl Winterton, the "baby" of the last Parliament, so called because he was elected, while Viscount Turnour, when he was only twenty-one. His lordship has proved himself a young man of energy and vigilance in the House, but apparently politics do not allow him sufficient scope, for it has just been announced that he is to fill the editorial chair of The World. The earl writes as well as he speaks, and in addition is a keen sportsman. Furthermore, he possesses the distinction of being a grandson of that social queen, the late Dowager Duchess of Abercorn. In fact, someone who has counted up says that his lordship has more relatives of exalted rank than anybody else in the United Kingdom, and that the woman who wins him—for he is still a bachelor—will be related by marriage to three dukes, two marquesses, two earls, several barons, and a corresponding number of marchionesses and countesses.

Wasting Valuable Time.

An old farmer died in a little village in the neighborhood of Paris. His fortune, the fruit of years of patient toil, was invested in a nice compact little farm. A nephew of the departed, believing himself to be heir, called a few days later on the lawyer and before saying a word about the succession thought it only right and proper to shed a few tears.

"Poor uncle!" he murmured. "So kind, so affectionate — to think that I shall never see him again!"

The notary allowed the young man to give full vent to his sorrowful emotions, after which he quietly observed:

"I suppose you are aware that your uncle has left you nothing?"

"What!" exclaimed the nephew, suddenly changing his tone. "I'm not down in the will? Then why on earth did you let me stand weeping there and making a fool of myself for a good half hour?"

An Editor's Woes.

Editing a paper is a nice thing and no mistake. If we publish jokes people say we are rattle-brained. If we don't we are fools. If we publish original matter, they say we do not give them enough selections. If we give them selections, we are too lazy to write. If we don't go to church we are heathens. If we do we are hypocrites. If we remain in the office we ought to be out looking for news. If we go out, then we are not attending to business. If we wear old clothes, they laugh at us. If we wear good clothes, they say we are extravagant. Now, what are we to do? Just as likely as not someone will say that we purloined this from another paper. So we did.

That's the Question.

Clifford can ask questions quicker than we can answer them, and a few days ago his uncle told him he would turn into an interrogation point. I agreed with him and said that I had once seen a picture of a little boy turning into one. He had become more and more curved and finally had become just a large interrogation point.

Cliff listened intently, and when I had finished he instantly asked, "Well, how did they keep the dot under him?"—Delineator.

Explaining It.

We were moving a 4,000 pound safe from one office to another, says a writer in The Saturday Evening Post. George, the negro janitor, with a 4 by 4 pine stick was pinching the safe along. The boss man said, "George, why don't you pick that safe up and carry it instead of monkeying with that scantling?"

George replied: "Boss, I hain't feelin' very pickish dis mawnin', suh. I's feelin' a leetle duplicate."

Explanation Called For.

Alfred (whose sporting opportunities have been limited by parental decree)—Pops, what does it mean by, base on balls?

Pops (who is reading an account of the latest heavyweight fight)—Alfred, you'd better employ yourself with your waiting school lesson. It'm too early for you to—

Alfred (still [illegible] for knowledge)—Did it mean the same as base on balls when you telephoned last night that an automobile was away you were going out on a boat?

Mother (severely)—Alfred, [illegible] right now to make two explanations, the most important one coming to me.

QUINQUENNIAL ECHOES.

Toronto Ladies Still Talk of Their Strong-Minded Guests.

If the hall were to be printed of what is being told about delegates to the Quinquennial Council in Toronto that town would not contain the writing thereof. There were adequate daily reports as to how the council occupied its business hours, but the private lives of its members while there is a subject which has been left to gossip, and some funny stories are gaining currency.

Some of the European visitors stopped at other points on their way to Toronto, and it is said that a Montreal family, returning to the city for a brief sojourn in their town house in preparation of their visit to the city, found entirely to their surprise, a prominent Teutonic delegate to the council occupying their house and boasing their servants. They deprecated her untimely arrival during their absence and the upset condition of the house, and assured her of their complete surprise. But their guest comforted her involuntary entertainers with the assurance of the great comfort of her entertainment, and her intention to remain until it was time to move on. Meeting later on in Toronto, the German lady was equally candid in informing the Montreal people that she was not being half so well entertained in the Queen City.

There is an old cricket story, which saw the light in the times when cricket matches never extended into the second day, about some Englishmen exiled to France, who desired to alleviate their homesickness by indulgence in the national game. They accepted a free lease from a wealthy landowner near the town of a generous portion of his pasture, and soon came to feel so much at home that their secretary wrote their benefactor requesting him to remove his cows from their cricket field. Some of the delegates must have been descended from these old cricketers.

A Toronto lady who bears a foreign name, but yields in loyal British sentiment to no one in the Empire, was called upon to entertain a lady from over the seas and one daughter. The expected guest asked the privilege of bringing another daughter, and eventually turned up with three daughters and a maid. No doubt the hospitable hostess, who has never wined under the hardships of synod time, began to understand why the quartering of soldiers used to be unpopular, and has ceased to be customary, especially when her enterprising guests turned her out of her own room.

Niagara's Age.

According to Mr. Spencer, of the Canadian Geological Survey, the great spectacle of Niagara Falls, as we see it to-day, has been about 30,000 years in the making. Mr. Spencer, in common with other geologists who have studied Niagara, believes that originally the cataract fell into Lake Ontario over three steps, or platforms, the first being 35 feet high, and the third being at or near the edge of the lake proper, instead of seven miles back up the river as at present. It took the stream 30,000 years to hollow out the first three miles of the gorge, but only 4,000 years for the other four miles. The difference of time in these two stages of the erosion, and of the cataract's recession of seven miles in all, is explained on the theory of a sudden and enormous increase of the volume of water, caused by seismic disturbance, or earthquake.

Formerly the Niagara River served as outlet to Lake Erie only. After the upheaval, the waters of Lakes Huron, Michigan, and Superior, which previously had debouched directly into Lake Ontario, were diverted into Lake Erie into the Niagara River, swelling that stream to six times its former volume. Mr. Spencer's figures, of course, can be taken only approximately, as even contemporary authorities are at variance as to how the Falls of Niagara have receded during the past fifty years—some estimates making it 1.38 metres per annum, others 1.22. Moreover, while the U.S. Geological Survey declares that the rate of recession of the Falls has increased during the last fifteen years, the corresponding Canadian official report shows that the rate has decreased some 46 centimetres per annum.

Elevators and Flour Mills.

The Department of the Interior has recently issued a map of that part of Canada lying west of the Great Lakes, showing the positions of grain elevators and flour and oatmeal mills, together with tables showing their individual and collective capacity. In the three provinces of Manitoba, Alberta, and Saskatchewan there are 656 grain elevators, with an aggregate capacity of 42,886,900 bushels. The terminal elevators at Lake Superior have a capacity of 20,152,700 bushels, and there are also transfer elevators at eastern points with a capacity of 14,286,000 bushels. Thus the total elevator capacity of Western Canada amounts to 76,966,140 bushels. Manitoba has 80 flour and oatmeal mills, with a daily capacity of 17,265 barrels; Saskatchewan has 25 mills, with a possible daily output of 3,265 barrels; while Alberta has 17 mills, with a possible daily output of 1,430 barrels.

Fish Freights.

In order to encourage the development of the Canadian fishing industry on the Pacific coast, where the bounty system prevailing in the Atlantic provinces does not obtain, the Dominion Government recently passed an Order-in-Council granting a bonus equal to a rebate of one-third of the express freight rates on all shipments of fish billed from Vancouver by Canadian fishing companies or Canadian fishermen to any point in Alberta, Saskatchewan, and Manitoba. This rebate or bonus applies to any variety of sea-fish caught in Canadian waters, including salmon, halibut, oysters, crabs, and clams.

Tell Some Sick One

It Is Free If It Fails.

WILL you do an act of Humanity?

WILL you tell some sick friend of this, my remarkable offer?

Tell him or her, that you have learned of a medicine so certain that its make or dare say to the sick, "It is absolutely and unconditionally free if it fails."

And you, no doubt, already know of Dr. Shoop's Restorative and its popularity.

For 20 years it has been the standard remedy for Stomach, Kidney and Heart ailments everywhere in America.

When the "inside" or controlling nerves of these vital organs begin to fail, it is Dr. Shoop's Restorative that has quickly vitalized, and strengthened, and brought those nerves and organs back to health again.

I do not dose the Stomach, nor stimulate the Heart or Kidneys—for that is all wrong.

Dr. Shoop's Restorative goes direct to the source of these ailments—the failing, inactive, inside or controlling nerves. And herein lies the keynote to my success.

When those nerves are again made well and strong, then that is the certain end of all sick sickness.

To me it is a great satisfaction that I am the only physician able to say to the suffering sick, "Take my prescription for full 21 days, and if it fails to help you, the entire expense is mine—not yours."

Then why should the sick take any chance on any other medicine, when maker dare not back it just as I do by this remarkable offer?

I also have a Rheumatic Remedy—and that remedy is covered by the same identical "no help, no pay" protective plan.

Besides, you are free to consult me just as you would your home physician. My advice and the book below are yours—and without cost.

Perhaps a word or two from me will clear up some serious ailment. I have helped thousands upon thousands by my private prescriptions or personal advice plan. My best effort is surely worth your simple request.

So let me send you an order as soon. Take the message to some sick friend

A postal will bring the opportunity.

I will have an honest and trustworthy druggist to whom you can conveniently go for the 21 day test.

But first, ask me for the order, for all druggists are not authorized to give the 21 day test.

So write me now and save all delays. Remember that tomorrow never comes. Address Dr. Shoop, Box 12, Racine, Wis.

Contract Awarded for New Smith St. Bridge to St. Catharines Firm

Begy & Co's. Tender Most Satisfactory as it is Several Thousand Dollars Less Than City Engineer's Estimate

Begy & Co., of St. Catharines, received the contract for the construction of the new Smith street bridge and his tender is most satisfactory, as it is several thousand dollars less than the estimate put in by the city engineer. Four tenders were received from contractors and the Board of Works Committee met last night and opened them. The highest tender was from the Bishop Construction Company at $29,725, and the lowest was Begy & Co., $26,724.

In addition to the above tender the engineer estimates that the extras will cost $1,975. These extras are enumerated below. Thu the bridge proper will cost $28,699.

TENDERS RECEIVED.

Bishop Construction Co.—

Item No. 1—All work above 42.30 city datum elevation as shown on the plans, exclusive of coping, hand rail, spanded filling and sidewalks, $25 000.

No. 2.—In case of alterations, per cubic yard $10.

No. 3.—For footings below datum given, per cubic yard $9.

No.4.—For timber left in place, $25 per inch.

The engineer extended this tender to $29,725.

E. Conroy—

1—$23,565.
2.—$11.22.
3.—$9.30.
4.—$30 per m.
Estimated total $28,457.

Geo. A. Begy & Co., St. Catharines

1.—$22,314.
2.—$10.
3.—$8.40.
4.—$30.
Engineer's extension $26,724.

Bishop & Buchanan—

1—$23,460.
2—$10.20.
3—$10.20.
4—$15.
Engineer's extension $28,815.

City Engineer's—

All work included in specifications, 929,565.

Sidewalks, hand rails and gravel filling and coping, etc., to complete bridge, $1,975, estimated by engineer.

Decided to recommend that tender of Begy & Co., be accepted, provided they employ local labor as far as possible.

No Authority to Build Walk on Benson Avenue Benson St. Advertised

Yesterday a number of residents on Benson avenue, called at The Times office and explained that they had retained Mr. R. F. McWilliams to represent them in the action they propose to enter against the city re the much talked of sidewalk.

Mr. R. J. Kidd, who has taken part in the endeavor to get the walk built outside the tree line stated that the writ would have been issued yesterday had his Honor Judge Huycke been in the city. The residents on the avenue are, he added, determined to fight the city to a finish and they believe their efforts will be successful. They have no reason to think otherwise. One of their claims is that the advertisement giving notice of the council's intention to build the walk, and which was published in The Times read Benson street. It appears that Benson street does not run to the Normi School, but turns off and runs north several hundred feet from the school. The thoroughfareon which the people who are putting up the fight live and which runs past the school is registered on the plans as Benson avenue, and on this avenue there is no authority to build a walk, either by notice or petition. Therefore it is claimed the city is wrong in trying to force a walk on a street not named in the advertisement.

Yesterday The Times called up his worship the mayor in regards to this matter and he appeared to be unaware of these facts and would therefore say nothing.

Last Drill Before the Annual Trip to Perth

The last parade of the 57th Regiment before their annual trip which will this year be to Perth, was held at the armories last night when the turnout of the rank and file was very much improved. The regiment will probably leave with a strength of from 250 to 300 men.

The early part of last evening was spent in regimental movements in front of the armories. Then a march out and down the street and back was held to put on the finishing touches. Upon the return to the armories the orders were read, which included the program for the trip. The regiment will parade at the armories at 9 o'clock in the evening and proceed to the C. P. R. station, where a special train will be waiting to convey them to Perth. The regiment will be in Perth Sunday and Monday until 11 o'clock in the evening when they will board the train to return home, arriving here about 3 a.m., on Tuesday. The town of Perth will provide steamers to convey the visitors down Hon. John Haggart's canal and through to the Rideau canal. It is a beautiful trip, and will no doubt be greatly enjoyed. There is every reason to believe that the trip will be an exceptionally pleasant one.

MUSTER PARADE.

On Saturday night the annual muster parade will be held at the armories. Every soldier knows what this means. It is the annual visit of the government official who calls the roll. This is the night when the pay is adjusted and the men not present, unless they have a good excuse will be cut off the pay roll

SPLENDID TRIP.

Down the River by Moonlight With Y.W.C.A. Girls.

One of the most pleasant and most successful moonlight excursions run out of Peterborough this season was the one run by the Y.W.C.A., per steamer Otonabee last last night. The boat left the Wolfe street wharf at 8 o'clock with a good crowd on board and stopped at the street railway wharf where another crowd was taken on. The proceeds were in aid of the public reading room and the library at the Y.W.C.A., and as a result of the excursion a good sum is available for that purpose. The young ladies in charge of the trip are to be commended for the excellent arrangements made and for the excellent entertainment provided. Among other things the following program was run off, and was thoroughly appreciated:—

Rev. Mr. Henderson—Chairman.
Miss Gumpricht—Instrumental.
Mr. E. V. Morphet—Solo.
Mrs. Bartsley—Recitation.
Miss Lillian Noble and Mr. J. W. Dickson—Instrumental Duet.

Snapping Turtles.

Bobcaygeon Independent:—The M. Y. P. & O. have a pair of pets but they are not keeping them at the camp or in their sleeping tents. Jas Hall and Frank Allenderfer, were down at Ball Labs on Monday, fishing, and they were in separate boats. James spied something in the lake, and neither he nor his guide could make out what the mischief it could be. They approached it cautiously. It was alive and wiggling, and stealing towards it James prepared to hit it a crack if it showed fight. Then they found out what it was a pair of large snapping turtles, and the turtles also found that they were discovered, and started swimming. The turtle is fairly good on the swim too, but James caught up to them and grabbing them by the tail lifted them into the boat. Then trouble began for James and his guide. A healthy snapping turtle, weighing thirty pounds is not a pleasant passenger in a small boat. Two such turtles and two men are more than enough for a small boat, and when James and his guide stood on the seats each with an oar, and those turtles got busy, the water started to sizzle with the heat. As for noise, Frank Aldenderfer was half a mile away and he thought they must have got a sea serpent on board Pulling with all speed they came up with the scene of entitlement, and were instantly swallowed in the melestrom for one of the turtles landed in their boat. Frank joined the band as a noise producer, with full steam on, something awful. Finally the turtles got tired with their scratchings and upsettings, and lay still. They were on exhibition in A. E. Bottum's window for a few days.

Four Witnesses Heard at Inquest, Much Contradictory Evidence

Harry Jopling and Charlie Forsythe were Called First—Their Stories Did Not Agree with Mr. Hartshorn's and Herbert Marks'—That Monday Night Affair

The adjourned inquest into the death of Arthur Bollard, was resumed at 7.30 o'clock last night before Coroner Dr. Gray in the County Council Chambers. The jurors were all present on time. The court room was crowded at an early hour and the seating capacity was limited. The press was well represented, including several from Toronto as well as the three local papers.

Dr. Morgan was present on behalf of the Joplings. County Crown Attorney R. E. Wood, K.C., conducted the examinations for the Crown. Mr. D. O'Connor and F. D. Kerr were also present.

HARRY JOPLING.

Harry Jopling of Bridgenorth, was the first witness called. He said he knew Bollard by sight for about three days previous to last Monday night. Saw him first on Saturday afternoon, but did not speak to him, Saw him again on Monday as he was driving a grocery wagon to his store. Witness asked deceased joking, if he had been on his knees, as his pants were all grass. Bollard called back to him to wait and Bollard returned and asked witness if he wanted to fight. Bollard was offended at witness' remarks. Witness dic not want to fight. Bob Merrill was with him and Bollard wanted to fight them both, and Bollard hit witness. Then witness drove on home. Witness denied having called Bollard a vile name.

Monday night witness was dancing with his sister at the pavilion. Bollard was not dancing. They met again in the park about ten o'clock at night. Fred was with him and Bollard was going home. Marks and Gordon Long were with Bollard. They were all going west, witness and his brother were behind them. Bollard had threatened to trim witness next day, and he and his brother wanted to see what was doing. His brother wished to explain matters to Bollard. Witness followed him about 50 yards. Fred asked him which one of the three it was. He said it was Bollard. Then Bollard grabbed him and Fred pulled him off and said "I'm here on be. half of my brother."

When Bollard threw witness down he pounded him on the head but did not hurt him particularly. Fred did not speak before that time. After they got up Fred and Bollard clinched. Bollard was thrown and Fred hit him once while down He did not know where Bollard was hit. Bollard cried out. Then they got up. Then Bollard wanted to bet $5 he could throw Fred Jopling. Then all shook hands and was peaceful. Then Fred and Bollard had a friendly wrestle. Each got a fall. There were no cries. Both were angry when they first started to fight.

After the wrestling Fred Jopling wanted some more, but Bollard said he had had enough and began to vomit.

Witness' brothergot first throw. After the second throw they all shook hands and said good-night. Before that a number of other parties arrived on the scene. It was about 100 yards to Hartston's and 45 yards to Long's cottage, and about 100 yards from the hotel.

Witness did not know how Bollard got home and he and his brother had left.

Early in the evening Bollard had pointed out witness and said "That' the guy." Witness then sent down to the village for Chas. Forsythe to come up. Forsythe came up and witness asked him to stay with him as he did not want to be mobbed all alone. Witness' brother arrived later and knew nothing of the words between witness and Bollard until he arrived at the dance.

CHAS. FORSYTHE.

Chas. Forsythe was examined by Mr. F. D. Kerr. Witness lived in Bridgenorth, and was a chum of Harry Jopling. He was always in the park at night. He was sent for by Jopling about 10 o'clock, and he went back. Jopling was afraid of being licked and he wanted Forsythe to stay with him. At six o'clock he and Harry had talked over the trouble of the afternoon and witness consented to see Jopling through. Late in the evening he went with a bunch to see the matter straightened out. He did not expect a row. There was quite a bunch of young fellows; all friends of witness' and Jopling. When witness got the message from Jopling he walked round a block for pleasure and then ran to the pavilion. He was on Brown's verandah talking to Cullen about the expected trouble when he said "he wouldn't help Jopling if he got his head beat off." He said Harry brother could look after him. The fight took place in front of Wolfe's cottage. The first he saw was when Bollard had Harry down. Then Fred and Bollard wrestled and were angry Fred hit Bollard and Bollard cried "dirty." When they got up they were chewing the rag but witness could not tell what they were saying. Fred told him that he had his arm between Bollard's legs and lifted him up.

Witness was cross-examined by Mr. D. O'Connor.

HARRY JOPLING.

Harry Jopling was recalled, and was asked if he threw a stone at Bollard. He denied it, and said he did not know a stone was thrown.

MR. HARTSHORN.

Mr. Hartshorn was called and was examined by Mr. Wood. He has a cottage at Chemong Park. On the night of the fight he heard a row. There was loud talking. Where he was he could not hear what was being said. He went down to stop it. There were two Jopling boys, Bollard, Marks and three or four more other boys. There had been fighting before he arrived. Fred Jopling and Bollard were getting up when he got there. Fred told witness he would allow no one to choke his little brother. Witness told Harry Jopling that he must apologize to Bollard for the name he called him. Harry did so and it was accepted. After that there was some more wrestling and he would judge that Bollard threw Fred twice and Fred admitted that Bollard was the better man.

Witness volunteered to stay and see a fair wrestling bout. He said there may have been some swearing before he arrived, there usually is at such times. He heard one out cry, but did not know who made it. There seemed to be some word used, but could not hear what they were. He stayed until the village boys started away. Bollard had not turned sick when he left. He did not hear Fred Jopling ask for a third round. He heard nothing of an offer to bet $5.

To Mr. O'Connell, the witness said the row was by no means vicious so far as he saw. The second wrestling was perfectly friendly witness would judge

HERBERT MARKS.

Herbert Marks of Toronto, said he spent his holidays at Chemong Park, and was a friend of Bollard's, who was 19 years old. Was well developed. They were together, and Miss Minns was with them. The first he knew of trouble was when he heard the people running behind. Bollard turned around and took off his coat just as Harry Jopling said "There he is," and Harry pitched into Bollard. They both fell. Then Fred Jopling took a hand and threw Bollard. Bollard cried "Let go. Let go. Let go, rotten, rotten." Witness tried to get in to see the fight but was pushed back. Then they were separated. Bollard remained on the ground for a few minutes. Then Bollard complained of Fred having caught him by the privates. Fred said he had him by the crutch hold.

Witness told of the meeting in the morning when Jopling made a remark about Bollard's trousers. They had some words. Bollard hit Jopling on the leg and he drove on. After he had got away he turned around and called at Bollard a vile name.

After the wrestling Bollard lay down. He was feeling badly. The perspiration was standing out on his face. The Joplings shook hands and went away. Then Bollard began to vomit. Witness and Long started to carry him home. He vomited again and again just as they got to the door of the cottage and they had to carry him to his bedroom. Witness slept with him and he was restless. Next morning Bollard told him several times of Jopling catching him by the privates. Bollard did not appear to have any pain in that part, but several times said he was all in. Wednesday morning he felt the same as Tuesday. In the afternoon he was some better and went to the dance at night and danced until 10 o'clock but went home and went to bed early. Next day he was very sick. Dr. Scott was called and just as he arrived, witness left on the bus to go to Toronto.

To Mr. O'Connell, witness said he knew the deceased about three months and they were good friends. He was at Chemong a guest of Bollard for a week.

The inquest then adjourned until 3 o'clock this afternoon.

Held Them Back with a Shot Gun

St. Catharines, Aug. 30.—There will be bloodshed yet if the Hydro-Electric construction gangs who are working in the district do not watch out. Some trouble is reported from Gainsboro township. On Saturday Theron Felker, a son of a well-known fruit farmer, stood with a shotgun ready, threatening that if the Hydro-Electric men came on his land he would blow them full of holes.

"You have no rights here, and I am standing on mine," said Felker, "so if you come on you'll do it at your own risk."

The workmen were prepared to put up a tower, but they decided not to, and went away.

At Levi Shaw's farm, a short distance away, the Hydro workmen forcibly entered the Shaw property, and after thrusting Farmer Shaw and his men rudely aside, they went to work and put up the tower. Shaw has laid a complaint, charging the foreman of the gang and the agent of the Hydro Power Co., who was present, with assault, and the case will be tried at Smithville, either tomorrow or Wednesday. Much fun is promised.

Circular Saw Burst Killing One Man

Woodstock, Aug. 30.—A terrible accident occurred at Tillsonburg this morning at the works of the Tillson stave mill, whereby Peter Pline lost his life instantly and William Armstrong sustained injuries that are expected to result in his death.

The men were at work in the mill and the machinery was running smoothly when, without any warning whatever, a large circular saw burst into a thousand pieces, which filled the air as they flew in all directions with great force.

Pline was struck by fragments, and his body was terribly shattered, death being instantaneous

Armstrong was badly wounded in a similar manner about the face and head, and at the most has but a fighting chance for recovery.

No other workmen were in the immediate vicinity. What caused the accident is a complete mystery.

Pline leaves a wife and several children.

ANGRY WOMAN.

St. Louis Manufacturer Was Shot from Ambush.

New York, Aug. 28.—A St. Louis despatch to the Times says that Louis Denny, a well-known manufacturer, president of a bottling works, and alife-long resident of St. Louis, was shot from ambush yesterday and mortally wounded by George Snider. Denny was shot twice near the heart, after he had been lured from his office by a telephone message from a woman. Physicians say Denny cannot live.

Snider used a single barrel shot gun which he reloaded and fired the second time at Denny before the latter fel. or could see his assailant. As befell Snider reloaded his weapon, and standing off a crowd of twenty-five or thirty men, which had been attracted by the shooting, escaped. He was arrested last night at his home, and admitted he did the shooting.

"Denny knows why I shot him, and he can tell if he will," was his answer to the deputy sheriff's question of motive.

The county authorities discovered last night that Snyder got his gun and went to Denny's office and tried to kill him after a statement had been made by his young wife, who had been taken from an orphan home and had lived in the Denny family several years before he married her.

Three weeks ago a child was born to the Sniders, and only Thursday Mrs. Snider returned to her home from a hospital. All attempts on the part of the county authorities to obtain from Snider a statement as to his wife's confidences have failed. Mrs. Snider has been on the verge of a collapse since the shooting and is unable to make a statement.

Denny, who is an unmarried man lives with his parents. He was at work in his office when Mabel Reinsmeister summoned him to a telephone across the street. Unconscious that she was luring him toward his assailant, the girl walked ahead and was but a few feet in advance of him when the first shot was fired.

Snider lay underneath a building, which is elevated a few feet from the ground on wooden pillars.

Mr. Harold E. Burns, who has charge of the window dressing and dry goods department of R. Fair & Co., is in Toronto.

Miss G. A. Brown of Orillia, has returned home after spending a most enjoyable time the guest of Mrs. T. E. Pratt, Water street.

The friends of Mr. J. G. Macklin, C.E., formerly of Peterborough, will be glad to hear of his coming into a large sum of money from England

East India Wants No Rule of Aliens

Schoolboys Enter Into Conspiracy to Overthrow Supremacy of England

Calcutta, Aug. 27.—Arabindo Ghose has issued an "open letter" to his countrymen, in which he lays down rules for the guidance of Indian Nationalists. The position of a public man who does his duty in India today, he says, is too precarious to permit of his being sure of the morrow.

A rumor is strong that a case for his deportation has been submitted to the government by the Calcutta police, and, consequently he desires that his open letter shall stand as his last political will and testament to his countrymen. He asserts that the strength of the agitators' position is moral. "The whole moral strength of the country is with us, but the law must be scrupulously observed, and advantage must be taken of the protection it affords and the latitude it gives of pushing forward the cause and the propaganca of the congress."

AGAINST THE ALIEN

In plain English, Mr. Ghose's ideal is that of Swaraj, or "absolute autonomy, free from foreign control." He declares that deportation is the favorite instrument of men incapable of wise rule. In the name of his countrymen, he condemns British methods of administration, rejects the "claim of aliens to force upon us a civilization inferior to our own, or to keep us out of our inheritance on the untenable ground of the superior fitness. The government of India is alien, and must be replaced by an Indian administration."

Mr. Ghose concludes his letter with suggestions as to the attitude of Bengalis toward British rule. Henceforth the native attitude toward the government should be regulated upon the principle of no control, no co-operation. A policy of self help and passive resistance should be enforced, and the boycott movement be made effective in both the political and economic regions.

A curious story comes from Rangpur. Some days ago a guard on the Eastern Bengal State Railway, while going through the packages in his van, came across a bundle of papers. One document proved to be a promise written and signed in red ink. It bore eight signatures, and ran as follows:

"We, the following boys, promise hereby, through the name of the Great Omnipotent, to sacrifice Garoo's blood for his pleasure. Further, we promise that we will gather together at any place and time and at any call. In addition to that, we also promise that we will never let it out to anybody, even at the cost of our life. We will carry out any orders of our conspirating society."

BOYS ON TRIAL

Another document proved to be the notorious "Jugantur" leaflet, giving directions for the preparation of bombs and other explosives.

The guard handed the matter over to the police, who arrested the eight signatories and sent them up for trial before the district magistrate of Rangpur. An inspector of explosives said the directions contained in the leaflet for the making of bombs were capable of being used for the manufacture of explosives by any educated and intelligent person The senior pleader for the defense, in his cross-examination of the witness, displayed such an intimate knowledge of the explosives as to provide comment from the magistrate. The headmaster of the Nilobamari school said the boys were his pupils and were conspiring to take his life.

Urges That All Wage War Upon Consumption

Paris, Aug. 31.—"When a woman is taught a small school is founded," said Jules Simon, and the famous words are quoted by Dr. Calmette, head of the Pasteur Institute at Lille, in a call upon women to enrol themselves in a peaceful army to fight tuberculosis.

Dr. Calmette was reading a remarkable paper before the members of the French Association for the Advancement of Science His speech was on "The Problem of Vaccination against Tuberculosis."

He referred to the failure of all the boasted secrums which were to render humanity immune against the most terrible of Koch, Behring, Maraglianno, etc., only raised hope to be doomed.

"There is," said the professor, "no anti-tuberculous serum in existence which has any real curative power."

At the same time, Dr. Calmette still inclines to the belief that the problem is not unsolvable. He agrees with Brouardel's dictum that most men are, or have been, tuberculous, and that those who have resisted are almost rendered immune. He asks himself if the true treatment of tuberculosis is not precisely to treat and cure the patient at the first attack.

To this end a rapid diagnosis is necessary, and must be followed by the immediate dispatch of the patient to a "preventorium," or place of isolation, where they may be protected from fresh contamination whether by the family—if there is a consumptive in it—or by the milk of a tuberculous cow.

Dr. Calmette believes that consumptives vaccinate themselves, but they must be helped. Consumptives whose malady is fatal are those who have been exposed to successive reinfection at short intervals by co-habitation with consumptives or by infected food.

Dr. Calmette urges that war should be waged without respect against the propagation of tuberculosis by suspect saliva, mead, and milk.

NASTY ACCIDENT.

Mr. Finch Miller Has a Needle Into His Finger—It Broke off Short. to His Finger.

Mr. Finch Miller, Water street, was the victim of a rather painful injury Saturday morning. He was working at the sewing machine in his shoe shop, when his finger was caught in the descending needle and badly lacerated. The needle entered at one side of the finger and came through at the other, and making a sharp turn at the head, left a piece of steel about half an inch long in his finger. Medical aid was summoned and the needle extracted.

Although it was very painful it was not serious, and Mr. Miller was not hindered from continuing his work as usual.

TRIP TO MUSKOKA.

Two Young Men Paddled 400 Miles, Starting at Chemong.

Messrs. Bert Miller and T. Eardley-Wilmot have just returned after a long canoe trip up to the Muskoka Lakes. They left Chemong Park two weeks ago and paddled up through the chain of lakes reaching the Muskoka district on August 20th. Altogether the trip was of about 400 miles in length, and in order to accomplish the journey in two weeks they found it necessary to paddle between thirty and forty miles per day..

The portages while rather frequent were for the most part of only one hundred or two hundred yards in length, and were easily managed. There was one portage, however, which was about three miles in length, and gave considerable trouble.

PRICE OF BREAD IS FIXED.

Recent Drop in Price of Flour Will Not Have Effect on Cost of

As stated before there has been a drop in the price of flour of forty cents a barrel. Although considerable satisfaction has been expressed by bread consumers at this drop in price, still it is hardly likely that it will have any effect on the cost of bread.

One thing it will do, however, and any talk of a further increase in the cost of the products of the bakeries.

The drop in price is mainly on new flour, which is not used by the better class of bakers, as they cannot make good bread with it, and there is not much indication of any drop in the price of old flour, which is very scarce. The flour from the new crop will not be ripe for baking until about November, so as the bakers will until then have to keep on using the old flour, the alteration in price will not make much difference to them.

Doctors Condemn Oily Liniments

The Public are Warned to be Careful of These Strong-Smelling Oily Liniments Containing Acids, Ammonia, Etc.

Many people have clung to the old-fashioned idea that a thick, greasy liniment is the best kind. Doctors say not — and they know.

Recently a number of these white, oily liniments were analyzed, and they were found to contain an enormously high percentage of harmful acids, and such irritating chemicals as ammonia, etc. For the moment they may cause a warm sensation when first applied, but their continued use never cures rheumatism, and only deteriorates the skin, sets up inflammation and causes endless trouble.

When a doctor warns you to quit using a white, oily liniment—do so. He knows that a thick liniment can't penetrate, can't sink through the pores and reach the seat of the pain.

When asked his opinion a few days ago, Dr. Roberts stated that he considered a strong, penetrating, pain-subduing liniment, such as "Nerviline," to be superior to any of the white ammonia liniments. In his twenty-five years of practice he had witnessed cases of rheumatism, sciatica and lumbago that simply would not respond to ordinary treatment —but Nerviline cured them. The same physician also spoke of the great advantages of keeping a preparation like Nerviline in the house always, because of cramps, diarrhoea, stomach disorders, earache, toothache, headache and such minor ailments. Nerviline is a first-class cure. There is scarcely an ache or a pain, internal or external, that Nerviline won't cure. In thousands of homes no other pain-relieving medicine is used. Fifty years' continued success and the endorsement of the profession are proof that Nerviline is the liniment for the home.

Any good druggist or dealer can supply the large 25c. bottles of Nerviline. 13

NAVAL PREPARATIONS.

Germany undertakes to lay blame upon England for persisting in the increase of her navy, forgetting that she must be a naval power equal to meet and to overcome any probable combination that might be brought to bear upon her, because without that power she cannot protect what she has. There is no half-way house between complete safety and absolute ruin. Great Britain is an island Power and her population have largely to depend for their food supplies from abroad. If her coats were blockaded by a superior hostile naval force, her people would risk being starved. But if Germany's coasts were blockaded, she (the Vaterland) would obtain that amount of cereals and supplies of other kinds which she does not produce herself from inland countries untouched by a naval blockade. Not taking in the Colonies Great Britain and Ireland of themselves have a coast line to defend very much longer than that of Germany. The tonnage of the British Empire which would call for defence, amounted in the year 1907-08 to upwards of 18,320,000 tons, while that of Germany reached only 4,110,500 tons, or roughly, in the proportion of 4½ to 1. The total trade of the whole of the British Empire, which might have to be defended, amounted in 1905 to the value of $5,833,530,000, or upwards of 5½ billions of dollars: that of Germany to $3,254,926,500, or in round figures 3½ millions of dollars. Well may we submit in the words of Mr. J. L. Bashford in his article in the "XIX. Century" on "The Berlin Crisis," with only such figures before us, how the German Navy is not, as compared with that of Great Britain, much larger than is at all necessary.

In what manner shall we be called upon to insure our property?

CANADA'S GREAT WEALTH.

How many Canadians realize the enormous wealth which is being gathered together on the plains of Central Canada this year?

The figures are amazing, and might seem exaggerated were they not furnished by men who know what they are talking about. The immigration authorities tell us that there is every indication that this year's immigration will reach 180,000 people.

They estimate that these people will bring in with them an average of $2,000 a family, which, estimating the family as averaging five, will give a total wealth brought in of $72,000,000. Even supposing this estimate is considered excessive, we can fairly assume that the money and property to be brought in this year will be at least $60,000,000.

The Canadian Bank of Commerce estimates the yield of what at 113,979,336 bushels, which at the price of 85 cents a bushel gives a total of $100,301,815! It puts the yield of oats at 157,537,750 bushels, worth, at an average of 30 cents a bushel, $47,261,325; and it looks for a crop of 24,324,618 bushels of barley, worth at an average of 40 cents, $9,729,850. So that these crops alone stand to produce a total of $157,292,990?

The value of other crops may be safely put down at $20,000,000, a very reasonable calculation. The cattle and horse ranches are expected to add at least $20,000,000 more to the total, and railway construction will involve the expenditure of another $25,000,000. Thus, without any calculation at all of the money which is being invested in lands and industrial enterprises by British capitalists, we arrive at this grand total:

Settlers...	$60,000,000
Wheat, oats, barley...	158,000,000
Other crops...	20,000,000
Live stock.....	20,000,000
Railway construction... .	25,000,000
	$283,000,000

Some people put the estimate as high as $330,000,000. We prefer, however, to be conservative, but even our conservatism may seem too optimistic for some people.

Is there any wonder that the people of the west are too busy to worry about politics, there will be lots of time for politics later on. Their present task is to garner the harvest and everybody in the east, realizing how much depends upon that task, will wish them God-speed in their work.

And Central Canada is yet only in the cradle of its development.

MILLIONS FOR CANADA.

It is estimated that during the present fiscal year that the tremendous total of almost sixty millions dollars will be coming into Canada to be spent upon railroad and other industrial extensions. The Dominion Government will borrow ten millions which parliament has agreed to loan the Grand Trunk Pacific, and it is understood about fifteen millions more will be required on account of the new transcontinental railway. The recent G. T. P. issue of five million dollars bonds has been oversubscribed in Europe and reports say the Canadian Northern will be borrowing a like amount in England. The principal cities in Canada are or will srortly be, in the market for money, and it is understood their need will reach well up to fifteen millions. The Lake Superior Corporation and the Montreal Harbor Board are expected to each call for five millions. Taken all together these loans will reach a total of fifty or sixty million dollars, and it is very likely other loans will be floated making the total still greater.

A BILLION DOLLAR ERA.

The incorporation in the United States during May of the railroad States during May of railroad, industrial and other companies having a capital stock of $258,459,900 gives an idea of the wonderful commercial expansion of the country, says the New York World. Incidental testimony to the same effect is furnished by the speedy absorption by investors of the $10,000,000 issue of preferred stock put out by a new dry goods combination. E. H. Harriman said to the newspaper men who asked him about the report that he was going abroad to dispose of $150,000,000 of bonds, "I wouldn't have to go out of this house to do that in half an hour' This is truly a billion-dollar era. Where the last generation figured in millions, the common multiple of the present-day business world is $100,000,000. To what lengths is the multiplication of millions to go? Estates of $1,000,000 have dwindled by comparison to modest competencies. At the present rate of increase the "swollen fortunes" of today concern, being dwarfed by the greater hoards heaped up and reduced to negligible consequence in the light of the graver problems in the regulation of capital which may then be expected to demand attention.

OUR MILITARY STRENGTH.

There is likely to be a new French conquest of Sanada. The conqueror is going to be Sir John French, commander of the First Army Corps of the British Army. He is coming out to the Dominion to put our military affairs into shape, so that we will have an organization which can cooperate effectively with the Imperial force shall receive such training as to be able in case of emergency to take its place beside the troops of the regular army. General French has had a brilliant career. He is now in his fifty-seventh year. His boyhood was spent in the navy, but since 1874 he has been in the army. He was in the Soudan campaign of 1884-5, and was one of the few commanders to make a really brilliant record in the Boer war.

PARLIAMENT TO BE CALLED.

Le Canada is authority for the statement that Parliament will be convened on November 4th, if everything can be got ready, and that in any event the session will open on the 18th of that month. It says that the new Insurance bill will be put through; also some important amendments to the Banking Law. The Franco-Canadian treaty will, it thinks, be brought to a vote before Christmas. The most important feature of the speech will be the government's declaration of policy on the naval defence of the Empire. Le Canada anticipates that the Opposition will be much more aggressive this session than last.

NEW BUILDINGS IN JULY.

Peterborough Third Highest of Canadian Cities.

Toronto, Aug. 27.—August "construction" notes a general improvement in building operations. From 19 centres permits for July totalled $5,295,486, compared with $4,645,698 in July last year. Toronto's figures were $1,764,165 as against $1,221,000 a year ago, a gain of 43 per cent. Peterboro shows an increase of 244 per cent. London of 114 per cent., Berlin 106 per cent., Hamilton 31 per cent., and Stratford 10 per cent Next to Toronto, Montreal has shown greatest building activity, with $712,126 value, as compared with $435,405.

Winnipeg's figures are $950,800, considerably less than last July's building, which amounted to $1,401,250. Other cities submit the following: Brandon $20,480, Calgary $182,280, Edmonton $274,355: Fort William $186,235, Hamilton $205,475: London $73,808, Port Arthur $114,260, Regina $51,300, Stratford $14,760, Sydney $17,750, Vancouver $549,307: Victoria $372,120: Windsor $33,650.

MARRYING HABIT JOLTED.

Woman Who Wants Fifth Husband Refused Divorce.

Wilkes-Barre, Pa., Aug. 29.—Mrs. Jane Ashton Jones of this city, who has been married four times and wants to marry again, was today refused the divorce she desired and which would have permitted her to fifth mate. She is 58 years old and her husband is 66.

Judge Fuller in rendering a decision says that while the law, perhaps, should grant a divorce to young and innocent couple who find they cannot live together owing to some serious reason, and thus retrieve a mistake otherwise ruinous to life it should avoid result of making divorce easy for persons of mature discretion hardened and enlightened by years of matrimonial experience.

TURQUOISE COPPER

NOT A PROSPECT

400 FOOT TUNNEL—140 FOOT SHAFT

Mines located near Valardena, Durango, Mexico, only six miles by wagon road and three miles straight line from the property of the Guggenheims upon which they have recently erected a $2,000,000 smelter. Sample assays have averaged from $54 to $103 per ton.

Up to the present time, the Turquoise Copper Co., has been practically a close corporation; an initial offering of 100,000 shares has just been made at 25 cents, par value $1.00, full paid and non-assessable. Proceeds will be used to further continue the development work already begun.

We have options on 30,000 shares of this stock and advise immediate purchase at 25 cents per share. It is the intention of The Board of Directors to list the stock on the New York Curb and it should sell at $1.00 per share by the first of the year.

Write now for prospectus and Mining Engineer's report.

STOCK BROKERS—MANCHESTER, N.H.

$90,000---7 Per Cent.

9,000 Shares 7 Per Cent Cumulative Preferred Stock ($10 a Share) Offered at Par with 40 Per Cent Immediate Bonus of Common Stock We Reserve the Right to Withdraw Offer Without Notice and to Return any Subscription Received Too Late. Previous Offerings Were Immediately Oversubscribed.

MORE THAN A THOUSAND BANK OFFICERS, LAWYERS, PHYSICIANS, MINISTERS, BUSINESS MEN AND OTHERS HAVE BECOME STOCKHOLDERS IN THE CIRCLE PUBLISHING COMPANY WITHIN THE PAST FEW MONTHS.

Presidents and Cashiers of Banks, Presidents and other officers of Insurance Companies and of prominent business concerns who are thoroughly qualified to pass upon the soundness of such a proposition have comended the investment and have put their own money into it.

Many leading Physicians, Ministers and Educators in all the big cities of the United States and several in Europe have very highly endorsed THE CIRCLE MAGAZINE and THE CIRCLE PUBLISHING COMPANY, and have been glad to become part owners in the enterprise.

These men, and a good many splendid women, also, have known THE CIRCLE for several years and have watched it grow better and stronger constantly. They know what a sterling good property it is; they know that it is founded on a plan that ought to success, and they know that it is held always true to that plan; they know from personal experience that its business methods are good, careful, and conservative, yet aggressive and successful; they are convinced, therefore, that there is a large and very profitable career ahead of THE CIRCLE PUBLISHING COMPANY. For these reasons they have been glad of a chance to get some of its stock.

Twice we offered by letter, without any blow of trumpets, Five Thousand Shares of our Cumulative Seven Per Cent, Preferred Stock for subscription. Each time the Five Thousand Shares were promptly over-subscribed before we could finish sending out the letters to the selected list. There are only Twenty Thousand Shares of Preferred Stock in all, therefore more than half was taken up at once, and we have not offered the balance until now.

For a short time we are going to give the same opportunity to those who did not receive our letters: but as the amount is necessarily limited, prompt action will be required.

HERE IS THE PLAN: The Capital Stock of The Circle Publishing Company is $500,000, of which $200,000 is Preferred Stock with 7 per cent. Cumulative dividend, and $300,000 is Common Stock upon which all dividends over and above the 7 per cent. on the Preferred Stock will be paid. Measured by the opportunities for rapid development of the business and by the known earnings of other great magazine and book publishing properties, the dividends on the Common Stock should soon exceed the fixed dividend on the Preferred Stock, and our Plan gives you some of both kinds.

The following extract from an article in a recent number of Leslie's Weekly is to the point:

"HOW A FEW DOLLARS MADE A FORTUNE"

"Among the most interesting commercial facts in this country are the astonishing fortunes which are being made by magazine publishers.

"Every year more than the immense sum of about $80,000,000 is spent in buying advertising space and in buying copies of periodicals. A large portion of this huge amount of money becomes profits for magazine owners.

"The great popular monthly publications have risen to wealth and prominence so quickly that only $100 invested in Munsey's a few years ago is now worth between $10,000 and $12,000, and is earning dividends at the rate of $1,000 a year.

"McClure's Magazine made a profit for its stockholders of 1,000 per cent. in about ten years. The total annual income of The Ladies' Home Journal and The Saturday Evening Post, both of which are owned by the Curtis Publishing Company, of Philadelphia, is not far from $6,000,000. The Cosmopolitan, Everybody's, The Outlook, and others, are immensely profitable.

"Unfortunately, however, magazine readers have rarely had an opportunity to share in these splendid earnings. Nearly all the magazines are in each case owned by a few individuals, who receive all the enormous income.

"A chance to secure an interest in one of the great popular magazines, on a basis that insures absolute safety and gives a liberal share of all the profits of the business, is an opportunity that attracts the immediate attention of the shrewdest investors."

OUR OFFER IS THIS: The par value of all shares is $10. They are full paid and non-assessable. The taxes on the stock are paid in full. Nine thousand shares of the Cumulative 7 per cent Preferred Stock are offered now at ten dollars a share, par. Every subscriber for five shares of Preferred Stock will be given a bonus of one share of Common Stock and will be made also a life subscriber for THE CIRCLE Magazine without additional payment. A subscriber for any multiple of five shares will be given a corresponding number of shares of Common Stock, as bonus, and will be allowed to present a life subscription for THE CIRCLE as a gift to some relative or friend for each five shares of Preferred Stock subscribed. Additional shares of Common Stock may be substituted in lieu of life subscriptions as bonus, or vice-versa. Thus, ten shares of Preferred Stock will entitle the subscriber to two shares of Common Stock and two life subscriptions for THE CIRCLE, or four shares of Common Stock. One hundred shares of Preferred Stock will carry with them a bonus of twenty shares of Common Stock and twenty life subscriptions for THE CIRCLE, or forty shares of Common Stock.

If you can not afford to take five or more shares, you may subscribe for three shares, and with such a subscription we will give you either the life subscription for THE CIRCLE or a bonus of one share of Common Stock, as you prefer.

We must say now, however, that this offer with its bonus is conditioned upon your prompt acceptance, and we reserve the right to withdraw or modify the offer without further notice.

YOU NEED NOT SEND ALL THE MONEY NOW IF NOT CONVENIENT TO DO SO, but write at once, saying how many of the 9,000 shares you will take and how soon you will be ready to pay for them. Ten per cent. of the amount of your subscription should be sent at the time of making the reservation. If more convenient to you the total amount may be divided into several instalments. Please use one of the Application Forms below, or a copy of the same.

Just an earnest word or two: You ought to know something about the "Plan" and aim of THE CIRCLE. We are all deeply in earnest about this matter. Every one of the men and women who now control the editorial and the business policy of the magazine is pledged to the carrying onward to its highest possible success the work of making a great, high-class, popular magazine of world-wide circulation which shall portray and encourage the good in individual, social, business, and political life, rather than the evil; which shall stand for peace rather than war; which shall search out beauty rather than ugliness; which shall build up rather than teardown; which shall constantly plan and labor, and co-operate with those who are planning and laboring, to make this world a better and happier place to live in, both for the poor and the wealthy, for the unlearned and the learned, for the weak and for the strong.

This is not mere rainbow painting. It is a real and definite program, based upon strong convictions and practical plans. We know that there are many splendid men and women who are in sympathy with this program and want to see it carried out. They know, as we know, that there is a positive cure in sunshine and fresh air. The poisonous, ill-smelling places often can be purified and made beautiful just by letting in the sunlight and the sweet winds of heaven. No man can remain a pessimist who will open his eyes and his heart to the good and the beautiful around him. All he need do is to give it just a fair share of his attention. It will surely sweeten his blood, cheer and lift up his heart, lighten his step, brighten the glance of his eyes, and inspire him in his work. There is plenty of evil to fight, and it calls for strenuous and constant effort, but the man who sees nothing but the evil will never be able to overcome much of it. You who will help to support and boldly develop and broaden the work of THE CIRCLE Magazine, until its influence is felt in countless American homes, satisfying the great need, recognised or unrecognised, of American life—you who will help to accomplish this will come closer to the hearts of multitudes of people and do more universal and lasting good than can be done in any restricted field. No single instrument within the grasp of any group of men can be so effective as this great, clean, purposeful magazine in bringing to pass that "Peace on Earth, Good Will to Men," for which the world has been waiting for so many centuries.

This is a business enterprise. We want to make money for ourselves and for our stockholders, and we shall do so; but this business enterprise—this sound, common-sense, money-making enterprise is inspired with an ideal; this corporation has a soul.

Men of long and successful experience in the magazine and book publishing business and in financial affairs make up the Board of Officers and Directors of The Circle Publishing Company.

This additional capital will be used to increase the circulation and advertising patronage of THE CIRCLE Magazine and to develop the profitable book publishing enterprises of the Company. No magazine in the world possesses more of the real elements of large business profit and immense usefulness to society than does THE CIRCLE. The magazine itself shows tangible evidence, month by month, of the truth of these statements.

We trust you will join with us—that you will write quickly and reserve five, ten, twenty, fifty or more shares of the Preferred Stock, and so have a part in THE CIRCLE work and THE CIRCLE success. Write at once, if possible, filling out one of the blank forms below.

HOW TO WIN.

Determination and Unity of Purpose Will Work Wonders.

Once you have chosen your occupation or profession hold fast thereto. Let nothing allure you from the main traveled road. Having chosen, hold like steel. Make everything feed into the main current of your life. Even modest talents, organized and unified, have conquered great distinction and worldwide success. History is full of illustrations of the unifying power of a great purpose. Witness the poor child Hastings looking at a distant manor house that once had belonged to his father. The determination to win back that estate before he died lent power and momentum and produced Lord Hastings. Witness the influence of purpose upon that little Scotch boy, out upon a holiday on the banks of the Clyde with three precious coppers as his entire possession. He determined to build a house on the hilltop overlooking the river and forty years later moved into the castle, from which he looked down upon twenty ocean steamers he had built. Witness the purpose of William the Silent, filling all the days and nights for the hero struggling to deliver brave little Holland from Spain Witness Milton's vow to write a poem that the world would not willingly let die and who therefore lived an epic life. Witness Paul's resolution to do one thing and one thing alone and who, with that unit purpose, achieved democracy for all subsequent peoples and centuries. Aimlessness will make your life like a sand heap.—Rev. New ell Dwight Hillis.

FULL OF HUMAN INTEREST.

Landscapes of the Dutch Painters of the Seventeenth Century.

The Dutch painters of the seventeenth century were as little concerned with poetic feeling as with idealism. They used their eyes and painted what they saw, but neither their imaginations nor their feelings were touched While most modern painters interpret how the scene has affected themselves, the Dutch looked at it as something entirely outside themselves.

Otherwise the Dutch landscapes present us pictures of a pleasant workaday world or of the quiet evenings that follow after the labors of the day —never a hint of disturbance, though war and rumors of war were constant; instead, the perpetual suggestion of prosperous peace and thrifty comfort, for they abound with the evidences of busy humanity Not only is nature brought into touch with human life by the little figures, so charmingly life like, which animate the scene, but everywhere are the results of man's handiwork seen in little things as well as big -in the trimly kept fruit trees of a laborer's garden plot no less than in the handsome facade of a rich burgher's town house. There is no country in the world where the influence of man is so minutely imprinted upon every foot of ground, and as these artists were eager to represent the things they saw no landscape are so full of human interest as theirs.—Charles H. Caffin in St. Nicholas.

Her Home.

Some years ago, when a part of the Japanese imperial palace was burned at Tokyo, the empress was forced to flee to one of the old daimio houses near by. It was not at all comfortable, and, as the story goes, her majesty, appreciating that her subjects would be much concerned at her living in such a mean place, sat down and wrote them a little poem in which she denied that she had changed her residence. The poem, which was in the best Japanese language, stated that her majesty's home had always been in the hearts of the people and that neither the flames nor the cold could ever drive her from that dear abode.

The Dead Larks.

In Baluchistan even the wolves go mad In his book, "The Frontiers of Baluchistan," G. P Tate writes: "The shepherds give a strange reason for the epidemic of rabies. According to them, it was caused by the wild beasts eating dead larks. In some years, they said, the larks develop extraordinary vitality and pour forth such a flood of songs as they rise on the wing that they become suffocated and fall to the ground dead. A wild animal which eats one of these dead birds invariably develops rabies. This is a widespread superstition and seems not unfamiliar to the natives of India who were with me."

A Butchers' Common.

William, earl of Warren, in the time of King John, while standing upon the castle walls saw two bulls fighting in the castle meadow till all the butcher dogs pursued one of the maddened bulls quite through the town. The sight pleased the earl so much that he gave the castle meadow, where the duel of the bulls began, for a common to the butchers of the town after the first grass was mowed, on condition that they should find a mad bull the day six weeks before Christmas day for the continuance of that sport forever.—London Standard

Fine Crops.

"Do you raise anything worth while in your garden?" said the visitor from the city.

"I should say so," answered Mr Crumsten "It's the best place for fishing worms in the entire village."

HISTORIC WEAPONS.

Trophies Wrested From the Crusaders Found in the Sudan.

Among the trophies of arms displayed on the walls of Windsor castle one of the most interesting of the long series is a group of weapons and armor sent to Queen Victoria by Lord Kitchener after the Dongola campaign on the upper Nile in 1896.

The trophy consists of a coat of chain mail, a number of spears and a long cross hilted sword. On the straight steel blade of the sword there is an inscription in odd fashioned letters: "No me saques sin razon. No me entraines sin honor."

The words are Spanish, but the same motto was inscribed on sword blades in the days of chivalry in most of the languages of Europe. Its meaning is the knightly rule for all who bear the sword: Do not draw me without reason. Do not sheathe me without honor.

The weapon was taken from the abandoned camp of Wad Bishara, the dervish general, after the battle of Hafir (Sept. 23, 1896). How came a blade with such a motto to be found in a Moslem bivouac in the heart of the Sudan?

The presence of these crusader swords in the Sudan is not so difficult to explain. In the thirteenth century the Mohammedan caliphs of Egypt not only carried on successful wars against the crusaders in Syria, destroying the last vestiges of the Latin kingdom of Jerusalem, but also defeated two attempts of the Europeans to invade Egypt itself, one of them led by St. Louis of France.

Enormous quantities of western arms and warlike equipments must have thus passed into the possession of the Mohammedan conquerors.—Chambers' Journal.

BABY TALK.

An Infantile Habit That Sometimes Sticks and Breeds Trouble.

Once in awhile a rare stammering case comes to the laboratory where there's nothing the matter with the child—the matter is with his dear mamma. In 1905 Dr. Witmer examined a boy of twelve who talked baby talk—a bright, alert youngster, to all appearances normal. But nobody could understand a word he uttered—except mamma; she understood it all perfectly. "I—aw—ow—ay" was to her ear "I want to go out to play" as plain as anything could be. It was her tender custom to reply likewise, and she took pride in the thought that she had never allowed her Willie to associate with the children on the block She had encouraged him to be her baby and "kept him from growing up too soon" by prattling to him.

Except for his unintelligible language, the examination did not reveal a defect, physical or mental, in the boy, and Dr. Witmer was forced to the conclusion that the trouble lay in the persistence of an infantile habit of articulation for which the mother was solely responsible. Through sentimentality and overindulgence "she had almost ruined his chances for a useful and possibly successful life." (Psychological clinic, March, 1907.) Months of painstaking, expert labor had to be expended upon him to break up the habit his mother had carefully developed before he could even begin to make himself understood by any one else.—Dr. Witmer of Yale in McClure's Magazine.

Almost Disbelieved Her Eyes.

"Among the memories of my boyhood," said a New York man, "there is one odd episode that is particularly vivid. It is a conversation that I overheard one morning as I walked toward the Boston high school between two women.

"The women were talking about bicycles—their size, weight, health, and so forth.

"'Why, when I was a week old,' said the first woman, 'I was such a little baby that they put me in a quart pot and put the lid on over me.'

"The other woman was amazed and horrified. 'And did you live?' she asked.

"'They say I did,' her friend answered.

"'Well, well, well!' exclaimed the second woman. And she glanced at the other almost doubtfully."

In the Wrong Place.

A one legged Welsh orator named Jones was pretty successful in battering an Irishman, when the latter asked him:

"How did you come to lose your leg?"

"Well," said Jones, "on examining my pedigree and looking up my descent I found there was some Irish blood in me, and, becoming convinced that it was settled in the left leg, I had it cut off at once."

"By the powers," said Pat, "it would have been a very good thing if it had only settled in your head!"—London Mail.

The Fool.

He was a noble lord, and he was in an awful rage with one of his footmen.

"It is intolerable!" he exclaimed. "Are you a fool, or am I?"

"Oh, my lord," replied James, with humility, anxious to appease the great man, "I am sure you would not keep a servant who was a fool."

The Greatest Inventor.

Teacher—Who is the greatest inventor? Shaggy Haired Pupil—I'm Pending, I guess. I see his name on more inventions than I do any other man's.

A person who talks with equal positivity on every subject excites no interest in any—Hazlitt.

Scipio Africanus.

Scipio Africanus was one of the greatest soldiers, save Julius Cæsar, in Roman history. He defeated Hannibal and his Carthaginians at Zama, a city of Carthage, on Oct. 19, in the year 202 B. C., and gave to Rome the ascendancy over the then known world.

Opalescent Glass.

Opalescent glass for use in the manufacture of stained glass windows is made in this country in a manner which cannot be duplicated, and the material is shipped all over Europe

MAN'S ENEMIES.

The Small Foes Are the Most Deadly and Destructive.

In one of Herbert Wells' brilliant stories the terribly scientific and practically invincible Martians (who have invaded the earth and conquered England are stopped in the midst of their victories and utterly destroyed by the attacks of microscopic foes. Infinitely small organisms, germs of diseases to which man has become in some degree immune, slay the wonderful warriors of a planet never invaded by these earth foes. What the greatest battleships and the heaviest guns could not do the unseen and unguessed living seeds of death accomplish.

More clearly every day the world understands that in the life and affairs of mankind the most deadly and destructive foes are extremely small. All of the fierce mammals and poisonous serpents of Africa do not kill as many human beings in ten years as the tsetse fly slays in one. The tigers and cobras of India kill their thousands every year, but the rats which spread the germs of the bubonic plague destroy their tens of thousands. In this country the common housefly undoubtedly causes more deaths than all the venomous snakes, wild beasts, mad dogs, runaway horses and ill tempered bulls ten times over. The actual proportion is probably much higher than ten to one.

MAN AND MONKEY.

Difference Between the Human and Animal Method of Thought.

The difference between the animal and the human idea of what constitutes "knowing" comes out nicely in a piece of work done at Clark university—A. J. Kinnman's study of rhesus monkeys, the Baldar-log of the "Jungle Book."

The monkey, following the usual procedure, learned to get his food from a box, the lid of which fastened with a key. The key, however, could not be withdrawn from the lock. After the monkey had become familiar with the device and could operate it as readily as a man could do the experimenter took the key out of the lock and laid it on the floor in front of the box. The monkey picked up the key, played with it, but made no attempt to use it. Then the experimenter took up the key, and, fifty times in succession, with the monkey two feet away watching every motion, he unlocked the box. The monkey would have starved before he imitated that simple act. He had learned to open the box by making certain movements. He had no idea of the key as an instrument in the process. We sometimes think instruments and means and causes. The animal thinks largely motions.—E. T. Brunston in McClure's Magazine.

A Rare Opportunity.

When the circus came to Rushby the large attendance was a surprise to Squire Ferris, and he said so to Will Hamlin, the postmaster.

"It is natural that men and children should wish to go," remarked the squire in his formal tone, "but I must confess to a feeling of amazement on hearing that the ladies of the town had flocked to see wild beasts and that young woman who leaps from one wire to another, with no regard for her personal safety."

"Tell you just how 'tis, square," said Mr. Hamlin confidentially. "I don't think many of the women folks planned to go till Jed Potter came in here one mail time and told Miss Emma Rollins he understood the show was enough to scare anybody out of ten years' growth.

"Miss Emma's getting on, and you couldn't expect her to let a chance like that go—nor any of the other women now, could ye?"

Keep Your Temper.

Which of all the domestic virtues is most essential to a happy married life? The ability to keep one's temper, beyond all question.

There is nothing which lends more to misery, not only for its possessor, but also for those about him, than an ungovernable and unreasonable temper. No one is worse to live with than an ill tempered man, except perhaps an ill tempered woman.

Bad tempered people completely spoil the lives of those who associate with them. The feeling of strain is ever present. One never knows just when the storm will break, although apparently the weather, metaphorically, is "set fair." Life in these circumstances becomes a burden almost beyond bearing.

Caught Her.

"I am looking for something nice for a young man," said the young and pretty shopper.

"Why don't you look in the mirror?" asked the gallant clerk.

And she was so flustered that he managed to sell her four different things that she did not want before she knew what she was doing.

Misgivings.

"That was a very lucid document you prepared," said the friend.

"Yes," answered the statesman dubiously. "I made it so lucid that I am afraid the public will fail to regard it as able and profound."

A Reminder.

Mrs B.—If I should die would you ever forget me? Mr B.—I think not. The doctor said that I will suffer from dyspepsia all my life.

Refuse to worry and you have accomplished one of the greatest things in the world.

The Bladderwort.

The aquatic plant the bladderwort feeds on animal life. The tiny bladders attached to the leaves and leaf stalks are each furnished with a door, the whole acting on the eel trap principle. Any small water creature that ventures to peep in is seized in the clutches of the murderous plant and is at once swallowed and assimilated.

Ant Proof Woods.

Use is made in the south sea islands of house made of camphor wood or American white cedar, because ants and other insects have an aversion for these woods. The natives use such house for drying.

BARNUM'S METHODS.

The Showman Always on the Alert For an Advertisement.

One morning the newspapers announced that grave fears were entertained for the safety of an agent of Barnum's big show who had gone to Africa to seek attractions for it in their native lairs. News had come, it was said, that he had just been heard from in a predicament from which escape was practically impossible. It was a very sad piece of business altogether.

Mr. Barnum was at a hotel in New York city at the time, and there a relative of the unfortunate agent found him entertaining a squad of reporters with a most interesting version of the African tragedy. The caller knew his man and waited patiently until the interviewers had departed. Then he anxiously asked for news.

"Oh, don't be worried," said the showman. "I've just got intelligence that he's safe and sound and will be back here in a few weeks."

"But he has a great many friends here," objected the visitor, "and this report of his death will cause them much sorrow."

Mr. Barnum looked solemn for an instant, and then he chuckled. "Well," he exclaimed cheerfully, "just think of this—they'll be all the happier when he gets back here alive."

SEA MONSTERS OF OLD.

The Marine Monster That Was Thought to Cause Tidal Waves.

The kraken was one of the sea monsters of old, and if all the stories told about its wondrous size and doings are true it overshadowed the serpent as much as the latter does the common garter snake. An old writer says that this marine giant caused tidal waves by swallowing a goodly part of the waters of the ocean and then belching them out again. He also makes mention of the fact that its gigantic horny beak was often mistaken for mountain peaks suddenly shoved into sight by the internal convulsions of the earth.

Bishop Pontoppidan, a truthful member of the Copenhagen Royal academy, is much more conservative in his estimates of its size, giving it as his opinion that they were seldom found more than "the half of an Italian mile in length and not larger in diameter than the cathedral at The Hague."

He also says that its body was frequently mistaken by sailors for an island, "so that people landed upon it and were engulfed in a maelstrom of water when the creature sank to its hidden ocean den." Other authorities testify that its beak from the eyes to the point "was longer than the mainmast of a man-of-war."

The Sewing Machine.

The invention of the sewing machine is one of the most interesting evolutionary romances in the history of human progress. Stone, Henderson and Greenough had experimented extensively with the double pincher idea, one to seize the needle below and one above. Hellmann used a double pointed needle, with the eye in the center, and Thimmonier and Ferrand had invented a chain stitch machine. In 1834 Walter Hunt originated the extension arm idea with a needle similar to the one now in general use, but before he applied for his patent in 1854 he had been forestalled by Elias Howe, who will always be known as the inventor of the sewing machine. If Hunt had not been so great a laggard he might have won fame as an inventor, but Howe is entitled to all the credit that has been given him. Like all great inventions, however, the sewing machine was the product of many minds.

Throwing the Shoe.

The peasants of southern France have the credit of originating the familiar custom of throwing an old shoe after the newly wedded pair. It was, moreover, the rejected suitor who first made it popular. The peasant bride is conducted by her friends to her new home, while the young husband is made to halt a couple of hundred yards from the house. If there is a rejected suitor he then arms himself with an old wooden shoe and flings it, with his best aim, at the bridegroom as he makes a dash for the house. When the shoe is thrown it is understood that the last feeling of ill will has been flung away with it.

An Easy One.

Billfuss—If I had $3 and you asked me to lend you two, how much would I have left? Jubb—Oh, I know the answer to that. You would still have $3 left, granting it were possible that you ever had that much at one time, because you wouldn't lend me any. Ask me something probable.—Pathfinder.

One on Papa.

Caller—Harold, when you get to be the head of a family what will you say to your children when they are naughty? Harold—Oh, I'll do like papa. I'll tell them how good I was when I was a kid.

Cheap Living.

She—I'm living on brown bread and water to improve my complexion. He—How long can you keep it up? She—Oh, indefinitely, I guess. He—Then let's get married.

Result of Rashness.

"Out of a job, are you?" asked the first girl. "Boss catch you flirting?"

"No; I caught the boss. Say, what sort of a wedding dress do you think is real swell?"

Truly this world can go on without us, if we would but think so.—Longfellow.

August time tells on the nerves. But that spiritless, no ambition feeling can be easily and quickly altered by taking what is known to druggists everywhere as Dr. Shoop's Restorative. Within 48 hours after beginning to use the Restorative, improvement will be noticed. Of course full health will not immediately return. The gain, however, will surely follow. And best of all, you will realize and feel your strength returning. Outside influences depress first the "inside nerves" then the stomach, Heart, and Kidneys will usually fail. Strengthen these failing nerves with Dr. Shoop's Restorative, and see how quickly health will be yours again. Sold by all dealers.

Our esteemed contemporary, the Bobcaygeon Independent, sizes up the Wellman polar gesture about right. It says:

Mr. Wellman, finds another [illegible] that he had advertised he was going to make an navigator the balloon, vanished like a sharm. The first curve brought him home again. He is said to have got thirty miles from camp, just reached the edge of the ice pack, where he had a vessel conveniently waiting, when the gasoline engine broke. As the gas was let out of the balloon, all the North Pole expedition was over. Wellman should start all future North Pole expeditions from Coney Island."

INJURY BOLLARD RECEIVED DURING FIGHT WAS RESPONSIBLE FOR HIS DEATH

Drs. Scott and Greer Believe the Injury Caused the Trouble

Evidence in Inquest Taken Yesterday was Important—Some was Contradictory—Stories of Fight Differ in Important Features—Inquest Adjourned Until Sept. 13

The inquest into the death of the late Arthur Bollard of Toronto, who died last Friday afternoon at Chemong was resumed yesterday afternoon in the county court room before Coroner Dr. Gray.

MISS ADA MINNS.

The first witness called was Miss Ada Minns, who was spending the summer at Mr. Hopwood's cottage at Chemong. She was at the dance on Monday night in the pavilion until about 10 o'clock. Mr. Marks was with her. Going home they met Bollard who went with them. In front of Mr. Wolfe's cottage the first intimation she had of any trouble was when Harry Joplin cried behind them, "Here he is." She turned and saw Harry Joplin and Bollard. Bollard said, "Yes, here I am." Then they startec to fight. Others were following. She called to Fred to stop fighting but he paid no attention to her. She was only ten or twelve feet away at the time. After a couple of minutes Mr Hartshorn came reluctantly down from the third cottage. Witness asked him to stop the fight. He told her to be quiet and he would look after it. Witness heard Bollard cry out "Let go," three times, also "Dirty" twice. She heard no cry from Harry Jopling. There was quite a party of fellows around while the fight was going on. It was the same bunch that had followed them. Cullen, witness said, had apologised to her Thursday morning for being mixed up with the crowd. He said he had been sent for by Harry Joplin Monday morning but did not know what it was about until he arrived there. After the wrestling Bollard laid on the ground and appeared to be very weak.

BLAKE CULLEN.

The next witness was Blake Cullen of Bridgenorth. He was at the park Monday night between nine and ten o'clock. He said he had not been sent for. He had been told at the pavilion of Bollard going to give Harry Jopling a thrashing. He saw Bollard start for home. Harry was in the swing and witness and Fred were on the verandah. He saw Bollard start for home. Harry was in the swing and witness and Fred were on the verandah. He saw the Joplins start to run after Bollard. Witness followed. He denied telling Miss Minns that he was sent for. He heard Harry Jopling cry, "You are choking me." Bollard had Harry down and Fred had his hand on Bollard's shoulder and quietly asked Bollard to let Harry up. Bollard did so. Then Bollard and Fred Jopling started to fight in a rough and tumble fight, and Bollard was thrown. Fred hit Bollard once while they were down. Witness pushed Marks back as he thought he was going to help Bollard. He heard Bollard yell, but could not tell what he said. After they had got up Bollard complained of not getting a fair shake. Then the wrestling was all over. Bollard was unwell but said he would be all right in a short time.

To Mr. O'Connell, witness said he heard Bollard say he was going to thrash Harry next day. Witness then told Fred who was at the hotel talking to Mr. Brown. This was about 9.45. Harry was at the swing then. There was no pre arrangement to assist in the fight.

MISS MINNS.

Miss Minns was recalled in reference to Cullen's apology. She again stated that Cullen did say that Harry Jopling had sent for him to go to the park. She was positive of it.

GORDON LONG.

Gordon Long was next called. He is a son of James Long, and spends the summer at Chemong. He was at the park that night and saw Marks and Bollard start home with Miss Minns. He was going in the same direction. Then two fellows, Harry Jopling and another, ran past him. Witness hurried. When he caught up Bollard and Harry were on the ground. Fred interfered. When they got up, Fred said, "I'm here if you want to fight." He heard Bollard cry, "Let go," and also "Dirty." Witness helped carry Bollard home. When Bollard cried "Let go," he lay over and then Jopling hit him once while he was down. Bollard said something about a dirty trick after the village boys had gone. It was that he had been caught by the privates.

MISS BIRRITT.

Miss Birritt said that on Tuesday night Bollard told her that the fight had been an unfair one. They had bit his finger and tried to bite his arm and that they had done a dreadful thing to him. He said that he was feeling very bad and that it was hard to keep a straight face on at home.

To Mr. O'Connell, witness said this conversation took place while they were at the corn roast on the shore. Just for those few minutes they were alone. She saw him on Wednesday night and danced with him. He appeared to be well enough.

DAVID TULLY.

David Tully said he worked for Mr. Popham at Chemong. He saw Mr. Hartshorn making peace, and the boys shook hands. When they got up the second time Bollard said, "Fred you pinched me hard." Bollard had a little blood on his chin.

To Mr. Connell, witness said he considered that they were too good wrestlers, but that Bollard was the better man.

DR. SCOTT.

Dr. Scott was called to read his written statement of the finding of the post mortem examination. The statement was as follows;

Peterborough, Aug. 28, 1909.

Autopsy on the body of the late Arthur Bollard of Toronto, at D. Belleghem's undertaking rooms by Drs. Scott and Greer at 3.30 p.m.,

External appearances were those of a young man about 19 years of age, 6 foot tall and about 170 lbs. in weight. There was a general discoloration of the body. Except the scrotum which was congested; and the penis which contained a dark greenish spot about 1¼ inches in diameter. There were also three small abrasions on the inner side of right knee. There was also a skin abrasion on under skin of right hand. The brain and spinal cord were found normal on examination as well as the lungs and heart in the chest cavity.

The abdominal cavity was opened and the stomach and upper part of the small intestine were found congested, swollen and containing a dark-grayish mucous fluid which was quite offensive. There was also som extravasation of bile into the tissues surrounding the gall bladder and ducts. The kidneys and other organs in the abdominal cavity were found normal. The testicles were also found normal.

In our opinion the direct and immediate cause of death was "Gastro enteritis," with septic infection.

W. D. SCOTT.
G. N. GREER.

To Mr. Wood, he said that anything that would result in weakening the body or shock to the system over exhaustion, would leave the body in a position to be affected much more seriously by poisonous substance formed in the body, than it otherwise would. He could not feel any other way but that the fight on Monday night had a lot to do with the cause of the illness. Deceased's mother said he ate more hearty on Tuesday and Wednesday than formerly. This combined with the shock he received on Monday night would leave him much more liable to affection. The fight Monday night was contributory to the young man's death.

Witness would judge from the condition of the privates that there must have been considerable violence used. This would contribute directly to the cause by creating a shock to the body.

To Mr. O'Connell, Dr. Scott said. The immediate cause of death was the inflamation of stomach and small bowel along with septic poisoning. These were brought into existence by some other cause.

DR. GREER.

Dr. Greer was next put in the witness box. He assisted in the autopsy. Was also called in consultation with Dr. Scott, the day Bollard died. Deceased seemed to be suffering intensely from poisoning. He observed the discoloration of the privates. They were also congested. He agreed with Dr. Scott's report. He said that the vomitting was sympathy to the injury to the privates. He could not trace inflamation of bowels to any direct cause. There was intense suffering from inflamation of stomach and upper bowel trouble. He thinks it possible that the injuries si received lowered his vitality and the resisting powers of his organs and in that way indirectly contributed to what followed the illness.

To Mr. O'Connell, witness said his opinion was based upon all the facts of the case. He admitted that some other cause than the injury received Monday night could have caused the inflamation. He also admitted that over exertion could have caused the condition.

To Mr. Wood he said he had no reasonable doubt but that it was the injury to the testicles which caused the condition of the deceased.

The inquest was then adjourned until Monday, Sept. 13.

Features of The Inquest

Seven more witnesses examined.
More contradirtory evidence.
Dr. Scott read report of autopsy.
Drs. Scott and Greer both believe the injury received on Monday night indirectly caused Bollard's death.
Injury was inflicted while Bollard and Fred Jopling fought first time.
Miss Minns' testimony was important.
Inquest adjourned until Sept. 13.

Isolation Hospital Plans were Adopted

The Property Committee decided last night to accept the plans prepared by Architect Blackwell for the new isolation hospital, and to recommend them to the council. This report will be presented to the council on Tuesday night next at the regular meeting. The hospital will cost close on to $15,000 when completed and ready for use with all the equipment installed. The committee considered the matter seriously and got all the information possible, and it was on this information and upon the urgent necessity of an isolation hospital that they decided upon the action they did. The council has authority to spend up to $15,000, without going to the people for this purpose.

The Property Committee met last night when Ald. Bradburn, chairman and Mayor Rush, Aldermen Morgan, McIntyre and Duncan were present.

A letter was received from John Johnston asking for the privilege of using some city property on the water front to pile wood on.

It was moved by Aldermen Duncan and McIntyre, that Johnston be given a strip 80 feet wide and the depth of the property at $3 per month.—Carried.

ISOLATION HOSPITAL.

A resolution from the Medical Association was read favoring the plans for the isolation hospital. The building will cost some $12,000 with between $2000 and $3,000 for equipment. This brings it up to the limit allowed, viz., $15,000, which is allowed by the city's special legislation. The plans provide for some 48 patients, 20 diyptheria and 28 for scarlet fever.

The aldermen went fully into the cost of maintenance. It appears that a caretaker and a cook and a matron, and a head nurse when necessary. Their salaries it was estimated would run from $1000 to $1,200 per year. There would be mostly non-payinh patients in the hospital, although this past summer there were quite a number of families who could afford to pay and who would have been glad to send their patients to the isolation hospital. There will be some revenue at all times.

It was suggested that a small building be put up. This however, would not do as nothing would be saved in maintenance, and there was greater danger of mixed infection.

It was moved by Ald. Morgan and seconded by Ald. Duncan that the plans be accepted and recommended to the council to ask authority to have the specifications prepared and tenders advertised for.—Carried.

Rainbow and Otonabee Collided in the River, Damage is very Slight

A slight accident occured yesterday morning about 10.30 on the Otonabee river when the steamers Otonabee and Rainbow collided at the sharp bend just below Hale's bridge. The Str. Otonabee was bound down stream for Rice Lake and the Rainbow was coming up with about 30 passengers on board for a three days' trip through the upper lakes. The excursion came from Rice Lake points. Owing to some mishap to the steering gear on the Rainbow as she was rounding the bend below the bridge she collided with the Otonabee which was just leaving the bridge. The Rainbow was bounced on the Otonabee shore as a result of the collision, and although the bigger boat tried to pull her off she was unable to do so and then proceeded on down the river on her trip. The Rainbow lightened herself and managed to get afloat and proceeded to the city, arriving here about 8 o'clock last night.

Capt. Burnett of the Str. Rainbow, and Capt. White of the Str. Otonabee, called at The Times office late last night and stated that the early reports of the accident were greatly exaggerated. There was no excitement on board the Rainbow, no one was hurt, or even scared. There was no jar to the boats and only two or three timbers near the top of the Rainbow were broken and these will be repaired in a day or two. The greatest loss was the cancelling of the excursion, and the loss of time in the Rainbow getting herself afloat off the bottom of the river. As soon as she was afloat, however, she steamed up and proceeded to Peterborough where she will be repaired.

The bend in the river at this point is very sharp, and it is impossible for boats to see each other until they are almost on top of one another. The point itself is thickly wooded, and the position of the bridge is also a hindrance. If half an acre of the point was cleared it would make a great difference or if the bridge was moved it would be a big improvement. One of these two things will have to be done before long and the sooner the better.

Capt. Bernet said that as soon as he saw the Otonabee he put extra strength on the wheel in an endeavor to get the Rainbow swung around in order to pass the Otonabee. In doing so the chain from the wheel to the rudder broke and the boat was then helpless. As a result the accident occurred and the Rainbow was swung around and ran on to the shore. No one was to blame, and the amount of damage to the Rainbow is slight.

BETWEEN ONTARIO AND QUEBEC AND UNITED STATES.

Treasury Officials Say That All Quebec and Ontario Imports May Be Cut Off.

Washington, Sept. 1.—Treasury officials are finding that their action in regard to the imposition of retaliatory tariff rates upon print paper from certain provinces of Canada—Quebec and Ontario—is arousing more interest than almost anything that has been done since the passage of the Payne Aldrich tariff act.

Already protests in large numbers are being prepared, for it is well understood that the action taken is merely anticipatory, and that it probably foreshadows much more drastic action when the time comes for such action under terms of act. It is anticipated that the maximum rates on Canadian products, or at least those from certain provinces, will have to be applied unless there is some accommodation between now and the time when the maximum rates become applicable, and should that application of maximum rates be made, the results will be practically to cut off trade with those provinces.

The present action merely increases the tariff on print paper from Ontario to about $5.75 per ton, and on the same article from Quebec to about $6.10 per ton. These are the estimates of treasury experts as to the effect of the action taken. That being true, it is clear that there has been no reduction from the Dingley rates on such paper, which were $6 a ton.

As to the question of applying the maximum rates, that, of course, is for the future to determine, but there is nothing in the law to indicate the possibility of any escape on the part of the Government from the position in which it is placed. It will have to impose a maximum tariff on goods coming from the two Canadian provinces, or violate the law.

WAR ON TUBERCOLOSOS.

Iceland is Latest Country to Fight Plague.

London, Sept. 1.—Tourists in Iceland during the present season might pay a profitable visit to the new sanitarium for consumptive patients which is now in course of construction and is to be opened next year.

According to a British consular report, the site is about two miles from Reykjavik (the capital), and is situated "in the most healthy surroundings that could be obtained." The inception of the idea of establishing the institution is in itself calculated to excite sympathetic interest. As medical statistics showed that this dread disease was on the increase in the island, the Icelandic Odd Fellows took the initiative in the matter of forming a Society for the Prevention of Tuberculosis in the autumn of 1906, and met with immediate success. By a general contribution all over the country a sum of 30,000 to 40,000 kroner (about 16 kroner equal an English pound) has been raised, the Icelandic treasury guaranteed 150,000 kroner toward the erection of a house, and the Althing (Parliament) has granted 10,000 kroner toward the cost of maintenance.

The total initial cost of the institution, including furnishing for fifty or sixty patients, is estimated at not more than 180,000 to 200,000 kroner. Thus the inauguration and maintenance of this beneficient schem may be considered assured.

New Club Rooms.

It is understood that the handsome and commodious quarters of the Peterborough Club will be opened shortly, and the occasion will be marked by a smoking concert to which it is probable that a number of prominent citizens will be invited by the club members. The building at the corner of Simcoe and Water streets has been fitted up in a very handsome manner, and will no doubt meet with the requirements of the club.

East City Residents May Have a Park

At the Board of Works meeting last night Ald. Morgan brought up the matter of the old drill shed on Mark street, Ashburnham, and asked if it could not be removed. He suggested that the government be asked to take away the old frame building as the city owned the land it could be turned into a park. The chairman will look into this matter at an early date

Wedding Bells

TOUCHBOURNE—STAUNTON.

A very quiet wedding was solemnized yesterday morning at St. John's Anglican church, when Miss Margaret Jane, daughter of Mr. W. A. Staunton; 20 Benson avenue, was united in marriage to Mr. Samuel Frederick Touchbourne of "Pinehurst Cavan, Ont.

Rev. J. C. Davidson officiated.

The bride wore her traveling dress of white braided linen, and natty white felt hat with black trimmings

The groom's gift to the bride was an amethyst and pearl brooch.

Mr. and Mrs. Touchbourne left on the 8.25 train for the Muskoka lakes and on their return will reside at "Pinehurst," Cavan.

THOMPSON—JONES.

An interesting social event took place in the Presbyterian church at 7.30 o'clock Monday morning, when Miss Jessie M. Jones of the firm of the Misses Simpson & Jones, became the bride of Mr. A. E. Thompson, C.P.R. agent here.

Rev. P. Henderson was the officiating clergyman, and the ceremony was witnessed by quite a number of friends. The bride wore a natty traveling tailor-made suit of navy blue with hat to match and was unattend ed. Mr. and Mrs. Thompson took the 8.10 express for the east and will spend a vacation at Montreal, Quebec and the Lower St. Lawrence.

The bride is a daughter of Mr. and Mrs. A. E. Jones of Peterborough, Ont., and became one of Claresholm's most popular young ladies since coming here to reside last spring. Many friends join in wishing Mr. and Mrs. Thompson wealth and happiness and a long life.—Claresholm Review.

West Ends vs. T.A.S.

The West Ends are billed to meet the T.A.S. at Riverside Park Saturday afternoon and a win for the former will give the P.A.C. team a chance to play off with the Abstainers for the championship of the City League. All the players of the West End team have returned to the city and the contest should be a well played one. The T.A.S. have been defeated by each of the other teams and the West Enders are looking for that honor next Saturday. Both nines are sure to have a lot of rooters on hand and the game promises to be an interesting exhibition. The T.A.S. with Quinlan pitching at his best, are traveling at a fast pace at present, and it is worth the price of admission to see this team in action.

JEWISH WEDDING.

Miss Minnie Florence Was Married to Mr. M. Fine of Belleville.

The first Jewish wedding to be held in the precincts of Peterborough was solemnized last evening after six o'clock at the home of Mr. D. Florence, Simcoe street, when his daughter, Miss Minnie Florence was wedded to Mr. M. Fine of Belleville. The ceremony, which it is stated, is as old as tradition itself, was performed by Rabbi Berkowitz, of Toronto. Guests were present from New York, Ottawa, Belleville, Montreal, Kingston, Hamilton and Toronto, and over 100 were present.

The bride is a winsome little Miss apparently just passing out of her teens, and is a favorite among her own people in Peterborough besides having many other friends in the city. Her parents are among the foremost of the Jewish families here and for that reason itself last evening's nuptials were of particular interest. The ceremony in a few respects is similar to those of other religious persuasions. The bride was given away by her father. After the wedding a reception was held. The groom has a home in Belleville, where the young couple will reside in future.

Chamberlain's Colic, Cholera and Diarrhoea Remedy is today the best known medicine in use for the relief and cure of bowel complaints. It cures griping, diarrhoea, dysentery, and should be taken at the first unnatural looseness of the bowels. It is equally valuable for children and adults. It always cures! 11

WILL BUILD STEPS.

Mrs. Hartley's Place on Dickson St. Will Be Improved.

Mrs. Hartley's premises on Dickson street will be fixed up at once as a result of the grading of the road a year ago or more. The Board of Works considered an application from Mrs. Hartley on Monday night for some assistance from the city as the city had greatly damaged her property. She had not been able to rent it since that time.

It appears that when the Board of Works graded Dickson street last year a bank several feet high was created in front of Mrs. Hartley's and there was no way to get in or out.

The Board of Works visited the place yesterday morning and saw that the place was in bad shape and decided at once to have it remedied by building steps up to her premises. This will make a great improvement and Mrs. Hartley will be satisfied.

Not a minute should be lost when a child shows symptoms of croup. Chamberlain's Cough Remedy given as soon as the child becomes hoarse, or even after the croupy cough appears, will prevent the attack. 12

MAKES GREAT STRIDES.

Chinese Army is Rapidly Coming to the Front.

Paris, Aug. 31.—The fighting forces of China have been developed in an astounding way during the ten years that they have been drilled and trained by European instructors. La France Militaire points out that at this moment China has at its disposal 216 battalions of infantry, 45 squadrons of calvary, 136 batteries of field and mountain guns, 16 battalions of machine guns, 15 battalions of rappers and miners and 15 train battalions. These forces consist of 5400 officers and 68,000 non-commissioned officers and men.

In China's military academies there are now 700 students, while 2500 men are being trained in the schools for non-commissioned officers So well have the Chinese learned the lessons taught by their western army instructore that now only eight German and sixteen Japanese military instructors are Chinese. It is to be observed that at last the leading families in China are urging their sons to follow the long despised profession of arms, and every officer is now accorded the rank and privileges enjoyed by the mandarins.

The development of China's armed might introduces an almost unlooked-for element into the political outlook in the far East, and there are far more unlikely in the far East, and there are far more unlikely things than a Russo-Japanese alliance in the face of Japanese aggression with regard to the mainland of Asia for it is in the vital interests of both empires that Japan shall not be allowed to get a footing on the mainland.

Thrown From Wheel.

An Italian while riding a bicycle down the hill on Hunter St. near the treack leading into the Quaker Oats Company, shortly after noon yesterday was thrown off the machine and considerably bruised about the body and face. The Dan Spence ambulance was called and the injured man taken to his home on London street where he was attended by Dr. McNulty.

SOUND DOCTRINE.

Premier Morris, of Newfoundland, pronouncing that the Imperial Defence conference has been a wonderful success, adds:

"It would be regarded by the historian as the most effective step taken in our day to preserve the peace of the world."

Exactly, says our esteemed contemporary, the Ottawa Journal. Make the British empire a power which can not be assailed with success, and have a great guarantee of the world's peace. The empire itself will not assail any other power unjustly. No one part, not even England, could drag the other parts into an unjust war.

On the other hand, break up the empire, and what will be the case? A Canada independent and weak (unless she builds up a bigger naval and military force than she would need to co as part of the empire) tempting to the aggression of the United States and the temper of Japan; an Australia independent and weak (unless, like Canada, going into big defence expense), subject to Oriental attack; a South Africa independent and weak, with German possessions bordering upon it, tempting German encroachment; a weakened Britain, with possessions all over the world inviting friction with nations which had come to surpass Great Britain in pow & &.

Grade at Collegiate Will Not be Altered Armory Grade Raised

Land and Walks Around Armouries will be Altered to Conform with the Grade of the Schools

The grade of the lawns and walks around the Collegiate Institute will not be altered. Instead the grade of the lands and walks around the armories will be slightly raised so that they will conform very well with the grade of the schools. There will only be a slight incline and the appearance of the campus will not be affected. This was decided upon as a result of a conference between the members of the Board of Education and Hon. J. R. Stratton, M.P., Mr. R. R. Hall and Mr. Fuller, chief architect for the Public Works Department of the Dominion Government which was held last night.

Chairman Major L. M. Hayes, K.C., opened the meeting by stating that it was for the purpose of considering the grading between the the collegiate and armories. On motion, Messrs. Fuller, J. R. Stratton, M.P., and R. R. Hall, who were present on behalf of the Government, were, were heard.

SOUTH AFRICAN FEDERATION.

Mrf Balfour has been stirred from his usually languid attitude toward affairs by the dawn of a new era in South Africa. Like Lord Rosebery, the Conservative Leader is somewhat of a dilettante, and leaves the impression that he toys with public questions as a hobby rather than in the grave and reverent mood of a professional statesman. But, also like Lord Rosebery, when occasion demands, he can rise to heights of enthusiasm which stir his colleagues in the House only less than the country. During the debate on the South African Constitutional Bill, Mr. Balfour spoke with the weight and the eloquence that have graced the utterances of so many distinguished members of his family. Nor was his speech a mere burst of eloquence, charming in its manner but ephemeral in its matter. In referring to the race question, the Leader of the Opposition in the Commons chose a special theme which is perhaps the most important and the most difficult of solution of all the features of the social problem in South Africa. He was firm in his condemnation of any actual or pretended granting of equal rights to the colored element in the community, and tacitly censured a time-serving policy along these lines, as fundamentally rotten and eventually perilous to any lasting quietude in the new Dominion. And finally, Mr. Balfour, speaking on behalf of his Party, deprecated any action which would hamper the Asquith Government in putting into effect a measure which he considered wisely, and beneficially framed, so long as the Home authorities did not in their turn, by imprudent meddling in the future, , handicap the South African legislators in the working out of their own salvation.

BRITISH FREEDOM.

Next summer there will be inaugurated in South Africa another great self-governing state of the British Empire, formed by the union of the Colonies of The Cape, Natal, Orange River, Transvaal and several little territories enclosed by or contiguous to those above named. The new state will be entirely independent of the British Islands, but, having the same monarch as the United Kingdom and the other British possessions, will remain a part of the great British Empire, of which Canada, Newfoundland, Australia and New Zealand are parts entirely independent of each other and practically independent of the mother country as well. As in Canada the two languages most spoken, are placed on an equal footing, the two in the South Africa, case being English and Dutch. It speaks volumes for British justice and fair play that such generosity is shown the nationality that seven years ago had just been completely conquered in a hard fought three years' war. The Dutch of South Africa are not now likely to ever call in the armies of Germany or any other power to free them from British tyranny. The probability is that they will prove, as did the French in Canada during the two great struggles between Britain and the United States, the most ardent and determined supporters of British connection.

Britain's practical recognition of the absolute independency of all her self governing colonies, under the same sovereign, marks an era in colonial history. No other nation has done so. Spain lost all her American colonies except Porto Rico, by rebellion, the party granting of equal rights to Cuba, not sufficing to hold that island loyal to the homeland. Britain, trusting to the inherent loyalty of her dependent kinsmen, has recognized them as equals, and thus laid the foundation upon which may soon be built up an organic union of states of equal rank, in which each for its own and the common good will give up part of its sovereignty to a general parliament freely elected by the people of each state in numbers proportionate to the total population of each. Such a union, when once formed by the free choice of its component parts, will last. The day of colonial rebellion in British history would seem to have passed forever.

The only defect in the constitution of South Africa is its ignoring all races but the European. It is hard on the negroes, who form five sixths of the population and who were more over, the owners of the land when the Whites arrives, to be debarred from any share in the government. The Whites have no right to thus exclude other races. If they do not wish to be influenced by other races, they should leave with them. The Negroes of South Africa, as well as the Hindu immigrants there, will, bye, strike for their freedom and they will ultimately get it. It would be wiser, not to say anything of the justice of the case, to give them their rights now.

The readers of this paper will be pleased to learn that there is at least one dreaded disease that science has been able to cure in all its stages, and that is Catarrh. Halls Catarrh Cure is the only positive cure now known to the medical fraternity. Catarrh is a constitutional disease, requiring a constitutional treatment. Hall's Catarrh Cure is taken internally, acting directly upon the blood and mucous surfaces of the system, thereby destroying the foundation of the disease, and giving the patient strength by building up the constitution and assisting nature in doing its work. The proprietors have so much faith in its curativepowers that they offer One Hundred Dollars for any case that it fails to cure. Send for list of testimonials.

TRIBUTE TO HEROISM.

Telegram of Sympathy Sent to Eccles's Relatives.

The following telegram of sympathy was received by Mr. Arthur Eccles, Almonte, Ont., on Sunday from the president of the Wireless Company at Seattle;

"President Wilson, General Manager Gallard and all officials and associates of United Wireless Telegraph Company, tender you sincere sympathy in loss of George E. Eccles, and with press and public are united in paying tribute to his rare heroism. He died trying to save lives of passengers.—R. H. Armstrong, manager."

Almonte, Ont., Aug. 30.—Word was received here late Saturday night from the United States Wireless Co. at Sekttle, that the body of George Eccles, the wireless operator hero of the steamship Ohio, had been recovered.

Arthur Eccles of this town, immediately wired requesting that the remains will be forwarded to Almonte for burial. The body will arrive about Saturday. The wife of the deceased is at Winnipeg and has been notified and she is coming east for the funeral.

Eccles undoubtedly saved the lives of the two hundred passengers by remaining at his key and sending out "C.Q.D." messages. He was born in Almonte 35 years ago. He was educated in the local schools and at an early age learned the telegraph code with Mr. T. W. McDermott, who at that time was agent for the C.P.R. Company in this town.

Mr. Eccles first took a position with the C.P.R. at Almonte, afterwards going to Ottawa to work in the Paeliament buildins during the sessions as an op'rator. He then went to Winnipeg, where he was a despatcher on the Great Northern, for some time, going to Seattle about two years ago, when he entered the service of the United States Wireless Company.

He leaves a wife and child to survive him in Winnipeg, besides the following brothers and sisters, his parents having pre-deceased him.

Arthur and James, in Almonte.
Harry, in Dakota,
Marvin, in Ottawa.
William, in Haileynury. Ont.
Misses Mary and Elizabeth in Almonte.

Mr. Eccles was here seven years ago for the last time, attending the funeral of his mother. The first word received about the drowning accident was received by Mr. Arthur Eccles, from Mr. Ted Blake, a former Almonte man, at present residing in Seattle, but nothing definite was learned until his relatives in town saw the newspaper dee patches.

Mr. Eccles, according to a letter received here a few weeks ago, took Mr. Moulton, also a former Almonter, who is living in Seattle, down on his shipt the Ohio, and explained to him the working ol his wireless system. This was the last seen of him by his Seattle friends.

ALLEGED CROOK.

One of The Cleverest Crooks in America Landed.

Toronto, Aug. 31.—In a cell at No. 1 police station is a man who is believed to be one of the most clever crooks in America. His name is Frank Diehin, alias Chapman, and known to the police and his pals as "Fritzie." He is being taken to Chatham, Ont., to be tried on a charge of switching a grip containing $1,575, on a Michigan Central train at Tilbury, Ont., on Dec. 1, 1906, with the aid of Eddie Gaffney, alias Quinn, who is now serving a three-year term for the offence. Diehin was brought from Los Angles, California, by Provincial Detective Charles Mahoney of Windsor, and Lieut. R. A. Stenton of the Detroit police force. The officers intended to bring their prisoner straight back to Chatham by way of San Francisco and Chicago, but learned that a plot was on foot in 'Frisco to assist Diehin to escape, and the officers and their man went up the coast to Vancouver, from where they came to Toronto, and will go to Chatham this afternoon.

The switching of the grip was so well done that the men would have out of the country with their swag shortly after the offence was committed has it not been for Lieut. Stenton. On the first of December, three years ago, he was going to Tilbury to look after some witnesses in a murder case, and as he stepped on the ferry at Detroit saw the two crooks, Diehin carrying a grip. He recognized them both, for the two had very bad records. Gaffney Gaffney had been arrested by Stenton for picking pockets, for which he was sent up for a year. When the train stopped at Tilbury, Stenton informed the constable that the two men evidently intended to turn a trick, and advised the officer to arrest the men if he saw them leave the train.

On the train every day trapeled a messenger for the Sovereign Bank, taking money to the branch at Fletcher. Just as the train was about to start. Gaffney entered the door at one end of the car and asked the messenger if he would deliver a parcel to a man in Fletcher. The train was gaining speedand the messenger stood up in his seat and reached over to take the parce,. As he did so his grip was lifted from its place by Diehin, it is alleged, and another, exactly the same and having similar initials painted on its side, was placed beside the seat. The two crooks jumped from the train, ran around the station directly in front of the constavle and jumped on the rear coach. The messenger lifted his grip and knew it was lighter. He at once suspected Gaffneyand jumped off the train to give chase. By that time the train was going at high speed, and the two crooks were speeding on their way, while the constable and the bank messenger were looking for them in Tilbury. The grip left with the messenger contained several parcels of white paper, cut and tied up like bills.

The men rode on the train as far as Buxton, the next station, alighted, hired a rig and drove into Chatham, from where they made for the American side of the border.

Gaffney was arrested shortly after wards in Cleveland, was brought back to Chatham pleaded guilty to the charge and was sentenced to serve three years in Kingston.

The prisoner, who is of slight build is 55 years old, and is alleged to have spent about 30 years of his life in jail. He was sent up in Dayton, Ohio, for stealing some valuable diamonds, and is known to go after nothing but big money. He denies he is the man wanted, but Gaffney stated that he is.

TURQUOISE COPPER

NOT A PROSPECT

400 FOOT TUNNEL—140 FOOT SHAFT

Mines located near Valardena, Durango, Mexico, only six miles by wagon road and three miles straight line from the property of the Guggenheims upon which they have recently erected a $2,000,000 smelter. Sample assays have averaged from $64 to $102 per ton.

Up to the present time, the Turquoise Copper Co., has been practically a close corporation; an initial offering of 100,000 shares has just been made at 25 cents, par value $1.00, full paid and non-assessable. Proceeds will be used to further continue the development work already begun.

We have options on 50,000 shares of this stock and advise immediate purchase at 25 cents per share. It is the intention of The Board of Directors to list the stock on the New York Curb and it should sell at $1.00 per share by the first of the year.

Write now for prospectus and Mining Engineer's report.

LEACH & CO., INC.
STOCK BROKERS—MANCHESTER, N.H.

$90,000---7 Per Cent.

9,000 Shares 7 Per Cent Cumulative Preferred Stock ($10 a Share) Offered at Par with 40 Per Cent Immediate Bonus of Common Stock. We Reserve the Right to Withdraw Offer Without Notice and to Return any Subscription Received Too Late. Previous Offerings Were Immediately Oversubscribed.

MORE THAN A THOUSAND BANK OFFICERS, LAWYERS, PHYSICIANS, MINISTERS, BUSINESS MEN AND OTHERS HAVE BECOME STOCKHOLDERS IN THE CIRCLE PUBLISHING COMPANY WITHIN THE PAST FEW MONTHS.

Presidents and Cashiers of Banks, Presidents and other officers of Insurance Companies and of prominent business concerns who are thoroughly qualified to pass upon the soundness of such a proposition have comended the investment and have put their own money into it.

Many leading Physicians, Ministers and Educators in all the big cities of the United States and several in Europe have very highly endorsed THE CIRCLE MAGAZINE and THE CIRCLE PUBLISHING COMPANY, and have been glad to become part owners in the enterprise.

These men, and a good many splendid women, also, have known THE CIRCLE for several years and have watched it grow better and stronger constantly. They know what a sterling good property it is; they know that it is founded on a plan that ought to success, and they know that it is held always true to that plan; they know from personal experience that its business methods are good, careful, and conservative, yet aggressive and successful; they are convinced, therefore, that there is a large and very profitable career ahead of THE CIRCLE PUBLISHING COMPANY. For these reasons they have been glad of a chance to get some of its stock.

Twice we offered by letter, without any blow of trumpets, Five Thousand Shares of our Cumulative Seven Per Cent, Preferred Stock for subscription. Each time the Five Thousand Shares were promptly over-subscribed before we could finish sending out the letters to the selected list. There are only Twenty Thousand Shares of Preferred Stock in all, therefore more than half was taken up at once, and we have not offered the balance until now.

For a short time we are going to give the same opportunity to those who did not receive our letters: but as the amount is necessarily limited, prompt action will be required.

HERE IS THE PLAN: The Capital Stock of The Circle Publishing Company is $500,000, of which $200,000 is Preferred Stock with 7 per cent. Cumulative dividend, and $300,000 is Common Stock upon which all dividends over and above the 7 per cent. on the Preferred Stock will be paid. Measured by the opportunities for rapid development of the business and by the known earnings of other great magazine and book publishing properties, the dividends on the Common Stock should soon exceed the fixed dividend on the Preferred Stock, and our Plan gives you some of both kinds.

The following extract from an article in a recent number of Leslie's Weekly is to the point:

"HOW A FEW DOLLARS MADE A FORTUNE"

"Among the most interesting commercial facts in this country are the astonishing fortunes which are being made by magazine publishers.

"Every year more than the immense sum of about $90,000,000 is spent in buying advertising space and in buying copies of periodicals. A large portion of this huge amount of money becomes profits for magazine owners.

"The great popular monthly publications have risen to wealth and prominence so quickly that only $100 invested in Munsey's a few years ago is now worth between $10,000 and $12,000, and is earning dividends at the rate of $1,000 a year.

"McClure's Magazine made a profit for its stockholders of 1,000 per cent. in about ten years. The total annual income of The Ladies' Home Journal and The Saturday Evening Post, both of which are owned by the Curtis Publishing Company, of Philadelphia, is not far from $6,000,000. The Cosmopolitan, Everybody's, The Outlook, and others, are immensely profitable.

"Unfortunately, however, magazine readers have rarely had an opportunity to share in these splendid earnings. Nearly all the magazines are in each case owned by a few individuals, who receive all the enormous income.

"A chance to secure an interest in one of the great popular magazines, on a basis that insures absolute safety and gives a liberal share of all the profits of the business, is an opportunity that attracts the immediate attention of the shrewdest investors."

OUR OFFER IS THIS: The par value of all shares is $10. They are full paid and non-assessable. The taxes on the stock are paid in full. Nine thousand shares of the Cumulative 7 per cent Preferred Stock are offered now at ten dollars a share, par. Every subscriber for five shares of Preferred Stock will be given a bonus of one share of Common Stock and will be made also a life subscriber for THE CIRCLE Magazine without additional payment. A subscriber for any multiple of five shares will be given a corresponding number of shares of Common Stock, as bonus, and will be allowed to present a life subscription for THE CIRCLE as a gift to some relative or friend for each five shares of Preferred Stock subscribed. Additional shares of Common Stock may be substituted in lieu of life subscriptions as bonus, or vice-versa. Thus, ten shares of Preferred Stock will entitle the subscriber to two shares of Common Stock and two life subscriptions for THE CIRCLE, or four shares of Common Stock. One hundred shares of Preferred Stock will carry with them a bonus of twenty shares of Common Stock and twenty life subscriptions for THE CIRCLE, or forty shares of Common Stock.

If you can not afford to take five or more shares, you may subscribe for three shares, and with such a subscription we will give you either the life subscription for THE CIRCLE or a bonus of one share of Common Stock, as you prefer.

We must say now, however, that this offer with its bonus is conditioned upon your prompt acceptance, and we reserve the right to withdraw or modify the offer without further notice.

YOU NEED NOT SEND ALL THE MONEY NOW IF NOT CONVENIENT TO DO SO, but write at once, saying how many of the 9,000 shares you will take and how soon you will be ready to pay for them. Ten per cent. of the amount of your subscription should be sent at the time of making the reservation. If more convenient to you the total amount may be divided into several instalments. Please use one of the Application Forms below, or a copy of the same.

Just an earnest word or two: You ought to know something about the "Plan" and aim of THE CIRCLE. We are all deeply in earnest about this matter. Every one of the men and women who now control the editorial and the business policy of the magazine is pledged to the carrying onward to its highest possible success the work of making a great, high-class, popular magazine of world-wide circulation which shall portray and encourage the good in individual, social, business, and political life, rather than the evil; which shall stand for peace rather than war; which shall search out beauty rather than ugliness; which shall build up rather than teardown; which shall constantly plan and labor, and co-operate with those who are planning and laboring, to make this world a better and happier place to live in, both for the poor and the wealthy, for the unlearned and the learned, for the weak and for the strong.

This is not mere rainbow painting. It is a real and definite program, based upon strong convictions and practical plans. We know that there are many splendid men and women who are in sympathy with this program and want to see it carried out. They know, as we know, that there is a positive cure in sunshine and fresh air. The poisonous, ill-smelling places often can be purified and made beautiful just by letting in the sunlight and the sweet winds of heaven. No man can remain a pessimist who will open his eyes and his heart to the good and the beautiful around him. All he need do is to give it just a fair share of his attention. It will surely sweeten his blood, cheer and lift up his heart, lighten his step, brighten the glance of his eyes, and inspire him in his work. There is plenty of evil to fight, and it calls for strenuous and constant effort, but the man who sees nothing but the evil will never be able to overcome much of it. You who will help to support and boldly develop and broaden the work of THE CIRCLE Magazine, until its influence is felt in countless American homes, satisfying the great need, recognized or unrecognized, of American life—you who will help to accomplish this will come closer to the hearts of multitudes of people and do more universal and lasting good than can be done in any restricted field. No single instrument within the grasp of any group of men can be so effective as this great, clean, purposeful magazine in bringing to pass that "Peace on Earth, Good Will to Men," for which the world has been waiting for so many centuries.

This is a business enterprise. We want to make money for ourselves and for our stockholders, and we shall do so; but this business enterprise—this sound, common-sense, money-making enterprise is inspired with an ideal; this corporation has a soul.

Men of long and successful experience in the magazine and book publishing business and in financial affairs make up the Board of Officers and Directors of The Circle Publishing Company.

This additional capital will be used to increase the circulation and advertising patronage of THE CIRCLE Magazine and to develop the profitable book publishing enterprises of the Company. No magazine in the world possesses more of the real elements of large business profit and immense usefulness to society than does THE CIRCLE. The magazine itself shows tangible evidence, month by month, of the truth of these statements.

We trust you will join with us—that you will write quickly and reserve five, ten, twenty, fifty or more shares of the Preferred Stock, and so have a part in THE CIRCLE work and THE CIRCLE success. Write at once, if possible, filling out one of the blank forms below.

VISCOUNT KITCHENER

A Brief Biography of Soldier Who May Visit Canada.

General Horatio Herbert, first Viscount Kitchener of Khartoum—who has just completed the great work he undertook in 1902 of reorganising the British Indian Army—was born on Midsummer Day at Ballylongford, in the County Kerry.

During his exceptionally brilliant military career the retiring Indian commander has asserted himself with characteristic confidence and unbending will, and Lord Kitchener must be accounted one of the most strenuous soldiers that the British Empire has ever possessed.

Coming of a military family, Lord Kitchener passed thirty-eight years ago from Woolwich into the Royal Engineers. Since then his career has been one of scintillating brilliance. for "K. of K."—as he is now often called "for short"—has been to the fore in many expeditions and campaigns, and has "built himself an everlasting name" for thoroughness in the profession of arms.

A veritable "glutton for work," he assisted in the Palestine survey in 1874-78 and that of Cyprus of 1878-82.

Then he was sent to Egypt, and entrusted with the command of the Khedive's cavalry and the remodelling of the native army. Having effected this to his own exacting desiring, he, as Sirdar, conducted a vigorous opposition to the forces of the Khalifa. He found it necessary to build a railway to Omdurman before he finally broke the power of the prophet, annihilating the Khalifa's army in 1898.

By this time he had reached the rank of major-general and been made a K.C.B., and he came home covered with Egyptian honors, to receive the thanks of the British Parliament, a peerage, and a grant of £30,000.

In the year following, when matters seemed to be going wrong with our forces engaged against the Boers in South Africa, Lord Kitchener was sent out as Chief of Staff to Lord Roberts. Here, again, he distinguished himself for determination and dash in combination; and when Cronje had been circumvented at Paardeberg and the British flag hoisted in Pretoria, he was promoted to the commandership of the forces in South Africa on Lord Roberts' return to England.

Kitchener brought the long campaign to a close. Again the gallant fighter and fine organiser was thanked by Parliament, given a further £20,000 from the country's public purse, and raised in the peerage to a viscounty.

As a full general he was sent out in 1902 to India as Commander-in-Chief, with practically a free hand to reform the army of our great Empire of the Orient. His ideals of duty brooking no civilian interference in matters military, Viscount Kitchener soon came into conflict with the then Viceroy, Lord Curzon, and the friction ensued in the resignation of that able statesman in 1905.

Since then Lord Kitchener has practically been permitted to have his own way at headquarters in India; and on the completion of his task in the Orient, he is credited by some with hankering after overthrowing the influence of the non-military element in the War Office for good and all.

Barrister's First Brief.

My first brief I have the best of reasons for remembering particularly clearly. I was engaged for the defence in a case of robbery. Two men, the prisoners, had seized the prosecutor on the platform of Shrewsbury Station, and while one of them held his arms the other quietly rifled his pockets.

They were caught red-handed, and I had a brief to defend the prisoner who had held the prosecutor by the arms. I made the obvious defence. I urged that it was vindictive to sacrifice two victims to justice when one would suffice, that the distinction between the two prisoners was manifest, and as the one I defended had not taken any money at all it was impossible to pretend that he was as guilty as his companion.

To the amazement of everybody, not excepting the chairman—who had been careful in his summing up to sweep away my sophistries—the jury made the distinction I suggested to them, and returned a verdict of "Not guilty" against my prisoner.—"Reminiscences of Mr. A. C. Plowden," in The Strand Magazine.

A Pageant of Priests.

Pageants have so far illustrated the history of a single town or city, but the one held recently in the grounds of Fulham Palace, London, was unique. It depicted the growth and history of the Church of England.

It was split up into a number of episodes, and, beginning with the publication of the Edict of Emperor Constantine, came right down through the ages to the acquittal of the Seven Bishops in 1688. A final tableau, representing the church "throughout the world," concluded the gigantic spectacle.

The grounds of Fulham Palace, lent by the Bishop of London, were well fitted for such a purpose.

The spectators were housed in a grand stand, 300 feet in length, 30 feet in depth, and covering an acre of ground. In addition to a large royal box, there was seating accommodation for 6,750. His Grace the Archbishop of Canterbury performed the opening ceremony.

An Amiable Violinist.

Robert Browning and Joachim met one evening at a friendly gathering in London. The violinist had "obliged" without satisfying certain ladies, who entreated the poet to obtain from him another solo. Browning, feeling the delicacy of his task, discharged it diplomatically and spoke, as sometimes he wrote, so as to conceal his thoughts, while the violinist, not understanding, bowed and smiled and did not play.

As they left the house Joachim asked, "What did you mean just now?"

"Oh," said the poet, "I wanted you to give us some more music."

"Then, why did you not come and say, 'Joe, old boy, give us another tune?'" returned the amiable violinist.

ARMY CORPS CALLED OUT.

Utmost Efficiency Shown In Recent Mobilization.

A British army corps was called out for war the other day, and afforded a fine object-lesson of how quickly and effectively British troops can be organized nowadays.

Never before in the history of the British army has so unexpected, and yet so complete, a mobilization been carried out. Nearly twenty thousand men of all arms were lined up ready to entrain, and it was only by the absence of a call to the Reservists that the feat differed from what the authorities hope to effect in case of an actual or threatened invasion.

No warning of what was coming was given. At six o'clock in the morning Lieut.-Gen. Smith-Dorrien rode down to the headquarters' office and gave the order for the alarm to be sounded, followed by the order for every unit in his command to turn out as rapidly as possible, fully mobilised, and ready for active service.

The military telephones linking up the barracks were soon busy with the order, and mounted orderlies carried the summons to those officers who live out of barracks.

Some of the battalions were already in the field; the Gloucesters, for instance, having left barracks at four o'clock for a long day's operations. They were summoned back by mounted men and cyclist messengers, and within the hour every barracks was the centre of activity.

Wagons were dragged out and loaded with stores, water-carts filled, ammunition drawn from the magazines and distributed, and field dressings and emergency rations issued to the men with their metal identity discs and pocket ledgers.

For some time past the chiefs of staff have been working at this mobilization scheme to render it perfect for a sudden call, and the test that was being applied could only be equalled by the actual call of war. Indeed, among many of the troops the belief was accepted that an invasion was an accomplished fact.

The telegraph wires had carried the news to those officers and men away on week-end leave, and the early trains to Aldershot were filled with anxious soldiers, who on reaching the stations raced up to their barracks, to appear in a short space of time accountred and equipped for service.

Six hours was the time given for the units to get on parade, ready to move off, but so perfect was the machinery that in the great majority of cases little more than half that time was needed to report all ready.

From the Army Service Corps barracks parties of butchers and bakers, clerks, saddlers, and artificers marched off to join the brigade and divisional headquarters, every man having his allotted place and his special duties.

No confusion marked the preparations, and long before the allotted time was up nearly 20,000 men, artillery, cavalry, and infantry, with engineers and supply transport services, were marching out of barracks to go wherever needed.

To Punish the Mullah.

Col. Gough, says a report from Aden, according to present arrangements, will begin military operations this month against the Somaliland mullah, who has continued to harass the friendly tribes.

It is understood that the operations will take the form of flying columns, composed of mounted infantry and irregulars, which will endeavor to round up the elusive enemy.

Practically everything is now ready, and ample native troops on the spot are being supplied with white officers.

The chief difficulty is, as it has always been, transport. British agents have been buying animals all along the Red Sea, but prices have been high, particularly for camels. The Emperor Menelik has, moreover, forbidden the export of these animals from his territory.

It is thought that Sir Reginald Wingate, who has arrived in the country from Cairo, will, from his experience of Soudan "drives," be able to give Col. Gough some useful advice.

Berbera is the base of the new operations, which will cover a wide area. The British Government has for some time been collecting information as to the situation, particularly along the northwestern Somaliland border, and the authorities are very hopeful of success.

St. Fillan's Bell.

Early in the nineteenth century a bell was stolen from Killin, in Perthshire. This bell, which was said to have been used by St. Fillan, was supposed to possess marvelous healing powers, and was placed on the heads of all the mad people, who were brought to be dipped in the saint's pool, in order to complete the cure.

Popular opinion had it that the bell, which was not very large, would extricate itself from the hands of any one who stole it and return home, ringing all the way. The antiquary who finally annexed it explained his action by a desire "to abate superstition."

A Mild Reproach.

One cold morning little Elsie was being bathed by her mother, and usually her bath was a great delight to her. But this morning her mother talked incessantly while she worked.

Elsie loved her dearly and tried hard to be patient. But the lecture was so tiresome! Her mother was laying out a course of conduct for the day, and it was all so old. She had heard it over and over again.

Finally she said very sweetly, but very wearily: "Please, mamma, don't talk any more. You do make such a draft!"

Jerry Needn't Bother.

It was the beloved and lamented Monsignor Connelly, of the Church of St. John the Baptist, at St. John, N.B. who noticed an old parishioner stealing a glance at his watch as the text was read out one fine summer morning.

"It's just twenty minutes past eleven, Jerry Callahan, and at a quarter to twelve I'll be through, so you can save yourself the trouble of taking your watch out of your pocket," said his reverence, and proceeded with the sermon.

"Sausages Grown Here."

One of the natural curiosities of South Mashonaland is a "German-sausage-tree." It bears deep-crimson flowers, 3 inches long, in blazing bunches of twelve; but when the true fruits into fat, substantial, sausage-like pods, there remain no leaves, and it looks like a sausage larder indeed.

These beans are 20 inches long, and 12 inches in girth, and are beloved of the native tribe of Shangaans and Matonas. But the tribe of the Karanga are a very superior people, and would never deign to eat them. There can be no reason for this, as, at least, no one can access these "sausages" of being connected in any way with dogs or cats!

BUSINESS METHODS.

The Necessity of Advertising and the Efficiency of Salesmen.

A man may have several carloads of ability. He may have brains and ideas and other desirable things. But all the ideas ever "ideated" will not avail to raise a man who neglects that all important item of advertising. You simply must get attention. Of course you can get attention by firing off a revolver during office hours or you can do it by wearing loud clothes and proclaiming your kinship in the sporting fraternity. But most men who have risen from the ranks have carefully neglected to use methods of this kind.

Every office man must act as his own salesman. He must first prepare himself by increasing his efficiency. He must be able to do the work for which he is hired. Not only should he do that for which he is hired, but he must do that work better than it ever was done before. When that item has been attended to it is then time to look about for more work.

The wise employee will keep his eye on the job ahead of, better still, will look at a job which does not exist, but which should exist for the good of the business. The next step is to think out a selling talk that will get the attention, arouse the interest, create a desire and bring about in the mind of the employer a desire to do what the live employee desires him to do.—Bookkeeper.

FORGOT HIS OWN LINES.

A Quotation That the Poet Campbell Failed to Recognize.

That poets, like other folks, sometimes forget their own creations is shown by an incident related by Sir Frederick Pollock. At a dinner where Thomas Campbell and Lord Nugent were present the conversation drifted from the use of Latin words in English to monosyllable verse. Some one expressed a doubt whether two consecutive lines composed of words of one syllable could be found in our language. Lord Nugent at once quoted:

"By that dread name we wave the sword on high,
And swear for her to live—with her to die."

Campbell said he did not believe in the lines and asked where they came from. Lord Nugent said, "From your own 'Pleasures of Hope.'" "How do you know that?" asked the poet. "I know it all by heart," replied Nugent. "I'll bet you a guinea you can't repeat it," said Campbell. The bet was taken and Nugent started declaiming. The poet soon got tired and said: "I see you know the poem. Don't go any further." The other insisted upon repeating the whole poem or claiming double stakes, and Campbell paid the extra guinea in order to be spared the recital of the poem which had made him famous—which he had forgotten.

How to Patch a Canoe.

There are several different "home-made" methods by which to repair a crack or leak in a canoe. Perhaps the most permanent is varnish or shellac and silk. Put a little varnish over the crack, place a small silk patch over the varnish, letting it dry, then varnish or shellac over the silk. Two coats will be sufficient. If it is a varnished canoe, use white silk, and the patch can hardly be detected, the silk being transparent. This may be put on both inside and outside if necessary. White lead and varnish mixed well and put in the crack is also a good permanent repair. If on a cruise in the woods and without the necessary articles to make a permanent repair, get a little spruce gum off the trees, heat and add a little grease and put over the crack. The grease has a tendency to keep the gum from getting very hard, and it will not break so easily. The silk and shellac repair is the usual remedy for a puncture in a canvas covered canoe. —Recreation.

The Dogs of Turkey.

In the matter of kindness to animals it is said that the Turk cannot be surpassed. Thus at Stamboul the wandering dogs are treated with great gentleness, and when puppies come into the world they are lodged with their mother at the side of the street in improvised kennels made out of old boxes lined with straw and bits of carpet. And frequently when a young Turk happens to be flush of money he goes to the nearest baker's shop and buys a quantity of bread, which he distributes among the dogs of the quarter, who testify their gratitude by jumping up at him with muddy paws and sniffing muzzles.

When Youth Wanes.

Old age has many definitions, and middle age more. But you may take it that you are not really an old man so long as you take an interest in your personal appearance. There is not a nurse who does not know the sign of convalescence—when the patient wants to be shaved and put a good appearance in this world. And so long as the man of sixty can take an interest in the latest tie—and tie it—he is preserving his youth.—London Chronicle.

He Had a Reason.

"I notice you are very cautious in what you say about people."

"Yes."

"Why is this?"

"Well, I ain't prominent enough to claim I was misquoted."

Time Wasted.

Boston Lady—Did you learn anything at the Woman's club? New York Lady—Absolutely nothing. Wish I hadn't gone. I had seen all the gowns before.—New York Life.

Explanation Called For.

Alfred (whose sporting opportunities have been limited by parental decree)—Pops, what does it mean by base on balls?

Pops (who is reading an account of the latest heavyweight fight)—Alfred, you could better employ yourself with your Sunday school lesson. I'm too busy now to explain.

Alfred (still thirsting for knowledge)—Did it mean the same as base on balls when you telephoned last night that ma was away you were out on a bat?

Mamma (who is always listening)—Uncle Ridgely, you will take time now to make two explanations, the most important one coming first.

C. P. R'S BIRTHDAY.

Railroad Is 23 Years of Age—Tales of the Early Days.

The C.P.R. did not mark in any special way the twenty-third anniversary, which occurred the other week, of the sending of the first transcontinental train across the Dominion. At the same time, in looking back to the achievements of the last twenty-three years, the official breast was inclined to swell a little with satisfaction.

It is twenty-three years since the last lines of the great transcontinental system were put together, making one long whole out of many disjointed parts.

The head offices were then on St. James street, facing Place d'Armes Square. Lord Mount Stephen was president, and Sir William (then Mr William) Van Horne general manager.

The offices themselves were small and stuffy. All was in the formative stage. The sense of stability had yet to be impressed upon the system. The general manager could be found in his shirt sleeves. Sir Thomas Shaughnessy was then purchasing agent of the company. Mr. McNicoll acted as general passenger agent. Business was done, but it was done under crude conditions.

The staff was small, and the thousand or more clerical employes now at the head office were not dreamed of.

Great railway men were then in the making. The highest was accessible. It was desirable to propitiate the public.

The visible assets were slight, and the local cartoonists of the time used to poke fun at the C.P.R. trying, with the aid of Mr Clouston, the general manager of the Bank of Montreal, and a lighted candle, to find a surplus in the vaults of the bank.

There was the old Dalhousie Square station, which sufficed for all the business offering.

Little was defined. Able men took off their coats, but when any enthusiastic person spoke of dividends, he was greeted with an indulgent smile.

This can be said that everybody hustled.

As Sir William Van Horne has many times said to the writer, in going over the past, "we literally took off our coats to work."

The offices were removed to Victoria Square, to the building formerly occupied by the Co-operative Association. The annual meetings were then held in secret, and it was a sight to see the local newspaper men holding up Sir William Van Horne after the meeting was over.

The tone of those meetings was vastly different from that which prevails at present. A tremendous undertaking had been espoused, but the future was dark. The Northwest was merely a name—vague, distant. The business had to be made.

Such growth, however, manifested itself in the course of a few years that it was deemed necessary to have a West End station and general offices, which the company itself could control.

In the early years the earnings of the company varied from $5,000,000 to $10,000,000 per annum. They are now something like $75,000,000 per annum.

Even after the new station and general offices were taken possession of, there were days of darkness to be encountered; and it became necessary for Lord Strathcona to come over to reassure the pessimistic stockholders, many of whom openly lamented that they had put their money into such a doubtful enterprise.

"An enterprise," said His Lordship, "which, nevertheless, will, in the course of the next few years be one of the best dividend-earners in the Dominion."

The event proved the correctness of Lord Strathcona's prophecy.

Telephones at Osgoode Hall.

Osgoode Hall, Toronto, slumbered for half a century or more, so far as telephones and other modern equipment were concerned, and then it awoke or was awakened, whichever you prefer.

A young man came to Osgoode Hall. He was J. A. C. Cameron, and like other wise men, he came from the east. He hailed from Cornwall, to succeed the late Neil McLean as referee and clerk to the Master-in-Ordinary.

It occurred to him that new office furniture would be a good thing, and, likewise, improved ventilation. He got 'em. Then he asked for a telephone.

"Why, people will bother you to death," he was told.

"That's all right," he answered, easily. "It's a good thing to be stirred up." Mr. Cameron's telephone, the first business hello machine in Osgoode, was installed. There were three 'phones at Osgoode, but they belonged to the Law Society. Then, after the Cameron innovation, came the definite decision by the Government to equip the various offices with telephones.

A Difficult Task.

A good story is told of Rev. Dr Sipprell, president of Columbian College, New Westminster, B.C., and a great exponent of Methodism on the British Columbia coast. Dr. Sipprell is possessed of the silver tongue, and his flowery sermons and addresses are the pride of Methodist hearts.

On a recent trip through the Rockies, returning from a visit east, the doctor was enjoying, for the first time, the grandeur of the Canadian mountains. He was talking to a little coterie of admiring friends.

"Ah!" he said rapturously, waving his arm oratorically toward a colossal pile of rock, "What would we find friends, were we to drive to the bottom of yon wonderful mountain?"

"Humph!" ejaculated a brakeman who overheard the remark, "You'd find a —— of a lot of hard work."

Place For Dullards.

Admiral Kingsmill, advocates a Canadian navy because it will provide places for our dullards. His theory has all the authority that antiquity can lend it, and no more. It prompts The Kincardine Review to recall the story of the captain who was receiving the new middy:

"Well, boy, the old story. I suppose—fool of the family sent to sea?"

"Oh, no, sir," piped the boy, "that's all altered since your day."

August time tells on the nerves. But that spiritless, no ambition feeling can be easily and quickly altered by taking what is known to druggists everywhere as Dr. Shoop's Restorative. Within 48 hours after beginning to use the Restorative, improvement will be noticed. Of course full health will not immediately return. The gain, however, will surely follow. And best of all, you will realize and feel your strength returning. Outside influences depress first the "inside nerves" then the stomach. Heart, and Kidneys will usually fail. Strengthen these failing nerves with Dr. Shoop's Restorative, and see how quickly health will be yours again. Sold by all dealers.

AMONG THE CANNIBALS.

British Force Goes Into Wilds of Northern Nigeria.

Details of the expedition lately concluded by the southern Nigerian Government, by which some 5,000 square miles of hitherto unknown and unadministered country in the north and on the borders of Northern Nigeria have been brought under effective control, have been received by Reuter's Agency.

These operations, which were carried out among tribes who for the most part had never previously seen a white man, proved entirely successful, and were so managed that there was practically no serious fighting. They began early in November last, and only concluded in the middle of April.

The British force consisted of 700 men of the southern Nigeria Regiment, under the command of Colonel Trenchard, who had with him thirty officers, six Maxims and 700 carriers.

The Yala people, in whose country the columns remained for a month, gave a good deal of trouble. When their villages were entered they were found to be deserted, the women and live stock having been removed. The men meanwhile had formed bush camps in the open yam fields, where they could see the approach of the British, and had also hidden in the branches of trees scouts, whose duty it was to fire signal guns.

The people then took to their heels and encamped elsewhere, but fired on the column when they were in what they regarded as a tight corner. This wibe, like most of those encountered, was armed with flint locks and carried poisoned arrows, but, fortunately, the country was fairly open and the aim not very accurate.

After some weeks of this kind of thing the Yala came in, but declined to give up their arms.

In places the natives, hearing of the approach of a large force, dug pits and planted stakes to prevent their progress. What little hostility there was occurred during the earlier part of the operations in the Okpoto country and among the northern Ibo tribes.

Colonel Trenchard's force started in two columns—one from the Niger and one from the Cross River—with instructions to make for an unknown spot marked X, the two afterward joining at Ikem, where the first base camp was formed. From this base small columns were sent out in various directions, each being responsible for a definite district, which was to be mapped, and where the officers' duty was to get into touch with the natives and to show them how to make good roads.

In each case the commanding officer of the column summoned the local chief and explained the Government terms, emphasizing the fact that all human sacrifices must stop, that good roads must be made, and that a British commissioner would be appointed, who would settle all disputes.

On these occasions there were impressive gatherings of thousands of natives in many cases cannibals, and for the most part naked, or practically so. They did not show undue delight at the advent of the British, and, as a rule, silently listened to the recital of the Government terms, and then slowly dispersed.

The various columns report that they found far less human sacrifice and juju rites in the hitherto unknown north than among the tribes of the delta, and, on the whole, the people were of a better physical type. Several juju places were seen, and a big centre was destroyed. It was impossible to discover the nature of the juju rites practiced, but in the vicinity of one big juju house discovered in a bush clearing there was found a good deal of blood—whether human or not was not ascertained.

Australian Woman Becomes Hindu.

A remarkable ceremony took place at Lucknow, India when Miss Thomson, a pretty young Australian woman, who is to be married to a Bengali barrister, formally renounced Christianity and embraced Hinduism as practiced by the Ayra Samajists.

The ceremony took place in the courtyard of the rajah of Vizianagram's residence, and was watched by a large crowd of natives.

Miss Thomson wore native costume, with a pale blue "sari," bespangled with gold, and heavy gold bangles on her arms. At the conclusion of the ceremony, which lasted more than an hour, she almost fainted.

The convert's reception by the Ayra Samajists was the customary "purification" by fire and water. Miss Thomson answered the questions of the Hindu priest in a low voice, ceremonially washed her hands and head and poured a spoonful of oil on a sandal-wood fire. She then received a Hindu name.

Too Many Novels.

Mrs. Humphrey Ward, in an address read for her at the opening of a free library at Kendal, said that people who read nothing else but novels never properly appreciated them. Novels were the jam of literature, and all properly conducted persons should begin their meal with bread and butter. Writers of novels wanted readers to be a little hungry for them—not to bring to them a mind full of the debris of a thousand plots—and be proof against their little arts. In the interests of her own craft, she urged all who might use the new library to venture out on the broad seas of literature, to be hardy and courageous, full of curiosity and sympathy, and ready to take trouble with a tough subject and a long book.

The Last Repeater.

When monsieur—the first monsieur at the court of Louis XIV.—discovered at his levee that his watch had been stolen, presumably by one of his valets, he finished dressing hastily and, addressing them all, said: "Gentlemen, the watch strikes. Let us separate as quickly as we can." What a tact and finish were here!

The spirit of monsieur was admirably caught by the French gentleman of the time who, attacked by robbers at five o'clock in the afternoon, simply observed, "Sirs, you have opened very early to-day."—Cornhill Magazine.

The footprints of Dyspepsia have been directly traced to the Stomach nerves. When these "inside nerves" fail, indigestion and stomach distress must surely result. For this druggists everywhere are supplying a prescription known as Dr. Shoop's Restorative. First, these tiny inside Stomach, Heart and Kidneys nerves fail. Then gas belching, Heart Palpitation, or failing Kidneys follow. Don't drug the Stomach, or stimulate the Heart or Kidneys. That is wrong. Strengthen these failing nerves with Dr. Shoop's Restorative. It is the nerves, not the organs that are calling for help. Within 48 hours after starting the Restorative treatment you will notice the gain. A test will tell. Sold by all druggists.

ANGLO-INDIAN SOCIETY.

Salary Decides a Briton's Standing in the Orient.

Anglo-Indian society is strictly official. The male exile's status depends upon the number of rupees he draws each month from the Government. An "Assistant District Superintendent of Police" may be the younger son of a baronet, with an ancestry going back to the Conquest. But he must take in to dinner the Eurasian wife of the "Opium Wallah" — a "Government servant," who is paid a salary of similar dimensions. The "Collector," who gets the equivalent of a thousand pounds a year, is paired off with the sister of the officer commanding the local regiment. In all probability, the lady has a supreme contempt for the "civilian's" social standing, although her unpretentious parents may have kept a Bayswater boarding-house. In the large "stations," railway employes, tea and indigo planters, barristers and business men have a bowing acquaintance with the officers of the British infantry regiments, and they are welcomed in native infantry messes. British cavalry officers and their wives, however, seldom tolerate them, though impecunious subalterns (with an eye to the main chance) make a point of cultivating bank managers. Occasionally, the officers of one corps do not encourage friendly relations with those of another, the womenkind of these warriors being only too ready to obey the mandate. Under these circumstances, jovial Anglo-Indians who are anxious to make friends of everybody—from the "Commissioner" down to the "Acting Additional Traffic Manager," who occupies a lowly position in the railway office—loathe (with exceeding hate) Rawalpindi, Secunderabad, Bangalore, Lucknow, Meerut, and other large military "stations" where cliques abound.

The "Mem-Sahib" is not over-burdened with household duties. For many months in the year, the appalling heat (which reduces the liveliest lady to the verge of apathy, dispels any good intentions she may have formed. Besides, it is not customary for the mistress of the house to pry too closely into the uncleanly mysteries with which the native servants surround themselves. Even the strongest-minded "Mem" is staggered by the sights which await her in the "bowarchi whanah," as the kitchen is known. Nor is she encouraged to take an interest in her servants and their children. Should she condescendingly pat little Ahmed's fat cheeks, little Ahmed's papa will straightway accuse her of regarding his offspring with the "evil eye."

Bronze Statuettes.

An interesting exhibition of bronze statuettes by Anthony Van Wouw was inaugurated recently at the Fine Arts Society's galleries by Sir Richard Solomon, who deputed to Dr. Engelenburg, one of the South African delegates at the Imperial Press Conference, the task of introducing the personality of the Boer sculptor.

Anthony Van Wouw's nationality is betrayed by his subjects rather than by his style, which is the result of sound training in the European art centres. He has chosen his models from among his own people and the indigenous black races, whose varied types he renders with considerable realistic force. Nor is this realism confined to the faithful reproduction of racial characteristics; in several cases, as in the statuette of a "Kaffir Eating Mealies" and the pathetic group "Bad News," he endeavors, with marked success, to convey a suggestion of the arid, stony veldt. There is something of monumental dignity in his little seated figure of "Paul Kruger in Exile." Of peculiar interest are the two figures of "Voortrekkers," designed for the corners of the Kruger monument, which was commissioned from the artist before the outbreak of the war.

Lord Lonsdale's Bet.

There are few better all-round sportsmen in the Empire than the Earl of Lonsdale, who is taking such an active interest in the Travel and Sports Exhibition, due to open next month at Olympia. He rides, shoots, motors, boxes, yachts, and is an expert slipper of greyhounds. Horses, however, have been the hobby of his life, and on matters connected with them his opinions are of great value. Once Lord Lonsdale made a bet he would drive twenty miles in less than an hour. The roads were bad, but the weather was worse. For the first five miles his lordship drove a four-in-hand, a pair for another five miles, rode postilion of a pair for the next five, and completed the remainder of the distance by driving a single horse for the last stage. The entire journey was covered in four and a half minutes under the hour.

Engine-Cleaner as an Artist.

Another romantic struggle for fame is illustrated by the career of Mr. Alfred Hudson, who has had a picture accepted for this year's Academy in London. He started life as an engine-cleaner, and in the course of time was promoted to his present post of chief clerk in the locomotive department of the Northeastern Railway at Leeds. He developed a passion for art, but had no money to purchase the necessary equipment. By exercising the strictest economy, however, he was able to save out of his wages sufficient to procure some brushes and paint. He has exhibited in different parts of the country.

A Witty Entry.

Mme. Ghosal, the daughter of the Maharajah of Cooch Behar, the Indian prince whose magnificent attire makes him one of the most picturesque figures at Court, can be very witty on occasions. Once, when staying at a country house, she was asked to write down a thought in an album, and seeing that someone had inscribed the somewhat sententious phrase, "Do right, and fear no man," she took the pen and promptly wrote underneath, "Don't write, and fear no woman."

Reclaiming Holland.

Since the 16th century the Dutch have reclaimed more than 1,000,000 acres of land from sea, lake and river.

SIR JOSEPH WARD HERE.

New Zealand's Premier Now in Canada.

Montreal, Sept. 1.—Sir Joseph who has been attending the Imperial Defence Conference, which ended recently in London, arrived here yesterday, accompanied by Lady Ward. Sir Joseph will visit Quebec, Ottawa Toronto and other points before returning home.

Mrs. Kimberley and children have returned home, after spending a pleasant visit with relatives at Harper, Perth, Dalhousie Lake and Elphin, and is accompanied by her sister, Mrs. Bowes and children.

IRELAND.

George Meredith's plea for home rule is embodied in his last poem, "Ireland," which leads off "Scribner's" for July, accompanied by a hitherto unpublished portrait which was painted in 1897 for J. M. Barrie by Amy Draper Sumner. We quote three of the seven stanzas:

Fire in her ashes Ireland feels
And in her veins a glow of heat.
To her the lost old time appeals
For resurrection, good to great;
Not as a shape to spectral eyes,
But humanly maternal, young
In all that quickens pride, and wise
To speak the best her bards have sung.

May she not call herself her own?
That is her cry, and thence her spite
Of fury, thence her graceless tone
At justice given in bits and bits.
The limbs once raw with gnawing chains
Will fret at silken when God's beams
Of freedom beckon o'er the plains
From mounts that show it more than dreams.

A nation she, and formed to charm,
With heart for heart and hands all round,
No longer England's broken arm,
Would England know where strength is found,
And strength to-day is England's need;
To-morrow it may be for both
Salvation: heed the portents, heed
The warnings, free the mind from sloth.

WOULDN'T CONFIRM BOY.

Anglican Vicar Refuses Sacrament to Canadian Lad.

The Rev. F. W. Clarke, vicar of Caldicot, South Monmouthshire, England, has refused to allow a Church lad, a Canadian, to attend his confirmation class because the youngster is a member of the Boys' Brigade, which holds its meetings in the Wesleyan school-room. The lad has been brought up in the Church of England, his parents belong to the Church, it was at the invitation of the curate that he presented himself at the vicar's confirmation class, but the vicar asked him at the close of the class if he belonged to the Boys' Brigade, and, when informed that he did, said, "We must draw the line somewhere."

The complaint seems to be that a church lad, though willing to claim full membership of the Church, should have been guilty of the grievous sin of "schism" by belonging to an unsectarian organisation, and attending a Bible class in connection with the Boys' Brigade, in which simple Bible teaching is given. The vicar called upon the father of the lad, Mr. Arthur C. Luff, and said: "We must draw the line somewhere. Seeing he is in the brigade, we cannot very well confirm him." Mr. Luff said: "Very well; that finishes the matter."

To an interviewer, Mr. Luff observed: "It is strange to me, after living for fifteen years in British Columbia, where things are so different." When invited to give his version of the matter, the Rev. F. W. Clarke said he hoped no newspaper would interfere in a matter of this kind—"this is a matter which must be left to the clergy to deal with."

Mr. Alfred Kemp, the Wesleyan evangelist, who has charge of the Caldicot Boys' Brigade, said they were absolutely unsectarian, and told the boys to attend what place of worship they pleased, but several members of the Boys' Brigade were asked to leave the church Sunday school because of their membership, and a lieutenant of the brigade left the church choir for the same reason. The curious thing is that the brigade have attended Roglet Church, where the Archbishop of Monmouth preached to them. But Boys' Brigade members are not wanted in the parish church of Caldicot.

From Journalism to Playwriting.

Quite a number of popular playwrights served their literary apprenticeship as journalists. J. M. Barrie was a reporter on a Nottingham paper before he came to London. Henry Arthur Jones wrote articles and stories from boyhood, and did not enter a theatre until he was eighteen years of age. Hubert Davies was for some years a journalist in America, while Hall Caine, after being trained as an architect, became a journalist and leader-writer on the staff of the Liverpool Mercury, and after coming to London wrote for the Athenaeum, Academy, and other papers.

Cecil Raleigh, the author of so many Drury Lane dramas, wrote for Vanity Fair, and was at one time sub-editor and dramatic critic for the Lady. Cosmo Hamilton has filled the editorial chair of the World. Adrian Ross has done much journalistic work, while it would be impossible to say how many papers and periodicals George R. Sims has written for.

Haydn Manuscript as "Rubbish."

Dr. Cummings, principal of the Guildhall School of Music, in an address on Haydn at the rooms of the Incorporated Society of Musicians, Hanover square, a few days ago, said that some time ago he visited a second-hand music seller's in St. Martin's lane and purchased a Haydn manuscript for two shillings and sixpence. The manuscript was rescued out of a sack of what the music seller described as rubbish.

Had It Lowered.

Sir Augustus Harris once settled the pitch question in his own offhand fashion. A famous prima donna of his opera company came to him complaining that the piano used for vocal rehearsals was too high and asking that it might be lowered.

"Certainly," replied Druriolanus, with a bow. "Here, Forsyth, have a couple of inches sawed off the legs of this piano."

PARLIAMENT TO BE CALLED.

Le Canada is authority for the statement that Parliament will be convened on November 4th, if everything can be got ready, and that in any event the session will open on the 18th of that month. It says that the new Insurance bill will be put through; also some important amendments to the Banking Law. The Franco-Canadian treaty will, it thinks, be brought to a vote before Christmas. The most important feature of the speech will be the Government's declaration of policy on the naval defence of the Empire. Le Canada anticipates that the Opposition will be much more aggressive

IF SICK--WHY PAY

Unless Health First Returns.

Here is what should and can be done!

Now you would not willingly pay for food that was worthless—would you?

Then why pay for medicine until that medicine first proves to you its actual worth?

Positively knowing what Dr. Shoop's Restorative can do for the sick, I say to all "don't pay unless health first returns". And I back my Restorative with a signed and sealed 30 day "No help, No pay" contract.

I positively pledge to the sick everywhere that "Dr. Shoop's Restorative is absolutely free if it fails". Let others do the same or stop their prescriptions lie.

If you need more strength, more vitality, more vigor or more vim, use my Restorative a few days and note the immediate improvement.

When the Stomach, Heart or Kidneys are wrong, then and Dr. Shoop's Restorative. I do not use the Stomach nor stimulate the Heart or Kidneys, for that is wrong. Years ago I made away with stimulants and habit forming drugs in medicine. The bowels below will tell you how I am succeeding.

These books also tell of a new hidden "inside nerve," no larger than a silken thread. They tell how that nerve, until it fails, controls all vital to the Heart its power, its tone, its never-ceasing action or impulse.

These books will open up new and helpful ideas to those who are not well. They tell how the Stomach, and Kidneys each have their "inside" or power nerves. They tell how the Restorative was especially made to reach and revitalize those weak or failing inside nerves. All of these books tell why I am able to say, "It is type if it helps".

This is why I say "takes no chance on a medicine whose maker dare not back it just as I do by this remarkable offer".

So write me today for the order.

I have appointed honest and responsible druggists in nearly every community to know my medicines to the sick.

But write me first for the order.

All druggists sell Dr. Shoop's Restorative, but all are not authorized to give the 30 day test.

So drop me a line please and then save disappointment and delays. Tell me also which book you need.

A postal will do.

Besides, you are free to consult me as you would your home physician. My advice and the book below are yours—and without cost.

Perhaps a word or two from me will clear up some serious ailment. I have helped thousands upon thousands by my private prescription or personal advice plan. My best efforts is really worth your simple request. So write now while you have it fresh in mind, for tomorrow never comes. Dr. Shoop, Box 13, Racine, Wis.

Manita will Ply on Lindsay Waters Instead of Str.Kathleen

The Otonabee Navigation Company has decided to operate a boat on the Lindsay waters, and it is expected that the Str. Manita will be taken off the Chemong route and that the boat will begin her first regular trip between Lindsay and other points on Saturday next. It was the intention of the Otonabee Navigation Company to place a boat on these waters next season in any case, but owing to the burning of the steamer Kathleen at the Lindsay wharf on Tuesday night the Peterborough company have decided to complete the season so that Lindsay's water transportation will not be interfered with. The steamer Manita is a good sized craft and she is very comfortable and fast. There is no doubt but that she will be very popular with the people and shippers on the waters on which this boat will ply.

Ald. R. Hicks, manager of the Otonabee Navigation Company, was in Lindsay last night for the purpose of completing arrangements. He will return to the city today.

Thirty-Year Franchise Again Considered by Manufacturers' Com.

The Manufacturers' Committee met last night and took up the proposed franchise lor the Peterborough Light & Power Company , to do business in Peterborough for thirty years. The committee did not make much progress and will hold another meeting tonight.

Those present were Chairman Geo. A. Gillespie, Aldermen Metheral,Duffus, Turner, Duncan and Mayor Ryan.

The city solicitor was present and he read over the proposed agreement relating to the franchise applied for by the Peterb.rough Light and Power Company. This agreement has been explained to and taken up by the committee and council in the rough but the solicitor has put it in legal form. It is a little different from the original and will have to be passed by the solicitors for the company before the council can pass upon it.

The solicitor said he had drawn four copies of the agreement which he would like the aldermen to take home and study and see if they could suggest some changes or additions. He would like the committee to agree upon the thing and be satisfied that it was correct.

The committee accepted this suggestion and took the copies of the agreement home with them, and another meeting will be held this evening.

A FEMALE SMUGGLER

WEALTHY GIRL ACCUSED OF SMUGGLING JEWELRY.

Search of Home Where Young Woman Stops Reveals Goods Other Than Property Seized When She Was on Steamer.

New York, Sept. 1.—Following the arrest of Miss Catherine M. McKee, daughter of one of the wealthiest merchants of Harrisburg, Pa., charged with smuggling a pair of diamond earrings and other jewelry on her arrival on the steamship Oceanic of the White Star line, last Wednesday, Collector Loeb today sent customs inspectors to the home of a friend of Miss McKee, where she is residing at present, and Miss Mckee's personal effects were searched for additional smuggled articles. A valuable fur coat and other articles were seized and sent to the seizure-room in the appraisers' warehouse.

At the office of Collector Loeb it was said he had received a "tip" that the property seized when Miss McKee was on the steamer did not comprise all the articles the young woman had brought over subject to duty, but which she had neglected to declare. Acting on this information, Collector Loeb requested Surveyor Clarkson to detail inspector Koch and two women attached to the customs inspection service to verify the information. They went to a house at 82 South Elliott place, Brooklyn, where Miss McKee has stopped since her trouble with the customs authorities, and there they found the fur coat and other articles.

Miss McKee is now under $1,500 bail, awaiting the action of the grand jury on the first charges. She said the jewelry seized on the steamer had been owned by her for many years, and was taken abroad and that she had concealed it in her garments simply for safety in the event of attempted robbery while ill. She has been under the care of physicians since her friends took her to their home in Brooklyn.

The collector refrained from ordering her arrest on the seizure made today. Special agents of the Treasury Department in Europe cabled a list of the purchases made by Miss McKee abroad of a dutiable nature.

QUEEN AGAIN IN POLITICS.

Favors Hawaiian as Next Delegate to Congress.

Honolulu Sept. 1.—Queen Liliokalani, deposed ruler of Hawaii, is reported to be interesting herself at the age of 71, in the political situation. Because of rumors that Prince Jonah Kalanianaole will not be a candidate to succeed himself as a delegate to Congress, the queen is believed to favor the succession of a Hawaiian. Prince Kalanianaole is non-committal as to his candidacy, but if he decides to enter the race it is believed that he will get the Republican nomination. In the event of his withdrawal, the business men, most of whom are Republicans, probably will put forward one of their own number as a candidate to oppose any other Hawaiian aspirant.

Million Dollar Pay Roll.

Pittsburg, Pa., Sept. 1.—With the coming of September and greatly increased activity in all industrial lines, the Smoky City's "million dollar per day" pay roll promises to be fully restored. Owing to the revival in the iron and steel industry and the coal trade, the railroads are rushing cars to the Pittsburg district.

THE WEATHER.

Fine and cool today.

100 YEARS OLD.

Says That there is No Rule for Longevity.

London, Sept. 1.—Mrs. Harriet Belton, of Croydon Infirmary has just entered her 100th year, and if she lived until the autumn of 1910 as appears probable from her present state of health, she will celebrate her centennial.

When asked her recipe for longevity, this sprightly old lady replied simply, "Why, the chief thing is just to go on living and to avoid dying." She indignantly denied having followed any of the rules of the health faddists for reaching a ripe age. Mrs. Belton was a girl of five when Waterloo was fought. Her chief pride is her "little boy"—now a youth of 73. She has innumerable grandchildren and great-grandchildren—so many that she does not know the exact number.

HOUSESMITHS ON STRIKE.

Building Operations Stopped in New York City.

New York, Sept. 1.—Several thousand housesmiths are idle today in an attempt to enforce a demand for the closed shop. All efforts by employers to obtain an agreement to this end have failed, the Iron League, the National Erectors' Association and other employers' organizations having refused to arrange conferences to discuss the proposition.

A prolonged strike of the housesmiths would cause a tie-up of work on all large buildings in the city as in the construction of modern buildings it is necessary that the steel skeleton be put up before other building operations can proceed. The housesmiths receive $4.50 a day for overtime. In many cases they are able to work on buildings in the winter.

GIVE CLEW TO MURDER.

Chicagoans Tell of Hearing Quarrel and Cry "Don't Kill Me."

Kenosha, Wis., Sept. 1.—The most important evidence found in connection with the murder of Herman Martin at Twin Lakes Sunday night was given the district attorney today by Mrs. J. Wiberg and Mrs. August Johnson of 2346 Ridgeway avenue, Chicago. They were sitting on the porch of a summer cottage on Lake Mary and overhead a quarrel between Martin and another man supposed to be Herman Kasten, who is in jail, here charged with having killed Martin. The women told the district attorney that they saw the two men engaged in a quarrel, and later heard Martin cry out "Don't kill me."

Dr. Cook Reached the North Pole on April 21st, 1908

Most Coveted Honor of Arctic Explorers Falls to the Lot of an Almost Unknown Scientist—Left Sydney, N.S., in July, 1907, for the North

Copenhagen, Sept. 1.—Dr. Cook, the American explorer, reached the North Pole April 21st, 1908, according to a telegram just received at the Colonial Office here.

Copenhagen, Sept. 1.—The message about Dr. Cook was received from Lerwick, Shetland Islands.

Dr. Cook is on board the Danish Government steamer Hansegede, which passed Lerwick at noon today en route for Denmark.

The telegram announcing Dr.Cooks achievement was sent by Greenland official on board the steamer and reads as follows;

"We have on board the American traveler, Dr. Cook, who reached the North Pole, April 21, 1908.Dr. Cook arrives at Upernivik (the northernmost Danish settlement in Greenland, on an island off the west coast in May of 1909 from Cape York (in the northwest part of Greenland,in Baffin Bay.) The Esquiman of Cape York confirm Dr. Cook's story of his journey."

Dr. Frederick A.Cook, accompanied by a Norweigan, left Etah, Greenland, March 3, 1908, taking with him eight Esquimaus, four sledges, and twelve dog teams. He was to have made his way through Ellesmere Land. Dr. Cook lives in Brooklyn.

Should this report be verified, one of the most remarkable events of a century has been accomplished, and a feat that has tempted the bravest of scientists and sailors to their destruction has been achievec. Cook left Sydney, N.S., two years ago, without trump of horn or fuss of any kind, but apparently, he has succeeded where Andree, Peary, Wellman, and a host of others failed. Very little public interest was shown in Dr. Cook's efforts.

Thus an American wins the race for the North Pole, in which the principal nations of the world competed.

The message from Dr. Cook was received from Lerwick, Shetland Islands.

COLD WEATHER.

People Shivering in Their Summer Clothing.

The very chilly weather of the past few days has made many people shiver, both from chill and from the thoughts of the heavy clothing and empty coal bins that will have to be looked after immediately. It is seldom that September comes in so cold, and one almost feels ashamed to wear fall or winter clothing. One also feels ashamed to think of lighting a fire in the office or house. Still such is in many cases necessary.

At the city hall the clerks and officials were all shivering and rubbing there hands yesterday. There was no fire on, although there was lots of coal in the bins. The caretaker is away on his holidays and there is no one to start the fire Mr. Caretaker will have to come home or else send a little warmer weather.

NEW ROLLER RINK.

On Brock Street to Open on Sept. 16th—Best in Canada.

The new Brock street Roller Rink will be opened to the public Tuesday, Sept. 14th. By that time a new floor of specially prepared hard maple will have been laid, the rink decorated and everything done to make it an attractive place of amusement. The firm controlling the rink is Genno, McLean & Co. Mr. Genno is well known to all Peterborough roller skaters and they will be glad to know that he and Mrs. Genno are back in the city and will be at the new rink every day and evening.

The deal between the rink owners and the roller skating people was completed on Tuesday and the contract for the floor was let and work will be started today and rushed to completion. The new floor will be practically noiseless. The boards on the upper floor will be laid in a circle, and the sills will be packed, thus doing away practically with all the noise. The floor space is one of the largest in Canada,and the rink itself will be one of the best if not the best in the Dominion. All new ball bearing skates will be used, and a band will be in attendance every night. In the afternoons and mornings a military organ will be used to furnish the music. It will be run by a half horse power engine. Popular prices will be charged for admission with special prices for children between 3.30 and 5.30 in the afternoons. Special attention will be paid to parties and club skaters. Keep the date in mind, Tuesday, Sept. 14th.

HOME OF SUFFRAGISTS.

New York Women Fix Up Headquarters for Fight.

New York, Sept. 1.—Nine handsomely furnished rooms, occupying an entire floor of the new office building at 505 Fifth avenue, were opened today as the national headquarters of the suffragette movement. Mrs. O. H. P. Belmont, who recently opened her marble palace at Newport to the suffragists, will pay the expenses of $5,000 a year. Five of the rooms are occupied by the National Suffrage Association, and the other rooms are at the disposal of state and other suffrage societies. Mrs. Belmont has a private office in the building and will, to a large extent, direct the propaganda work that will be carried on from headquarters in all parts of the country.

Standard Oil Dividend.

New York, Sept. 1.—Six dollars a share, as usual, will be paid in dividends by the Standard Oil Company this month for the current quarter. On the 983,383 shares of stock outstanding this will mean a disbursement of $5,900,298 for the quarter. If the December dividend is the usual $6 a share, making $24 a share for the year, the company will disburse almost $40,000,000 for the year 1909. The regular September dividend has been $6 for several years.

Wedding Bells

STOCKER—COUKELL.

A very pretty and interesting event took place at five o'clock last evening at the home of Mr. and Mrs. F. Vallegee, 717 Bethune St., when Miss I. B. Coukell, youngest daughter of Mr. and Mrs. H. Coukell of Wilberforce, Ont., and Mr. Robt. Stocker of the Gowling Business College, Ottawa, were united in the holy bonds of matrimony by Rev. J. P. Wilson of Lindsay. The bride and groom were unattended, and the ceremony was witnessed by about thirty friends and relatives of the contracting parties. The bride was handsomely attired in a princess gown of white silk soline. She carried a shower bouquet of roses and lily of the valley and a spray of val ley lillies in her hair. The groom's gift to the bride was a cabinet of silver. Many other beautiful and useful gifts were received by the bride, evincing her popularity with her her large circle of friends. Among the out of town guests were, Mr. and Mrs. H. Coukell, Wilberforce, and Mrs. Hales of Burleigh. The happy young couple will leave on Friday next for Ottawa, where they will reside in future.

OBITUARY

MRS. LUCY DAWSON.

The many friends of Mrs. Lucy Dawson, wife of Mr. Alex. Dawson, 92 — street, will regret to learn that she passed away at her home yesterday afternoon about 4.30 o'clock. The deceased had been in poor health for some time. She was well known in the city and very highlyrespected. She was 74 years of age and besides her husband, she is survivec by five sons, George of Montreal, Herbert and Albert of Fort William, and Henry and Edward of Dauphin, Man., and one daughter, Miss Alice, who is at present visiting in Seattle.

Announcement of the funeral arrangements will be made later.

MARGARET A. BARRY.

The death occurred Tuesday evening of Margaret A. Barry, eldest daughter of Mr. Michael Barry of Douro. The deceased was 15 years of age, and had only been ill a short time with peritonotis. Her parents, three sisters, and two brothers, are left to mourn her loss.

The funeral will take place this morning at nine o'clock to St. Joseph's church, and thence to St. Joseph's cemetery.

The South African Federation Bill

Mr Balfour has been stirred from his usually languid attitude toward affairs by the dawn of a new era in South Africa. Like Lord Rosebery, the Conservative Leader is somewhat of a dilettante, and leaves the impression that he toys with public questions as a hobby rather than in the grave and reverent mood of a professional statesman. But, also like Lord Rosebery, when occasion demands, he can rise to heights of enthusiasm which stir his colleagues in the House only less than the country. During the debate on the South African Constitutional Bill, Mr. Balfour spoke with the weight and the eloquence that have graced the utterances of so many distinguished members of his family. Nor was his speech a mere burst of eloquence, charming in its manner but ephemeral in its matter. In referring to the race question, the Leader of the Opposition in the Commons chose a special theme which is perhaps the most important and the most difficult of solution of all the features of the social problem in South Africa. He was firm in his condemnation of any sectional or pretended granting of equal rights to the colored element in the community, and tacitly censured a time-serving policy along these lines, as fundamentally rotten and eventually perilous to any lasting quietude in the new Dominion. And finally, Mr. Balfour, speaking on behalf of his Party, deprecated any action which would hamper the Asquith Government in putting into effect a measure which he considered wisely and beneficially framed, so long as the Home authorities did not in their turn, by imprudent meddling in the future, handicap the South African legislatorn in the working out of their own salvation.

More Docks Needed to Accommodate Traffic by Water to the City

Anyone who has had occasion to visit Wolfe street wharf on a busy day, and those days have been surprisingly numerous this year, could not help but be struck by the great necessity for additional dock and wharf accommodation. Peterborough navigation business is rapidly developing and every year sees a big increase in the passenger and freight traffic. The little wharf at Wolfe street will not begin to accommodate the vessels and scows. Some days the steamers and scows are lying two and three deep the entire length of the wharf and business is thus greatly handicapped.

Ald. J. J. Turner has been giving this matter considerable attention of late, and he has a plan which the Board of Trade and the City Council could take up jointly and with every prospect of success. Briefly it is to acquire the water lots south of the Matthews Company's factory, and which form the bay running up to George street and which is north of the McDonald mills. These water lots are an eye sore as they stand but could be put to great use and be made very valuable. A crib could be built right across the bay and the bay filled in from the crib to George street, and a magnificent shipping point would thus be obtained. It would require a great deal of material for filling and would cost considerable.

On the other hand several slips might be built and the dredgings from these would go a long way to fill in the dock portion of the water lots. Either schemes would afford ample dockage for the city for many years to come and it couldbe done cheaper now than a few years from now and the docks are certainly needed.

The Board of Trade and the council might take the matter up with the Dominion Government, through local representative, Hon. J. R. R. Stratton, M.P., with reason to believe that success would follow. This is thrown out as a suggestion for the public men to consider seriously.

Mr. Wood Emphatically Denies the Statements in the Evening Press

The following appeared in an evening contemporary;

Crown Attorney R. E. Wood is credited with the following statement by a Toronto newspaperman.

"It seems to me that the two youths went into the fight with their eyes wide open and knew what they were doing. Neither of them had any idea it would prove so serious. If unfortunately did, but even if the doctors who performed the operation are firm in their opinion that the injuries received caused death. I do not think any grand jury would consider for a moment bringing in a true bill.

STATEMENT DENIED.

When called up on the 'phone by The Times, Mr. R. E. Wood, K.C., said he most emphatically denied the article. He said he never made such a statement to anyone nor did he even make a statement which could be construed to mean that there would be no prosecution. On the other hand he has been most particular to express no opinion on the case.

BENSON STREET WALK.

Will Be Completed at Noon Today After Long Fight.

In spite of all the wordy wars,the threats of injunctions and the hard feelings over the Benson avenue and Benson street walks, that walk has been, or will be completed at noon today, and it will be on the inside of the tree line as the city engineer originally recommended.Several strenuous battles were fought over this piece of walk. Probably the most bitter ever experienced in this connection. But the work is now completed and a good job has been done. It is to be hoped that it will be satisfactory.

BUILDING OUR OWN SHIPS.

British shipbuilders may establish yards in Canada, and engage in building boats for the Canadian navy. Home industries will be thus encouraged. The question is, will the cruisers and destroyers be quite as good as those built in England?

The United States determined to build its own battleships,and Cramps at Philadelphia, has become famous for its products in recent years. And yet it is not so long since American critics charged that there was not a single ship in the United States navy which would compare with the British ships, that architecturally they were gravely deficient.

The Japs have begun the building of their own fighting ships, but they are the most imitative people in the world, and may be simply duplicating the ships they have had built abroad. In time they may become original and, like England, produce the newest things in warships and equipment. For the present, England leads

Canada may get from the old land the equipment and talent that will enable her to build as well as the mother country. It is a great undertaking. It may succeed and it may not. It has had an ice-breaker made in England. It may be cheapest and best to get its naval outfit there.

Steamer Kathleen Struck by Lightning

Sturgeon Point, Aug. 31.— This evening about 8.30 o'clock, during a heavy electrical storm, which passed over the village, the steamer Kathleen was struck by lightning. Messrs. Elliott and Moynes, the owners of the boat, were retiring, and barely escaped with their lives. The boat, with all its life preservers, the company's books, Capt. Elliotts clothes and other valuables, was burned to the water's edge.

Mr. Ed. Elliott, Capt. Elliott's son, was sitting in Walkey's store, when Mr. Bert Worsley, who lives with Mr. J. D. Flavelle, raised the alarm. A number of the boys and men turned out with pails and managed to save the lower deck. The sparks set a couple of trees on fire, but these were soon put out.

Everybody sympathises with Messrs. Elliott & Moynes in the loss they have sustained.

Power for Brockville.

Montreal, Sept. 1.—Brockville is earnestly endorsing the scheme of power development at the Long Sault. At a citizens' meeting a resolution was unanimously carried approving of the project while a similar resolution was passed by the town council.

New York is "Poor Pay."

New York, Sept. 1.—That the city of New York is "poor pay" is the reason given by John Whalen for evicting the Sinking Fund Commission from a building owned by him today. He says the city has not paid rent for four years.

ADVERTISE IN THE TIMES.

West Wing of Provincial Parliament Buildings Destroyed by Fire

The Cabinet was in Session at the Time—Valuable Library Destroyed—Loss will be Heavy

Toronto, Sept. 1.—The west wing of the Provincial Parliament Buildings is burning fiercely, and the upper floor may be totally destroyed.

Already the roof has crashed in, and great clouds of smoke almost obscure the buildings from sight.

Not a person was allowed to remain on the top floor and offices were abandonec within five minutes of the first crash of glass in the sky light. The cause is not known.

The damage will be many thousands of dollars, and the loss of valuable property in the offices through a complete dreching by water will roll up heavily.

SKYLIGHT CRASHED DOWN.

No one in the buildings had the slightest intimation that anything was wrong until pane after pane of the art glass fastened in the great amber skylight came crashing throug the three stories opening to the lower floor. A moment later a tongue of flame darted through,caught the woodwork on the tird floor ceiling, and in five minutes had spread the smoke and blaze to such an extent that the real seriousness of the conflagration was left to surmise. A panis followed. Clerks in the top floor offices rushed with valuables to the vaults, and then scurried from the building.

Death of Woman who Freed Famous Biddles

New York, Sept. 1.—A Pittsburg despatch to the Tribune announces that Mrs. Kate Soffel, who liberated the Biddle brothers, the Canadian desperadoes from the Allegheny County Jail on January 39, 1902, died at the West Penn. Hospital, from typhoid fever yesterday. She was 42 years of age. Her eldest daughter, Margaret, is a nurse in the hospital, and cared for her to the last.

Mrs. Soffel was the wife of Peter Soffel, warden of the jail,at the time of the escape. She obtained files and revolvers and accompanied the men who were condemned to be hanged to Butler County, where detectives overtook the trio. In a fight in the snow the Biddles were fatally wounded and Mrs. Soffel was shot in the side.

Mrs. Soffelserved two years in the Westman Penitentiary. She afterwards appeared in a drama. "A Desperate Chance."

ROYAL TROTH FIXED

PRINCE MIGUEL'S FAMILY INSISTS MISS STEWART AGREE TO CATHOLIC CEREMONY.

Despite Mother's Plea for Home Nuptials, American Girl is Bound by Braganzas.

Dingwall, Rossshire, Scotland,Dept 1.—Tulloch Castle has been deserted by the party assembled here by Mrs. William Henry Smith to celebrate the betrothal of her daughter, Miss Anita Stewart, to Prince Miguel of Braganza, the eldest of the three sons of the Duke of Braganza, pretencer to the throne of Portugal.

Mrs. Smith and Miss Stewart have gone to London and Paris to inspect costly and elaborate trousin both places and to make the final fittings.

Prince Miguel has gone to his father's home in Austria, the Castle of Seebenstein, some forty miles south of Vienna. It is understood he goes to consult his family regarding some matters which were not finally arranged when he left home before. He is expected back a week from next Tuesday.

WEDDING DAY IS FIXED.

The wedding has been set for Sept 15.—The ceremony will be in the Catholic Church here and the reception will be held in Tulloch Castle.

The prince's family, urged on at the Catholic ecclesiastic authorities, insisted upon a wedding in church,and they prevailed, although Mrs. Smith made an earnest effort to obtain a dispensation to permit her daughter to be wedded in her home, Tulloch Castle.

Furthermore, Miss Anita Stewart, the bride-to-be, has signed a document which was carefully drawn up by the Vatican authorities agreeing to have no other religious ceremony than Catholic, and to educate all the children born of this marriage in the Catholic faith. In this document there is an unusual clause which binds her "in all eventualities" to fulfill this pledge.

BOUND BY FAMILY PLEDGE.

Evidently this obligation was inspired by the reputation for precariousness these international marriages have acquired, and to make this condition effective she has consented that the guardianship of her children shall be vested in some member of the Braganza family in case she should outlive Prince Miguel, "or in any other contingency which deprives said children of the personal care of their father."

The conditions have been made especially stringet because of the bride groom's royal affiliations and also because his family desires to take every possible precaution against a Braganza ever becoming a Protestant.

A clever, popular Candy Cold Cure Tablet—called Preventics—is being dispensed by druggists everywhere. In a few hours Preventics are said to break any cold completely. And Preventics, being so safe and toothsome, are very fine for children. No Quinine, no laxative, nothing harsh, nor sickening. Box of 48—25c. Sold by all dealers.

Miss Ethel Baulch has returned to her home in Toronto after a short visit with her aunt Mrs. J. H. Callander, Hunter street, east.

Wind on the Stomach

A Well-Known Westerner Tells of Suffering, Misery and Pain That He Cured With Nerviline.

"A few weeks ago I ate some green vegetables and some fruit that was not quite ripe. It first brought on a fit of indigestion, but unfortunately it developed into hiccoughs, accompanied by nausea and cramps. I was dreadfully ill for two days—my head ached and throbbed; I belched gas continually, and I was unable to sleep at night. A neighbor happened in to see me and urged me to try Nerviline. Well, I wouldn't have believed that any preparation could help so quickly. I took half a teaspoonful of Nerviline in hot sweetened water, and my stomach felt better at once. I used Nerviline several times, and was completely restored."

NERVILINE STRENGTHENS WEAK STOMACHS

The above is from a letter written by G. E. Braun, a well-known stockman and farmer near Lethbridge, Alta. Mr. Braun's favorable opinion of the high merit of Nerviline shared by thousands of Canadians who have proved Nerviline is simply a marvel for cramps, diarrhoea, flatulence, nausea and stomach disorders. Safe to use, guaranteed to cure—you can make no mistake in keeping Nerviline for your family remedy. Large 25c. bottles; five for $1.00 Sold everywhere, or The Catarrhozone Co., Kingston, Ont. 15

DO ANIMALS REASON?

This is a very old question, but the debates over it go on as vigorously as though it were one of the season's novelties. It has provoked an acrimonious discussion in this country within the last few years, which has betrayed even the gentle John Burroughs into expressions that suggest indignation, impatience and contempt, Mr. Burroughs being a great stickler for instinct. The Englishmen who write to the London Spectator have now taken it up, and one of them adds to the interest of his modern instances in favor of the reason theory by quoting Gilbert White, who said more than a century ago:

"The maxim that defines instinct to be that secret influence by which every species is compelled naturally to pursue at all times the same way or track without any teaching or example, must be taken in a qualified sense, for there are instances in which instinct does vary and conform to the circumstances of place and convenience."

In the letters to The Spectator reason certainly triumphs. There is but one doubter. He has heard that horses, after an exercise of the reason, sham lameness, but he says that he has always been taught to believe that a horse never shams. This, however, is criticised as false teaching by the editor himself. He declares that the correspondent is singularly fortunate in that he has never met an artful horse. "Such a horse, if he dislikes a particular ride or is bored at not having his accustomed equine companion, or generally if he wishes to make himself disagreeable, is very apt to adopt a pace that is indistinguishable from lameness." Other correspondents strengthen the editor's case by furnishing him with examples. A horse named Sportsman, which became tired of daily stunts of forty-five miles, broke out of his paddock after a day's rest to prevent the resumption of the unpleasant routine, and he was caught shaming stiffness in the off hind leg. "After five miles," says his owner, "I was almost prepared to put him in dock as genuinely lame when a mounted policeman on a fine nag overtook us. Sportsman at once became anxious to show off his paces, went along splendidly, trotting, cantering, galloping, and ended the forty-five mile day in good fettle." Of course if he had reasoned deeper he might have controlled his emotions, but his actions bear a remarkable resemblance to those of human shammers who are suddenly cured of sickness by the prospect of a good time.

There are many stories of dogs in support of the reason theory, as might be expected, but we pass them over for the tale of the monkey and the looking-glass. The animal was much surprised at his reflection and sprang to the back of the glass to see if he could catch the mysterious stranger. After two unsuccessful attempts he kept the reflection in view and reached around with his paw for the elusive fellow. Apparently he worked over the entirely new problem with a monkey wit that is different from a mere instinct that might have kept him plunging directly at the glass.

A DEPOSED QUEEN.

Her Royal Nibs may not thank us for telling, but if the records are correct, former Queen Liliuokalani, of Hawaii, is today 71 years of age. To prevent an outburst of royal wrath, it may be added that she doesn't look it. When clad in her gladdest raiment and properly made up, she should easily pass as a young ril of fifty.

Queen Lil-et-cetera is now girding up her—that is, she is preparing for her annual onslaught upon Congress, to push claims for $200,000 indemnity on the crown lands she lost when she climbed down from the throne of the Paracise of the Pacific and permitted Uncle Sam to rule in her stead. The richly upholstered and dusky exqueen is also as much io evidence at the sessions of the Solons as is Czar Joseph of Illinois and the other kingly personages to whom God and the voters have entrusted the legislation of the land.

Queen Lil was born on September 2, 1838, and was a sister of King—sneeze here—King Kalakuka, whom she succeeded. The prepared the way lor for subsequent events by taking in marriage one Jogn Of Domonis,an American, whom she made governor of Oahu. The prince consort cied in 1891 and in the same year, with a great beating of tom-toms and blowing of trumpets, Queen Lil ascended the throne.

There was trouble brewing in the islands, and the brief reign of Her RoyalHighness was a troubled one. She used every effort that a fertile brain could devise to maintain her supremacy and keep her seat on the tottering throne. In 1893 she was deposed and the islanders adopted a republican form of government.

Queen Lil, in this her sore plight, went to Washington in 1896 and appealed to Uncle Sam to succor a lady in distress. That gallant old gentleman listened more or less attentatively to her plea, but failed to get busy at succoring. He decided that if what Her Highness said was true, Wawaii would be a very desirable possession, and in 1898 the United States flag was hoisted above the islands.

The deposed queen returned to her former queendom, but has since frequently appealed to Congress for financial redress for her wrongs. So far, Congress hasn't behavec very nicely, but there now appears to be some likelihood that it will co a little redressing.

By those who know her, Queen Lil is said to be very vain, anc she is especially fond of her hands. These are white and shapely and a veritable triumph of the manicuring art.

HOW TO LIVE LONG.

Rules laid down by the doctors and wise men for living to an advanced age don't always apply in real life. Mr. Josiah Suckling, of Fulham, England, is not the suckling that his name is applies, but has just reachthe age of 100 years, and in his time has violated all the so-called laws of longevity. He not only drinks much beer, but smokes a great deal, and by his confining labor as a tailor has also proven that out door exercise is not necessarily an appanage of long life.

In his career as a tai,or, Suckling has made cloths for, among others, the exquisite, George IV, who so ill deserved the little flatterers bestowed on him of "the First Gentleman of Europe." The centenarian's recollections of the monarch, however,are most kindly.

"He was a fine old fellow," says the aged Josiah. "He used to go to the theatre with a band in front. He was a good customer for tailors, too. He was a dandy sort of cheap. Before he came to the throne coats used to be worn loose, but he wanted to know what was the use of loose cloth about the waist, and ever since coats have been cut across the waist I used to work at Stulzer's of St-James's, and that is how I made cloths for royalty."

The old rule that threatened man live longest is proved very strikingly in Mr. Suckling's case. "I was a very delicate child," he says. "I came into the world in a hurry, and the nurse said she could have put me into a pint pot. I was looked for a dead 'un before I was fourteen, but after I had reached that age little seemed to all me."

A REMARKABLE MAN.

The man who made the flour to make the bread that made the name of Graham famous was born in the Wooden Nutmeg state 115 years ago. He was the pioneer vegetarian, diet reformer and pure food "crank" in this country. Sylvester Graham was his name, an Suffield, Conn., has the distinguished honor of having been his native town.

Graham was the son of an English clergyman who came to this country as a youth. Young Graham early manifested his ability as an orator, and his father decided that he had a call to the ministry. He acquired some theological learned at Amherst and then set out to preach.

He was early attracted to the temperance cause, bit his brand of temperance included food as well as drink. Indeed he held that a vegetarian diet, persisted in, was the best cure for the cravings of the drunkard.

Graham practiced what he preached, and adopted a vegetarian diet, thereby winning for himself the title of "crank" and "mad enthusiast." His own health, he declared, was greatly improved by the regimen he adopted, and he soon began preaching vegetarianism as a cure for all human ills. Like all reformers, he claimed too much for his own particular brand of salvation.

He gradually established a big following of disciples, and brought out his "Graham Bread" recipe. This was composed simply of unbolted wheat flour. He advocated this form of bread on the platform anc in his books, and it came to be one of the most popular articles of food in America.

Up to the time Graham appeared workmen, and others, for that matter, thought the only way to stimulate muscular energy was to eat meat, but by Graham's teaching they soon learned that muscular strength does not depend upon the consumption of the flesh of animals. He paved the way for the larger and more extensive use for food of cereals and fruits.

The consumption of meat and pastry fell off amazingly, and Graham's followers were numbered by the hundreds in every town of note. This led to strong opposition to the vegetable advocate on the part of butchers anc bakers in all parts of the country, and they looked upon the man as a dangerous sort of crank, who had no real knowledge of what he was talking about, but had, however, ruined their business. Accordingly they organized a crusade against the man and in 1847, while Graham was lecturing in Boston, with a large audience of enthusiasts listening to him a howling mob attacked the outside of the building and threatened Graham's life.

Graham kept on lecturing until his death, which occurred on Sept. 11, 1851, at Northampton, Mass. He left many followers and his graham bread has not been lost sight of yet.

NO BABIES, NO BALLOTS.

Proposal to Give Ballots Only to Those Who Have Children.

St. Louis, Sept. 1.—"Family suffrage; or, no babies, no ballots."

This is the new idea of Father Phelan, editor-priest of St. Louis. He advocates one of the most novel and original bills ever submitted to a legislature relative to women and their rights.

This measure, which the priest says he will submit to the next session at Jefferson City, asks for family suffrage in Missouri for the purpose of encouraging large families. Father Phelan will also submit suggestions relative to women co-respondents, prohibiting a divorced husband from marrying the co-respondent in the case. Should his measure gain the approval of the law makers of Missouri, the standards of woman's importance will be materially changed.

"In some states," Father Phelan asserts "women's suffrage is based on the question of whether they are property owners. A man or women of property is supposed to have more interest in the welfare of the state than one who has no such stake.

"But the giving of a new citizen to the nation offers a greater pledge than the richest landowner.

"I would give every family an additional vote for every child born into it. If a couple has ten children we would give the family twelve votes. In case the couple agreed politically we would permit the father to cast the whole twelve votes. If the couple were divided on their views of politics we would give the wife her own vote anc the votes of all her daughters, and the husband his own vote and those of all his sons. This would give the woman suffragists all they now demand anc more, but it would disfranchise the childless. It would encourage large families."

SISTERS GO OVER FALLS.

Leap Out of Boat Only to Meet Death in Swift Current.

Upper Sandusky, Ohio, Sept. 1.—This afternoon, while May and Alice Wurlett, aged 17 and 16 respectively daughters of Charles Wurlett, were rowing alone in the Sandusky, River their boat was car-jumped out and were carried down stream in the whirling current and drowned. The tragedy was witnessed by a number picnickers, several leaving to their rescue, but without result. The bodies have not been recovered.

POISONS FIVE BABIES.

Mother's Act Discovered in Time to Save all But One Child.

St. Joseph, Mo., Sept. 1.—In a fit of insanity this morning, Mrs. Carrie Sanders of Florence addition gave five of her six children morphine. while trying to feed the poison to the sixth age was detected by a neighbor anc she then confessed to what she had done. Weldon, aged 5 years, is dead, but physicians say they will save the lives of the other children. The mother also took poison and cut her throat after making her confession, but she is expected to recover. The husband of Mrs. Sanders was at home when the children were poisoned, but did not know what his wife was doing. The child that died had been poisoned about two hours before the others. The children range in age from 2 to 10 years.

THEY TRADE WIVES.

Husbands Agree to Separation, Then One Marries Other's Spouse.

Elgin, Ill., Sept. 1.—A singular story of an interchange of husbands and wives, seemingly agreeable to all four parties concerned, has come to light through the issuance of a marriage license at Geneva, Ill., today to William McPherson, 29, and Mrs. Mary B. Warner, 28.

Each was granted a divorce a year ago, the former wife of McPherson leaving for Cuba, Wis., after the decree was issued. She has since been joined there by William Warner, former husband of the woman who figures in the new license issued to McPherson today.

Previous to the court's action in granting legal separation to both couples, it had been understood that the trade was mutually satisfactory, and it is supposed that a simflar license will soon be taken out at Cuba by Warner to wed Mrs. McPherson. All were residents of Elgin until the removal of Warner and Mrs. McPherson to Wisconsin.

More New Boats.

Montreal, Sept. 1.—The operations of the R. & O. Nav. Co., whose boats figure so greatly at this port is to be largely [illegible] American capital, to the [illegible] millions, will be [illegible] an entirely new fleet [illegible] passenger boats, to be [illegible] with the present vessels. It is expected that when the new arrangements are carried out the R. & O. Nav. Co. will be the largest inland navigation company in the world.

$90,000---7 Per Cent.

9,000 Shares 7 Per Cent Cumulative Preferred Stock ($10 a Share) Offered at Par with 40 Per Cent Immediate Bonus of Common Stock. We Reserve the Right to Withdraw Offer Without Notice and to Return any Subscription Received Too Late. Previous Offerings Were Immediately Oversubscribed.

MORE THAN A THOUSAND BANK OFFICERS, LAWYERS, PHYSICIANS, MINISTERS, BUSINESS MEN AND OTHERS HAVE BECOME STOCKHOLDERS IN THE CIRCLE PUBLISHING COMPANY WITHIN THE PAST FEW MONTHS.

Presidents and Cashiers of Banks, Presidents and other officers of Insurance Companies and of prominent business concerns who are thoroughly qualified to pass upon the soundness of such a proposition have comended the investment and have put their own money into it.

Many leading Physicians, Ministers and Educators in all the big cities of the United States and several in Europe have very highly endorsed THE CIRCLE MAGAZINE and THE CIRCLE PUBLISHING COMPANY, and have been glad to become part owners in the enterprise.

These men, and a good many splendid women, also, have known THE CIRCLE for several years and have watched it grow better and stronger constantly. They know what a sterling good property it is; they know that it is founded on a plan that ought to success, and they know that it is held always true to that plan; they know from personal experience that its business methods are good, careful, and conservative, yet aggressive and successful; they are convinced, therefore, that there is a large and very profitable career ahead of THE CIRCLE PUBLISHING COMPANY. For these reasons they have been glad of a chance to get some of its stock.

Twice we offered by letter, without any blow of trumpets, Five Thousand Shares of our Cumulative Seven Per Cent, Preferred Stock for subscription. Each time the Five Thousand Shares were promptly over-subscribed before we could finish sending out the letters to the selected list. There are only Twenty Thousand Shares of Preferred Stock in all, therefore more than half was taken up at once, and we have not offered the balance until now.

For a short time we are going to give the same opportunity to those who did not receive our letters: but as the amount is necessarily limited, prompt action will be required.

HERE IS THE PLAN: The Capital Stock of The Circle Publishing Company is $500,000, of which $200,000 is Preferred Stock with 7 per cent. Cumulative dividend, and $300,000 is Common Stock upon which all dividends over and above the 7 per cent. on the Preferred Stock will be paid. Measured by the opportunities for rapid development of the business and by the known earnings of other great magazine and book publishing properties, the dividends on the Common Stock should soon exceed the fixed dividend on the Preferred Stock, and our Plan gives you some of both kinds.

The following extract from an article in a recent number of Leslie's Weekly is to the point:

"HOW A FEW DOLLARS MADE A FORTUNE"

"Among the most interesting commercial facts in this country are the astonishing fortunes which are being made by magazine publishers.

"Every year more than the immense sum of about $80,000,000 is spent in buying advertising space and in buying copies of periodicals. A large portion of this huge amount of money becomes profits for magazine owners.

"The great popular monthly publications have risen to wealth and prominence so quickly that only $100 invested in Munsey's a few years ago is now worth between $10,000 and $12,000, and is earning dividends at the rate of $1,000 a year.

"McClure's Magazine made a profit for its stockholders of 1,000 per cent. in about ten years. The total annual income of The Ladies' Home Journal and The Saturday Evening Post, both of which are owned by the Curtis Publishing Company, of Philadelphia, is not far from $6,000,000. The Cosmopolitan, Everybody's, The Outlook, and others, are immensely profitable.

"Unfortunately, however, magazine readers have rarely had an opportunity to share in these splendid earnings. Nearly all the magazines are in each case owned by a few individuals, who receive all the enormous income.

"A chance to secure an interest in one of the great popular magazines, on a basis that insures absolute safety and gives a liberal share of all the profits of the business, is an opportunity that attracts the immediate attention of the shrewdest investors."

OUR OFFER IS THIS: The par value of all shares is $10. They are full paid and non-assessable. The taxes on the stock are paid in full. Nine thousand shares of the Cumulative 7 per cent Preferred Stock are offered now at ten dollars a share, par. Every subscriber for five shares of Preferred Stock will be given a bonus of one share of Common Stock and will be made also a life subscriber for THE CIRCLE Magazine without additional payment. A subscriber for any multiple of five shares will be given a corresponding number of shares of Common Stock, as bonus, and will be allowed to present a life subscription for THE CIRCLE as a gift to some relative or friend for each five shares of Preferred Stock subscribed. Additional shares of Common Stock may be substituted in lieu of life subscriptions as bonus, or vice-versa. Thus, ten shares of Preferred Stock will entitle the subscriber to two shares of Common Stock and two life subscriptions for THE CIRCLE, or four shares of Common Stock. One hundred shares of Preferred Stock will carry with them a bonus of twenty shares of Common Stock and twenty life subscriptions for THE CIRCLE, or forty shares of Common Stock.

If you can not afford to take five or more shares, you may subscribe for three shares, and with such a subscription we will give you either the life subscription for THE CIRCLE or a bonus of one share of Common Stock, as you prefer.

We must say now, however, that this offer with its bonus is conditioned upon your prompt acceptance, and we reserve the right to withdraw or modify the offer without further notice.

YOU NEED NOT SEND ALL THE MONEY NOW IF NOT CONVENIENT TO DO SO, but write at once, saying how many of the 9,000 shares you will take and how soon you will be ready to pay for them. Ten per cent. of the amount of your subscription should be sent at the time of making the reservation. If more convenient to you the total amount may be divided into several instalments. Please use one of the Application Forms below, or a copy of the same.

Just an earnest word or two: You ought to know something about the "Plan" and aim of THE CIRCLE. We are all deeply in earnest about this matter. Every one of the men and women who now control the editorial and the business policy of the magazine is pledged to the carrying onward to its highest possible success the work of making a great, high-class, popular magazine of world-wide circulation which shall portray and encourage the good in individual, social, business, and political life, rather than the evil; which shall stand for peace rather than war; which shall search out beauty rather than ugliness; which shall build up rather than teardown; which shall constantly plan and labor, and co-operate with those who are planning and laboring, to make this world a better and happier place to live in, both for the poor and the wealthy, for the unlearned and the learned, for the weak and for the strong.

This is not mere rainbow painting. It is a real and definite program, based upon strong convictions and practical plans. We know that there are many splendid men and women who are in sympathy with this program and want to see it carried out. They know, as we know, that there is a positive cure in sunshine and fresh air. The poisonous, ill-smelling places often can be purified and made beautiful just by letting in the sunlight and the sweet winds of heaven. No man can remain a pessimist who will open his eyes and his heart to the good and the beautiful around him. All he need do is to give it just a fair share of his attention. It will surely sweeten his blood, cheer and lift up his heart, lighten his step, brighten the glance of his eyes, and inspire him in his work. There is plenty of evil to fight, and it calls for strenuous and constant effort, but the man who sees nothing but the evil will never be able to overcome much of it. You who will help to support and boldly develop and broaden the work of THE CIRCLE Magazine, until its influence is felt in countless American homes, satisfying the great need, recognized or unrecognized, of American life—you who will help to accomplish this will come closer to the hearts of multitudes of people and do more universal and lasting good than can be done in any restricted field. No single instrument within the grasp of any group of men can be so effective as this great, clean, purposeful magazine in bringing to pass that "Peace on Earth, Good Will to Men," for which the world has been waiting for so many centuries.

This is a business enterprise. We want to make money for ourselves and for our stockholders, and we shall do so; but this business enterprise—this sound, common-sense, money-making enterprise is inspired with an ideal; this corporation has a soul.

Men of long and successful experience in the magazine and book publishing business and in financial affairs make up the Board of Officers and Directors of The Circle Publishing Company.

This additional capital will be used to increase the circulation and advertising patronage of THE CIRCLE Magazine and to develop the profitable book publishing enterprises of the Company. No magazine in the world possesses more of the real elements of large business profit and immense usefulness to society than does THE CIRCLE. The magazine itself shows tangible evidence, month by month, of the truth of these statements.

We trust you will join with us—that you will write quickly and reserve five, ten, twenty, fifty or more shares of the Preferred Stock, and so have a part in THE CIRCLE work and THE CIRCLE success. Write at once, if possible, filling out one of the blank forms below.

THE STEALTHY TIGER.

When He Moves Quietly Death Does Not Seem More Silent.

I have seen a tiger, sitting up a hundred yards from me in the sunlight washing its face like a cat, move a couple of steps into the shade and fade away like the Cheshire cat in "Alice In Wonderland." But what is more extraordinary is that he can "move without some dry leaf or stalk crackling to betray" him. Often in a beat in the middle of the hot season the inexperienced sportsman's heart is in his mouth as he hears the crushing of a dead leaf, the slow, stealthy tread of what seems some heavy animal, but it is only "mea," the peacock the first to move ahead of the beaters. Then after a period of strained watching, when the eye can and does detect the move of the tiniest bird, the quiver of a leaf, suddenly without a sound the great beast stands before you. He does not always care to move quietly, but when he does death is not more silent.

The question of how a white or otherwise abnormally marked tiger can take its prey is simplified by the fact that, as a general rule, the tiger kills at night or at dawn or dusk and that it is only the cattle killing tiger that takes his lordly toll of the village cattle by day. Again that wonderful voice, the most mournful sound in captivity, "which literally hushes the jungle and fills the twilight with horror," is a powerful aid to him in his hunting. Often as I have heard it the memory of one occasion is as vivid as the moment when it held me spellbound. I was stalking sambhur in the evening in a glade in the forest when suddenly, from not fifty yards above me, rang out a long, low, penetrating moan, which seemed to fill the jungle with a terrifying thrill and for a moment made the heart stand still. The native shikari, who, in spite of Mowgli's contempt, may know something of jungle ways, believes that the deer, hearing the tiger's voice and unable from the reverberating nature of the sound to locate the position of their enemy, stand or lie still and so give him the chance of stalking his prey. There is probably some truth in this, for unless you are following the tiger and have seen him it is almost impossible from the sound alone to tell with any certainty where he is. — Algernon Durand in London Times.

Harry Lauder's Bluff.

A pretty piece of "bluff" is attributed to Harry Lauder, the Scottish variety entertainer. During his first play in New York he was accused of stinginess. He heard that one journalist had severely commented on the manner in which he drew the purse strings. Not long afterward this man asked him for an interview. Lauder gave him an address and told him to come at 10 o'clock the following night. In the meantime the comedian rented a wretched room in the slum quarter of the city. When the caller came he was ushered into this garret. There sat Lauder, blue with cold, by the light of a single candle. "Arre ye goin' to put down what I say?" Lauder asked. The reporter assured him with pride that he never made notes during an interview. "My memory is excellent," he boasted. "Weel, then," said Lauder, 'we'll nye save the light!" And he blew out the candle.

Would Have Done the Same.

Rudyard Kipling undoubtedly got his wit from his maternal grandfather, Rev. George B. Macdonald, a Wesleyan clergyman.

It is related of this gentleman that, in the days when he was courting the lady whom he afterwards married, the fatehr-in-law-to-be—an aged Methodist with extremely strict notions in regard to the proprieties—was injudicious enough on one occasion to enter the parlor without giving any warning of his approach. The consequence was that he found the sweethearts occupying a single chair.

Deeply shocked by the spectacle, the old man solemnly said:

"Mr. Macdonald, when I was courting Mrs. Brown, she sat on one side of the room and I on the other."

Macdonald's reply was:

"That's what I should have done if I had been courting Mrs. Brown."

The Shirtless Poet.

Mr. Arthur Coleridge, speaking at the summer festival of the College for Working Women, Fitzroy street, London, at which the Bishop of London presided, related that the poet Coleridge once journeyed from Highgate to Holborn to visit a nephew, Sir Wm. H. Coleridge. It was very cold weather, and the poet had on a double-breasted waistcoat which met just below his neck. It was discovered that he had got no shirt. His nephew remonstrated with him, to which the poet replied: "I'm very sorry, William, very sorry; but I've forgotten my shirt." Upon this Sir William kindly lent his uncle a shirt, "and," said the speaker, "I regret to say that very necessary garment was never returned to its original owner."

Scotch Craft.

A drunken man was once lodged in the cell of a Scotch country police station, when he made a tremendous noise by kicking the cell door with his heavy hobnailed boots.

The constable who had charge of the police station, going to the cell door, opened it a little and said:

"Man, ye micht pit off yer baits, and I'll gie them a bit rub, so that ye'll be respectable like when ye come up afore the bailie the morn."

The prisoner, flattered at the request, at once complied and saw his mistake only when the constable shut the door upon him, saying coolly:

"Ye can kick awa' noo, my man, as lang as ye like."

Took Precautions.

"You ran into this man at thirty miles an hour and knocked him forty feet," said the court.

"That or a little better, I suppose," answered the chauffeur.

"Why didn't you slow down?"

"Mere precaution, your honor. Once I shut off speed and hit a man so gently that he was able to climb into the machine and give me a lickin'."

Tickling or dry Coughs will quickly loosen when using Dr. Shoop's Cough Remedy. And it is so thoroughly harmless, that Dr. Shoop tells mothers to use nothing else, even for very young babies. The wholesome green leaves and tender stems of a lung healing mountainous shrub give the curative properties to Dr. Shoop's Cough Cure. It calms the cough and heals the sensitive bronchial membranes. Woman's World

A GIFTED NOVELIST.

Home and Personality of the Author of "Red Horse Hill."

Sidney McCall (Mary McNeil Fenollosa), the author of "Red Horse Hill," etc., when scarcely more than a girl was living in another part of Japan when the late Lafcadio Hearn began his studies of that country. Independently she, too, was absorbing the mystic influences of beauty, and in a different form, that of verse, was shaping her impressions into concrete structure. A modest little volume of poems called "Out of the Nest" is thought by many of her friends to contain some of her finest work. Lafcadio Hearn, who later became one of her valued friends, was delighted with these poems. In her home in Tokyo, with its garden where grew pansies, magnolias and "moon flowers," Mrs. Fenollosa wrote her first novel, "Truth Dexter," a book which had a great success. "The Breath of the Gods" was the outcome of her impressions of the situation in Japan and Russia just before the crisis, but it was written after her return to America in the "big, low workroom of her southern home in Alabama, which looks out upon a garden where the blossoming cherry mingles its petals with those of the rose and the jasmine." Kobiuata, or little Sunshine bill, so called after the Japanese home, contains much that is best in beauty both of the east and west. Here also was written Mrs. Fenollosa's latest book, "Red Horse Hill."

Mrs. Fenollosa comes of an artistic family. Both her parents were writers. Her father, William Stoddard McNeil, was a poet of ability and a lover and keen student of nature. Mrs. Fenollosa's home life in Mobile has always been one of the units in a very close knit, large, devoted family group. "Truth Dexter" was in part an outcome of that homesickness which, while absent in Japan, she felt for the dearly loved home circle.

To her husband, the late Professor Ernest F. Fenollosa, well known in art circles as an authority on oriental art, Mrs. Fenollosa feels that she is deeply indebted for criticism, suggestion and constant encouragement, although in the matter of plot and actual writing she always works entirely alone. Their life together, both in Japan and in this country, was characterised by independent but absolutely congenial work and by harmony of interests and tastes.

In her latest book, "Red Horse Hill," Sidney McCall, as she prefers to sign herself, has furnished another American setting, that of a southern mill town. The conflict of human interests, a deep love motive that runs through four related lives among the characters of this story and the power for good or evil held in the hands of the controller of southern mills all bear a vital part in the drama.

Beauty in Dandelions and Milk.

If you want to be beautiful drink lots of dandelion tea and bathe in scented milk. Any one who consents to drink dandelion tea is entitled to immortal beauty as a small reward. Still the stuff may be made palatable by putting things in it. For instance, a dash of brandy may be added, but the tea is better for the skin without that alcoholic addition. Several cups a day must be taken for the first two months of summer and then one cup a day throughout the year. Scented milk for the skin is recommended by those who study beauty scientifically. The milk must be boiled and then a few drops of violet water added. The fluid must be rubbed into face, neck and arms thoroughly and permitted to dry. Then the rubbing must be renewed. To steam the face with hot milk makes it soft and white as an infant's.

For the Tea Table.

A favorite dainty for the tea table is salted wafers or round, thin water crackers covered with beaten white of egg through which have been mixed finely chopped English walnuts. The crackers are baked in a hot oven and served instead of small cakes.

Fought Under Nelson.

The name of James Hexton, who for seventy-six years has resided in Queensland, was among the list of old-age pensioners recently approved by the Home Secretary. Hexton is said to be the first white man born in Queensland, first seeing the light at the home of Dr. Hallow, whose residence stood on the site of the present Royal Navy, and fought under Nelson, and also had the honor of being the first pilot in Moreton Bay. He met his death by being taken by a shark.

QUINQUENNIAL ECHOES.

Toronto Ladies Still Talk of Their Strong-Minded Guests.

If the half were to be printed of what is being told about delegates to the Quinquennial Council in Toronto that town would not contain the writing thereof. There were adequate daily reports as to how the council occupied its business hours, but the private lives of its members while there is a subject which has been left to gossip, and some funny stories are gaining currency.

Some of the European visitors stopped at other points on their way to Toronto, and it is said that a Montreal family, returning to the city for a brief sojourn in their town house in preparation of their visit to the city, found entirely to their surprise, a prominent Teutonic delegate to the council occupying their house and bossing their servants. They deprecated her untimely arrival during their absence and the upset condition of the house, and assured her of their complete surprise. But their guest comforted her involuntary entertainers with the assurance of the great comfort of her entertainment, and her intention to remain until it was time to move on. Meeting later on in Toronto, the German lady was equally candid in informing the Montreal people that she was not being half so well entertained in the Queen City.

There is an old cricket story, which saw the light in the times when cricket matches never extended into the second day, about some Englishmen exiled to France, who desired to alleviate their homesickness by indulgence in the national game. They accepted a free lease from a wealthy landowner near the town of a generous portion of his pasture, and soon came to feel so much at home that their secretary wrote their benefactor requesting him to remove his cows from their cricket field. Some of the delegates must have been descended from these old cricketers.

A Toronto lady who bears a foreign name, but yields in loyal British sentiment to no one in the Empire, was called upon to entertain a lady from over the seas and one daughter. The expected guest asked the privilege of bringing another daughter, and eventually turned up with three daughters and a maid. No doubt the hospitable hostess, who has never winced under the hardships of synod time, began to understand why the quartering of soldiers used to be unpopular, and has ceased to be customary, especially when her enterprising guests turned her out of her own room.

Niagara's Age.

According to Mr. Spencer, of the Canadian Geological Survey, the great spectacle of Niagara Falls, as we see it to-day, has been about 30,000 years in the making. Mr. Spencer, in common with other geologists who have studied Niagara, believes that originally the cataract fell into Lake Ontario over three steps, or platforms, the first being 35 feet high, and the third being at or near the edge of the lake proper, instead of seven miles back up the river as at present. It took the stream 35,000 years to hollow out the first three miles of the gorge, but only 4,000 years for the other four miles. The difference of time in these two stages of the erosion, and of the cataract's recession of seven miles in all, is explained on the theory of a sudden and enormous increase of the volume of water, caused by seismic disturbance, or earthquake.

Formerly the Niagara River served as outlet to Lake Erie only. After the upheaval, the waters of Lakes Huron, Michigan, and Superior, which previously had debouched directly into Lake Ontario, were diverted into Lake Erie into the Niagara River, swelling that stream to six times its former volume. Mr. Spencer's figures, of course, can be taken only approximately, as even contemporary authorities are at variance as to how the Falls of Niagara have receded during the past fifty years—some estimates making it 1.38 metres per annum, others 1.83. Moreover, while the U.S. Geological Survey declares that the rate of recession of the Falls has increased during the last fifteen years, the corresponding Canadian official report shows that the rate has decreased some 66 centimetres per annum.

Elevators and Flour Mills.

The Department of the Interior has recently issued a map of that part of Canada lying west of the Great Lakes, showing the positions of grain elevators and flour and oatmeal mills, together with tables showing their individual and collective capacity. In the three provinces of Manitoba, Alberta, and Saskatchewan there are 699 grain elevators, with an aggregate capacity of 42,868,900 bushels. The terminal elevators at Lake Superior have a capacity of 20,159,700 bushels, and there are also transfer elevators at eastern points with a capacity of 14,886,000 bushels. Thus the total elevator capacity of Western Canada amounts to 78,016,140 bushels. Manitoba has 50 flour and oatmeal mills, with a daily capacity of 17,365 barrels; Saskatchewan has 25 mills, with a possible daily output of 3,365 barrels; while Alberta has 17 mills, with a possible daily output of 1,539 barrels.

Fish Freights.

In order to encourage the development of the Canadian fishing industry on the Pacific coast, where the bounty system prevailing in the Atlantic provinces does not obtain, the Dominion Government recently passed an Order-in-Council granting a bonus equal to a rebate of one-third of the express freight rates on all shipments of fish billed from Vancouver by Canadian fishing companies or Canadian fishermen to any point in Alberta, Saskatchewan, and Manitoba. This rebate or bonus applies to any variety of sea-fish caught in Canadian waters, including salmon, halibut, oysters, crabs, and clams.

Town Hall for Waifs.

Messrs. Trollope, of Victoria street, Westminster, London, have sold the premises in Kennington road, formerly used as the Lambeth Town Hall, to the Church of England Waifs and Strays Society.

Bernard Shaw's Next Play.

Bernard Shaw has written another play since "The Showing Up of Blanco Posnet," says The Nation. It is entitled "Press Cutting, Compiled From the Correspondence and Editorial Columns of the Daily Press," and consists of an ironical discussion of woman's suffrage and universal military service.

England's Oldest Barber Dead.

Allen Batchelor of Guildford, England, who was reputed to be England's oldest barber, died recently at the age of 88. He claimed to have been patronized by kings, dukes, bishops, judges, policemen, politicians, publicans, "and sinners no

HOW TO WIN.

Determination and Unity of Purpose Will Work Wonders.

Once you have chosen your occupation or profession hold fast thereto. Let nothing allure you from the main traveled road. Having chosen, hold like steel. Make everything feed into the main current of your life. Even modest talents, organized and unified, have conquered great distinction and worldwide success. History is full of illustrations of the unifying power of a great purpose. Witness the poor child Hastings looking at a distant manor house that once had belonged to his father. The determination to win back that estate before he died lent power and momentum and produced Lord Hastings. Witness the influence of purpose upon that little Scotch boy, out upon a holiday on the banks of the Clyde, with three precious coppers as his entire possession. He determined to build a house on the hilltop overlooking the river and forty years later moved into the castle, from which he looked down upon twenty ocean steamers he had built. Witness the purpose of William the Silent, filling all the days and nights for the hero struggling to deliver brave little Holland from Spain. Witness Milton's vow to write a poem that the world would not willingly let die and who therefore lived an epic life. Witness Paul's resolution to do one thing and one thing alone and who, with that unit purpose, achieved democracy for all subsequent peoples and centuries. Aimlessness will make your life like a sand heap.—Rev. Newell Dwight Hillis.

FULL OF HUMAN INTEREST.

Landscapes of the Dutch Painters of the Seventeenth Century.

The Dutch painters of the seventeenth century were as little concerned with poetic feeling as with idealism. They used their eyes and painted what they saw, but neither their imaginations nor their feelings were touched. While most modern painters interpret how the scene has affected themselves, the Dutch looked at it as something entirely outside themselves.

Otherwise the Dutch landscapes present us pictures of a pleasant workaday world or of the quiet evenings that follow after the labors of the day—never a hint of disturbance, though war and rumors of war were constant; instead, the perpetual suggestion of prosperous peace and thrifty comfort, for they abound with the evidences of busy humanity. Not only is nature brought into touch with human life by the little figures, so charmingly lifelike, which animate the scene, but everywhere are the results of man's handiwork seen in little things as well as big—in the trimly kept fruit trees of a laborer's garden plot no less than in the handsome facade of a rich burgher's town house. There is no country in the world where the influence of man is so minutely imprinted upon every foot of ground, and as these artists were eager to represent the things they saw so landscapes are so full of human interest as theirs.—Charles H. Coffin in St. Nicholas.

Her Home.

Some years ago, when a part of the Japanese imperial palace was burned at Tokyo, the empress was forced to flee to one of the old daimio houses near by. It was not at all comfortable, and, as the story goes, her majesty, appreciating that her subjects would be much concerned at her living in such a mean place, sat down and wrote them a little poem in which she denied that she had changed her residence. The poem, which was in the best Japanese language, stated that her majesty's home had always been in the hearts of the people and that neither the flames nor the cold could ever drive her from that dear abode.

The Dead Larks.

In Baluchistan even the wolves go mad. In his book, "The Frontiers of Baluchistan," G. P. Tate writes: "The shepherds give a strange reason for the epidemic of rabies. According to them, it was caused by the wild beasts eating dead larks. In some years, they said, the larks develop extraordinary vitality and pour forth such a flood of songs as they rise on the wing that they become suffocated and fall to the ground dead. A wild animal which eats one of those dead birds invariably develops rabies. This is a widespread superstition and seems not unfamiliar to the natives of India who were with me."

A Butchers' Common.

William, earl of Warren, in the time of King John, while standing upon the castle walls saw two bulls fighting in the castle meadow till all the butcher dogs pursued one of the maddened bulls quite through the town. The sight pleased the earl so much that he gave the castle meadows, where the duel of the bulls began, for a common to the butchers of the town, after the first grass was mowed, on condition that they should find a med bull the day six weeks before Christmas day for the continuance of that sport forever.—London Standard.

Fine Crops.

"Do you raise anything worth while in your garden?" said the visitor from the city.

"I should say so," answered Mr. Crosslots. "It's the best place for fishing worms in the entire village."

Plain Talk.

"I think she's double faced."

"Oh, don't say that! One face like hers is bad enough!"—Comic Cuts.

It's a pity when sick ones drug the stomach or stimulate the heart and Kidneys. That is all wrong! A weak Stomach means weak Stomach nerves, always. And this is also true of the Heart and Kidneys. The weak nerves are instead crying out for help. This explains why Dr. Scoop's Restorative is promptly helping the Stomach, Heart and Kidney ailment. The Restorative reaches out for the actual cause of these ailments—the failing "inside nerves." Anyway test the Restorative 48 hours. It won't cure so soon as that, but you will surely know that help is coming. Sold by all dealers.

TEACHING HORSES TO JUMP.

There Are Three Methods Used—Coaxing, Lunging and Driving.

There are three methods of teaching a horse to leap—coaxing, lunging and driving. In the coaxing method the young horse is turned into a small paddock having a low hedge or hurdle across the center in plain view of the pupil a rider on a veteran jumper should take him over the hurdle several times.

The trainer then goes to the opposite side with a measure of corn or oats and calls the horse, shaking up the grain and pouring it with his hand back and forth in the receptacle. The boundary will soon be cleared, and when a few mouthfuls have been eaten the station of the instructor should be at the other side of the hurdle and the lesson repeated. If this be done daily the hurdle may be gradually heightened.

The habit of jumping is thus acquired without those risks which attend a novel performance when a heavy burden oppresses the strength and whip and spur distract the attention. The horse's body, says Country Life in America, is not partially disabled by the imposition of a heavy load before the powers are taxed to the utmost and his capabilities are unfettered.

The second method is termed lunging. A long rein or cord is attached to the bit, and the animal is exercised in a circle in which a hurdle has been placed or a shallow ditch dug. A long lashed whip, used only to keep him in motion or lightly applied at the proper moment, will keep him up to his work. Soon the horse will enter into the spirit of the occasion and by unmistakable signs will manifest his enthusastic enjoyment of the exercise.

The third method, driving, is exactly what its name implies. At first the obstruction should be slight. Any open space will answer the purpose, as earth or sod surface or tanbark being preferable. Long reins, a straight bar or snaffle bit, a long whip and patience and perseverance are required.

All things considered, the driving method is the quickest and surest way of teaching the horse to leap. When he has become somewhat proficient, having thoroughly learned what is required of him, the saddle may be called into requisition and the practical lessons begun.

Almost any young horse can be taught to leap. Of course his proficiency will depend on the care bestowed on his training and on his general characteristics of wind, limb and nerve. An ordinary cob or Morgan will attain the proficiency of an Irish hunter, but any horse that is used for a saddler will be of far greater value to his owner if he can be taken occasionally for a cross country ride and put over ditches and low obstructions.

Ethics and Morality.

If a woman's husband has been silly enough to take more wine than is good for him, morality would lead her to send him to bed. Ethics would lead her to send him to Coventry. And ethology would probably lead her to send him to a penal settlement for inebriates.

If a man's wife throws a teapot at him (as happened recently in the aristocratic neighborhood in which I live) morality would lead him to go out of the house for an hour or so and give her nerves a chance. Ethics would probably induce him to go out of the town and write to her from a garden city that their temperaments were incompatible. What ethology would make him do I hardly dare to think.—Chesterton in Illustrated London News.

More Accurate.

The pastor and his wife had called upon a member of the congregation, a widow with a small but exceedingly lively boy, and were on their way home. "Well," said the preacher, "she seems to be a very intelligent woman anyhow."

"Yes."

"And very positive in expressing her opinions."

"On the contrary," said his wife, "she struck me as being strongly negative."

"Negative? How?"

"Everything she said to her little boy began with a 'Don't, Johnny!'"—Exchange.

Sympathy of the Flowers.

More or less credence is still given in England to the old belief in the sympathy of the vegetable kingdom for human suffering. "I prayed all night," writes a gardener whose employer was very sick, "and the flowers on my window sill drooped, and I said to myself they were dead. But toward morning they picked up, and I was sure enough the master was better. And the same thing had happened to the flowers I had sent to his bedroom. They were dying, and they came to life again. And I knew when those flowers picked up that the master was better."

The Pins.

"Oh, dear," sighed her husband's wife, "I can't find a pin anywhere. I wonder where all the pins go to anyway?"

"That's a difficult question to answer," replied his wife's husband, "because they are always pointed in one direction and headed in another."

Painter's Colic.

Mamma—What's the matter with Fido? Tommie—Oh, I was playing with my soldiers, and he came in and insisted upon licking the whole army.—Yonkers Statesman.

Take a rest. A field that has rested gives a beautiful crop.—Ovid.

Drive Rheumatism out of the blood with Dr. Shoop's Rheumatic Remedy and see how quickly pain will depart. Rub-ons never did reach the real disease. Rheumatism isn't in the skin. It's deep down—it's constitutional. Getting rid of the pain, is after all, what counts. That is why Dr. Shoop's Rheumatic Remedy goes by word of mouth from one to another. And herein lies the popularity of this Remedy. It is winning defenders everywhere. Tablets or Liquid. Sold by all dealers.

STUDYING ESQUIMAUX.

Government Will Make Further Investigations In North.

The Canadian Geological Survey, under the late Dr. G. M. Dawson, gathered from time to time a large amount of interesting and valuable information regarding the native races. Since the death of Dr. Dawson this portion of the work of the department has been allowed to languish, but this year a fresh start was made in a direction which cannot but prove to be of great historical and ethnological interest, as well as being of particular value in allowing the people of Canada to become better acquainted with their fellow citizens who occupy the vast frozen territory which forms our northern boundary.

The present subject of ethnological research by the department is the Esquimaux race; and it is deemed especially desirable that this work should be resumed amongst them just now, because their habits are rapidly changing and becoming more difficult for scientific study, as the white man penetrates the Far North.

The Esquimaux is perhaps by his natural gifts the most admirable of the native races of Canada. There are no more intelligent and kindly people than the Esquimaux of Northern Canada, and none that so readily respond to courtesy and good will; and yet they are probably the most misunderstood and misrepresented of all native races. The expedition which was fitted out last year for the study of the Esquimaux consists of Mr. V. Stefansson and Dr. R. M. Anderson. The undertaking is by no means a new task to Mr. Stefansson, as it is the second of a series of journeys he has planned to carry out within the next fifteen years, during which period he hopes to visit and study every Esquimaux settlement from East Cape, Siberia, to the east coast of Greenland and the shores of of Labrador.

The present journey is planned to cover two years, one of which Mr. Stefansson expects to spend between Cape Brown and Bathurst Inlet, Canada, the other on the Colville river, Alaska. He believes that near the mouth of the Coppermine river there is a group of Esquimaux who have never seen a white man; these he desires to study while as yet they are uncontaminated by white influence, and before "civilized" ways change their system of living.

Dynamited by Dog.

The news of a very remarkable accident at a mining camp at Hanging Stone Lake, near Gowganda, by which one man was killed and two injured, was brought to Montreal recently by Frederick Dunn, a resident of St. Johns, Quebec, who accompanied from Northern Ontario the remains of Andrew Dunn, the principal victim, for interment at his old home just outside that city.

Andrew Dunn and companions were dynamitting a vein. The fuse was ignited and the men ran, followed by Dunn's collie dog, which picked up the dynamite stick in his teeth. The explosion came just as the dog reached the cabin and dropped the exploaive.

Dunn was killed almost instantly, his skull being fractured in two places, and one of his arms and two ribs being broken. One of the other men, Sims, was stunned and badly cut about the neck, while the other miner, Hackett, escaped with a few bruises. The dog, which was the cause of the disaster, bounded away and escaped injury.

A Man of Weight.

People in many Ontario towns know Mr. Holland, of Whitby, who has done excellent work as grand organizer of the Sons of Temperance. Mr. Holland is a big man—not only big in achievement, but big in person. He related on one of his tours how he had gone into a certain place to be weighed, but as the scales went up to only two hundred and fifty pounds, he could not succeed.

One time he went to the little village of Port Robinson, where the lodge was presided over by a demure but droll Worthy Patriarch. After the customary preliminaries Mr. Holland was admitted, and as he made his ponderous way to the platform the halting Worthy Patriarch remarked dryly:

"Well! they told me Holland was coming, but I think it's all of Holland and part of Belgium."

She Didn't Go Back.

Miss Agnes Laut, whose address on "yellow journals" and how they may be got rid of, created such a stir at the International Congress of Women, has ever been noted as one with views of her own and with a courage of her convictions. In Winnipeg she is remembered as a delicate girl with definite opinions and an independent spirit that entirely belied her looks.

When Miss Laut left Winnipeg to try her fate in the big world of journalism and literature, there were not wanting those who predicted that she would soon be back at her desk in The Free Press office. Her first work was the reporting of the meetings of the Joint High Commission in Quebec, and in this she succeeded in a way that ranked her work with that of the ablest Ottawa and Washington correspondents. From that time her rise has been steady, and though she has several times visited Winnipeg, she has evinced no tendency to occupy her old desk.

The Moose.

The moose is the largest animal now existing of the deer family, standing often as high as six feet, and sometime weighing 1,200 pounds; but notwithstanding its great size, it is very fleet of foot. When brought to bay, a blow with its fore foot or horns is a very serious matter for the huntsman. Often when pursued by man they have their intelligence to thank for their escape, for sometimes, if closely followed, they double in their tracks and stand motionless in some thicket until the hunter has slipped by, when they quickly glide away. At other times they make such a commotion as to unnerve any but an experienced hunter, and thus escape.

URGE DESERTION.

Labor Leaders Want Soldiers to Desert.

London, Sept. 1.—Labor leaders of England are in attendance this week at the session of the International Trades Union in Paris. One of the principal events of the meeting was the organization of an international anti-militarist congress, which openly announces its purpose to "evolve some practical means for the promotion of desertion among the armies of all nations. What a [illegible]!" This un-patriotic [illegible] met with the opposition of the more conservative Labor leaders among them Mr. Gompers of America.

SUPERSTITIONS.

They Play at Times an Important Role in Human Affairs.

When Sir Charles Napier had conquered Mehemet Ali, he found it impossible to force or coax the wily Egyptian into signing the treaty which only would make his victory effective. He had nineteen interviews with Mehemet, in which the Englishman by turns argued, flattered and threatened his antagonist, who listened day after day with the same immovable, smiling countenance.

One day Sir Charles in speaking of England said casually that it "was governed by a lucky woman." A strange flash passed over the pasha's countenance, but he made no answer. As soon as Napier had gone Mehemet sent for the English consul, who was an Egyptian, and demanded:

"You were in London when the English queen was crowned. Were the omens bad or good?"

"All good."

"You think that good luck is written on her forehead?"

"I did not think upon the matter before, but now that you ask me I believe that it is. When she asked Allah to help her in her work, her eyes ran over. Allah loves the innocent."

"No doubt of that," said Mehemet anxiously. "She must be lucky."

Early the next morning he sent for Sir Charles and signed the treaty. English power and English cannon he could brave, but not "the luck" written upon the forehead of a good woman whom he had never seen.

General Gordon's remarkable influence over the Chinese was in a large degree due, it is stated, to their belief in his extraordinary luck. During the Taiping rebellion he was followed by an army which did not comprehend either his ability or his religious zeal, but which believed that he was protected by an invisible being who led them to victory. No sword could wound him or bullet kill. A certain black ebony cane which he carried was supposed to be the magic talisman which brought him victory, and General Gordon was shrewd enough always to carry this cane when he led them into battle.

These superstitions seem absurd to us, but they show that the ignorant men who hold them believe in an invisible power who can give good or ill fortune at his will.—London Truth.

MAN EATING TIGERS.

The Killing Methods of These Terrible Brutes in India.

The theory that a man eating tiger is always an old tiger, more or less toothless and feeble, which has found the strain of catching vigorous wild game too much for its failing strength, has been upset by the bagging of notorious man eaters which were found to be young animals in the full pride of their powers. And it is likely that the taste for human flesh is passed on from mother to child, the tigress, herself a man eater, teaching her cubs to hunt as she hunts. How terrible a thing a man eater may be can be judged from the fact that a tiger generally kills every second night, whether its quarry be man or beast. Having killed, it makes one meal that night, then drags the carcass somewhere into cover and more or less conceals it as a dog may hide a bone. On the next night its habit is to return to the same kill, and it is in that second visit that the hunter usually finds his opportunity. It is not the rule for a tiger to return again a third time, not because it is above eating carrion, but seemingly it tires of the carcass, which it has already twice mumbled over.

Three one tiger in India has been known to kill regularly its fifteen natives a month with almost mechanical punctuality. Another, which seemingly did not confine itself entirely to human flesh, devoured an average of eighty people, men and women, for several years, while yet another is reported to have killed 127 people and to have stopped traffic on a public road for many weeks. There have been both English sportsmen and native officials who have accounted for their hundred tigers and upward, but many a tiger has killed more human beings than any man has ever scared tigers.—London Times.

A Reasonable Request.

"Arabella," said old Billyuns as he finished his dinner, "I am going to ask you to do me a favor. I want you to give your young man—Mr.—Mr. Whatshisname—a message from me."

Arabella blushed and looked down at her plate.

"Tell him," the bluff old millionaire went on, "that I don't object to his staying here and running up my gas bills, but that I do objet to his carrying the morning paper away with him when he leaves."—London Answers.

Force of Habit.

"I'm surprised that you should be so interested in watching those silly dudes."

"Force of habit, I guess. I'm president of a real estate improvement company."

"Well?"

"Well, they're a vacant lot."

Lost and Found.

"Found a dollar yesterday."

"Lucky boy!"

"Not so lucky. In stooping to pick it up I dropped and broke my eyeglasses."

Runaway Team.

A team of horses belonging to J. E.A. Fitzgerald, pulled off a great stunt yesterday at noon, by getting away from the driver, who was delivering a load of wood. The animals were standing in a laneway of an Aylmer street residence when from some reason they became frightened and as a means of a short cut took across the lawn and galloped down Aylmer street to the stables. The driver, S. Meeks, was considerably bruised. Medical attention was found necessary.

Mr. A.F. Gooding of Kenora, and daughter, Miss Olive, arrived in the city last night to visit relatives.

Miss Ella Ray, one of the successful graduates of the Victoria Memorial Hospital, is spending a few weeks with her parents.

Rev. H. Edmison, Mrs. Edmison, and children of Kincardine, who have been visiting relatives in this vicinity, returned to their home yesterday morning.

Mr. F. D. McKay was in the city yesterday on his way home to Toronto, after spending a vacation at Stony Lake, the guest of Mr. W. G. Morrow.

The many friends of Mrs. Thos. Dale, who underwent an operation at Nicholls Hospital on Wednesday last will be pleased to learn that she is doing nicely.

Mrs. Stuart Druce of Port Perry, and Miss Ethel Blackwell of Glencoe., are visiting Mrs. H. L. Conway.

Miss Lillian Minorgan returned here Monday night from London, England, where she has spent the past two years.

Gregg Shorthand is the easiest to write and easiest to read of any system known. Take a course —day or night—at the Gibbon Business College. Opens Sept. 7th.

Mr. and Mrs. J. W. Flavelle, with Misses Mina of Toronto, and Clara were guests at the Oriental yesterday.

Mrs. T. Broderick and Miss Kathleen Broderick of London, are visiting Mrs. P. Downham, 417 Stewart street.

Miss Ida Shera and Miss Minnie Craig have returned from Stony Lake, where they were the guests of Mrs. Thos. Barrie.

Mr. and Mrs. Theorore L. Joy, of Brampton, are in the city, having been called here owing to the illness of Mrs. Joy's sister, Mrs. Alexander Dawson, Ashburnham.

Mrs. W. K. Harstone and Mrs. W. J. Green, have returned from "Rocklands" Stony Lake, where they spent a very pleasant week, guests of Mr. and Mrs. A. Mowat.

Misses L. Campbell and V. M. Jewell of Toronto, arrived yesterday to take charge of the sales and workrooms of A. W. Cressman's millinery parlor. Miss Campbell recently returned from New York, where she spent some time among the large millinery houses.

Mr. J.J. Sheehy of Chicago, who has been pleasantly holidaying in Peterborough for a few weeks, leaves this morning to return to the Windy City. He cannot be said to be thoroughly acclimatized, for he is not the least bit windy, though he is generally breezy as ever, and finds that he can breathe the pure air of Peterborough more comfortably than that of Chicago.

Captain Mills and Lieutenant Higgins were in Perth Tuesday making arrangements for the visit of the 57 on the occasion of its annual outing to that town, Sept. 4-6th. They found conditions much to their liking and the citizens anxious to do all in their power to make the visit of the regiment pleasant. The delights of the beautiful Rideau lakes, and of the Pay Canal will be available, and the Perth people will, in a general way, open their arms to the visiting warriors. They have very pleasant recollections of the visit of the regiment about fifteen years ago, and are glad to welcome them again. The Bugle Band is preparing to revive an elaborate cooks' parade for the occasion, and all the regiment is looking forward to a delightful holiday jaunt.

The Sewing Machine.

The invention of the sewing machine is one of the most interesting evolutionary romances in the history of human progress. Stone, Henderson and Greenough had experimented extensively with the double pincher idea, one to seize the needle below and one above. Hellmann used a double pointed needle, with the eye in the center, and Thimmonier and Ferrand had invented a chain stitch machine. In 1834 Walter Hunt originated the extension arm idea with a needle similar to the one now in general use, but before he applied for his patent in 1854 he had been forestalled by Elias Howe, who will always be known as the inventor of the sewing machine. If Hunt had not been so great a laggard he might have won fame as an inventor, but Howe is entitled to all the credit that has been given him. Like all great inventions, however, the sewing machine was the product of many minds.

Throwing the Shoe.

The peasants of southern France have the credit of originating the familiar custom of throwing an old shoe after the newly wedded pair. It was, moreover, the rejected suitor who first made it popular. The peasant bride is conducted by her friends to her new home, while the young husband is made to halt a couple of hundred yards from the house. If there is a rejected suitor he then arms himself with an old wooden shoe and flings it, with his best aim, at the bridegroom as he makes a dash for the house. When the shoe is thrown it is understood that the last feeling of ill will has been flung away with it.

An Easy One.

Billfuss—If I had $3 and you asked me to lend you two, how much would I have left? Jubb—Oh, I know the answer to that. You would still have $3 left, granting it were possible that you ever had that much at one time, because you wouldn't lend me any. Ask me something probable.—Path finder.

One on Papa.

Caller—Harold, when you get to be the head of a family what will you say to your children when they are naughty? Harold—Oh, I'll do like papa. I'll tell them how good I was when I was a kid.

Cheap Living.

She—I'm living on brown bread and water to improve my complexion. He—How long can you keep it up? She—Oh, indefinitely, I guess. He—Then let's get married.

Result of Rashness.

"Out of a job, are you?" asked the first girl. "Boss catch you flirting?"
"No; I caught the boss. Say, what sort of a wedding dress do you think is real swell?"

Truly this world can go on without us. If we would but think so.—Longfellow

Manufacturers' Com. Recommend Granting 30-Year Franchise

The Manufacturers' Committee met again last night and accepted the agreement as drafted by the city solicitor between the Peterborough Light & Power Company and the city for a thirty-year franchise. Mr. J. H. Larmonth was present, and so far as he personally is concerned the agreement is satisfactory He took a copy of it and will submit it to the company's local solicitor. Then the council must consider it and if satisfied they will give it two readings and submit it to the people.

The application of the company has been a big proposition and the aldermen realized that from the first. The Manufacturers' Committee was instructed to handle the details and when they got down to business they drove a pretty hard bargain. They have gained many concessions for thecity and have everything to gain with nothing to lose, and the ratepayers will do well to accept it when the occasion to vote on it isafforded.

Poultry Association Getting Ready for Fair and Winter Show

The regular monthly meeting of the Peterborough Poultry Association was held in their rooms with President Paxman in the chair last night. A full house was present. The members are more enthusiastic than ever over the prospects faor the future and they took a lively part in the meeting.

The secretary was absence owing to illness which has confined him to the hospital, and Mr. Wm. Collins was appointed pro tem.

The association has decided to build some 300 extra coops for next winter's show.

Messrs. Baptie and Kelly were appointed delegates to attend the annual meeting of the Poultry Association in the Agricultural Building at Toronto Exhibition on September 7th.

President R. H. Leary of the Agricultural Society was present and addressed the meeting. The society wished to arrange for the use of the poultrymen's coops for the fall fair. This request was granted as both societies are working in harmony

FAT TURKEY PRIZE.

A special feature for this winter's show which will be held from Jan. 4th to 6th, will be a $10 prize for the best dressed turkey of 1909 hatch. The prize will be awarded as follows:—1st, $6; 2nd, $3; 3rd, $1. This is something extra special for the farmer's wife, who will no doubt take special interest in fattening one or two extra fine turkeys for this competition.

All the members are getting their prize birds in shape for exhibition at the Agricultural Fair on the 16th, 17th and 18th. The poultry exhibit will be the largest on record and the birds will be the best ever shown here.

A PLENARY INDULGENCE.

To All Who Pray for the Extirpation of Heresy.

The following will be of interest to The Times' Roman Catholic readers. It is taken from the Catholic Register of Thursday, September 2, 1909

PIUS PP. X.

To all the faithful in Christ to whom these present letters come, Health and the Apostolic Benediction.—

Our Venerable Brother Donatus Sbarreti, Archbishop of Ephesus, and Apostolic Delegate to Canada, having informed us that on the nineteenth and following days of the month of September the First Plenary Council of the Canadian Bishops is to be convoked in the Metropolitan church of Quebec and presided over by him; this auspicious event appeals to us as worthy of the opening of the heavenly treasures confided to the Roman Pontiff by the Most High. We, therefore,agreeing to the pious wishes of those who gap to the pious wishes of those who gave spiritual food to a Christian people, inasmuch as becometh, by the mercy of the All-powerful God and the authority of the Blessed Apostles Peter and Paul, grant and concede once to each and every one of the faithful of both sexes confided to their care, who whatever time during the council they may elect, and having confessed their sins and strengthened themselves with the Bread of Angles visit the Metropolitan Church of Quebec which we have mentioned already or any other parish church in Canada, and there pray for the Concord of Christian Princes, the Extirpation of Heresy, the conversion of sinners and the Exultation of Holy Mother Church —on that day—a Plenary Indulgence and remission of all their sins, applicable also to the Souls in Purgatory, who in the Peace of God have departed this life. We also desire that a copy of these letters bearing the sign manual of some notary public and the seal of a person vested with ecclesiastical dignity, have the same authority as would be accorded to those presents if exhibited and shown.

Given at Rome, at St. Peter's,under the seal of the Fisherman, this 19th day of July, 1909, and in the sixth year of our Pontification.

Secretary ofState.

OBITUARY

ETHEL ROBERTS.

At 3.45 o'clock yesterday afternoon there passed away at the residence of her father, 496 Stewart St. another noble daughter of the Anglican Church, in the person of Miss Ethel S. Roberts, youngest daughter of Mr. and Mrs. W. H. Roberts, at the age of 23 years, and seven months.

Twice with but a week and one day in the interval, has the grim reaper visited the same household, an elder sister having predeceased her on Wednesday of last week, and thrice and yet a fourth time has this grief-stricken family been called upon to mourn the loss of a beloved one within a few short months. In June of this year an older brother passed to his rest. After a lengthy illness outliving by but a few months his second son, a lad of about six years, whom it will be remembered was drowned in the creek near his home.

These sad occurrences, sorrowful enough considered separately, follow ing each other in such rapid succession makes for the bereaved parents and remaining brothers, a sad time indeed.

The deceased young girl was of a bright and cheerful disposition combined with a genuine Christian character and was beloved by a large circle of friends, who will miss her cheery ways. She was a member of St. John's Church, where she was a constant communicant and regular attendant at the Sunday school and Young People's Society.

She leaves to mourn her demise, besides her parents, three brothers, A. G., of Windsor; Harry, of Penetanguishene, and William H., of this city.

The funeral will take place on Saturday afternoon from St. John's church at 2.30 to the Little Lake cemetery; the services at the home being private.

COLD CURING ROOMS.

Improvements to Buckhorn Cheese Factory Being Made.

The Buckhorn cheese factory,which is one of the model factories in Eastern Ontario, is undergoing further improvement which includes a new and modern cool curing room. Work is going on in this connection now, and A.J. Gillespie and Mr. Barr of the Dairy Department, at Ottawa, visited the factory yesterday and inspected the premises.

A LARGE LIST.

Kingston Has Over 100 on Indian List.

Kingston, Sept. 3.—There are now over 100 names on the list of men and women who are prohibited from being served liquor in city bars.Some of these have voluntarily asked to be put among the "indians", they want to avoid temptation. Other work all sports of schemes to get a drop, but their friends are careful for heavy fines can be imposed upon those who serve them drinks.

Large Crowds Visit the Fire Hall Nightly

The nightly drill of the fire department attracts quite a number of people every evening. The drill takes place at 8 o'clock sharp and consists of the horses running out to the trucks and the hitch-up. This is done two or three times and as a result the horses are becoming very proficent. As a matter of fact Peterborough's fire department can get away as fast as any department in the province. The hitch-up is done so fast that the men have to jump lively or they will miss the rigs and have to run to the fire. The citizensand the council may well feel proud of their fire fighting department. The city has a first-class chief, and he has gathered around him a splendid lot of men who are well drilled and who are taking a keen interest in the work. The fire fighting apparatus is also modern and up-to-date. There are a number of things needed and these will be added from time to time as the Fire,Water & Light Committee can afford the expense. One of the chief features is the splendid condition in which the hall is kept, "Cleanliness and proficiency," is the motto of the fire department.

SMALL FIRE

A fire broke out at the G. Walter Green foundry yesterday afternoon between 4.30 and 4.45. A spark from the cubalo ignited the roof on the pattern shop, and a good blaze was underway when discovered. An alarm was sent to the fire department, and in the meantime the employes formed a bucket brigade from the creek flowing past the property and did splendid work. They had the fire under control when the brigade got there. The damage was very slight.

Lord Rosebery, the one-time Liberal leader, who has been heard of but seldom recently. He has undergone a change of mind since the budget was introduced, and has caused a sensation recently by announcing his intention to address an anti-budget meeting.

Dr. Cook Tells Thrilling Story of His Dash to the North Pole

At the Shetland Islands on His Way Home, the Famous American Explorer Relates the Details of the Trip Over Ice in a Temperature 89 Degress Below Zero

"After a prolonged fight with famine and frosts we have at last succeeded in reaching the pole. A new highway, with an interesting strip of animated nature, has been explored and big game haunts located, which will delight sportsmen and extend the Eskimo horizon.

"Land has been discovered which rests earth's northernmost rocks. A triangle of 30,000 square miles has been cut out of the terrestial unknown."

"Reached North Pole April 21, 1908.
"Discovered land far north.
"Returned to Copenhagen by Steamer Hansegede.

"(Sgd.) Frederick Cook."

Paris, Sept. 2.—A Paris newspaper prints this morning an extended account of Dr. Cook's dash to the Pole, as given by him to the Danish counsel at Lerwick, Shetland Islands.

Dr. Cook says that through his journey of exploration, which has resulted in the discovery of the Pole, he has thrown open practically 30,000 square miles of hitherto unknown land to the knowledge of men, and that a new land, with interesting flora and fauna inhabiting it, has come onder his observation.

The yacht John R. Bradley reached Etah, on the western coast of Greenland, late in August, 1907. Through the courtesy of the owner, Mr. Bradley Cook was supplied suitably, and that together with his own outfit of scientific instruments and provisions, made an amount sufficient to warrant an attempt at a swift dash northward.

NATIVES ASSISTED.

At Annotak, twenty miles north of Etah, where the expedition's supplies were landed, there was an extensive Eskimo settlement of upwards of two hundred and fifty natives, and these all seemed friendly and willing to assist the explorer in the work of landing supplies and setting up a permanent house made of stone and packing boxes. The Eskimo village was overrun with huskies of the finest breed and stamina —good pullers, and just the kind of dog that Cook wished to use on his hurried dash northward.

Plans were laid to spenh the major part of the long winter in the station at Annotak, and then in the early spring to lay a route over Grinnel Land, on the western side of Smith Sound, and northward along the western coast of Grinnel Land, out on to the Polar Sea. Soon after the long Arctic night settled down upon the explorer and his party of Eskimos at Annatok scouting parties were sent out to the westward across the frozen Smith Sound to seek game trails and to bring in fresh meat. Their progress was greatly hindered by a succession of fierce storms, and the object of their expedition was only half fulfilled.

THE SUN APPEARS.

On February 19, 1908, the sun rose for the first time in months, and on that day, with augury of success, the expedition mace its start

LORD LANSDOWNE.

He is the leader of the British House of Lords, and was at first emphatic in his denunciation of Mr. Lloyd-George's famous budget. Since he has seen that the common people rather fancy the budget than otherwise, however, he has been a little less demonstrative in his opposition, although no less determined.

The City Lawn Tennis Championship Decided, Mr. Kerr the Winner

The Peterborough city championship for the gentlemen's singles in lawn tennis was decided last evening on the splendid new court of the Peterborough Bowling Club,who are to be congratulated on their enterprise in having provided for the lovers of the premier summer pastime of lawn tennis, which has made great strides here during the last few years. The two finalists Messrs Kerr and Rudolph had vanquished all comers in previous rounds. So a good game was expected and the four sets played were brimful of interest from start to finish.

The match was taken charge of by Mr. R. J. Devey, president of St. John's A.Y.P.A. Tennis Club, and he was assisted on the lines by Mr. W. L. Richardson and Mr. Chas. Crossey. The second and third games in the first set were hotly contested, deuce being called eight times, but Mr. Kerr's experienced playing enabled him to claim the set by 6—3.

Game two in the 2nd set had deuce called 6 times. In game one Rudolph secured two aces running, one in game three and gave no less than four and three aces. In game four Kerr drew away, and after being 1—3, secured the second set 6—3. The third set was startling for Rudolph ran right away, winning by 6—3. The fourth set opened by Kerr taking the first three games to love. Rudolph replied by annexing the next two, but Kerr came again, and after five deuces in the last claimed the game and winning set by 6—2.

We heartily congratulate Mr. F. D. Kerr in winning the city championship and equally commend his opponent Mr. Rudolph, who played good tennis, and with youth on his side gave the winner many an anxious time.

Scores: 6—3, 6—3, 0—6, 6—2.

A good number of tennis enthusiasts were present, and it is safe to assume that this year's tennis has greatly improved, and the City Lawn Tennis Association is to be thanked for this improvement. Mr. F. D. Kerr played for the Golf Club, and Mr. Rudolph for St. John's A.Y.P.A. Club.

SERVICES APPRECIATED.

Peterborough Cereal Company Send $10 to Fire Department.

Fire Chief Howard has received the following letter from Mr. J. W. Meyers, managing director of the Peterborough Ceral Company in connection with the services rendered by the brigade at the recent fire at the company's mill:

W. A. Howard,
Chief Fire Department, City:

Dear Sir,— During your absence from the city, attending the Firemen's Convention at Grand Rapids, we had occasion to summon the Fire Brigade to a fire at our mill on Simcoe street, and we wish to thank the firemen for the quick response to the call, and also for the efficient service rendered after their arrival.

Your men are apparently so well drilled that the work appears easy for them. In this you are to be commended.

We trust that the firemen will be equally successful in the future. You will please find enclosed a check for $10. Kindly apply to the Firemen's Fund with our best wishes.

Yours truly,

ADVERTISE IN THE TIMES.

Grenfell Mission Boat Lost with All on Board

St. John's Nfld., Sept. 2.— Last evening the inspector-general of police received a message from St. Anthony saying that the steamer Prospero, Capt. Kean, brought news of the supposed wreck of a steam yacht from New York, near the entrance to St. Anthony.

It is believed that all on board perished.

It is supposed to be the yacht that was given Dr. Grenfell for missionarypurposes,

A fishing boat hauled up a new log hne and got it buoyed near the scene to mark the spot where the ship went down.

Further news is expected on the arrival of the Prospero on Friday.

STUDENTS ON THE BOAT.

New York, N.Y., Sept. 2.— The Andrew J. McCosh, a memorial to Dr. Andrew J. McCosh of Princeton, left New York last June to be used by Dr. Wilfred T. Grenfell as an emergency hospital boat on the Labrador coast. The yawl is fitted up with an auxiliary engine, but it was the intention to have her proceed under canvas whenever it was possible.

Japan Again Startles The United States

New York American Sounds a Note of Warning and Suggests "Naval Move On."

Preparing for Titanic Conflict

New York, 3.—The American in referring to the report that the Japanese have decided to build cruisers of 36,000 tons says: "The size of the projected cruisers is so great as to amaze the universal public and to raise a question as to accuracy of the report for the great English Dreadnoughts is 17,970 tons displacement and super-Dreadnought is only 19,500 tons. But, on the other hand, the ocean steamship Mauretania has 45,000 tons displacement, which makes it possible, and it is by no means out of line with the Japanese ambition and energy to endeavor in one leap to surpass all nations in greatness and power of its battleships.

"Whether it be more lavish investment of county capital or a serious purpose of "preparedness toward the inevitable and Titanic conflict with Japan's natural and formidable commercial rival in the Pacific, the fact obtrudes itself upon even the dullest intelligence that the first thing we know is that the despised nation will have as great or greater a navy than the United States. When Japan leaps to 36,000 ton battleships it is high time that American was getting a naval move on her."

SIR EDWARD CLOUSTON.

The genial President of the Bank of Montreal, has no doubt whatever about the crop, which he says is going to be a record breaker.And he doesn't talk without knowing either, for he took a trip through the West before giving his opinions to the papers, which is more than some other prophets do.

WORMY BASS.

Were Always Wormy in Kawartha Waters in This Locality.

Regarding the statement that the bass in the river and lake are particularly wormy this year, and have been during the past few years, a gentleman well acquainted with the waters of this county, having fished in them since boyhood, states that they are no worse than 18 years ago or any time within those years. He states that he has found no change in the condition, which has always caused fishermen considerable disapuointment. Whether the bass are more wormy than heretofore, is another question, but it is a fact that for years they have been practically the same as now, in spite of the statement that it is of only recent years that the condition of the bass has been particularly noticed. He holds that the fish of the upper lakes have been the same as those of the Otonabee and Rice Lake, and there has been no difference in any of the waters of this county, as far as his experience vouchesfor.

Horse's Leg Swelled

Animal Was Too Sore and Lame to Work—Quickly Cured by Nerviline.

"I have had a long experience in treating horses, and I can safely say that I know of no liniment for strains, sprains, and swelling that is so useful around the stable as Nerviline." Thus writes Mr. Joshua E. Murchison, from his home, Crofts Hill P. O. I had a fine young mare that wrenched her right fare leg, and from the shoulder down she was stiff sore and swollen. I applied Nerviline and it worked like a charm; in fact, that mare was in shape to work a day after I used Nerviline.

NERVILINE IS A TRUSTY LINIMENT

"We have used Nerviline on our farm for twenty-five years and never found it wanting. For man or beast it is a wonderful liniment."

We have received nearly five thousand letters recommending Nerviline as a general household liniment, as an allround cure for aches anh pains. One million bottles used each year. Try it yourself. Large 25c. bottles of Nerviline, five for $1.00. All dealers or The Catharrhozone Company, Kingston, Ont. 16

CANADA'S MERCANTILE MARINE

Recent statistics indicate that Canada's mercantile marine is on the decline. Thirty years ago Canada had a fleet of 7,471 vessels with a net tonnage of 1,332,094. Last year the Canadian fleet numbered 7,602 but the tonnage had dropped to 702-324. The total number of vessels remaining on the register books of the Dominion on December 31st, 1908, was 7,602. measuring 702,324 tons, being an increase of 74 vessels and 3,636 tons as compared with 1907. The number of steamers on the register books on the same date was 3,-084, with a gross tonnage of 483,-031 tons. Assuming the average value to be $30 per ton, the value of the registered tonnage of Canada on December 31, 1908, 1908, would be $21,069,720. The number of new vessels built and registered in the Dominion during the last year was 304, measuring 28,983 tons register, which estimated at $45 per ton, gives a total value of $1,304,235 for new vessels other Provinces in the number of her fleet, the total being 2,052, with a total net tonnage of 164,919. Included in these are 236 steamers with a gross tonnage of 31,153. Ontario has a smaller fleet but a larger tonnage having 2,098 registered vessels of 192,970 tons. Of these, 1,474 are steamers measuring 187,264 tons gross.

The decline of wooden vessels has, of course, much to do with the falling off in Canada's mercantile marine, and that the trade of the country has not fallen off, but has enormously increased, is shown by the figures sent out from time to time by the Department of Customs.

AWAKENING OF SIBERIA.

In the Journal of the Canadian Bankers Association recently appeared an article by Mr. Alan Lethbridge upon the awakening of Siberia and the resultant Canadian opportunities Canada, he contends, through the proximity of Vladivostock, the harbour of Siberia, which is practically the same distance from Vancouver as Yokohama should be able to supply easily and economically a great proportion of the imported goods. Machinery, including agricultural is admitted duty free. Canadian agricultural machinery is already in active competition with German and United States machines in Western Siberia,, though the latter companies have made a strong bid to capture the market through granting more extensive credit facilities. The population has increased from 315,900 in 1905 to 526,400 in 1908. There is a steady demand continues the writer, for portable engines, boilers, pumps, wire rope, lumbering and saw-mill machinery, belting, packing etc., is all of which Canada could compete if it were possible to meet German and United States prices. Although a heavy tariff will do much to crush the trade in flour, the demand for canned meats and fruit will create a market, duty or no. Condensed milk like an enormous consumption. It would thus appear that a very large market is being built up across the Pacific, in which Canadian enterprise should reap satisfactory returns.

MAN'S ENEMIES.

The Small Foes Are the Most Deadly and Destructive.

In one of Herbert Wells' brilliant stories the terribly scientific and practically invincible Martians who have invaded the earth and conquered England are stopped in the midst of their victories and utterly destroyed by the attacks of microscopic foes. Infinitely small organisms, germs of diseases to which man has become in some degree immune, slay the wonderful warriors of a planet never invaded by these earth foes What the greatest battleships and the heaviest guns could not do the unseen and unknown living seeds of death accomplish.

More clearly every day the world understands that in the life and affairs of mankind the most deadly and destructive foes are extremely small. All of the fierce mammals and poisonous serpents of Africa do not kill as many human beings in ten years as the tsetse fly slays in one. The tigers and cobras of India kill their thousands every year, but the rats which spread the germs of the bubonic plague destroy their tens of thousands In this country the common housefly undoubtedly causes more deaths than all the venomous snakes, wild beasts, mad dogs, runaway horses and ill tempered bulls ten times over. The actual proportion is probably much higher than ten to one.

MAN AND MONKEY.

Difference Between the Human and Animal Method of Thought.

The difference between the animal and the human idea of what constitutes "knowing" comes out nicely in a piece of work done at Clark university—A. J. Kinnman's study of rhesus monkeys, the Bandar-log of the "Jungle Book."

The monkey, following the usual procedure, learned to get his food from a box, the lid of which fastened with a key The key, however, could not be withdrawn from the lock After the monkey had become familiar with the device and could operate it as readily as a man could do the experimenter took the key out of the lock and laid it on the floor in front of the box. The monkey picked up the key, played with it, but made no attempt to use it. Then the experimenter took up the key, and, fifty times in succession, with the monkey two feet away watching every motion, he unlocked the box The monkey would have starved before he imitated that simple act. He had learned to open the box by making certain movements. He had no idea of the key as an instrument in the process. We sometimes think instruments and means and causes. The animal thinks largely motions.—E. T. Bronston in McClure's Magazine.

A Rare Opportunity.

When the circus came to Bushby the large attendance was a surprise to Squire Bemis, and he said so to William Hamlin, the postmaster.

"It is natural that men and children should wish to go," remarked the squire in his formal tone, "but I must confess to a feeling of amazement on hearing that the ladies of the town had flocked to see wild beasts and that young woman who leaps from one wire to another, with no regard for her personal safety."

"Tell you just how 'tis, square," said Mr. Hamlin confidentially. "I don't think many of the women folks planned to go till Jed Potter came in here one mail time and told Miss Emma Bolles he understood the show was enough to scare anybody out of ten years' growth.

"Miss Emma's getting on, and you couldn't expect her to let a chance like that go—nor any of the other women, now, could ye?"

Keep Your Temper.

Which of all the domestic virtues is most essential to a happy married life? The ability to keep one's temper, beyond all question.

There is nothing which leads more to misery, not only for its possessor, but also for those about him, than an ungovernable and unreasonable temper. No one is worse to live with than an ill tempered man, except perhaps an ill tempered woman.

Bad tempered people completely spoil the lives of those who associate with them. The feeling of strain is ever present. One never knows just when the storm will break, although apparently the weather, metaphorically, is "set fair." Life in these circumstances becomes a burden almost beyond bearing.

Caught Her.

"I am looking for something nice for a young man," said the young and pretty shopper.

"Why don't you look in the mirror?" asked the gallant clerk.

And she was so flustered that he managed to sell her four different things that she did not want before she knew what she was doing.

Misgivings.

"That was a very lucid document you prepared,' said the friend

"Yes," answered the statesman dubiously. "I made it so lucid that I am afraid the public will fail to regard it as able and profound."

ADVERTISE IN THE TIMES.

Widows' Caps.

Widows' caps are as old as the days of Julius Cæsar. An edict of Tiberius commanded all widows to wear one under the penalty of a heavy fine and imprisonment.

Shooting Flying Birds.

In Smith's "History of Kerry," published in 1754, is found the statement that the art of shooting flying birds was taught to the Irish people by the French refugees who came over after the revocation of the edict of Nantes and that to this circumstance is due the decline and disappearance of falconry.

Bicycles.

The first bicycle with pedals was made about 1840.

St. Paul's, New York.

The oldest public building in New York is St. Paul's chapel, at the corner of Broadway and Fulton street. It was built in 1766, ten years before the Declaration of Independence.

A Nincompoop.

A nincompoop was originally a person of unsound mind (non compos mentis).

England Is Exclusive.

The Victoria cross has never been awarded to a woman. It is not designed for female decoration. In Germany heroines are decorated with the iron cross and in France with the Legion of Honor.

Land and Water.

There is three times as much sea as land in the world.

Hats Were Once a Luxury.

In the reign of Elizabeth the wearing of hats was considered a sign of luxury. By an act of parliament every person above the age of seven years and under a certain degree was obliged on Sundays and holidays to wear a woolen cap made in England and finished by some of the fraternity of cappers.

Icebergs.

For every cubic foot of an iceberg that is above the surface of the water there are eight cubic feet below.

Personal Taxes in Holland.

There are five kinds of personal taxes levied in Holland, as follows: Government tax, including business and income tax, and capital tax, city income tax and provincial tax.

Haydn's Drum.

The drum which Haydn once played at a festival in 1740 is still preserved in Hamburg.

The Boomerang.

The Australian aborigines are not the only users of the boomerang, nor were they the first to use that missile. The Egyptians knew all about it, just as they seem to have known all about everything else.

The Gravitation Theory.

The theory of gravitation is a discovery attributed to Newton and bears date of 1687 notwithstanding that the same idea was advanced by Kepler seventy years before.

Great Britain's Crown.

The present crown of Great Britain was constructed in 1806 with jewels taken from old crowns and others furnished by command of the queen. It contains 4 large pear shaped pearls, 273 small pearls, 147 table diamonds, 1,273 rose diamonds, 1,363 brilliant diamonds, 5 rubies, 11 emeralds and 17 sapphires.

A Dutch Custom.

A piece of white muslin tied round the bell handle of a house in Holland informs intending visitors that a case of infectious disease is in the dwelling.

The Shape of the Earth.

That the earth is round was not a generally accepted theory in the time of Columbus, though Thales taught and Pythagoras demonstrated the theory several centuries before the Christian era.

South African Winter.

The South African winter begins toward the end of April and lasts until September.

Parepa Rosa's Voice.

At the peace jubilee in Boston, 1869, Mme. Parepa Rosa's voice was distinguishable above 12,000 singers, an orchestra of over 1,000 instruments and in a hall where the audience consisted of 40,000 people.

Uninhabited Islands.

Between Madagascar and the coast of India there are about 16,000 islands, only 600 of which are inhabited, but most of which are capable of supporting population.

Korean Grass.

The Korean grass used in the manufacture of grasscloth is grown very thickly and is usually cut the second or third year after planting the roots. The grass reaches a height of four to five feet and with a proper start and under favorable conditions yields, it is roughly estimated, about 2,000 pounds to an acre.

Mexican Postal Law.

The Mexican postal law does not require the postal department to deliver mail addressed to a city on which the name of the state also does not appear.

A Rough Diamond.

An uncut diamond looks very much like a bit of the best rum a man.

MAN'S INHUMANITY.

2,000 Persons Tried to Rush Suffragettes.

London, Sept. 2.— Three Suffragettes from London visited Heathtown last evening, and addressed a meeting in the town hall. In the course of the addresses an angry crowd of some 3000 persons collected outside the hall, with the avowed purpose of rushing the Suffragettes when they appeared after the meeting. The police, however, not wishing to have the public peace disturbed, managed to escort the women safely from the hall to the railway followed by the jeering crowd. Many ugly rushes were attempted on the way back, but the police succeeded in repelling them.

At the police station the crowd collected, and besieged the building for two hours, trying every means to force the doors. After a long siege the police managed to get the Suffragettes safely aboard. the midnight train for London, where they arrived unhurt, but badly frightened.

9,000 Shares 7 Per Cent Cumulative Preferred Stock ($10 a Share) Offered at Par with 40 Per Cent Immediate Bonus of Common Stock. We Reserve the Right to Withdraw Offer Without Notice and to Return any Subscription Received Too Late. Previous Offerings Were Immediately Oversubscribed.

MORE THAN A THOUSAND BANK OFFICERS, LAWYERS, PHYSICIANS, MINISTERS, BUSINESS MEN AND OTHERS HAVE BECOME STOCKHOLDERS IN THE CIRCLE PUBLISHING COMPANY WITHIN THE PAST FEW MONTHS.

Presidents and Cashiers of Banks, Presidents and other officers of Insurance Companies and of prominent business concerns who are thoroughly qualified to pass upon the soundness of such a proposition have comended the investment and have put their own money into it.

Many leading Physicians, Ministers and Educators in all the big cities of the United States and several in Europe have very highly endorsed THE CIRCLE MAGAZINE and THE CIRCLE PUBLISHING COMPANY, and have been glad to become part owners in the enterprise.

These men, and a good many splendid women, also, have known THE CIRCLE for several years and have watched it grow better and stronger constantly. They know what a sterling good property it is; they know that it is founded on a plan that ought to success, and they know that it is held always true to that plan; they know from personal experience that its business methods are good, careful, and conservative, yet aggressive and successful; they are convinced, therefore, that there is a large and very profitable career ahead of THE CIRCLE PUBLISHING COMPANY. For these reasons they have been glad of a chance to get some of its stock.

Twice we offered by letter, without any blow of trumpets, Five Thousand Shares of our Cumulative Seven Per Cent, Preferred Stock for subscription. Each time the Five Thousand Shares were promptly over-subscribed before we could finish sending out the letters to the selected list. There are only Twenty Thousand Shares of Preferred Stock in all, therefore more than half was taken up at once, and we have not offered the balance until now.

For a short time we are going to give the same opportunity to those who did not receive our letters; but as the amount is necessarily limited, prompt action will be required.

HERE IS THE PLAN: The Capital Stock of The Circle Publishing Company is $500,000, of which $200,000 is Preferred Stock with 7 per cent. Cumulative dividend, and $300,000 is Common Stock upon which all dividends over and above the 7 per cent. on the Preferred Stock will be paid. Measured by the opportunities for rapid development of the business and by the known earnings of other great magazine and book publishing properties, the dividends on the Common Stock should soon exceed the fixed dividend on the Preferred Stock, and our Plan gives you some of both kinds.

The following extract from an article in a recent number of Leslie's Weekly is to the point:

"HOW A FEW DOLLARS MADE A FORTUNE"

"Among the most interesting commercial facts in this country are the astonishing fortunes which are being made by magazine publishers.

"Every year more than the immense sum of about $80,000,000 is spent in buying advertising space and in buying copies of periodicals. A large portion of this huge amount of money becomes profits for magazine owners.

"The great popular monthly publications have risen to wealth and prominence so quickly that only $100 invested in Munsey's a few years ago is now worth between $10,000 and $12,000, and is earning dividends at the rate of $1,000 a year.

"McClure's Magazine made a profit for its stockholders of 1,000 per cent. in about ten years. The total annual income of The Ladies' Home Journal and The Saturday Evening Post, both of which are owned by the Curtis Publishing Company, of Philadelphia, is not far from $6,000,000. The Cosmopolitan, Everybody's, The Outlook, and others, are immensely profitable.

"Unfortunately, however, magazine readers have rarely had an opportunity to share in these splendid earnings. Nearly all the magazines are in each case owned by a few individuals, who receive all the enormous income.

"A chance to secure an interest in one of the great popular magazines, on a basis that insures absolute safety and gives a liberal share of all the profits of the business, is an opportunity that attracts the immediate attention of the shrewdest investors."

OUR OFFER IS THIS: The par value of all shares is $10. They are full paid and non-assessable. The taxes on the stock are paid in full. Nine thousand shares of the Cumulative 7 per cent Preferred Stock are offered now at ten dollars a share, par. Every subscriber for five shares of Preferred Stock will be given a bonus of one share of Common Stock and will be made also a life subscriber for THE CIRCLE Magazine without additional payment. A subscriber for any multiple of five shares will be given a corresponding number of shares of Common Stock, as bonus, and will be allowed to present a life subscription for THE CIRCLE as a gift to some relative or friend for each five shares of Preferred Stock subscribed. Additional shares of Common Stock may be substituted in lieu of life subscriptions as bonus, or vice-versa. Thus, ten shares of Preferred Stock will entitle the subscriber to two shares of Common Stock and two life subscriptions for THE CIRCLE, or four shares of Common Stock. One hundred shares of Preferred Stock will carry with them a bonus of twenty shares of Common Stock and twenty life subscriptions for THE CIRCLE, or forty shares of Common Stock.

If you can not afford to take five or more shares, you may subscribe for three shares, and with such a subscription we will give you either the life subscription for THE CIRCLE or a bonus of one share of Common Stock, as you prefer.

We must say now, however, that this offer with its bonus is conditioned upon your prompt acceptance, and we reserve the right to withdraw or modify the offer without further notice.

YOU NEED NOT SEND ALL THE MONEY NOW IF NOT CONVENIENT TO DO SO, but write at once, saying how many of the 9,000 shares you will take and how soon you will be ready to pay for them. Ten per cent. of the amount of your subscription should be sent at the time of making the reservation. If more convenient to you the total amount may be divided into several instalments. Please use one of the Application Forms below, or a copy of the same.

Just an earnest word or two: You ought to know something about the "Plan" and aim of THE CIRCLE. We are all deeply in earnest about this matter. Every one of the men and women who now control the editorial and the business policy of the magazine is pledged to the carrying onward to its highest possible success the work of making a great, high-class, popular magazine of world-wide circulation which shall portray and encourage the good in individual, social, business, and political life, rather than the evil; which shall stand for peace rather than war; which shall search out beauty rather than ugliness; which shall build up rather than teardown; which shall constantly plan and labor, and co-operate with those who are planning and laboring, to make this world a better and happier place to live in, both for the poor and the wealthy, for the unlearned and the learned, for the weak and for the strong.

This is not mere rainbow painting. It is a real and definite program, based upon strong convictions and practical plans. We know that there are many splendid men and women who are in sympathy with this program and want to see it carried out. They know, as we know, that there is a positive cure in sunshine and fresh air. The poisonous, ill-smelling places often can be purified and made beautiful just by letting in the sunlight and the sweet winds of heaven. No man can remain a pessimist who will open his eyes and his heart to the good and the beautiful around him. All he need do is to give it just a fair share of his attention. It will surely sweeten his blood, cheer and lift up his heart, lighten his step, brighten the glance of his eyes, and inspire him in his work. There is plenty of evil to fight, and it calls for strenuous and constant effort, but the man who sees nothing but the evil will never be able to overcome much of it. You who will help to support and boldly develop and broaden the work of THE CIRCLE Magazine, until its influence is felt in countless American homes, satisfying the great need, recognized or unrecognized, of American life—you who will help to accomplish this will come closer to the hearts of multitudes of people and do more universal and lasting good than can be done in any restricted field. No single instrument within the grasp of any group of men can be so effective as this great, clean, purposeful magazine in bringing to pass that "Peace on Earth, Good Will to Men," for which the world has been waiting for so many centuries.

This is a business enterprise. We want to make money for ourselves and for our stockholders, and we shall do so; but this business enterprise—this sound, common-sense, money-making enterprise is inspired with an ideal; this corporation has a soul.

Men of long and successful experience in the magazine and book publishing business and in financial affairs make up the Board of Officers and Directors of The Circle Publishing Company.

This additional capital will be used to increase the circulation and advertising patronage of THE CIRCLE Magazine and to develop the profitable book publishing enterprises of the Company. No magazine in the world possesses more of the real elements of large business profit and immense usefulness to society than does THE CIRCLE. The magazine itself shows tangible evidence, month by month, of the truth of these statements.

We trust you will join with us—that you will write quickly and reserve five, ten, twenty, fifty or more shares of the Preferred Stock, and so have a part in THE CIRCLE work and THE CIRCLE success. Write at once, if possible, filling out one of the blank forms below.

VISCOUNT KITCHENER.

A Brief Biography of Soldier Who May Visit Canada.

General Horatio Herbert, first Viscount Kitchener of Khartoum—who has just completed the great work he undertook in 1902 of reorganizing the British Indian Army—was born on Midsummer Day at Ballylongford, in the County Kerry.

During his exceptionally brilliant military career the retiring Indian commander has asserted himself with characteristic confidence and unbending will, and Lord Kitchener must be accounted one of the most strenuous soldiers that the British Empire has ever possessed.

Coming of a military family, Lord Kitchener passed thirty-eight years ago from Woolwich into the Royal Engineers. Since then his career has been one of scintillating brilliance for "K. of K."—as he is now often called "for short"—has been to the fore in many expeditions and campaigns, and has "built himself an everlasting name" for thoroughness in the profession of arms.

A veritable "glutton for work," he assisted in the Palestine survey in 1874-78 and that of Cyprus of 1878-82.

Then he was sent to Egypt, and entrusted with the command of the Khedive's cavalry and the remodelling of the native army. Having effected this to his own exacting desiring, he, as Sirdar, conducted a vigorous opposition to the forces of the Khalifa. He found it necessary to build a railway to Omdurman before he finally broke the power of the prophet, annihilating the Khalifa's army in 1898.

By this time he had reached the rank of major-general and been made a K.C.B., and he came home covered with Egyptian honors, to receive the thanks of the British Parliament, a peerage, and a grant of £30,000.

In the year following, when matters seemed to be going wrong with our forces engaged against the Boers in South Africa, Lord Kitchener was sent out as Chief of Staff to Lord Roberts. Here, again, he distinguished himself for determination and dash in combination; and when Cronje had been circumvented at Paardeberg and the British flag hoisted in Pretoria, he was promoted to the commandership of the forces in South Africa on Lord Roberts' return to England.

Kitchener brought the long campaign to a close. Again the gallant fighter and fine organizer was thanked by Parliament, given a further £50,000 from the country's public purse, and raised in the peerage to a viscounty.

As a full general he was sent out in 1902 to India as Commander-in-Chief, with practically a free hand to reform the army of our great Empire of the Orient. His ideals of duty brooking no civilian interference in matters military, Viscount Kitchener soon came into conflict with the then Viceroy, Lord Curzon, and the friction ensued in the resignation of that able statesman in 1905.

Since then Lord Kitchener has practically been permitted to have his own way at headquarters in India; and on the completion of his task in the Orient, he is credited by some with hankering after overthrowing the influence of the non-military element in the War Office for good and all.

Barrister's First Brief.

My first brief I have the best of reasons for remembering particularly clearly. I was engaged for the defence in a case of robbery. Two men, the prisoners, had seized the prosecutor on the platform of Shrewsbury Station, and while one of them held his arms the other quietly rifled his pockets.

They were caught red-handed, and I had a brief to defend the prisoner who had held the prosecutor by the arms. I made the obvious defence. I urged that it was vindictive to sacrifice two victims to justice when one would suffice, that the distinction between the two prisoners was manifest, and as the one I defended had not taken any money at all it was impossible to pretend that he was as guilty as his companion.

To the amazement of everybody, not excepting the chairman—who had been careful in his summing up to sweep away my sophistries—the jury made the distinction I suggested to them, and returned a verdict of "Not guilty" against my prisoner.—"Reminiscences of Mr. A. C. Plowden," in The Strand Magazine.

A Pageant of Priests.

Pageants have so far illustrated the history of a single town or city, but the one held recently in the grounds of Fulham Palace, London, was unique. It depicted the growth and history of the Church of England.

It was split up into a number of episodes, and, beginning with the publication of the Edict of Emperor Constantine, came right down through the ages to the acquittal of the Seven Bishops in 1688. A final tableau, representing the church "throughout the world," concluded the gigantic spectacle.

The grounds of Fulham Palace, lent by the Bishop of London, were well fitted for such a purpose.

The spectators were housed in a grand stand, 304 feet in length, 90 feet in depth, and covering an acre of ground. In addition to a large royal box, there was seating accommodation for 6,750. His Grace the Archbishop of Canterbury performed the opening ceremony.

An Amiable Violinist.

Robert Browning and Joachim met one evening at a friendly gathering in London. The violinist had "obliged" without satisfying certain ladies, who entreated the poet to obtain from him another solo. Browning, feeling the delicacy of his task, discharged it diplomatically and spoke, as sometimes he wrote, so as to conceal his thoughts, while the violinist, not understanding, bowed and smiled and did not play.

As they left the house Joachim asked, "What did you mean just now?"

"Oh," said the poet, "I wanted you to give us some more music."

"Then, why did you not come and say, 'Joe, old boy, give us another tune?'" returned the amiable violinist.

Tickling or dry Coughs will quickly loosen when using Dr. Shoop's Cough Remedy. And it is so thoroughly harmless, that Dr. Shoop tells mothers to use nothing else, even for very young babies. The wholesome green leaves and tender stems of a hardy healing mountainous shrub give the curative properties to Dr. Shoop's Cough Cure. It calms the cough and heals the sensitive bronchial membranes. No opium, no chloroform, nothing harsh used to injure or suppress. Demand Dr. Shoop's. Accept no other. Sold by all dealers.

FADS OF CRIMINALS.

Murderers Who Were Particular as to Personal Appearance.

Oscar Slater, who murdered Miss Gilchrist in her Glasgow flat, proved himself a typical dandy even in the condemned cell and also a stickler for the proprieties. He insisted, for instance, from the very beginning in being called "Mr." Slater, and each morning he changed his linen, varied his neckwear and demanded polished boots.

Similar exhibitions of strutting peacock vanity are not uncommon on the part of men doomed to die on the gallows. Wainwright on the day preceding his execution absolutely refused to dress because his clean linen had not arrived from the laundry, and a new shirt and collar had to be bought for him. When the evening arrived—his last on earth—he craved a smoke. A pipe and tobacco were brought to him, but he rejected them with disdain. He would have a cigar. And he got it.

Lefroy, who murdered poor old Mr. Gold in a railway carriage on the way to Brighton, wore an evening dress suit during the whole of the period that elapsed between his condemnation and his execution; also he was greatly upset at the refusal of the authorities to allow him to be hanged in a new silk hat presented to him in court.

As a rule, however, the thoughts of the condemned turn mostly toward food. Rush, the Stansfield Hall murderer, was an educated man. "I want my slippers and The Times," were his first words on returning to jail after his conviction. But a little later he called for pen and paper and wrote out an order for his next day's dinner, 'Pig and plenty of apple sauce."

In those days it was the custom to give capital convicts whatever they asked for in the way of food. But the rule was abolished soon afterward, one of the first delinquents to come under the new regulations being a certain Jeffrey, who murdered his six-year-old child by hanging him in a cellar in Seven Dials. He was unaware of the alteration and called for a roast duck directly he entered the condemned cell, and when it was refused him he behaved so violently that he had to be put in a straitjacket.—Pearson's Weekly.

The Genesis of the Cravat.

Cravats date from the incursion of the Croats into French territory during the Thirty Years' War. The French termed these invaders "Cravates," and a freak of fashion made their somewhat clumsy neckgear popular about 1636. The fancy must have spread very rapidly, for we find lace cravats with broad ends hanging in front replacing the wide collars of the cavaliers during the earlier stages of the civil war in England. Charles II. made white cravats a part of the uniform of his life and dragoon guards. The palmy period of the cravat was early in the eighteenth century, when these articles were made of the very finest lace and were so expensive that even the richest of fashionable young men could not afford to have more than two of them in their wardrobes. —London Standard.

The Time to Save.

As a general rule the question whether a man's career is to spell success or failure is settled between the ages of thirty and forty-five.

If a man cannot attain prosperity at forty his chances after that age are remote.

At fifty the sensible man plays for safety rather than for high stakes, for after that age not one man in five thousand can recover his financial position if he should come a cropper.

At sixty 98 per cent. are either dependent upon their daily earnings or upon their relatives.

It is evident, therefore, that no man should put off saving for old age after he has passed his fortieth birthday.

Twenty-First Century Wooing.

The grave young medical man entered the front parlor with sober mien. Unfastening his small black satchel, he produced a little purple vial, and, taking therefrom a tiny bag, he slipped it into a hypodermic syringe and advanced toward the shrinking girl.

"No, no!" cried the pretty Penelope. "It cannot be! I could not love you in the world!"

"You just wait until Mr. Cocksamoritis gets busy in your delicate blue veins," said the young doctor, injecting the love germ.

Their devotion is now almost proverbial.

Consistent.

In a hospital in one of the large cities of central France the physician in chief, in the course of his round of inspection, approached a cot and after feeling the patient's pulse remarked, "H'm—he is doing very nicely; his pulse is much better."

"It is as you say, doctor," replied the nurse, "but it is not the same man. Yesterday's patient is dead, and this one has been put in his place."

"Ah," said the doctor, "different patient, eh? Well, same treatment." And he walked on.

He Had the Best of It.

Nervous passenger (on lake steamer)—It must be really terrible to think of an accident happening to the boat while you are away down there in that hole.

Stoker—It's just the other way, ma'am. If the boat sinks I won't have to go through more'n about half as much water as you will 'fore I get to the bottom of the lake.

A Way Out.

Servant—A newspaper reporter wishes to interview your, sir.

Great Man—Did you not tell him I was hoarse—could hardly speak?

Servant—Certainly, sir! But he assured me he would only ask questions which you could answer by a nod or a shake of the head.

Great Man—Then tell him I have a stiff neck.

One of the natural curiosities of South Manhoosaland is a "German-sausage-tree." It bears deep-crimson flowers, 3 inches long, in blazing bunches of twelve; but when the tree fruits into fat, substantial, sausage-like pods, there remain no leaves, and it looks like a sausage larder indeed.

These beans are 20 inches long, and 12 inches in girth, and are beloved of the native tribe of Shangaans and hottentots. But the tribe of the Karamojo are a very superior people, and would never deign to eat them. There can be no reason for this, as, at least, no one can accuse these "sausages" of being connected in any way with dogs or cats!

FAMOUS WAX ARTIST

Mme. Tussaud Had an Exciting and Dramatic Career.

IN THE FRENCH REVOLUTION.

During That Era of Bloodshed She Modeled Some of the Heads That Fell by the Guillotine and Was For a Time in Prison Herself as a Suspect.

This is the story of Mme. Tussaud, who was born in Berne in 1760 and died in London in 1850, and who, during the stormy time of the French revolution, modeled in wax some of the heads that fell by the guillotine.

Marie Gresholtz was the daughter of an aid-de-camp of General Wurmser in the Seven Years' war. She was born after the death of her father.

Her mother was the sister of Dr John Christopher Curtius of Berne. This Dr. Curtius had made many anatomical and other models in wax and had attracted the attention of the Prince de Conti. This nobleman urged Curtius to come to Paris and establish himself as a modeler in wax.

The Curtius studio became the rendezvous of the fashionable world, and in connection with this he had a museum of curiosities. Among his patrons were Voltaire, Jean Jacques, Rousseau, Mesmer, Mirabeau, Diderot, Benjamin Franklin, Paul Jones and many other notable persons.

In his visits to his sister at Berne Dr. Curtius had taught his niece, Marie, many of the secrets of modeling in wax. She showed such ability in this that her uncle urged her mother to make a home with him in Paris and to allow him to adopt Marie as his daughter.

Marie began earnest study with Dr Curtius, and she was so skillful in the modeling of wax flowers that this art became a craze. Even the royal personages in the palace took it up and Marie spent some time giving lessons to Mme. Elizabeth, the young sister of Louis XVI.

When the revolution broke out Dr Curtius took the side of the people and sent for Marie to come from the palace. It was rather singular that two of his wax models should have played a foremost part in the opening scenes of that awful period. In his collection of models was a bust of the minister, Necker, father of Mme. de Stael, and one of Philippe, duke of Orleans. Two days before the storming of the Bastille a mob took these two busts from his museum in the Palais Royal, draped them in black crape to show their sympathy and started to parade the streets with these.

As the procession filed across the Place Vendome a troop of dragoons and one of the regiments charged. A sword stroke cut the bust of Necker in halves, and the man who was carrying it was hit by a musket ball in the leg and received the thrust of a sword in his breast.

The bust of the Duke of Orleans escaped injury, but in the fight to defend it several persons were killed. The soldiers made desperate efforts to demolish it.

At the taking of the Bastille Dr. Curtius was active and for his services to France was rewarded by the national assembly. A badge of honor was presented to him, and this was inscribed with the famous date and a memorial of his bravery and patriotism. His house was a favorite place of meeting with the leaders of the revolution, so Marie had an opportunity to see them all.

There was only one time when Marie was in any danger during this desperate period. She was "suspected" and sent to prison. Here at the same time was Mme. de Beauharnais, who had barely escaped the guillotine and who was later the Josephine of Napoleon Bonaparte. Her uncle was able to get Marie's release from prison, and she came out in time to see the downfall of Robespierre, Danton and Desmoulins.

In the days of their power she had been called to model the heads of many who fell by the guillotine. She was obliged to take them just after the fall of the fatal knife. She did this awful work with the heads of poor Marie Antoinette and of the Princess Lamballe, the queen's friend. When the leaders suffered by the guillotine in their turn she modeled their heads.

After the revolution her uncle died and in 1795 she married M. Tussaud. She could not overcome the shock of her experiences during the revolution, and she persuaded her husband to take her and the valuable collections of wax models left her by Dr Curtius over to England.

They established this collection in the Strand. The collection was taken all about the country, and in 1833 it was brought back to London and made a permanent exhibition. Her sons conducted the business, and she took an active share in this till she was eighty years of age.

Naming Their Children.

It was a musical man who gave his four daughters the following names: Do-re, Mi-fa, So-la, Ti-do. The first escaped with the nickname Dora, the second answered Miffy, the third owned up to Solly, while the youngest generally got Tiddy.

The case of the musical man is matched by that of the provincial printer who named his children from the type fonts he used—Ruby, Pearl and Diamond. The first two are no uncommon names for girls, only Ruby happened to be a boy. He followed in his father's footsteps and afterward became a printer's manager in London.—London Chronicle.

Staterooms and Portholes.

An experienced traveler warns the uninitiated against paying from $5 to $20 extra for an outside stateroom on ocean liners. The inside rooms she has found to be perfectly comfortable and perfectly ventilated, and the portholes in the outside ones she considers a doubtful advantage. "They are kept locked," she says, "most of the time unless the weather is very pleasant, and even in calm weather they sometimes ship a deluge of salt water. Dirty water, too, swept from a deck above by the cleaners, may pour into a porthole of a room below, and the noise from the deck is annoying." Why, then should one pay extra for a porthole?"

HISTORIC WEAPONS.

Trophies Wrested From the Crusaders Found in the Sudan.

Among the trophies of arms displayed on the walls of Windsor castle one of the most interesting of the long series is a group of weapons and armor sent to Queen Victoria by Lord Kitchener after the Dongola campaign on the upper Nile in 1896.

The trophy consists of a coat of chain mail, a number of spears and a long cross hilted sword. On the straight steel blade of the sword there is an inscription in odd fashioned letters: "No me saques sin razon. No me entraines sin honor."

The words are Spanish, but the same motto was inscribed on sword blades in the days of chivalry in most of the languages of Europe. Its meaning is the knightly rule for all who bear the sword: Do not draw me without reason. Do not sheathe me without honor.

The weapon was taken from the abandoned camp of Wad Bishara, the dervish general, after the battle of Hafir (Sept. 23, 1896). How came a blade with such a motto to be found in a Moslem bivouac in the heart of the Sudan?

The presence of these crusader swords in the Sudan is not so difficult to explain. In the thirteenth century the Mohammedan caliphs of Egypt not only carried on successful wars against the crusaders in Syria, destroying the last vestiges of the Latin kingdom of Jerusalem, but also defeated two attempts of the Europeans to invade Egypt itself, one of them led by St. Louis of France.

Enormous quantities of western arms and warlike equipments must have thus passed into the possession of the Mohammedan conquerors.—Chambers' Journal.

BABY TALK.

An Infantile Habit That Sometimes Sticks and Breeds Trouble.

Once in awhile a rare stammering case comes to the laboratory where there's nothing the matter with the child—the matter is with his dear mamma. In 1895 Dr. Witmer examined a boy of twelve who talked baby talk—a bright, alert youngster, to all appearances normal. But nobody could understand a word he uttered—except mamma; she understood it all perfectly. "I—aw—ow—ay" was to her ear "I want to go out to play" as plain as anything could be. It was her tender custom to reply likewise, and she took pride in the thought that she had never allowed her Willie to associate with the children on the block. She had encouraged him to be her baby and "kept him from growing up too soon" by prattling to him.

Except for his unintelligible language, the examination did not reveal a defect, physical or mental, in the boy, and Dr. Witmer was forced to the conclusion that the trouble lay in the persistence of an infantile habit of articulation for which the mother was solely responsible. Through sentimentality and overindulgence "she had almost ruined his chances for a useful and possibly successful life." (Psychological clinic, March, 1907.) Months of painstaking, expert labor had to be expended upon him to break up the habit his mother had carefully developed before he could even begin to make himself understood by any one else.—Dr. Witmer of Yale in McClure's Magazine.

Almost Disbelieved Her Eyes.

"Among the memories of my boyhood," said a New York man, "there is one odd episode that is particularly vivid. It is a conversation that I overheard one morning as I walked toward the Boston high school between two women.

"The women were talking about babies—their size, weight, health, and so forth.

"'Why, when I was a week old,' said the first woman, 'I was such a little baby that they put me in a quart pot and put the lid on over me.'

"The other woman was amazed and horrified. 'And did you live?' she asked.

"'They say I did,' her friend answered.

"'Well, well, well!' exclaimed the second woman. And she glanced at the other almost doubtfully."

In the Wrong Place.

A one legged Welsh orator named Jones was pretty successful in bantering an Irishman, whom the latter asked him:

"How did you come to lose your leg?"

"Well," said Jones, "on examining my pedigree and looking up my descent I found there was some Irish blood in me, and, becoming convinced that it was settled in the left leg, I had it cut off at once."

"By the powers," said Pat, "it would have been a very good thing if it had only settled in your head!"—London Mail.

The Fool.

He was a noble lord, and he was in an awful rage with one of his footmen.

"It is intolerable!" he exclaimed. "Are you a fool, or am I?"

"Oh, my lord," replied James, with humility, anxious to appease the great man, "I am sure you would not keep a servant who was a fool."

The Greatest Inventor.

Teacher—Who is the greatest inventor? Shaggy Haired Pupil—Pat Pending, I guess. I see his name on more inventions than I do any other man's.

A person who talks with equal vivacity on every subject excites no interest in any.—Hazlitt.

It's a pity when sick ones drug the stomach or stimulate the heart and Kidneys. That is all wrong! A weak Stomach means weak Stomach nerves, always. And this is also true of the Heart and Kidneys. The weak nerves are instead crying out for help. This explains why Dr. Shoop's Restorative is promptly helping the Stomach, Heart and Kidney ailment. The Restorative reaches out for the actual cause of these ailments—the failing "inside nerves." Anyway test the Restorative 48 hours. It won't cure so soon as that, but you will surely know that help is coming. Sold by all dealers.

What Are They Worth?

ARE the eyes worth at least five hundred dollars per year to any man, woman or child. You would spend five dollars per year upon them if necessary would you not. How much do they cost you? How much do you spend for your feet your hats, Your Teeth, etc. Some wait until they must see about their eyes and would give hundreds of dollars but find it too late. Many parents bring their children that we may examine their eyes and see whether or not they need glasses. In childhood is the time to both remedy and prevent eye troubles. Again we ask what are your eyes worth to you and what to the child? We devote exclusive attention to the eyeglasses and artificial eyes.

ANNE'S GREAT DISCOVERY.

A Call That Made Her Sure About Her Own Heart.

By EMILY HODGES.

[Copyright, 1909, by Associated Literary Press.]

"You're very foolish and very headstrong, Maisie, and you're going to be sorry some day," Anne said severely.

She was sitting before the glass, putting cold cream on her face, and Maisie was watching her from the bed.

It was to pretty Maisie a very funny performance—Anne's nightly comforting of her complexion with cold cream. She wondered if she would do the same when she was thirty-six and unmarried. But she would not be unmarried at thirty-six. Of course not. There was Dick, and she was determined to marry Dick, no matter what Anne or Aunt Hannah said. It was about Dick that Anne was talking now.

"You know as well as I do," Anne went on, "that you are too young even to think of marrying, and, anyway, Dick Launt isn't a person you should consider for one moment." Anne closed the cold cream box, with a sigh. "When you do marry I want you to have some one who is worthy of you."

"Is that the reason you've never married?" Maisie asked innocently.

Anne flushed under the cold cream. "That was the reason," she returned steadily.

"Haven't you ever been sorry?" Maisie persisted. She wished Anne had not hidden her face by turning out the gas—the voice, Anne's voice, told so little.

"I—I don't know that I have been. Good night, dear." And Maisie had nothing to do but answer obediently, "Good night, Anne."

But long after Maisie was asleep Anne lay awake thinking.

Sixteen years—what a long time that was! She was twenty that summer, just out of school, and she had a pink dress afloat with ruffles. One day when she had been wearing that dress she had met Dwight Marshall. He was a good deal like Dick Launt—big, clear eyed, ready to laugh. Like Dick, too, he was a plain workingman and had come from a long way off to find work in Hassell. It did not take Dwight long to fall in love with the pink dress and her, and it did not take her long to see it. He was her first beau, and straightway the world was made over for her.

But her mother was watch and ward. She had had to make many sacrifices in order to educate Anne, and she was worthy of the best. Mrs. Hall did not by any means consider Dwight Marshall the best, and she was determined that he should not have Anne. She appealed to Anne's pride and reason and after a time had the satisfaction of seeing her arguments prevail. Anne gave up her lover. He was hurt, disappointed, bitterly angry.

"This is your mother's doings," he said.

"No," Anne lied proudly; "it's mine. You aren't good enough for me."

"You'll be sorry for this some day," he returned. And that was his last word to her. She had never seen or heard from him since. She probably never would again. And now here was Maisie in the same boat in which she herself had been. But Maisie's heart would not be broken. Hers had not been. There had been times, indeed, when she was glad that she had not married Dwight. Maisie would come to feel the same way about Dick.

Anne scarcely slept all night.

"That cold cream makes you pale," Maisie said next morning. "What makes you use it, Anne? Are you afraid of wrinkles?" Anne winced, and Maisie went on wickedly. "Mrs. Warne says it doesn't make any difference how a woman looks if she isn't married or doesn't intend to be."

Mrs. Warne was the young matron who lived across the street. Because she and Maisie were very friendly and she was known openly to sympathize with Maisie's love affair Anne and her mother had not called upon her, though she had lived in the town almost a year. Now of a sudden Anne felt almost hatred for the gay little woman who seemed so happy in her married life and obviously had no need of cold cream or any other preparation for her charming face.

Anne was out of sorts all day. Her painting class did badly, her head ached, and she tore her walking skirt by stepping upon it in her hurry to take a car. Tired and utterly forlorn, she was sitting in her room trying to repair the skirt when Maisie came running upstairs and entered panting with her haste.

"Oh, Anne," she gasped, "there's a man in the parlor waiting to see you! I told him you'd be right down."

A man in the parlor to see Anne was almost an unheard of thing. Yet she took three stitches deliberately.

"Aren't you going to fix your hair or—or anything?" Maisie demanded.

"Why should I?" Anne said. "It is only some one to see about lessons probably."

The parlor door was open, and she went in softly. The man was waiting with his expectant face turned toward her. She gave him one glance and turned as white as her linen collar.

"Dwight—Dwight Marshall!" she said. Then she seemed to remember nothing more until she found herself on the sofa, with him close beside her.

"You never expected to see me again, did you?" he demanded. "And I didn't expect you would, but ever since my little cousin, Maud Warne, has lived here she and Dave have been teasing me to come and make them a visit. So I made up my mind I'd come. And here I am. You don't know Maud, do you?"

"No," Anne said feebly, wishing she did.

"Maud told me you hadn't acted very neighborly. You should know Maud. She's one of the best little women that ever lived."

He had been talking rapidly. Now he stopped and drew a long breath.

"Do you remember the last time we saw each other? I was right mad that day. It had never occurred to me that I wasn't the equal of the best girl living—and you were that, too—until you said what you did. So I swore I'd make myself good enough—and make you sorry. But now that I've seen you I only want to make you glad, Anne. You see, I like you just as well as I ever did, though I didn't expect to. And if you like me"—

"Oh, Dwight," Anne sobbed, "it's I who am not good enough! I'm homely and old and soured and—and disagreeable and narrow minded and you're worthy of some one better."

Maisie had been in bed three hours when Anne came up and woke her with a kiss.

"Why, Anne, you look real pretty," Maisie said, yawning. "But your hair is mussed up awfully.

"Maisie," Anne said solemnly, sitting down upon the edge of the bed and taking hold of Maisie's hand in a most unusual way—"Maisie, I want to tell you something. I've been a fool for years and never found it out until tonight. And I don't mean you shall be the same kind of fool. That man who came tonight was the one I might have married sixteen years ago—and didn't. But I'm going to marry him now.

"And—and, Maisie, I've been talking to mother, and you can have Dick any time you are ready. Dick's all right. He—Dwight knows him; they come from the same place.

"I thought I could forget," Anne went on gently after Maisie's ecstasy of surprise and joy had somewhat subsided, "and I've tried hard for sixteen years, but when you really love there's no forgetting in this world. I've been loving Dwight right straight along, and the minute I saw him tonight I knew it. I've missed a good many years of happiness, and I meant to make you miss a good many years of happiness in the same way. It wasn't because I was wicked, dear, but because I didn't know. I do know now."

Maisie smiled wisely.

"I knew all the while," she said.

Peculiarities of Crime.

One of the strangest peculiarities of human nature is its inclination to imitate the misdeeds of others. Crime is epidemical. A particularly dreadful murder, the details of which are set forth in all the newspapers, often has the effect of inducing similar crimes. One of the reasons and probably the chief reason why public executions were abolished in England was that instead of acting as deterrent the execution had the contrary effect of inciting to murder.

Some years ago a woman of Geneva, named Lombardi, killed her four children. She admitted that she had been reading of a woman who killed her husband, and the very circumstantial account had made her wish to imitate the crime, but as her husband was dead she killed the children. This is only one instance out of hundreds which have come to our notice.

The infectious nature of self murder receives a striking testimony in the following incident: Dr. Oppenheim of Hamburg had to examine the body of a man who had cut his throat and had died after some days of suffering. The medico told his assistant that death would have been immediate if the man had made the cut in a way which he illustrated, and he was startled two days later to learn that his assistant had attempted to commit suicide by lacerating himself in that very manner. The man admitted that he had never thought of suicide until the day of the examination and the doctor's remark.—London Globe.

Crawford's Care as a Writer.

Mr. F. Marion Crawford, we are told, once agreed to write for the London Sphere a novel with Dante for its hero. "The Harvest of the Sword" was to have been its title. The letter which he wrote to Mr. C. K. Shorter explaining his failure to fulfill his promise testifies to his conscientious care in authorship:

"I can only say that it is in no sense my fault if I cannot give you the book after all at the time appointed and that if I succeed in writing it you of course have the first claim to it for serial publication if you still wish to use it next year. I have worked at the manuscript unremittingly for months. I began it four times. I have done everything in my power to write it and have done no other work since Aug. 1, and the result is so utterly unsatisfactory that after allowing the first three chapters to be sent to you I decided to cable and throw up the contract. It is the first time I have ever done such a thing, and I am driven to it by the great difficulties of the subject and not by any neglect. I decline to allow a book so imperfect to go before the public, while feeling that by renewed labor I may succeed in the end. That is my whole and only excuse. Make it public in any way you please, together with the great regret I feel at disappointing you."

THE MOUND BUILDERS

Mystery of the Great Monuments Found In This Country.

RELICS OF A VANISHED RACE.

The Strangely Shaped Structures Are Thought to Be More Than Two Thousand Years Old—The Enigma of Those Who Reared Them.

Scattered through the middle west and in other parts of the United States are more than 10,000 monstrous, odd shaped "mounds." Some are built like forts, others in queer, sharp geometrical figures, others shaped like huge serpents, crocodiles, buffaloes, turtles, eagles, lizards, dragons with eggs in their mouths, etc. Some of these mounds are a mile long, some much smaller. In Newark, O., stands a continuous mound, constructed in a perfect circle, more than 5,000 feet in circumference. The mounds are often covered with trees that are many centuries in age. These strangely shaped structures are thought to be more than 2,000 years old.

Who built them?

Certainly not the North American Indians. The Indians have ever been a lazy, roving race, making their livelihood chiefly by hunting and fishing, seldom remaining long in one neighborhood and using tents or the rudest huts as their dwelling places.

The mysterious people who built the mounds were not a race of rovers. An infinitely long time must have been required for erecting each huge earth shape. Nor were they ignorant savages, for the mounds show deep knowledge of geometry as well as of astronomy and of the principles of building. Carefully laid out military fortifications abound in the mound builders' country, indicating that the aborigines had martial lore and engineering skill and that they understood many modern principles of attack and defense.

There are also sepulchral mounds, some of them sixty feet high. These contain human bones, skulls, etc., as well as copper utensils and bits of pottery. The bones when exposed to air crumble at once to dust. As the bones of Europeans who died twenty centuries ago are often found intact and strong, many authorities believe the mound builders date back at least several centuries before the time of Julius Caesar.

Cleverly made pottery and copper or bronze implements of war and peace are found all through the mounds. Ancient abandoned copper mines on the banks of Lake Superior show that the mound builders well understood the art of mining. The workmanship of the copper bracelets, bronze knives, etc., prove their skill at the forge.

In one of the prehistoric Lake Superior mines has been found a mass of copper weighing eight tons, resting on a high platform, ready for removal to the upper earth. This implies the use of well constructed mine machinery. Pictures that have been found etched upon copper and ivory portray much artistic skill.

From all this it seems that in some remote age the central part of North America was inhabited by a race of warlike, industrious, decidedly civilised beings who had splendid skill at building, at the arts of mining, engineering and higher mathematics and who flourished apparently during numerous centuries. Yet so long ago did the mound builders cease to exist that in all Indian folklore there is no mention, no memory, of them.

None know where the Indians themselves came from. Yet they apparently settled in America long after the mound builders had vanished. The skulls discovered in the mounds are not shaped in the least like skulls of Indians nor even of Europeans. Some archaeologists claim to find strong resemblance between the mound builders' skulls and those of the ancient Egyptians. If there were any connection between the two, who can explain how an Egyptian race chanced to flourish in the middle west?

The fate of the mound builders is as mysterious as the strange people themselves. After reaching so high a civilization and thriving for so long a time it seems strange that they should have been completely destroyed. No satisfactory explanation has ever been offered. Perhaps the mound builders moved south and became merged with the Mexican Aztecs or Peruvians, or some savage race from the north may have swept down and utterly destroyed them, or a wholesale pestilence may have wiped out their nation.

The weird looking earthen monuments (the purpose of most of them a puzzle to the best archaeologists) are the sole remaining proof that this great lost American race ever existed.

How He Managed.

A man in an up state county owns a number of horses and has a great reputation for skill in the treatment of them. One day a farmer who wanted some valuable information approached the horse owner's little boy and said:

"Look here, my little man, when one of your father's horses is ill what does he do?"

"Do you mean slightly ill or seriously ill?" asked the boy cautiously.

"Oh, seriously ill," said the farmer.

"Because," said the child, "if a horse is only slightly ill he gives it medicine, but if it is seriously ill he sells it."

Troubles must come to all men, but those who are always looking for them will have the largest share.

More Gypsies.

A mysterious looking outfit passed through the city yesterday afternoon about three o'clock, and to some citizens it appeared as if the gypsies were about to pay the city another visit. There were two caravans and a buggy, driven by white people. A number of men, women and children made up the party who seemed to be well stocked with horses, there being nine. Two racing rigs were attached to the caravans, but everything about the vehicles, including the occupants, was tidy and clean.

FINGERS BADLY CUT.

Howard Kirn, Well Known Ball Pitcher Painfully Injured.

Howard Kirn, the well-known young pitcher of the West End Senior City League, was painfully injured in such a manner that he will be unable to play any more ball this season. He was employed in the carpenter shop of the Quaker Oats Co., on a small circular saw, and in some manner he allowed his right hand to come in contact with the were very painfully cut and slashed. It was thought at first that he would lose at least one of his fingers, but after he had been removed to St. Joseph's Hospital it was found that it would be possible to preserve the fingers without amputation. Howeder, it will be some time before he will be able to handle a baseball again.

WALTER JAYES

Has Been Dubbed the Tiny Star by Sporting Writers.

Mr. John Jayes, of the Munro House, has received a letter from his nephew, Walter Jayes, who is playing left field for the Wilmington team, of the North Carolina League, in which it is stated that the Wilmington team, is in the midist of a hot race for the pennant with every prospect of winning out. They are a close second now and are confident of winning. Jayes has been christened by the Wilmington sporting writers as the Tiny Star, and from the clippings which accompanies the letter he seems to be living up to the title. Mr. Jayes visited Peterborough last fall and made a number of friends here, who will be glad to learn that he is contemplat inganother trip here as soon as the league is finished. He will probably go to Florida, and play ball with one of the Gulf teams all winter, as he has received a good offer from one of the managers.

"Can be depended upon" is an expression we all like to hear, and when it is used in connection with Chamberlain's Colic, Cholera and Diarrhoea Remedy it means that it never fails to cure diarrhoea, dysentery or bowel complaints. It is pleasant to take and equally valuable for children and adults. 13

LINDSAY WILL

The baseball war cry has been sounded good and plenty in the Scugog Camp and the remnants of the good team that represented Lindsay way back in the nineties, reinforced by the most promising recruits of the City League, will present a formidable appearance when they stack up against the T.A.S. on Monday. The local club has shown enterprise in bringing the Lindsay ball tossers to town and as the fans are satisfied with the article of ball being put up by the Abstainers, a bumper gate is expected. The locals will line up in much the same way as they have all season, while the visitors will be headed by that terror of would-be baseball stealers, William Cinnamon.

Excursion Off.

The excursion advertised to run from Chemong to Lake Simcoe, per steamer Water Lily, has been called off. The occasion was the opening of the new Methodist church at Rama, on the Indian Reserve, Lake Simcoe. It was found that the church will not be ready for Sept. 12th, which was the date fixed for the excursion. The trip to Lake Simcoe from Chemong is an annual affair. Last year the Water Lily ran from the Park to Orillia in about 11 hours.

APPRECIATION!

A Policyholder of The Great-West Life Assurance Company, a well-known Ontario Clergyman, writes:—

"I am in receipt of yours enclosing dividend certificate. I need hardly say that the returns from my investment with you have proved highly satisfactory, and I shall be glad to recommend your Company to any of my friends who may desire Insurance."

The Great-West Policyholders are satisfied Policyholders. A great deal of the Company's business is due to their recommendations.

If you require protection, would it not be a good plan to investigate the Policies that can earn such commendation?

Lindsay Boy Fatally Shot by Hunter

(Special to The Times.)

Lindsay, Sept. 3.—Dominic Spratt, the 14-year-old son of a well-to-do Lindsay merchant, Mr. E. P. Spratt, was fatally injured today by being shot in the stomach.

Jake Smith,a duck shooter, was shooting at a mudhen, and the little boy, who was piling lumber in a mill yard, was laid low by the ballot.

The shot was fired from a 32-calibre rifle, and Smith was about 50 yards away at the time.

The injured boy was rushed with all speed to the hospital, and it is expected that he will succumb to his injuries at any moment.

His parents are crazed with grief.

Train Struck Hay Wagon Party Severely Injuring 19 Persons

Williamsburg, Sept. 3.— Nineteen persons were severely injured, two probably fatally, last night, when the hay wagon in which they were being taken to a corn roast was struck by a freight engine at the St. Clair crossing of the Williamsburg branch of the Pennsylvania railroad.

Dorothy Henderson and Edna Snively of this place were caught in the upset wagon and dragged a great distance.

Both were injured internally, and their condition is critical.

The seventeen others, all young womenand men, were painfully cut and bruised.

TRAIN KILLS FOUR.

Pittsburg, Sept. 3.—An extra freight train plowed into a gang of track laborers west of the Radebaugh Tunnel near here, on the Pennsylvania Railroad today, killing four of the men. A dozen others narrowly escaped. The noise of the westbound passenger train drowned the warnings sounded by the engineer of the extra freight train.

CONVENTION OVER

ALD. PHELAN AND MR. S. R. ARMSTRONG HAVE RETURNED.

Some Motions of General Importance Passed in Toronto—Interesting Meetings.

Ald. Phelan and Mr. R. S. Armstrong,city clerk, have returned from the convention of representatives of Ontario municipalities. Among the many motions passed the following are several of general interest;

That the executive prepare legislation for next session providing that all petitions to municipal councils,where the same are required as a condition precedent to some action by the council, or to prevent some action by the council, should have each signature witnessed with an affidavit of execution, and when a signature of one person is placed on the petition by another the authority to do so must be in writing and a copy of the authority accompany the petition,and where property qualification is required for the petitioner,the property in respect of which the petitioner signs shall be stated in the petition.

That in the opinion of this association the legislative grant for the improvement of county roads systems should be increased from one-third to one-half.

It was moved by Ald. Phelan, seconded by S.R.Armstrong,that the matter of fees charged by the Ontario Railway and Municipal Board for the confirmation of debenture bylaws,and of the effect of such confirmation is referred to the Executive Committee for consideration and such action as that committee deems advisable.

Conductor Resigns.

Port Hope Times:—Conductor Pigott, of Midland, who has spent 45 years in the employ of the Grand Trunk Railway, retired last week. Mr. Pigott gets the pension granted by the company, namely one per cent. of his present salary for every year's service with the railway,which means that he will receive a yearly pension of forty-five per cent. of his present salary. Mr. Pigott has been one of the most popular and obliging conductors that ever worked upon the Midland division.

The band will undoubtedly give a good account of themselves as they are at present playing up to their best form.

OBITUARY

ARTHUR WHITELAW.

Word has been received in the city of thedeath in St. Louis, Mo., of Arthur Whitelaw, a former well-known resident of Peterborough, who left here some two years ago. The deceased was born in Chester, England,but came to Canada some years ago. While in Peterborough he was a member of the Iron Moulders" Union,and was a prominent foot-ball player, being captain or the Old Country Wanderers. His skill in soccer made him well known all over the district and his many friends, who learned to admire his playing, will regret to learn of his demise which took place on August 31.

The funeral took place at St. Louis under the auspices of the Iron Moulders' Union.

He issurvived by a wife and one son,residing in Peterborough, and by his father, three brothers, and two sisters, living in Chester, England.

Mrs. Haggart of Peterborough and Mr. Frank Hill of Toronto, visited at Mr.Joseph Hill's, Nottawasaga St. over Sunday.—Orillia Times.

The present holders of the trophies are,—Eastwood trophy, Mr. Walter Munroe; Howden trophy, Mr. J. E. Crough.

HEAVILY FINED.

Lord Lascelles Pays for Shooting Deer Out of Season.

Victoria, B. C., Sept. 2.—Viscount Lascelles, aide-de-camp to Earl Grey Governor-General of Canada, who shot a mountain goat and deer out of season during the Governor-General's trip to northern British Columbia, has been fined $275 by the BritishColumbia game wardens. The game wardens went to Viscount Lascelles' room, where he admitted having shot the mountain goat and deer, the heads of which had been sent to a taxidermist to be mounted. He proferred the maximum fine, which was accepted, and the game wardens then proceeded to the taxidermists and confiscated the heads.

It had been proposed to proceed also against Earl Grey, but investigation failed to show that he had killed any game.

STRUCK GAS.

Workman While Boring for Gas Overcome By Fumes.

According to Mr. R. H. Leary the boring operation for oil on the Kincaid property in Monaghan have not been abandoned as reported, but are going on continuously. A depth of 400 feet has been reached,and owing to a new formation of the soil the progress is more difficult and consequently is slower. Gas has been struck in large quantities and a few days ago the man who works over the well had to be taken home, his eyes having been temporarily blinded by the gas which rose from the pockets that were opened 400 feet down. He was unable to resume work for several days, his eyes having been seriously affected for the time.

Laugh at Fears for Captain Bernier

Ottawa, Septf 3.—The story sent out from Montreal to the effect that government officials are worrying about Capt. Bernier, who sailed for the far North in July, 1908, is ridiculed here. When Capt. Bernier went away he was equipped for a two years' trip, and as he has been in the Far North a little over a year, there is no reason to believe that anything unfortunate has happened to him.

Capt. Bernier had orders to visit even more inaccessible regions than the Arctic touched in her previous trip. He had no orders to make a dash for the North Pole and was not equipped for such a venture.

Mr. Desbarats,acting deputy minister of marine and fisheries, says that he does not expect to hear from Capt. Bernier till next summer. He is quite confident that nothing has happened to Canada's intrepid explorer.

A Scotch whaler which left Dundee in June last took a quantity of mail matter to Capt. Bernier, but it is not known, of course, whether it has reached him.

Masked Burglars Fire at Farmer in His Bed

Finch, Ont., Sept. 3.— Masked burglars armed and carrying an ordinary farmer's lantern entered the residence of Mr. Joseph Stewart, a well to do farmer of Finch, between 1 and 2 o'clock Thursday morning, wakened him from his slumbers and demanded his money. To emphasize this demand the burglar fired a shot which entered the wall just above Mr. Stewart's head. Mrs. Stewart then fainted and Mr. Stewart told the burglar that he would find the money in his pants pockets. Kicking the pants down the stairs the burglar called to his comrade "Mike, see if the money is there.' Assured that it was the burglars withdrew, taking with them also Mr. Stewarts fine coon coat.

The secured forty-two dollars in cash, but had evidently expected more. Mr. Stewart having drawn some hundred and forty cheese money. Of this he had fortunately given his brother a hundred to pay some workmen for labor in clearing bush land for him. The burglars had a horse which they left on the road, probably in charge of a third party. The tracks clearly indicated where the horse halted and at which point he could not have been tied. Mr. Stewart concludes from the fact that the burglars called him by name that they probably knew that he had cheese money and as they carried an ordinary farmer's lantern that they were not professionals,"but belonged to the neighborhood. Inquiries at adjacent liveries were met by the assurance that none of them had horses out at the hour of the burglary. No arrests have yet been made.

Treat Canal Tonnage Increased.

While trade conditions generally show improvement and increases all along the line, the volume of traffic on the canals this year so far has decreased quite noticeably in comparison with last year. Up to the end of June the Soo canal traffic had fallen off by 1,182,102 tons, the Welland by 64,953, the St. Lawrence canal by 77,809 and Ottawa canals by 30,750. Two increases were 7,500 on the Rideau and 10,500 on the Trent. The grain movement is not so heavy this year while the strike on the Great Lakes and the accident at the Soo have doubtless exercised an influence. The decrease, however, is in practically every line of freight and is rather difficult to explain. The July showing so far as the figures have been received, is better.—Hastings Star.

Lindsay Model School Opened.

Lindsay, Sept. 2. — The Model school started this morning with thirty-two students in atendance. Principal Boderick of the Public schools is the teacher. That twenty-eight of the embroy school teachers are young ladies, while but four are men seems to be an indication of the times. Men are looking for other employment, or are using the teacing profession merely as a stepping stone to another occupation.

Of the twenty-eight young ladies attending the school, four are from Lindsay, and the others are from outside points.

Mr. O. S. Matchett left last night for Toronto, where he will be joined by Mrs. Matchett, and will then visit his brother, Mr. M. W. Matchett in Hamilton, afterwards returning to Toronto, where they will attend the Exhibition.

SCHOOLS RENOVATED.

Will Open Next Tuesday Morning, September 7th.

The local schools will open next Tuesday morning at nine o'clock, and the pupils are preparing to get back to their studies. The pupils will find that their best interests have been looked after. Those attending the Ashburnham school will see that his or her room have been nicely painted and repairs made. A new roof has replaced the old one on the kindergarten, and the inside of this building has also been repainted and connection made. At the Central School, the office formerly used by the Inspector, will be given to the principal, and the inspector will have his office in the future at the old Collegiate building. All necessary improvements have been made to the other schools, and each building shows a decided improvement.

The vacancies which have been made by the resignations of Miss Meadows and Miss Carlyle, have been filled by Miss Emmerson of Port Perry, and Miss Moore of Peterborough,two distinguished graduates of the Normal school. The new readers and spelling books will be introduced and a good attendance of pupils on the opening morning will please those in charge.

BASEBALL

This afternoon at Riverside Park the T.A.S. nine and the West Ends will clash in a City Baseball League fixture. Flaherty will likely do the twirling for the Abstainers and Rose will be on the hilltop for the West Ends. A fast game is looked for by the fans.

The Lindsay team will play the T.A.S. at Riverside Park on Labor Day.

IN WAGNER FESTIVAL.

Ludwig Ferdinand, of Bavaria, Attends Rehearsals as Regular as Possible.

Munich, Sept. 3.—Prince Ludwig of Bavaria is again this year taking part as second violinist in the Wagner festival performances at Munich. As punctual as any member of the orchestra, he regularly attends all the rehearsals.

According to the Berliner Zeitung several English women have requested the stage manager to remove the roofing under which the orchestra plays in order to allow them to see the royal violinist, and many people are said to intend being present at the performances solely with a view to watching a prince play in a theater orchestra.

His royal highness, who is a nephew of the prince regent of Bavaria is a man of 50, with a large family. In addition to being an enthusiastic musician, he is a doctor of medicine and a general of cavalry.

DYNAMITE FOUND IN WARSHIP.

Timely Discovery Prevents Disastrous Explosions and Saves Many Lives.

Liverpool, Sept. 3.—Two battleships, the Lord Nelson and the Victorious, have within the last ten days escaped by good fortune from the peril of going to sea with coal among which dynamite cartridges had by some means got mixed.

But for the timely discovery of the dynamite it is possible that in both of these battleships there might have been disastrous explosions. The result would have been terrible had any of them been thrown into a ship's furnace.

The fact that both ships were fully coaled before the dynamite was found shows how serious was the peril in which they were placed.

The coaling of both ships took place at Sheerness. The Lord Nelson coaled on Wednesday of last week, the Victorious two days later, on her return at daybreak from the scene of the C 11 submarine disaster.

Both ships took their supplies from a large Cardiff collier chartered by the Admiralty, with a capacity of 6000 tons of coal, as well as storage for oil fuel.

After cooling the battleships, the collier steamed up to the great bulk Jumna to discharge the remainder of her freight It was not until the bottom of the collier was reached that the dynamite cartridges were found lying among the coal.

The type and number of the dynamite charges are known to only a few, but it is generally believed that they are of the kind used in the coal mine for blasting purposes.

How they came to get mixed with coal destined for use in the navy has formed the subject of an official inquiry behind closed doors.

As soon as the discovery was made coaling hands were recalled, and the ships that had been coaled from the collier had their bunkers emptied in the search for any cartridges that might have been overlooked.

With such a freight aboard the battleships could not have put to sea, and the search was kept up,the suspected coal being passed into the Jumna.

POSES AS MESSIAH.

Appeals to Natives to Obliterate the White Men and Causes Sensation.

Capetown, Sept. 3.—A remarkable incident at Taungs, Bechuanaland, has just been revealed.

A fortnight ago two natives, one a kitchen boy from Mafeking, entered the native village adjoining Taungs, one proclaiming himself the Saviour and the other His prophet. The leader addressed a large gathering of the Batlapin tribe, numbering 1500, ending an excitable oration by indicating the European quarter of Taungs and declaring, "Before the sun sets tonight not a white person must remain alive."

Inspector Gordon Turner, who was present, arrested both men, with the assistance of one policeman, and, after a scuffle, took them to the magistrate's court. The crowd of 1500 natives followed with menacing demeanor. They swarmed into the magistrates' court, insulted the magistrate and refused to disperse. The magistrate was powerless, as he had only two police officers at his command. Eventually Molali, the Baplapin chief, arrived and dispersed the rioters with a horsewhip. The two men arrested were committed for trial.

There have been no further disturbances, but the incident is officially regarded as serious. It is the first occasion on which the Bechuana tribes have shown gross disrespect for the magistrates. Moreover, Molali's influence has been undesirably strengthened at the expense of white authority. The men arrested belonged to the Ethiopian Church.

Gregg Shorthand is the easiest to write and easiest to read of any system known. Take a course —day or night—at the Gibbon Business College. Opens Sept. 7th.

Vessel That Sank Not One of Grenfell's

(Special to The Times.)

St. John's, Nfld., Sept. 3.—W. H. Peters, secretary of the Deep Sea Mission, has just received a wireless from Dr. Grenfell, on the steamer Strathcona, stating that the auxiliary boat McCosh, reported missing, is alongside, all well. Consequently it was not the vessel reported to have been sunk with all on board.

Premier Sir Edward Morris arrived here yesterday afternoon from England via New York.

Sir George French Arrives in Canada

Montreal, Sept. 3.—Major-General Sir George French, K.C.M.G., organizer of the Northwest Mounted Police, and one of the early explorers of the Western plains of Canada, arrived in Quebec yesterday and this evening will be in Montreal, whence he will proceed by easy stages to the Pacific Coast to see his daughter off on a trip toAustralia.

General French's military experience has covered five continents, his most recent appointment before finally settling in England was in Australia, so that in conversation, when the discussion turned to the question of naval defence, he spoke most readily of Australia.

"As far as Australia is concerned I approve of the local navy," he said. "And I think that approval will be sufficient for its needs. It must, of course, form a part of the great Imperial navy and not be entirely detached. Australia is so isolated from the rest of the Empire that she must have means of defence. Then, onthe other hand there is little fear of any great attack there which the Imperial navy could not forestall. Japan is the only nation in a position to make ooe and Japan is the ally of Great Britain."

"Has Australia the men to man a navy?"

"No. I think not: wages for work of other kinds, are too high to tempt men of the right class from accepting the small pay allowed in the navy. The same difficulty will probably be found to exist in Canada, and you will have to bring the sailors, marines and all from the other side."

Navigation of the Air

A year ago the Wrights were making short flights with their aeroplanes, and the world was waiting to be shown. For the most part people were skeptical as to the navigation of the air and ready to ridicule all pioneers. French aviators were at work, but did not appear to be helping the cause much when on Sept. 9 Orville Wright made records at Fort Myer that were followed immediately by a great change in public sentiment. The effect was apparent in the declaration of the Paris Figaro that the date was an important one in the history of humanity, and again in the comment of Secretary of War Wright that it marked the beginning of an era of steady development in the new art.

The week at Rheims indicates not only that there has been a steady development, but that it has been a rapid one also. Possibly, as some one has said, it has not proved that we were before with the machinery employed or with the mastery of principles, but it has proved that men can run the aeroplanes with comparatively little practice, and because of the interest it arouse a boom has been given to the business of manufacturing the machines. A news item on the meeting says that the aeroplane companies took orders for fifty two aeroplanes during the week, most of them from persons not before interested in aviation. This is getting down to the practical sure enough, even though the aeroplanes may still be regarded as a luxury. And considering how automobiles are selling, a range in the cost of aeroplanes from $5,000 to $ 000 should prove attractive to many customers when it is once felt that an inventor-expert is not needed as an aviator. The flights have been both safe enough and long enough to encourage amateurs, and the possibilities are decidedly tempting.

Without indulging in prophecies, however, satisfaction may certainly be found in the stirring achievements and remarkable progress of the year. Dreams have been realized in that short period of time which seemed absurd and unattainable.

Got to Pole by Living Like Eskimo, Cook Says

Skagen, Sept. 3.—Dr. F. A. Cooke the Arctic explorer, who says he reached the North Pole, was briefly interviewed today by a man who went on board his vessel as it passed thispoint for Copenhagen.

The doctor then gave a hurried sketch of his expedition, in which he said:

"Going northward, I struck first a westerly course from Greenland, and then moved northward.

"I arrived at the North Pole April 21, 1908, as already announced accompanied by only two Eskimos.

"We reached the pole at seven o'clock in the morning.

"I took daily observations for a whole fortnight before arriving at the Pole.

"Returning we were forced to take a more westerly course, and the first ten days I took observations daily and recorded them. I was unable to measure the depth of the sea, as I had not the necessary instruments.

"Thelowest temperature recorded was 83 degrees centigrade below zero."

In conclusion Dr. Cook said: "I ascribe my success to having employed old-time methods, namely seasoned Eskimos and dogs and to the fact that I lived as an Eskimo.

Eighty-three degrees centrigrade below zero is equal to one hundred and seventeen degrees below zero, Fahrenheit.

The search for the North Pole has been a long record of disappointments, disasters and deaths. Some of the bravest men who set out to conquer the frozen North never returned, and it is estimated that more than seven hundred human lives have been sacrificed in the effort to reach the pole.

After two attempts to discover a north-east passage, Henry Hudson undertook a third voyage in 1609 from Amsterdam, at the expense of the Dutch East India Company. Giving up all hope of finding a north-east passage he sailed for Davis Strait, then steered southward in search of a passage, discovered the mouth of the river which now bears his name, and sailed up the river for 150 miles.

He sailed upon his last voyage in April,1610, in the Discoverie, of 70 tons, and reached Greenland in June. Steering westward he discovered the strait now known as Hudson Strait, and passed through it and entered the great bay, which has received the name of Hudson Bay.

The food fell short, and the men dissatisfied with Hudson's determination to continue the voyage, mutinied, and cast him adrift in a shallop with eight others on Midsummer Day, 1611. The real ringleaders perished miserably in a scuffle with savages, and the survivors, after great suffering, reached England.

Sir John Franklin commanded an expedition for the discovery of the north-west passage. The expedition consisting of the Erebus and Terror, with 134 chosen officers and men, sailed from Greenhite on May 19, 1845, and was last seen on the following July 26 by a whaler in Baffin Bay, in 17.48.

No tidings of the expedition having reached England, as amany as fifteen expeditions wete despatched between 1848 and 1854 by England and America, with the object of rescuing or at least finding traces of the missing explorers.

An addendum in the handwriting of Captain Fitzjames, dated April 25 1848, briefly narrated that the Erebus and Terror were deserted April 22, and that the officers and crews 105 souls, under Captain Crozier, landed in 69 deg. 37m. and that Sir J. Franklin died June 11, 1846. Although many relics of the shipswere found in the possession of the Eskimos, the crews were never heard from.

VESSEL LOST.

Port Hope, Sept. 1.—A despatch was received here this morning stating that the three-masted schooner, Maxwell, which left this port light a few days ago for Cleveland, Ohio for a cargo of moulding sand for the Standard Ideal Company of this town, had been wrecked on the break water at the entrance to Cleveland harbor last night. A later telegram stgted that the vessel was a total loss. No details were given as to the cause of the accident, but it was announced that the crew reached the shore in safety.

Deathly Cramps, Stomach was Bloated

A Bad Case That Proves Cramps and Stomach Disorders are Cured Fast By Nerviline.

The distress I suffered from cramps last summer was so severe I thought it meant death," writes P. R. Emerson, of Guys Hill P. O. "I was doubled up with pain and in such bad shape I couldn't walk a hundred feet. I remembered having Nerviline on hand and took half a teaspoonful in sweetened water. In five minutes I was well and my stomach derangements disappeared entirely."

For cramps, flatulence, diarrhoea and disorders of the stomach and bowels, Nerviline knows no equal—one million bottles used every year—fifty years on the market, that's proof enough of its merit. Large 25c. bottles, five for $1.00. All dealers or the Catarrhozone Company, Kingston, Ont. 17

PITTSBURG IRISHMEN ON 12TH OF JULY.

We learn from a hespatch which appeared in some of the Canadian papers that the Irish Catholics and Hibernians in Pittsburg joined in the celebration of the battle of the Boyne in that city on the 12th of July, says the Orange Sentinel. The telegraphic account states that this friendly relation was due to the broad-mindedness of Patrick Richards, of the Ancient Order of Hibernians. It appears that when the Allegheny County Orangemen gathered at Rock Springs Park to hold a picnic and celebration many prominent Catholics accepted invitations and were present.

We have stated our belief before that the Roman Catholics of Ireland as much as the Protestants of Ireland, have reason to celebrate the 12th of July. It all classes of Irishmen. The most bigoted Romanist in Ireland enjoys liberties today which are directly traceable to the victory won by William at the Boyne. If it were possible for the Roman Catholic Irish to appreciate this fact and join with their Protestant fellow-countrymen in celebrating the day it would not only be productive of amity between the two creeds, but would inevitable bring about conditions that would be beneficial to both sides. If we could persuade our Roman Catholic friends that the day is not commemorated for the purpose of insulting them, but to call to mind the great deliverance that was effected for them, as well as for us, something would be done towards establishing more harmonious relations than exist in some places in Ireland.—

WHAT IS THE USE OF IT.

If the airship is to be only a toy the marvels of flying week at Rheims andthe wonderful guided air-voyage of Zeppelin from Friedrichshafen to Berlin would have less interest. Even the manifest possibilities of sky-scouts in war are of less legitimate concern than the peaceful employment of the new travel; for peace is the normal state of man and the state that must some day be universal and unbroken.

An aeroplane costs $2,000,000 Manufacture in considerable numbers will bring it to the price of a cab or a small auto. A sixty-horsepower will suffice—heavier ones are nowadays put into so-called "runabout"—and in the matter of ordinary repairs the comparison may not be unfavorable. Exceptionally skilled drivers will be necessary and the weight carried is comparative,y slight. Air locomotion can never be cheap,pound for pound, but there are occasions when time is worth money; an air-cabeservice carrying passengers either to crosstown points where crowded streets make ordinary traffic slow, or from city offices to country homes is not perhaps impracticable.

A Zeppelin dirigible costs $200,000. Its vast size will restrict it to few flights. It carries sixteen men, withsome small weight of supplies. Passengers may in some future day save time by taking Zeppelin vehicles—they certainly will if they trust themselves so to cross seas—but they will have to pay a very high price. Even first-class mail matter could not profitably be carried by Zeppelins at present rates, but a special class of urgent mail might be taken at higher postage with a small weight limit. Many business men would cheerfully pay for such a service if swift and certain. The postal subsidy is now an important matter to an "ocean greyhound."

The telephone, the automobile, the phonograph and many other modern inventions looked like toys in their beginning. The airship may not long stay in the plaything class.

GRAND TRUNK PACIFIC RAILWAY.

During the past month a party of editors representing some of the most important agricultural papers in the United States, have been touring Western Canada and on reaching Winnipeg on their return from Edmonton over the line of the Grand Trunk Pacific Railway, wired Mr. Chas. M. Hays, President of the Grand Trunk Pacific at Vancouver who is also in the West on a tour of inspection of the new line in company with Sir Charles Rivers Wilson, President of the Grand Trunk Railway System, and party as follows—

"We believe that every foot of the land traversed by the road is eminently adapted to grain growing, mixed farming or the keeping of live stock and that it must soon develop into a region of prosperious homes. We also unite in expressing our admiration of the high character and the completeness in construction of the road and road-bed which must soon give the road high rank among Transcontinental Railway Systems."

The party consistec of the following:

Prof. Thomas Shaw of the "Orange Juff Farmer" and Dakota Farmer" St. Paul, Minn.

Herbert Quick, Editor of the "Farm and Fireside," Springfield, Ohio.

John Arthur Dixon, Managing Editor of the "Home Life," Chicago, Ill.

Philip Eastman, Editor of Capper publications including "Nebraska Farm Journal," Omaha, Neb., Missouri Valley Farmer," Topeka, Kan. Farmer's Mail & Breeze, Topeka Capital."

F. E. Faville, Editor "Successful Farming," Des Moines, Iowa.

E. S. Bayard, Editor "National Stockman and Farmer", Pittsburg, Pa.

C. P. Reynolds, Editor of "Prairie Farmer," Chicago, Ill.

The party was also accompanied by Mr. Herbert Vanderhoof, Editor of "Canada West Monthly", Winnipeg, Man, and Mr. R. C. W. Lett, Travelling Passenger and Colonization Agent. Grand Trunk Pacific Ry., Winnipeg.

KEENE.

(Received Too Late for Last Week's Weekly.)

We regret to the report the death of Mr. Thos. Campbell, son of Mr. Wm. Campbell (postmaster of this village). Tom was a general favorite with all the residents. He was a pupil of the Peterboro Collegiate Institute, having just received his Junior Matriculation from the above school. He with a number of other boys went for a bath, while partaking of the same he was stricken with heart failure. The sympathy of the whole village is extended to the bereaved family.

Mrs. J. H. Scriber and daughter Isabellahave gone to St. Catherines, to spend their holidays.

Mr. Henry McLachlan, wife and father are spending their holidays on Rice Lake.

Mr. Leonard Brown has secured the position as Manager of the farm recently purchased by Mr. S. T. Wedlock.

Mr. Wm. Wedlock Sr. has put in a fine new planing outfit, and is prepared to do all kinds of finishing.

Mr. McLaughlin of Cannington had the contract of placing the machinery.

Mr. R. H. Campbell and friends have returned after spending a delightful two weeks on Rice Lake.

The first of September the Duck Hunters first day broke cold and windy, and judging from the reports of fire arms the shooting was anything but good. In fact, the last day of August seemed to be the day as the soar of the guns were kept up all day long. If there are game wardens paid a salary why don't they do their duty and earn it. To judge by the shooting on the 31st. of August one would be led to imagine that there were no game laws in existence on Rice Lake. I would like to know if there are any wardens appointed and if so; "WHY DON'T THEY ACT?"

Mr. Jos McFarlane has gone up to the Cobalt to judge for himself if all reports received here are just up to the mark.

Mr. Louis Roache has gone to Haileybury where he has accepted a position. We wish him every success.

Messrs. McIntyre and Burnham, were in Peterboro on business this week.

Mr. Percy Pue had the misfortune to get his right hand caught in the cylinder of the threshing mill, and had a couple of fingers badly lacerated. From latest reports he is doing as well as could be expected.

Tell Some Sick One

It Is Free If It Fails.

Will you do an act of Humanity!

Will you tell some sick friend of this, my remarkable offer!

Tell him or her, that you have learned of a medicine so certain that its maker dare say to the sick, "It is absolutely and unconditionally free if it fails."

And you, no doubt, already know of Dr. Shoop's Restorative and its popularity.

For 20 years it has been the standard remedy for Stomach, Kidney and Heart ailments everywhere in America.

When the "inside" or controlling nerves of these vital organs begin to fail, it is Dr. Shoop's Restorative that has quickly vitalized, and strengthened, and brought these nerves and organs back to health again.

I do not dose the Stomach, nor stimulate the Heart or Kidneys—for that is all wrong.

Dr. Shoop's Restorative goes direct to the nerves of these ailments—the failing, faltering, inside or controlling nerves. And herein lies the keynote to my success.

When these nerves are again made well and strong, then that is the certain end of all such ailments.

To me it is a great satisfaction that I am the only physician able to say to the suffering sick, "Take my prescription for full 30 days, and if it fails to help you, the entire expense is mine—not yours."

Then why should the sick take any chance on any other medicine, when the maker dare not back it just as I do by this remarkable offer?

I also have a Rheumatic Remedy—and that remedy is upheld by the same identical "no help, no pay" protective plan.

Besides, you are free to consult me just as you would your home physician. My advice and the book below are yours—and without cost.

Perhaps a word or two from me will clear up some serious ailment. I have helped thousands upon thousands by my private prescriptions or personal advice plan. My best effort is surely worth your simple request.

So let me send you an order at once. Take the response to some sick friend.

A postal will bring the opportunity.

I will have an honest and trustworthy drug clerk to whom you can conveniently go for the 5 day test.

But first, ask me for the order, for all druggists are not authorized to give the 5 day test.

So write me now and save all delays. Remember that tomorrow never comes. Address Dr. Shoop, Box 11, Racine, Wis.

Which Book Shall I Send You?

No. 2 On the Heart — No. 5 For Men

BABY TALK.

An Infantile Habit That Sometimes Sticks and Breeds Trouble.

Once in awhile a rare stammering case comes to the laboratory where there's nothing the matter with the child—the matter is with his dear mamma. In 1905 Dr. Witmer examined a boy of twelve who talked baby talk—a bright, alert youngster, to all appearances normal. But nobody could understand a word he uttered—except mamma; she understood it all perfectly. "I—aw—ow—ay" was to her ear "I want to go out to play" as plain as anything could be. It was her tender custom to reply likewise, and she took pride in the thought that she had never allowed her Willie to associate with the children on the block. She had encouraged him to be her baby and "kept him from growing up too soon" by prattling to him.

Except for his unintelligible language, the examination did not reveal a defect, physical or mental, in the boy, and Dr. Witmer was forced to the conclusion that the trouble lay in the persistence of an infantile habit of articulation for which the mother was solely responsible. Through sentimentality and overindulgence "she had almost ruined his chances for a useful and possibly successful life." (Psychological clinic, March, 1907.) Months of painstaking expert labor had to be expended upon him to break up the habit his mother had carefully developed before he could even begin to make himself understood by any one else.—Dr. Witmer of Yale in McClure's Magazine.

Almost Disbelieved Her Eyes.

"Among the memories of my boyhood," said a New York man, "there is one odd episode that is particularly vivid. It is a conversation that I overheard one morning as I walked toward the Boston high school between two women.

"The women were talking about babies—their size, weight, health, and so forth.

"'Why, when I was a week old,' said the first woman, 'I was such a little baby that they put me in a quart pot and put the lid on over me.'

"The other woman was amazed and horrified. 'And did you live?' she asked.

"'They say I did,' her friend answered.

"'Well, well, well!' exclaimed the second woman. And she glanced at the other almost doubtfully."

In the Wrong Place.

A one legged Welsh orator named Jones was pretty successful in bantering an Irishman, when the latter asked him:

"How did you come to lose your leg?"

"Well," said Jones, "on examining my pedigree and looking up my descent I found there was some Irish blood in me, and, becoming convinced that it was settled in the left leg, I had it cut off at once."

"By the powers," said Pat, "it would save been a very good thing if it had only settled in your head!"—London Mail.

The Fool.

He was a noble lord, and he was in an awful rage with one of his footmen.

"It is intolerable!" he exclaimed. "Are you a fool, or am I?"

"Oh, my lord," replied James, with humility, anxious to appease the great man, "I am sure you would not keep a servant who was a fool."

The Greatest Inventor.

Teacher—Who is the greatest inventor? Shaggy Haired Pupil—Pat Pending, I guess. I see his name on more inventions than I do any other man's.

A person who talks with equal veracity on every subject excites no interest in any.—Hazlitt.

TURQUOISE COPPER

NOT A PROSPECT

400 FOOT TUNNEL—140 FOOT SHAFT

Mines located near Valardena, Durango, Mexico, only six miles by wagon road and three miles straight line from the property of the Guggenheims upon which they have recently erected a $2,000,000 smelter. Sample assays have averaged from $66. to $102 per ton.

Up to the present time, the Turquoise Copper Co., has been practically a close corporation; an initial offering of 100,000 shares has just been made at 25 cents, par value $1.00, full paid and non-assessable. Proceeds will be used to further continue the development work already begun.

We have options on 50,000 shares of this stock and advise immediate purchase at 25 cents per share. It is the intention of The Board of Directors to list the stock on the New York Curb and it should sell at $1.00 per share by the first of the year.

Write now for prospectus and Mining Engineer's report.

LEACH & CO., INC.
STOCK BROKERS—MANCHESTER, N.H.

$90,000---7 Per Cent.

9,000 Shares 7 Per Cent Cumulative Preferred Stock ($10 a Share) Offered at Par with 40 Per Cent Immediate Bonus of Common Stock. We Reserve the Right to Withdraw Offer Without Notice and to Return any Subscription Received Too Late. Previous Offerings Were Immediately Oversubscribed.

MORE THAN A THOUSAND BANK OFFICERS, LAWYERS, PHYSICIANS, MINISTERS, BUSINESS MEN AND OTHERS HAVE BECOME STOCKHOLDERS IN THE CIRCLE PUBLISHING COMPANY WITHIN THE PAST FEW MONTHS.

Presidents and Cashiers of Banks, Presidents and other officers of Insurance Companies and of prominent business concerns who are thoroughly qualified to pass upon the soundness of such a proposition have comended the investment and have put their own money into it.

Many leading Physicians, Ministers and Educators in all the big cities of the United States and several in Europe have very highly endorsed THE CIRCLE MAGAZINE and THE CIRCLE PUBLISHING COMPANY, and have been glad to become part owners in the enterprise.

These men, and a good many splendid women, also, have known THE CIRCLE for several years and have watched it grow better and stronger constantly. They know what a sterling good property it is; they know that it is founded on a plan that ought to success, and they know that it is held always true to that plan; they know from personal experience that its business methods are good, careful, and conservative, yet aggressive and successful; they are convinced, therefore, that there is a large and very profitable career ahead of THE CIRCLE PUBLISHING COMPANY. For these reasons they have been glad of a chance to get some of its stock.

Twice we offered by letter, without any blow of trumpets, Five Thousand Shares of our Cumulative Seven Per Cent, Preferred Stock for subscription. Each time the Five Thousand Shares were promptly over-subscribed before we could finish sending out the letters to the selected list. There are only Twenty Thousand Shares of Preferred Stock in all, therefore more than half was taken up at once, and we have not offered the balance until now.

For a short time we are going to give the same opportunity to those who did not receive our letters: but as the amount is necessarily limited, prompt action will be required.

HERE IS THE PLAN: The Capital Stock of The Circle Publishing Company is $500,000, of which $200,000 is Preferred Stock with 7 per cent. Cumulative dividend, and $300,000 is Common Stock upon which all dividends over and above the 7 per cent. on the Preferred Stock will be paid. Measured by the opportunities for rapid development of the business and by the known earnings of other great magazine and book publishing properties, the dividends on the Common Stock should soon exceed the fixed dividend on the Preferred Stock, and our Plan gives you some of both kinds.

The following extract from an article in a recent number of Leslie's Weekly is to the point:

"HOW A FEW DOLLARS MADE A FORTUNE"

"Among the most interesting commercial facts in this country are the astonishing fortunes which are being made by magazine publishers.

"Every year more than the immense sum of about $80,000,000 is spent in buying advertising space and in buying copies of periodicals. A large portion of this huge amount of money becomes profits for magazine owners.

"The great popular monthly publications have risen to wealth and prominence so quickly that only $100 invested in Munsey's a few years ago is now worth between $10,000 and $12,000, and is earning dividends at the rate of $1,000 a year.

"McClure's Magazine made a profit for its stockholders of 1,000 per cent. in about ten years. The total annual income of The Ladies' Home Journal and The Saturday Evening Post, both of which are owned by the Curtis Publishing Company, of Philadelphia, is not far from $6,000,000. The Cosmopolitan, Everybody's, The Outlook, and others, are immensely profitable.

"Unfortunately, however, magazine readers have rarely had an opportunity to share in these splendid earnings. Nearly all the magazines are in each case owned by a few individuals, who receive all the enormous income.

"A chance to secure an interest in one of the great popular magazines, on a basis that insures absolute safety and gives a liberal share of all the profits of the business, is an opportunity that attracts the immediate attention of the shrewdest investors."

OUR OFFER IS THIS: The par value of all shares is $10. They are full paid and non-assessable. The taxes on the stock are paid in full. Nine thousand shares of the Cumulative 7 per cent Preferred Stock are offered now at ten dollars a share, par. Every subscriber for five shares of Preferred Stock will be given a bonus of one share of Common Stock and will be made also a life subscriber for THE CIRCLE Magazine without additional payment. A subscriber for any multiple of five shares will be given a corresponding number of shares of Common Stock, as bonus, and will be allowed to present a life subscription for THE CIRCLE as a gift to some relative or friend for each five shares of Preferred Stock subscribed. Additional shares of Common Stock may be substituted in lieu of life subscriptions as bonus, or vice-versa. Thus, ten shares of Preferred Stock will entitle the subscriber to two shares of Common Stock and two life subscriptions for THE CIRCLE, or four shares of Common Stock. One hundred shares of Preferred Stock will carry with them a bonus of twenty shares of Common Stock and twenty life subscriptions for THE CIRCLE, or forty shares of Common Stock.

If you can not afford to take five or more shares, you may subscribe for three shares, and with such a subscription we will give you either the life subscription for THE CIRCLE or a bonus of one share of Common Stock, as you prefer.

We must say now, however, that this offer with its bonus is conditioned upon your prompt acceptance, and we reserve the right to withdraw or modify the offer without further notice.

YOU NEED NOT SEND ALL THE MONEY NOW IF NOT CONVENIENT TO DO SO, but write at once, saying how many of the 9,000 shares you will take and how soon you will be ready to pay for them. Ten per cent. of the amount of your subscription should be sent at the time of making the reservation. If more convenient to you the total amount may be divided into several instalments. Please use one of the Application Forms below, or a copy of the same.

Just an earnest word or two: You ought to know something about the "Plan" and aim of THE CIRCLE. We are all deeply in earnest about this matter. Every one of the men and women who now control the editorial and the business policy of the magazine is pledged to the carrying onward to its highest possible success the work of making a great, high-class, popular magazine of world-wide circulation which shall portray and encourage the good in individual, social, business, and political life, rather than the evil; which shall stand for peace rather than war; which shall search out beauty rather than ugliness; which shall build up rather than tear down; which shall constantly plan and labor, and co-operate with those who are planning and laboring, to make this world a better and happier place to live in, both for the poor and the wealthy, for the unlearned and the learned, for the weak and for the strong.

This is not mere rainbow painting. It is a real and definite program, based upon strong convictions and practical plans. We know that there are many splendid men and women who are in sympathy with this program and want to see it carried out. They know, as we know, that there is a positive cure in sunshine and fresh air. The poisonous, ill-smelling places often can be purified and made beautiful just by letting in the sunlight and the sweet winds of heaven. No man can remain a pessimist who will open his eyes and his heart to the good and the beautiful around him. All he need do is to give it just a fair share of his attention. It will surely sweeten his blood, cheer and lift up his heart, lighten his step, brighten the glance of his eyes, and inspire him in his work. There is plenty of evil to fight, and it calls for strenuous and constant effort, but the man who sees nothing but the evil will never be able to overcome much of it. You who will help to support and boldly develop and broaden the work of THE CIRCLE Magazine, until its influence is felt in countless American homes, satisfying the great need, recognized or unrecognized, of American life—you who will help to accomplish this will come closer to the hearts of multitudes of people and do more universal and lasting good than can be done in any restricted field. No single instrument within the grasp of any group of men can be so effective as this great, clean, purposeful magazine in bringing to pass that "Peace on Earth, Good Will to Men," for which the world has been waiting for so many centuries.

This is a business enterprise. We want to make money for ourselves and for our stockholders, and we shall do so; but this business enterprise—this sound, common-sense, money-making enterprise is inspired with an ideal; this corporation has a soul.

Men of long and successful experience in the magazine and book publishing business and in financial affairs make up the Board of Officers and Directors of The Circle Publishing Company.

This additional capital will be used to increase the circulation and advertising patronage of THE CIRCLE Magazine and to develop the profitable book publishing enterprises of the Company. No magazine in the world possesses more of the real elements of large business profit and immense usefulness to society than does THE CIRCLE. The magazine itself shows tangible evidence, month by month, of the truth of these statements.

We trust you will join with us—that you will write quickly and reserve five, ten, twenty, fifty or more shares of the Preferred Stock, and so have a part in THE CIRCLE work and THE CIRCLE success. Write at once, if possible, filling out one of the blank forms below.

SIMCOE'S HOME.

Famous Lieutenant-Governor's Last Residence Built In 1800.

High among the hills surrounding Honiton, the little country town which is famed far and wide as the centre of the lace-making industry of Devon, England, stands Wolford Lodge, the pleasant English home where General Simcoe, the first Lieutenant-Governor of Upper Canada, spent the last few years of his eventful life. Weakened by the wounds and hardships endured in the disheartening campaigns of the American Revolutionary war, and worn with his anxious toil for the benefit of the new British province which it had been given to him to organize in the wilderness, he came back to England in 1796 to seek well-earned repose. But rest was not for him. Almost immediately he was sent back across the Atlantic to put down an insurrection in the West Indies. Returning again to his native land, he began, about the year 1800, to build himself a spacious mansion on a green slope deep amongst the gently-rounded, well-cultivated hills of lovely Devon. Surely no toil-worn warrior ever found a more restful spot in which to spend the evening of his days, for still, despite a hundred years of progress, despite vastly increased population, despite railways and motor-cars, the whole land speaks of peace.

The lodge was built in solid fashion by the General round an old farm-house, which was on the estate when he bought it. Except for the addition of some large bow-windows, the house has been little altered from the original design, and much of the old furniture remains in its spacious rooms. So large are they that an ancient four-post bedstead appears a comparatively small piece of furniture, and the General's own bedroom is larger than many a village church. In the different rooms numerous relics connected with him have been carefully preserved.

On either side of the staircase window, in the square entrance hall, are two venerable flags, the colors of the "Queen's Rangers," a provincial corps of Loyalists, which was raised by Simcoe and did gallant service during the revolutionary war.—Emily P. Weaver.

Statue to La Verendrye.

A strong appeal for a proper memorial to La Verendrye, the discoverer of the Canadian Northwest, is made by Le Manitoba; and in addition to urging that a monument be erected to the great explorer in St. Boniface, the paper makes a suggestion which might be highly acceptable to the organization committee of the Canadian Exposition and Selkirk Centennial, and one which probably has not occurred to that body before. It is that the name of the illustrious pathfinder, La Verendrye, should be associated with the equally illustrious colonizer, Lord Selkirk, in the exposition.

La Verendrye's son was one of the victims of one of the greatest and the earliest tragedies of the frontier, in which he and his companions were massacred by the Sioux, at Fort St. Charles, the site of which was discovered last summer by the Jesuit fathers, who for two years had pursued a diligent search for it. Now it is reported that at the request of Mgr. Langevin and of Mgr. Ireland, the American Government has decided to reserve the site of old Fort St. Charles as national property, with a view to the erection of a memorial in the future.

What He Was Having.

A very familiar and also rather picturesque figure in Montreal newspaperdom passed away recently, when William Jarvis — the boys all knew him as "Bill"—handed in his last report to the great Editor-in-Chief. And now wherever newspapermen get together in Montreal, stories are told of "Bill" Jarvis and his many amusing and kindly peculiarities. One of the best of these yarns is to the effect that he once went into a restaurant in Montreal, where two other newspapermen were eating oysters.

"Come on and have some oysters, Bill," they invited.

Bill didn't care if he did, and in a few moments a half dozen Malpeques were laid out before him. The other men were using Tabasco on theirs, and Bill picked up the bottle. Without noticing what he was doing, he simply deluged one of his oysters with the fiery stuff and gathering it up put it in his mouth. Immediately he made a wild dash for the bar.

"Water! water!" he gasped.

The bar-keep hastened up and inquired politely: "What will you have, sir—Radnor or Caledonia or—?"

But Bill couldn't stand it a moment longer.

"Oh, you fool," he roared, "any kind—any kind that's wet!"

Victoria as Gretna Green.

Recently in a single week 136 marriages of non-residents were celebrated in Victoria, B.C. It appears that prospective bridal couples resent the new law, now enforced in the neighboring cities of Seattle, Bellingham, Tacoma and Portland, requiring medical examination and certificates of physical fitness from applicants for marriage licenses. In preference to compliance they take one of the daily steamers from Seattle—sometimes as many as twenty couples a day—and the sheriff's office enjoys a phenomenal business at $5 per wedding ticket. The clergymen of Victoria are kept busy with this "transient trade," and indeed it has been suggested that Sheriff Richards should send all boats with an omnibus connecting direct with the marriage bureau. That other border city, Windsor, has long enjoyed a reputation as a Gretna Green, but it never experienced anything like the present rush of marrying visitors to Victoria.

Oldest Indian Dead.

Christopher Paul, aged 98, the oldest Indian in the Maritime Provinces, died recently at the reserve at Shubenacadie, forty miles out of Halifax. Previous to the building of the Intercolonial Railway, Paul used to paddle down the lakes to Halifax.

ADVERTISE IN THE TIMES.

IMPORTING BUFFALOES.

Exciting Scenes Attended Transportation of New Herd.

Canada has now the largest, indeed the only considerable, herd of buffaloes in the world, and the stirring and even dangerous work has accompanied the assembling of that herd. Except for about one hundred head which have been at Banff, and which will now be transferred, the colony of buffaloes in Buffalo Park, Wainwright, Alta., has all been secured from the herd owned by Michael Pablo in Montana. Pablo's 600 or 700 buffaloes were the outgrowth of a small group of twenty purchased thirty years ago from "Walking Coyote," a Flathead Indian, returning from a great buffalo hunt in southern Alberta, so that Canada now secures her own, with interest, on payment, of course, of a considerable sum in cash, $200 per head.

Two years ago the first round-up of the Pablo herd commenced, the captives being shipped to Elk Island Park, at Lamont, Alberta. The ground here was unsuitable for a large herd, and the enclosure too small, so the Government secured a new park of 107,000 acres at Wainwright, on the Grand Trunk Pacific, 100 miles or so east of Edmonton. To this point 340 buffaloes were removed from Lamont a few weeks ago, now to be joined by 185 fresh from the latest round-up in Montana. Adventures and dangers, with narrow escapes from death, marked almost every day of the round-up. The animals ran wild over a country fifty miles in extent. Riders chased them to the valley of the Little Bitter Root, then into a lane which led to the Pond D'Oreille River. They then swam this and entered a large coral, from which they were driven into a smaller enclosure. When the corralling-up was finished, they were loaded into cages on wagons and hauled 36 miles to Ravalli, a railway station on the Northern Pacific, and then entrained for Canada. Every now and again a buffalo could stand the hounding no longer, and turned on his aggressors, resulting in such incidents as the impaling of Johnny Decker's horse, and the carrying of horse and rider on a buffalo's horn across the corral.

The Canadian Girl.

In the first instance, we must admit that the French-Canadian girl has remained quite aloof from her more modern sisters, and is in many respects like the Evangeline whom Longfellow described, the dark-tressed gentle Acadian whose love-story began in the far-off days when Grand Pree had neither bolts nor bars. La petite Canadienne is a conservative, in fact, who follows her great-grandmothers' ways, and is akin to the Norman maidens of long ago. She is, says a writer in The Girl's Realm, gentle, industrious, and vivacious, a devout daughter of Mother Church, and usually gives herself at a very early age to a youth who is as fond as herself of the ways of their forefathers. In Quebec and the provinces along the Atlantic may be found many a Marie, Josephine, or Jacqueline, who might have given the New England poet the model for his ill-fated heroine. To the British world, however, the Canadian girl belongs to the English-speaking majority of the Dominion, and to her we are willing to give exhaustive attention. In connection with her qualities, it is almost impossible to avoid international comparisons, for the visitor from the United States finds points for divergence, while the English guest is likely to pronounce the Canadian girl very American.

Travels Far Into the North.

Miss Annie S. Nash of Carstairs, Alberta, will travel over a thousand miles straight north of Edmonton before she reaches Hay River, a Hudson Bay post, where she will wed Rev. Alfred J. Vale, an English Church missionary, formerly of Berlin, Ont., and a graduate of Wycliffe College, Toronto, in 1906. The trip will take in the neighborhood of two months to complete, and will be made by rail, stage, scow and river steamer. It is a trip scarcely ever made by a woman, and one that few men except traders take.

Miss Nash is accompanied by Archdeacon Lucas and wife of London, England, who are in Canada for a year's holiday. The archdeacon is going north to perform the marriage ceremony, and will probably spend the winter in that district with his wife, returning to London in the spring of 1910.

Miss Nash has had a wide and varied experience in the five or six years that she has been a trained nurse. Her early home was in Berlin, Ont.

Aged Indian Dies.

Old "Indian Dave" died in his wigwam in Gilford Township a few days ago, where he had made his home for 60 years. He was sure he had passed his 106th birthday. He was known to the oldest settlers in 1836, and was then considered quite old.

Dave claimed to be the son of Chief Nitmup of the Chippewa tribe, but was never recognized as such by his tribesmen. He was known as "Indian Dave," but was recorded as Dave Stocker as a citizen.

He spent the winter in his bark and hide hut manufacturing baskets and bows and arrows, and during the summer traveled about the resorts selling his wares. He is survived by one son, James.

Old Dave was liked by everybody and the citizens of Gilford Township arranged to give him a citizen's burial.

A Private Still?

A private detective is being engaged at St. Catharines to look into the rumor that the "Indian Listers" of this vicinity have a private still where they manufacture the best of whisky for 20 cents a gallon. The still used is said to be a relic of the Scott Act days, when it was kept in active operation in Raleigh.

The Turkish Sultan possesses a solid gold throne, studded with no less than 10,000 pearls as big as filberts.

It's a pity when sick ones drag the stomach or stimulate the heart and Kidneys. That is all wrong! A weak Stomach means weak Stomach nerves, always. And this is also true of the Heart and Kidneys. The weak nerves are instead crying out for help. This explains why Dr. Shoop's Restorative is promptly helping the Stomach, Heart and Kidney ailment. The Restorative reaches out for the actual cause of these ailments—the failing "inside nerves." Anyway test the Restorative 48 hours. It won't cure so soon as that, but you will surely know that help is coming. Sold by all dealers.

WOMAN CLAIMS CHILD.

Child Denies Claim—Former Says She is Her Daughter—Latter Says She is Not.

Paris, Sept. 3.—A strange lost child is perplexing the Paris police. An Armenian mother is claiming the girl as her daughter, but the latter disclaims her mother. The tangle is inextricable. The girl is only 6 years old, but talks with astonishing volubility. She happened of her own accord to call upon a policeman one day, but as she could not speak any apparently known language, he took her to the police station, where all the experts and interpreters at first failed to understand what the girl wanted. Finally, it turned out that she spoke some sort of Armenian dialect, and an interpreter was found.

She then said that she had been taken away from her grandfather's home in Syria by a strange woman, who wanted to take her to America, and who had, in fact, brought her as far as Paris. The little girl said that she had taken the first opportunity to run away from the woman. The police were astonished at the fluency with which the girl talked, and were about to send her temporarily to a home, when the strange woman of whom she had spoken turned up, and said that the child was her daughter. "I am not your daughter," retorted the little one. "I know my mother. She is very different from this person." The police were seriously embarrassed. They put off the inquiry for the day to obtain a second interpreter for the mother, or alleged mother, herself speaks a strange mixture of English and French.

THE WOMAN'S STORY

As soon as the two were again confronted with each other, the precocious child threw up her hands and looked at the young woman in horror. "She is not my mother," she exclaimed. The woman then told her story. She said that she was born at Marseilles, but went to New York when very young. She married an Italian in New York when she was 14 years of age, and had this child. Her husband died the day that the child was born. She kept the baby for one year, then sent her to be taken care of by the child's grandfather in Syria.

Having heard that the grandfather had died, she went to Syria to fetch the child. On the way the little girl showed a terrible temper, and did all the mischief that she could. On reaching the Lyons railway station in Paris she sat down in the waiting room and fell asleep. During that time she alleges, the child took the bag in which she had all her money, amounting to some 3000f., and gave it to some strange woman, who disappeared. When she awoke she slapped the child, who then ran away into the street, and she did not know what had become of her until she saw her picture in the papers.

CONTRADICTING EACH OTHER

The child, who does not understand a word of the mother's language, was then told what she had said, and denied it all. For a whole hour the little one contraticted it in every detail. She said that the woman was not her mother. Until three weeks ago she had never seen the woman. It is not true that her grand father is dead. She knew her real mother very well, for she left Syria only a year ago and got married again in a town not far from Jerusalem.

After this both the alleged mother and the child had a fit of crying, and between the two contradictory statements the police are unable to make out the truth. Curiously enough, however, the child is wonderfully like the woman who says she is her mother.

TRAIN BANDIT FLEES WITH $10,000 PENNIES.

Lone Robber Terrifies Crew, But Mistakes Lincoln Coins for Gold.

Lewiston, Pa., Sept. 3.—One of the most daring train robberies in the history of the state was successfully carried out on the eastern slope of the Allegheny Mountains early today, when a lone highwayman stopped a Pennsylvania railraad express train with a dynamite carridge and at the point of a revolver compelled the crew to carry thousands of dollars in coin and bullion from an express car to a spot in the wilderness.

When the conductor of the train attempted to interfer with the robber's plans, he was shot in the hanc and the bandit succeeded in escaping In the darkness, however, he mistook a bag containing 10,000 new Lincoln pennies for gold coin and staggered away with it, leaving the real gold bullion to be recovered by the railroaders.

When the news of the robbery reached the railroad and express company officials they ordered every available detective from the East and West to the scene in an effort to capture the bandit. Bloodhounds were also put on his track, but late tonight no trace of the man had been found.

DYNAMITE CAP EXPLODES.

The looted train was made up of an engine, three express cars and two sleeping coaches filled with passengers. At about 1.30 a. m., it was running through Lewistown Narrows, a wild mountain gorge, when a dynamite cap on the rails exploded and the engineer brought the train to a standstill. When he looked out to see what the trouble was, he was confronted by a masked man holding a revolver in each hand.

The robber then forced the engineer and fireman to accompany him to the first express car, where the messenger was looking out to discover the cause of the sudden stopping of the train. A revolver was pointed at the messenger's head and, threatening to blow up the car with dynamite, the robber forced the messengers of the two express cars and engine crew to carry all the gold and bullion stacked in the first car to the side of the tracks.

Conductor I. R. Poffenberger of Harrisburg, Pa., who came up while this work was being accomplished, was ordered back by the bandit, who emptied a revolver at him, one of the shots penetrating his hand and the others grazing his body.

Despite the appearance of three passengers who had been awakened by the shooting, the robber calmly ordered the crew back on the train and compelled them to steam away, leaving the bullion beside the track It was recovered later by a posse sent on a special train. When the train was leaving, he called out: "Good bye, and good luck; I hope to see you again."

It was reported tonight that in addition to the pennies several thousand dollars in currency was missing but the express company officials refuse to announce the exact amount of their loss.

No clew to the robber's identity has yet been discovered. He is described as being about five feet eight inches in height and was dressed in dark clothing and wore a slouch hat pulled down over his eyes. He used excellent English, but had a slight foreign accent.

Agent Hamaker of Lewiston sent a safe to the scene of the robbery to receive six bags of pennies on which the seals had not been broken but which had been cut open with a ascertain the contents and abandoned by the robber.

BRIEGEL—MOON.

A fashionable wedding took place at the residence of Mr. and Mrs. John Moon, in Belleville yesterday, when their daughter Florence was married to Mr. Frederick Herman Briegel of Montreal. Miss Aleen McKeown was bridesmaid, and Mr. Walter O. Briegel of Peterborough, brother of the groom, was best man Rev. J. P. Wilson of Lindsay, performed the ceremony. The bride wore white satin with chiffon yoke and sleeves, trimmed with rose point lace and seed pearls. The bridesmaid was in white mull with white hat and yellow trimmings, and carried golden glow, with which flower the house was also decorated. Among the wedding presents was a sterling silver dish, the gift of the Baptist church choir, of which the bride was soloist. Mr. and Mrs. Briegel left afterwards for the West. After a few weeks in the mountains they will take up their residence in Westmount, Montreal.—Lindsay Post.

Killed in an Auto

London, Sept. 1.— Lord de Clifford was killed in an automobile accident today at Bramber.

Lord De Clifford was traveling with his chauffeur from Bralderdown towards Cowfold, Sussex, shortly after noon. He was driving himself. When near the foot of Smalldole hill, where the road is very narrow, he was suddenly confronted by two markey wagons. He applied the brakes suddenly and the car turned over.

A lamp bracket struck him on the head, causing instant death. The body was removed to his home at Cowfold, where Lady De Clifford was staying.

The chauffeur was thrown from the automobile to the opposite bank of the road, but escaped witout injury.

Lord De Clifford's marriage to Eva Carrington, an actress, was a sensation of 1906. He leaves an infant son, heir to one of the oldest titles in the kingdom.

If You Feel Poorly This Spring this Article is Worth Considering

Nothing in life keeps people from advancement like poor health. If the nerves are weak, if the stomach liver, bowels or kidneys, fail to work properly, healthy surely suffers Spring is the hardest time on health in the season when the system calls for active cleansing medicine.

The best plan is to entrust your condition to a physician of reputation like Dr. Hamilton, who has had years of experience in compounding tonics. For the ills and tired feeling of spring Dr. Hamilton says nothing is better than Mandrake and Butternut Pills; and this is well proven in the case of James Burton of Lewistown "I had grip and it left me very weak. The disease settled in my back and side, which ached day and light. I had a nagging cough. My appetite was all gone. My nerves unstrung. I could not sleep well, I struggled against growing pale, thin and weak—but it was no good. Spring brought depressions, overpowering weakness and bad headaches. But my life was spared, simply because I learned of the wonderful merit in Dr. Hamilton's Pills of Mandrake and Butternut. The result was marvelous, I gained rapidly, became strong ruddy, vigorous, perfectly well. I urge every man and woman to use Dr. Hamilton's Pills regularly.

You'll brighten up, have cleaner blood, stronger nerves, better spirits after using Dr. Hamilton's Pills, 25c at all dealers. Guaranteed safe, sure helpful for old and young. 4

A Picture Story.

We have received from The Robt. Simpson Co., Ltd., of Toronto, a little folder entitled "The Evolution of Canadian Commerce" containing a story in picture form of the wonderful development of Canada from the time of the American revolution to the present day. The scenes which probably impresses one most is the little corner store occupied by Mr. Robt. Simpson some forty years ago as compared with the colossal structure now the home of this progressive company, in Toronto. The Times will produce the cuts—seven in all—in a few days, running one cut each day.

Sheffield Choir will Pay Visit to Canada

Will Remain 40 Days in Canada—The Chorus will be Limited to 200 Voices

Liverpool, Sept. 4.—In musical circles the greatest interest is being taken in the scheme of the Sheffield Musical Union, whose members reinforced by affiliated singers from Leeds, Southport, and other festival societies under the leadership of Dr. Coward and Dr. Harris intend in 1911 to tour the whole English-speaking world.

Dr. Harris has visited all the colonies, and has promises of the warmest support and co-operation.

The present intention is to remain some 40 days in Canada, 35 in New Zealand and Australia, and 21 in South Africa. The chorus will be limited to 200, and the keenest competition is being shown amongst singers to secure places. Over 50 tenors alone up to now have applied and other voices in proportion.

The tour will open in March, 1911 when the chorus wil leave Liverpool for Canada. The scheme involves an expenditure of over $250,000.

The works to be performed are, "Messiah," "Ellijah," "Hymn of Praise," "The Kingcom," "Golden Legend," Bach's "Mass in B Minor" Berlioz's "Faust," etc. As a rule, eight concerts—six evening and two afternoon—will be given each week.

FLYING FRENCH FLAG.

Serious Charge Made Against Government Vessels.

The vessel Hope, which is under charter by the Department of Marine and Fisheries for collecting dogfish for the Reducation Works here, is flying the tricolor with a star in the blue at her masthead, and when the manager of the works was asked why he did not fly the red ensign he replied that the one referred to was the correct one and it was there to stay, and it would be a dear job for anyone to attempt to haul it down. It is understood that the incident had been reported to the government at Ottawa.

OFF FOR PERTH.

57th Regiment Left Saturday Night —Will Make a good Impression.

A good turnout of the 57th Regiment entrained at the C.P.R. Saturday night for Perth. The boys left the armories accompanied by the brass and bugle bands, about eleven o'clock and marched to the C.P.R. station. Hundreds of citizens lined George street and commented favorably on the neat appearance of the men. They are sure to make a good impression in Perth. The regiment will return Tuesday morning about 3 a.m.

Dominic Spratt Succumbed to Injuries

Lindsay, Sept. 4.—Dominic Spratt son of a well-to-do citizen, who was shot by a duck hunter yesterday, died earlythis morning. For hours he lay in the Ross Hospital hovering between life anc death, but he gradually sank until life departed.

Spratt was hit in the stomach by a bullet from a 32-calibre rifle in the hands of Jake Smith, a river driver, who was duck shooting. Smith took a pot shot at a mud hen which was sitting on thebank. Spratt, a boy of fifteen, was piling slabs in a lumber yard immediately behind the mud hen, and was hidden from the hunter's sight by a clump of bushes. Smith missed the bird and the ball struck the boy squarely in the stomach.

Smith heard the boy groan as the bullet struck him, and immediately paddled for the shore. Spratt was lying on the ground when he reached him.

"Youshot me, not the bird," the injured boy said.

The parents of the young fellow were notified at once, and were on the scene of the accident in a very shorttime. The ambulance came from the hospital at a gallop, and four doctors were hurried to the assistance of the lad. When the hospital was reached young Spratt was placed on the operating table anc for some time the doctors worked over him in a vain endeavor to extract the bullet. It had entered the body at the stomach, and was finally located lying close to the spine. It was impossible to extract it.

Smith, whose thoughtlessness caused the accident, felt his position keenly. He is employed on a tug boat here and went to work after the accident. Interviewed by the chief of police he told the story much as it is given above.

Mr. Richard P. Spratt, the father of the boy, is a member of the firm of Spratt & Killen, grocers. This firm is the oldest in Lindsay. He is grief-stricken at the accident to his boy, and did not care to make any statements about the matter. The Smith on the grounds that he was brothers and friends of the family feel very strongly about the matter. Steps may be taken to prosecute using a rifle insice the town limits. The friends of the dead boy will not confirm this!

Dominic Spratt was one of the best athletes in town, despite his youth. He was billed for a place on the Junior O.H.A. team that will probably be formed in town the coming winter. He was a crack baseball player and was shortstop for a team that was to play in Port Perry on Labor Day. The boy attended the Collegiate Institute here, but was working in the mill yard during the summer months. He has five brothers and one sister.

Grief is expressed on all sides at the sad occurrence. the boy being well-known in town, and his father a leading citizen. In religion the boy was a Roman Catholic, and Rev. Archdeacon Casey was at his bedside all evening.

The doctors never gave Spratt a chance for life.

Smith is this morning down the river with the tugboat on which he worked. No steps have been taken to prosecute him so far. There will be no inquest.

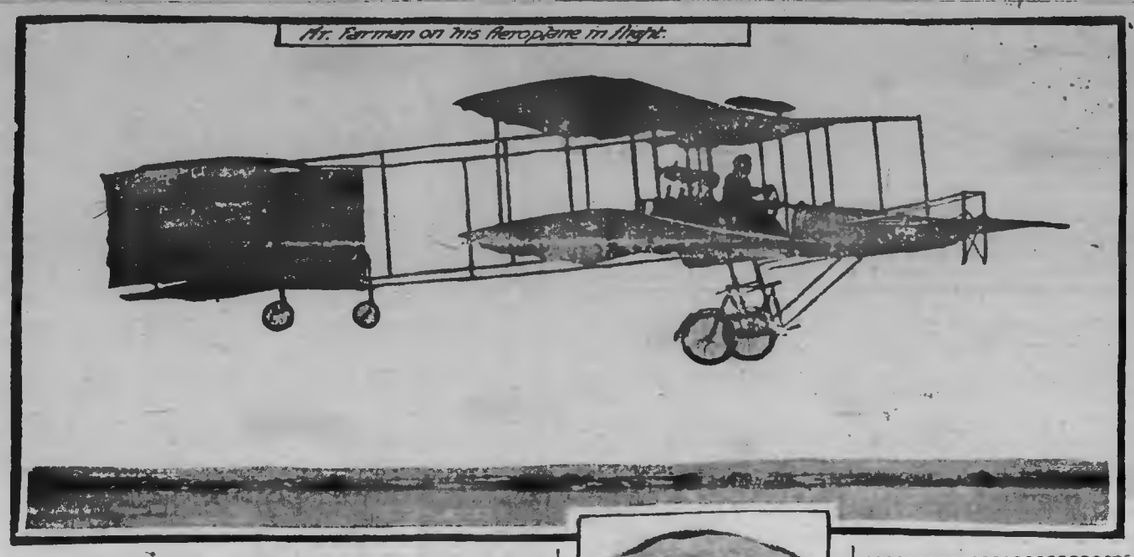
Raspberries at Eagle Mount.

Mr. George Cochrane, high county constable, at his Eaglé Mount cottage Stony Lake, has a triangular plot of ground equivalent to three and a half or four feet square in area. This is planted with "black" raspberries. From this he has gathered this season 27 quarts of fruit. After one day picking three quarts, he picked the next day seven quarts. The plants are in a basin in the rock filled in with about two feet of earth. The plot receives and retains the water from the rains that fall upon the rocks sloping to the basin, and is consequently well watered. This is of interest to fruit growers as perhaps showing that abundance of water, while it certainly stimulates vine growth, probably promotes prolific fruiting.

THE WEATHER.

Fine and a little warmer.



Little was known of Henry Farman notil the big meet at Reims, when he rose from the comparative obscurity in which he was working to fame, by breaking all records with his aeroplane, making 118 miles in little more than three hours.

Two Lindsay Boys have Constructed Aeroplane

(Special to The Times.

Lindsay, Sept. 4.—Two Lindsay boys have invented and constructed an aeroplane, and a trial flight will be made next week. The inventors are Riddick Elliot of this town, and Bruce Ross, son of the Deputy Minister of Finance, at Ottawa. Their aeroplane is named "The Flying Dutchman," and it has taken many weeks for its construction. It looks something like the Curtis aeroplane judging from a photograph of the latter.

Mann Island May be Scene of Big Fight---$80,000 Purse Offered

Mining Capitalists Said to be Ready to Outbid Any Syndicate to Get Jeffries and Johnston Together in Canada— Will Authorities Permit Fight?

(Special to The Times.

New York, Sept. 4.—A senation was sprung in sporting circles here today when it was announced that the fight of the heavyweights for the championship of the world may be held in Canada.

It is certainly a fact that negotiations have been in progress for more than two months, and the Canadians syndicate seems to be on the inside with every prospect of taking the match away from the public.

The Canadians consist of a group of millionaires or near millionaires from the silver mining camps, and they have been represented up to date by Jack Munro, reeve of Elk City, and formerly of Butte, Mont. where he gained wide-world fame by knocking James J. Jeffries off his feet for the first time in his pugilistic career.

Since that time Munroe has been solid with Jeffries, and when the former came down to New York two months ago a plan was submitted to Jeffries that at once caught his fancy. Jeffries stated plainly that the idea looked good to him and he was in. The only thing now that remains to be done is to convince Jack Johnston and the deal is will be framed up at once.

HOW PLAN FRAMES UP.

According to a sport scribe who is on the inside the proposition seems to frame up about as follows:

Canadian syndicate offers a purse of $80,000 for the fight on the guarantee of a group of mining men, whose combined wealth exceeds $20,000,000.

Scene of battle, Elk City, Ont., or Mann Island, Que.

Arena to seat 25,000 people.

Estimated receipts from general admissions at $5 each, $125,000.

Estimated receipts from reserved plan and boxes, $25,000.

Estimated value of moving picture rights, $2,000,000.

Cost of erection of arena, advertising and general outlay, $30,000.

Fight to take place in May, Marquis of Queensbury rules, for the professional championship of the world.

This is without exception the biggest proposition of the kind ever framed up in sporting circles in this country. It is said to have originated at Elk City in a conversation in which Jack Munroe, John Hainwell and Michael Hackett took part. Among the first, it is said, to see the great possibilities of the enterprise in many directions was R. T. Shillington, M.L.A., one of the best lacrosse men of the last decade. Sincethen the capitalists have dropped into the scheme one by one,and the more the men of the north have decided tohave the fight.

WHERE IT MAY TAKE PLACE.

Jack Munroe, who would probably referee the fight if requested, and Jeffries is favorable, would like to have the fight at Elk City. The Cobalt men want it to take place in the big mining camp.

PROBABLE SCENE OF CONTEST

Against this a compromise has been practically effected by which Mann Island, in Lake Temiskaming, may be the scene of the fight if the Canadians land it.

MannIsland is near the center of the lake, but just over the Quebec boundary.

Within twenty four hours' ride by rail there is a population of over twelve million people.

It has Nevada or Oklahoma "beat en to a frazzle" in its accessibility. A fleet of 14 passenger steamers is available for getting the crowds over to the island.

Near the shores of Lake Temiskaming there are 25,000 people,and almost every miner in the belt would take in the fight. The location presents relief from possible interference on the part of the authorities.

WILL OUT BID THE WORLD.

Mining men see in this event possibilities for world-wide advertising of silverland.

It is said that the proposal is now in such shape that the mining people of the north are prepared to out bid the world to land the Jeffries-Johnson fight.

LINDSAY VS. T.A.S.

Ball Game Will Be WorthTrip to Riverside Park.

For the people who are in town today the chief event of importance will be the T. A. S.-Lindsay ball game at Riverside Park, which promises to be one of the best games of the season. Bill Cinnamon has infused his fighting spirit into the team that will represent Scugogville on Monday, and the Lindsayites will have a nine that will give the T.A.S. a hard argumentfor the honors. A year ago Lindsay won a victory over the Abstainers in Lindsay, and the T.A.S. are bound to get revenge on Monday. They will have the same lineup that has been carrying them triumphantly through the City League, and with Quinlan doing the pitching, think that they can hold the Cinnamon crowd for a while, at least long enough to win.

Fiends Wrecked Train Two were Killed and Thity-Five Injured

(Special to The Times.

Pittsburg, Sept. 4.—Two persons were killed and thirty-five others injured, several perhaps fatally, at midnight last night, when a westbound on the Baltimore & Ohio Railroad, running between New York and Chicago, was wrecked at Chewton, Pa., forty-eight miles from this city. The train ran into a broken rail, supposed to have been caused by train-wreckers, and the engine, two Pullmans and two day coaches were thrown from the track The cars immediately took fire.

The engineer and the baggage master of the train were instantly killed.

The dead are:Engineer John Dill, aged 45, of Chicago Junction; Baggage master John Wholleroft of Chicago Junction.

According to General Superintendent R. Finsey, it was a deliberate case train wrecking. The rail on the right side was cut at the point by someone and the spikes pulled on both sides.

OBITUARY

Mr. J. H. Ferguson, manager of the Bank of Nova Scotia, received word Saturday morning of the death of his father, Hon. Senator Donald Ferguson, which occurred on Friday night at 8 o'clock at his home at Marshfield,Prince Edward Island. The deceased was born at East River, P.E.I., in 1839.He was married to Elizabeth Scott of Charlottetown,in 1873,and is survived by her. He was elected by acclamation to the House of Assembly in 1878, for the Cardigan District, of King's County, on the resignation of the sitting member. On the defeat of the Davis administration in 1879 he entered the Sullivan administration as commissioner of public works, and was again elected by acclamation.In 1890 he became provincial secretary and commissioner of Crown lands. In 1882 he contested the Fort Augustus District of Queen's County, and was elected, and was re-elected for the same seat in 1886, 1887 and 1890. In 1891 he resigned his place in the provincial administration and legislature to contest Queen's county for the Commons, and was unsuccesful. He was called to the Senate in 1893 and became a member of the Bowell administration without portfolio in 1894, and continued in the same position in Sir Charles Tupper's administration. Senator Ferguson was in politics a Conservative. He was one of the earliest advocates of Confederation in Prince Edward Island, and remained up to his death a firm believer in Canadian and Imperial unity.

QUADRUPLE TRAGEDY

A TORONTO MAN WAS ONE OF THE FOUR DROWNED.

Four Lives Lost in South Pond Near Pulaski, N.Y., at Noon on Saturday.

(Special to The Times.

Syracuse, N.Y., Sept. 4.—Three adults and an infant were drowned in South Pond, near Pulaski at noon today by the capsizing of a sailing skiff. The party in the boat included Mr. and Mrs. W. Henry Inman and their infant child of Pulaski, Alexander and George Hadden of Toronto, and Sant Barclay of Pulaski. George Hadden and Barcklay were saved, the others were drowned. The bodies of Alexander Hadden and Mrs. Hinman were recovered.

1,000 Sheep Burned in Buffalo.

Buffalo, N.Y., Sept. 4.—A section of the new sheep sheds at the East Buffalo stock yards was burned last night. Nearly 1,000 sheep were burned to death. Loss $50,000.

Terrible Shooting Accident at Stratford

Gun Went off as R. P. Packham was Getting Throngh Barbed Wire Fence

(Special to The Times.

Stratford, Sept. 4.—A terrible shooting accident occurred here this morning, whereby Mr. Robert H. Packham, farmer living on lot 4, concession 2, Downie, immediately adjacent to the city sewer farm,met instant death.

Mr. Packham, who is among the best known farmers of the vicinity, went out to the fields with a shotgun to destroy or frighten off some dogs which were worrying his sheep While getting through a barbed wire fence the hammer of the gun caught exploding the charge, which blew the top completely of Mr. Packham's head.

Portions of the brain and scalp were picked up as far as twenty-five yards distant, and death was instantaneous.

Mrs. Packham was the first to discover the accident, finding her husband's lifeless body lying over the third wire of the fence.

EXTRA TRAINS.

C.P.R. Had Many Extra Trains Running Saturday.

On Saturday night extra trains were required to handle the crowds, while the trains from Toronto were taxed to their utmost arriving from 30 minutes to one hour late.

Four sections of the C.P.R. 5.26 o'clock train were required to handle the exhibition crowds Saturday morning. This rare occurrence denotes to some extent the magnitude of the crowds whose Mecca at present is Toronto.

THOUSAND WHISTLES TOOT A WILD WELCOME.

Copenhagen's Sea-Lit Harbor the Scene of Memorable Demonstration as Dr. Cooke, in Shabby Clothes, Old Cap and Moccasins, Arrives in Danish Capital.

Copenhagen, Sept. 4.—Dr. Frederick A. Cook, the American explorer, returning to civilization from his discovery of the north pole, came into Copenhagen harbor at ten o'clock this morning on board the steamer Hans Egede.

Dr. Cook stood on the bridge of the Hans Egede, wearing a shabby brown suit of clothes that had been loaned to him by a seaman. On his head was a most disreputable old cap, and his feet were clad in leather moccasins. His blonde hair was long and shaggy and his moustache rough and straggling. His complexion was sallow, but his face was stout. The returned explorer wore a constant smile, and altogether he was a strange figure for the centre of such a brilliant scene as greeted his return to civilization.

A bright sun lit up the blue waters of Copenhagen harbor.

Ships and yachts on every side were covered with gay flags, and the shores and piers were crowded with people.

Two big American flags flanked landing stage where Crown Prince Christian and a number of other notable personages waited for one hour the appearance of the Hans Egede. Hundreds of small boats containing sightseers swarmed over the waters of the harbor.

When the Hans Egede was a mile away, slowly coming in with an enthusiastic following of small craft in her wake, Crown Prince Christian and the members of his staff embarked on a launch which took them to the side of the steamer bearing the explorer.

The moment the anchor was dropped the crown prince sprang up the gangway. Dr. Cook at the same time, appeared at the head of the ladder and awaited the prince.

EXPLORER CHEERED.

The people in the surrounding boat who had expected from the newspaper pictures to see a bearded man recognized the explorer for the first time and sent up a loud cheer.

Prince Christian, who is a tall and handsome young man, was dressed in a silk hat and frock coat. He grasped the hand of the explorer, plorer. congratulated him on his congratulated him on his achievement, and welcomed him warmly in the name of the Danish nation and the Geographical Societ

"Nerviline" Cures Rheumatism

And Here is the Proof—A Solemn Statement from a Four-years' Cripple, Who Says "Nerviline" Did It.

"If I had lived through my sufferings another year it would have been a miracle." This is the opening sentence of the declaration made by Mr. J. Eccles Squires, member of one of the best-known families for twenty miles round Sydney. "My hands were drawn out of shape, even my fingers were gnarled and crooked—my lameness, at times, and inability to get about all showed the havoc Rheumatism made with my health. The blessing of it all is that I have heard of Nerviline, and now I am able to tell and advise others how they may get well, too. My system was so weakened that I had to build up with a good tonic, so I took Ferrozone at meals. But I never stopped rubbing on Nerviline—it had a magic influence on my stiff, painful joints, and bottle was rubbed on the painful parts. Nerviline cured me. I am well today—have been well for 4½ years."

CURED 4 1-2 YEARS

You also can cure rheumatism, lumbago, sciatica, neuralgia or any pain or stiffness in the muscles or joints—to do so use Nerviline. Don't let your druggist substitute. Get Nerviline only; large bottles, 25c., or five for $1.00, sold everywhere, or The Catarrhozone Co., Kingston, Ont. 18

JOHN BURNS' PLAN

When John Burns, as President of the local Government Board, puts into effect his plan for solving the vagrant nuisance, the last tie that binds him to the Socialist Labor party will have been broken, and that party is likely to publicly renounce the man whose successful career was once its greatest glory. At the present time John Burns is probably less of a Socialist than three-quarters of his colleagues in the British Government; and although he may claim to be a friend of the workingman, the latter would indignantly deny that the friendship is reciprocal. John Burns did not popularize himself with that class of which he is himself a graduate when he told the British workman to drink less beer, and thus save his money to buy clothing for "the missus and the kiddies." Nor has his unsympathetic attitude toward the spendthrift boards of guardians, which come under his supervision, helped to endear him to the Socialist element.

While the other members of the Government are exulting in the tactics of Lloyd George, which promise to give them a new lease of political life, John Burns has been strongly grappling with the pauper problem.

WHAT THE POLE IS LIKE

Although Dr. Cook, who claims to have discovered the North Pole, has no evidence to support his pretension other than his own word, coupled with the fact that he has been in the Arctic Circle for two years, there is no reason to doubt his story. The Pole is there. Other explorers have been close to it. Every attempt to reach it has been more successful than its predecessor. If one man can come within four hundred miles of the Pole, why should not another, profiting by his experience complete the journey?

The story of the discovery is not to be idly rejected. The thing is a possibility, and has been coming nearer year by year. What good will result is another matter. Years ago Arctic expeditions had a commercial purpose. Thus Franklin's, which was made through our West, was designed to discover the north-west passage to the Orient. As the French tried to reach China by way of the St. Lawrence, so the English expected to arrive at the same destination via Hudson Bay. The Polar adventurers were also somewhat businesslike in their character, for various were the theories current with respect to the Far North. It was supposed at one time, that the spot universally spoken of as the Pole is an open sea, remaining free of ice, notwithstanding its altitude. In this sea there were alleged to be islands stored with wealth. Another was to the effect that it is really a continent, having an excellent climate, rich in every particular, and closed to man only because of the ice barriers by which it is protected. A third story, somewhat fanciful in its details, suggested that the earth is hollow, and that the pole is an entrance by water to an interior that is habitable, and from which already strange birds have escaped. Somewhat similar ideas were once current with reference to Greenland, of "icy mountain" fame. It was confidently alleged that that colony of Denmark contained great fertile plains capable of cultivation, and that these oases in the desert of snow could be seen beyond the ice.

But the speculations that have been indulged in touching the character of the interior of Greenland have proven to be altogether unwarranted. Nature is not guilty of such an eccentricity as the placing of a pastoral country in the middle of an iceberg. And so it is with regard to the Pole. That point on the earth's surface is no doubt indistinguishable, and is merely a part of the great ice-pack that crowns the north. The discovery, therefore, while interesting, is not calculated to be of any great value. At best, it will tend to save lives by rendering further expeditions in search of the pole unnecessary.

GRAND TRUNK PACIFIC RAILWAY.

During the past month a party of editors representing some of the most important agricultural papers in the United States, have been touring Western Canada and on reaching Winnipeg on their return from Edmonton over the line of the Grand Trunk Pacific Railway, wired Mr. Chas. M. Hays, President of the Grand Trunk Pacific at Vancouver who is also in the West on a tour of inspection of the new line in company with Sir Charles Rivers Wilson, President of the Grand Trunk Railway System, and party as follows:—

"We believe that every foot of the land traversed by the road is eminently adapted to grain growing, mixed farming or the keeping of live stock and that it must soon develop into a region of prosperious homes. We also unite in expressing our admiration of the high character and the completeness in construction of the road and road-bed which must soon give the road high rank among Transcontinental Railway Systems."

The party consisted of the following:

Prof. Thomas Shaw of the "Orange Juff Farmer" and Dakota Farmer", St. Paul, Minn.

Herbert Quick, Editor of the "Farm and Fireside," Springfield, Ohio.

John Arthur Dixon, Managing Editor of the "Home Life," Chicago, Ill.

Philip Eastman, Editor of Capper publications including "Nebraska Farm Journal," Omaha, Neb., Missouri Valley Farmer," Topeka, Kan. Farmer's Mail & Breeze, Topeka Capital."

E. E. Faville, Editor "Successful Farming," Des Moines, Iowa.

E. S. Bayard, Editor "National Stockman and Farmer", Pittsburg, Pa.

C. P. Reynolds, Editor of "Prairie Farmer," Chicago, Ill.

The party was also accompanied by Mr. Herbert Vanderhoof, Editor of "Canada West Monthly", Winnipeg, Man. and Mr. R. C. W. Lett, Travelling Passenger and Colonization Agent, Grand Trunk Pacific Ry., Winnipeg.

NEW SCHOOL FOR CANADA.

The medical men of the empire, in session in Winnipeg, have many good good things to discuss. The president, Sir J. Thompson, hints that what Canada wants—what it must have at once—is a school in which the assimilation of the races in our population can be properly examined There are coming the representatives of every country in Europe. Some of them are old enough to be fixed in their habits. Some of them are young enough to readily take up with Canadian conditions anywhere, and Sir J. Thompson says the question of the hour is (What, kind of men is Canada making out of the raw material which Europe is feeding in, to God's mills on this side)" It is an anxious question, and an important one, and the answer will be valued at its real worth when, in time, it is forthcoming.

Don't Risk even a penny—until health returns. And I mean just exactly that.

I am the one physician who says to the sick. "I will, out of my own pocket, pay for your medicine if it fails to bring you help!"

And for 30 years Dr. Sheop's medicines have been used and recommended in every city and hamlet in America. They are positively standard in every community—and everywhere. Then why pay the cash, and at your risk, for other unwarranted and uncertain medicines? Thousands upon thousands have in the past successfully used Dr. Sheop's Restorative.

When the heart nerves fail, how key Sheop's Restorative will bring them back to health again. But best of all, they positively take no money risk whatever. They know that when health fails to return Dr. Sheop will himself gladly pay the druggist for the best. And for that best a full 30 day treatment is freely granted.

First

But write me first for an order.

This will save delay and disappointment.

All druggists sell Dr. Sheop's Restorative and Dr. Sheop's Rheumatic Remedy, but unauthorized to ship "just as good." Remember I have no points, no agents, and no honest and responsible druggist in almost every community, everywhere, to name any "just as good," no pay," medicines to the sick.

Then

Tell me also which book you need.

The books below will surely open up new and delightful ideas to those who care not well. Besides they will be sent you are perfectly free just as you would your physician. My advice and the book

CARE OF FLOWER BEDS.

How to Keep Them Beautiful All Through the Summer.

All flower beds should at this season of the year be kept in proper shape and condition. All seed pods and withered and yellow leaves should be carefully cleaned and picked off. Frequent stirring with the hoe is good, but not deep enough to in any way injure the roots. It is a good idea every time you mow the grass to take a sharp spade and cut the edge of all your flower beds. It keeps the grass from encroaching on the beds and also keeps the beds in their proper shape and form and makes them have a fresh and neat appearance.

By August many of the soft growing foliage bedding plants, such as coleus, alternantheras achyranthus, etc., will be growing freely and should be kept cut back and not allowed to become straggling. To be pretty, beds having plants of this kind should be uniform. The various colors should not be allowed to intermingle. Golden colored plants should not have red foliage ones sticking their shoots up through the yellow, etc. This is easily prevented by constantly pinching. The main point is to commence pinching early and take the tip out of the young growth. In this way you can scarcely see that the work is going on. If, however, you neglect them until the plants are very tall then you leave stems showing, and the beds are unsightly for awhile.

Some beds are greatly benefited by a mulching of well rotted stable manure. It is necessary to shake out all the long straw before using, and if the manure is in large pieces chop it with a spade. Rose beds, cannas, hardy herbaceous and berbena beds are all benefited by mulching. We do not believe it is necessary to thus mulch soft plants, such as the coleus and geraniums, as they grow very well without it. The work of mulching is very simple. All you want to do is to spread the manure over the bed carefully to the depth of about one inch.

How often flower beds in the open air should be watered depends to a great extent upon the character of the soil and variety of plants. If the soil is good stiff loam and you have frequent showers you do not need to water at all. If it is sandy, as near the coast, and the weather dry it is beneficial to water every day. Geraniums seldom need watering when growing in good garden soil. With much water they grow too much to foliage. Cannas and plants of this character do not require much water For them and geraniums we prefer much hoeing.

If using a hose sprinkler to water have just force enough to water without washing the ground. Hold the sprinkler near the ground so the water goes first where you want it Geraniums should not have the flower heads watered if you can avoid it, as it spoils them completely. The evening, after sundown, is the best time to water, as the plants have all night to take up the moisture, and artificial watering is soon evaporated under the combined effects of wind and hot summer sun.

Rainbow Tinted Fishes.

The remarkable brilliancy of color in the fish living about the coral reefs in tropical regions has been often noticed. Brilliant blue with fins and tail of bright yellow, vivid crimson shading off into a more subdued hue, bright green spotted and banded with red, green with long parallel stripes of blue and red, green marked with red above and bright blue below—such are some of the colors displayed by the fish of the Great Barrier reef of Australia. In order to explain such brilliant hues on the principles of natural selection they have been described as "warning colors." The fish are thought to be nauseous or poisonous and to proclaim this by their bright colors. As regards those of the Australian coral reef, however, many of these are said to be excellent eating.

A Bold Defence.

"An enlisted man once put the president of a court-martial in a difficult position," says a writer in Cassell's Magazine. "The court-martial was trying the soldier for some fault or other. When the evidence—and it took an unusually long time—had been given, the president asked the prisoner if he had anything to say in his defence.

"'Well, sir,' said the man, 'I can't see how this 'ere court can sentence me, for Major Jones 'as been reading a paper under the table the 'ole blooming time, and Captain Smith 'as been making me into karicatoor on the blotting pad, and, as for Lieut Brown, 'e 'asn't 'ad his commission a year and don't count anyways!'"

Casting Metals.

As is well known, some metals are unsuitable for casting, while others, like iron, can readily be cast in any desired shape. The property of casting well is said to depend upon whether the metal contracts or expands on solidifying from the liquid form. Iron, like water, expands in solidifying, and hence the solid metal may be seen floating in the liquid iron about it. The expansion causes it to fill the die into which it is poured, and so it can be cast easily. Gold and silver contract in cooling and therefore are not suitable for casting.

The London Pageant.

The site selected for next year's London pageant in that part of Chingford Plain which adjoins Connaught Water has been approved by the pageant authorities. Between the lake and the old hunting lodge of Queen Elizabeth a great horseshoe stand will be built, three times the size of that erected at Fulham for the church pageant. There will be 15,000 performers.

Captured By Police.

Madrid, Sept. 2.—The police of Barcelonia Province have succeeded in arresting Francisco Ferrier, a notorious Anarchist, who has been wanted for a long time in connection with a number of outrages.

It is still believed that he was a member of the gang responsible for the bomb outrage on the occasion of King Alfonso's wedding.

TURQUOISE COPPER

NOT A PROSPECT

400 FOOT TUNNEL—140 FOOT SHAFT

Mines located near Valardena, Durango, Mexico, only six miles by wagon road and three miles straight line from the property of the Guggenheims upon which they have recently erected a $2,000,000 smelter. Sample assays have averaged from $64 to $102 per ton.

Up to the present time, the Turquoise Copper Co., has been practically a close corporation; an initial offering of 100,000 shares has just been made at 25 cents, par value $1.00, full paid and non-assessable. Proceeds will be used to further continue the development work already begun.

We have options on 50,000 shares of this stock and advise immediate purchase at 25 cents per share. It is the intention of The Board of Directors to list the stock on the New York Curb and it should sell at $1.00 per share by the first of the year.

Write now for prospectus and Mining Engineer's report.

LEACH & CO., INC.
STOCK BROKERS--MANCHESTER, N.H.

$90,000---7 Per Cent.

9,000 Shares 7 Per Cent Cumulative Preferred Stock ($10 a Share) Offered at Par with 40 Per Cent Immediate Bonus of Common Stock. We Reserve the Right to Withdraw Offer Without Notice and to Return any Subscription Received Too Late. Previous Offerings Were Immediately Oversubscribed.

MORE THAN A THOUSAND BANK OFFICERS, LAWYERS, PHYSICIANS, MINISTERS, BUSINESS MEN AND OTHERS HAVE BECOME STOCKHOLDERS IN THE CIRCLE PUBLISHING COMPANY WITHIN THE PAST FEW MONTHS.

Presidents and Cashiers of Banks, Presidents and other officers of Insurance Companies and of prominent business concerns who are thoroughly qualified to pass upon the soundness of such a proposition have comended the investment and have put their own money into it.

Many leading Physicians, Ministers and Educators in all the big cities of the United States and several in Europe have very highly endorsed THE CIRCLE MAGAZINE and THE CIRCLE PUBLISHING COMPANY, and have been glad to become part owners in the enterprise.

These men, and a good many splendid women, also, have known THE CIRCLE for several years and have watched it grow better and stronger constantly. They know what a sterling good property it is; they know that it is founded on a plan that ought to success, and they know that it is held always true to that plan; they know from personal experience that its business methods are good, careful, and conservative, yet aggressive and successful; they are convinced, therefore, that there is a large and very profitable career ahead of THE CIRCLE PUBLISHING COMPANY. For these reasons they have been glad of a chance to get some of its stock.

Twice we offered by letter, without any blow of trumpets, Five Thousand Shares of our Cumulative Seven Per Cent, Preferred Stock for subscription. Each time the Five Thousand Shares were promptly over-subscribed before we could finish sending out the letters to the selected list. There are only Twenty Thousand Shares of Preferred Stock in all, therefore more than half was taken up at once, and we have not offered the balance until now.

For a short time we are going to give the same opportunity to those who did not receive our letters: but as the amount is necessarily limited, prompt action will be required.

HERE IS THE PLAN: The Capital Stock of The Circle Publishing Company is $500,000, of which $200,000 is Preferred Stock with 7 per cent. Cumulative dividend, and $300,000 is Common Stock upon which all dividends over and above the 7 per cent. on the Preferred Stock will be paid. Measured by the opportunities for rapid development of the business and by the known earnings of other great magazine and book publishing properties, the dividends on the Common Stock should soon exceed the fixed dividend on the Preferred Stock, and our Plan gives you some of both kinds.

The following extract from an article in a recent number of Leslie's Weekly is to the point:

"HOW A FEW DOLLARS MADE A FORTUNE"

"Among the most interesting commercial facts in this country are the astonishing fortunes which are being made by magazine publishers.

"Every year more than the immense sum of about $80,000,000 is spent in buying advertising space and in buying copies of periodicals. A large portion of this huge amount of money becomes profits for magazine owners.

"The great popular monthly publications have risen to wealth and prominence so quickly that only $100 invested in Munsey's a few years ago is now worth between $10,000 and $12,000, and is earning dividends at the rate of $1,000 a year.

"McClure's Magazine made a profit for its stockholders of 1,000 per cent. in about ten years. The total annual income of The Ladies' Home Journal and The Saturday Evening Post, both of which are owned by the Curtis Publishing Company, of Philadelphia, is not far from $6,000,000. The Cosmopolitan, Everybody's, The Outlook, and others, are immensely profitable.

"Unfortunately, however, magazine readers have rarely had an opportunity to share in these splendid earnings. Nearly all the magazines are in each case owned by a few individuals, who receive all the enormous income.

"A chance to secure an interest in one of the great popular magazines, on a basis that insures absolute safety and gives a liberal share of all the profits of the business, is an opportunity that attracts the immediate attention of the shrewdest investors."

OUR OFFER IS THIS: The par value of all shares is $10. They are full paid and non-assessable. The taxes on the stock are paid in full. Nine thousand shares of the Cumulative 7 per cent Preferred Stock are offered now at ten dollars a share, par. Every subscriber for five shares of Preferred Stock will be given a bonus of one share of Common Stock and will be made also a life subscriber for THE CIRCLE Magazine without additional payment. A subscriber for any multiple of five shares will be given a corresponding number of shares of Common Stock, as bonus, and will be allowed to present a life subscription for THE CIRCLE as a gift to some relative or friend for each five shares of Preferred Stock subscribed. Additional shares of Common Stock may be substituted in lieu of life subscriptions as bonus, or vice-versa. Thus, ten shares of Preferred Stock will entitle the subscriber to two shares of Common Stock and two life subscriptions for THE CIRCLE, or four shares of Common Stock. One hundred shares of Preferred Stock will carry with them a bonus of twenty shares of Common Stock and twenty life subscriptions for THE CIRCLE, or forty shares of Common Stock.

If you can not afford to take five or more shares, you may subscribe for three shares, and with such a subscription we will give you either the life subscription for THE CIRCLE or a bonus of one share of Common Stock, as you prefer.

We must say now, however, that this offer with its bonus is conditioned upon your prompt acceptance, and we reserve the right to withdraw or modify the offer without further notice.

YOU NEED NOT SEND ALL THE MONEY NOW IF NOT CONVENIENT TO DO SO, but write at once, saying how many of the 9,000 shares you will take and how soon you will be ready to pay for them. Ten per cent. of the amount of your subscription should be sent at the time of making the reservation. If more convenient to you the total amount may be divided into several instalments. Please use one of the Application Forms below, or a copy of the same.

Just an earnest word or two: You ought to know something about the "Plan" and aim of THE CIRCLE. We are all deeply in earnest about this matter. Every one of the men and women who now control the editorial and the business policy of the magazine is pledged to the carrying onward to its highest possible success the work of making a great, high-class, popular magazine of world-wide circulation which shall portray and encourage the good in individual, social, business, and political life, rather than the evil; which shall stand for peace rather than war; which shall search out beauty rather than ugliness; which shall build up rather than tear down; which shall constantly plan and labor, and co-operate with those who are planning and laboring, to make this world a better and happier place to live in, both for the poor and the wealthy, for the unlearned and the learned, for the weak and for the strong.

This is not mere rainbow painting. It is a real and definite program, based upon strong convictions and practical plans. We know that there are many splendid men and women who are in sympathy with this program and want to see it carried out. They know, as we know, that there is a positive cure in sun shine and fresh air. The poisonous, ill-smelling places often can be purified and made beautiful just by letting in the sunlight and the sweet winds of heaven. No man can remain a pessimist who will open his eyes and his heart to the good and the beautiful around him. All he need do is to give it just a fair share of his attention. It will surely sweeten his blood, cheer and lift up his heart, lighten his step, brighten the glance of his eyes, and inspire him in his work. There is plenty of evil to fight, and it calls for strenuous and constant effort, but the man who sees nothing but the evil will never be able to overcome much of it. You who will help to support and boldly develop and broaden the work of THE CIRCLE Magasine, until its influence is felt in countless American homes, satisfying the great need, recognized or unrecognised, of American life—you who will help to accomplish this will come closer to the hearts of multitudes of people and do more universal and lasting good than can be done in any restricted field. No single instrument within the grasp of any group of men can be so effective as this great, clean, purposeful magazine in bringing to pass that "Peace on Earth, Good Will to Men," for which the world has been waiting for so many centuries.

This is a business enterprise. We want to make money for ourselves and for our stockholders, and we shall do so; but this business enterprise—this sound, common-sense, money-making enterprise is inspired with an ideal; this corporation has a soul.

Men of long and successful experience in the magazine and book publishing business and in financial affairs make up the Board of Officers and Directors of The Circle Publishing Company.

This additianal capital will be used to increase the circulation and advertising patronage of THE CIRCLE Magazine and to develop the profitable book publishing enterprises of the Company. No magazine in the world possesses more of the real elements of large business profit and immense usefulness to society than does THE CIRCLE. The magazine itself shows tangible evidence, month by month, of the truth of these statements.

We trust you will join with us—that you will write quickly and reserve five, ten, twenty, fifty or more shares of the Preferred Stock, and so have a part in THE CIRCLE work and THE CIRCLE success. Write at once, if possible, filling out one of the blank forms below.

STUDYING ESQUIMAUX.

Government Will Make Further Investigations In North.

The Canadian Geological Survey, under the late Dr. G. M. Dawson, gathered from time to time a large amount of interesting and valuable information regarding the native races. Since the death of Dr. Dawson this portion of the work of the department has been allowed to languish, but this year a fresh start was made in a direction which cannot but prove to be of great historical and ethnological interest, as well as being of particular value in allowing the people of Canada to become better acquainted with their fellow citizens who occupy the vast frozen territory which forms our northern boundary.

The present subject of ethnological research by the department is the Esquimaux race; and it is deemed especially desirable that this work should be resumed amongst them just now, because their habits are rapidly changing and becoming more difficult for scientific study, as the white man penetrates the Far North.

The Esquimaux is perhaps by his natural gifts the most admirable of the native races of Canada. There are no more intelligent and kindly people than the Esquimaux of Northern Canada, and none that so readily respond to courtesy and good will; and yet they are probably the most misunderstood and misrepresented of all native races. The expedition which was fitted out last year for the study of the Esquimaux consists of Mr. V. Stefansson and Dr. R. M. Anderson. The undertaking is by no means a new task to Mr. Stefansson, as it is the second of a series of journeys he has planned to carry out within the next fifteen years, during which period he hopes to visit and study every Esquimaux settlement from East Cape, Siberia, to the east coast of Greenland and the shores of of Labrador.

The present journey is planned to cover two years, one of which Mr. Stefansson expects to spend between Cape Brown and Bathurst Inlet, Canada, the other on the Colville river, Alaska. He believes that near the mouth of the Coppermine river there is a group of Esquimaux who have never seen a white man; these he desires to study while as yet they are uncontaminated by white influence, and before "civilized" ways change their system of living.

Dynamited by Dog.

The news of a very remarkable accident at a mining camp at Hanging Stone Lake, near Gowganda, by which one man was killed and two injured, was brought to Montreal recently by Frederick Dunn, a resident of St. Johns, Quebec, who accompanied from Northern Ontario the remains of Andrew Dunn, the principal victim, for interment at his old home just outside that city.

Andrew Dunn and companions were dynamiting a vein. The fuse was ignited and the men ran, followed by Dunn's collie dog, which picked up the dynamite stick in his teeth. The explosion came just as the dog reached the cabin and dropped the explosive.

Dunn was killed almost instantly, his skull being fractured in two places, and one of his arms and two ribs being broken. One of the other men, Sims, was stunned and badly cut about the neck, while the other miner, Hackett, escaped with a few bruises. The dog, which was the cause of the disaster, bounded away and escaped injury.

A Man of Weight.

People in many Ontario towns know Mr. Holland, of Whitby, who has done excellent work as grand organizer of the Sons of Temperance. Mr. Holland is a big man—not only big in achievement, but big in person. He related on one of his tours how he had gone into a certain place to be weighed, but as the scales went up to only two hundred and fifty pounds, he could not succeed.

One time he went to the little village of Port Robinson, where the lodge was presided over by a demure but droll Worthy Patriarch. After the customary preliminaries Mr. Holland was admitted, and as he made his ponderous way to the platform the halting Worthy Patriarch remarked dryly:

"Well! they told me Holland was coming, but I think it's all of Holland and part of Belgium."

She Didn't Go Back.

Miss Agnes Laut, whose address on "yellow journals" and how they may be got rid of, created such a stir at the International Congress of Women, has ever been noted as one with views of her own and with a courage of her convictions. In Winnipeg she is remembered as a delicate girl with definite opinions and an independent spirit that entirely belied her looks.

When Miss Laut left Winnipeg to try her fate in the big world of journalism and literature, there were not wanting those who predicted that she would soon be back at her desk in The Free Press office. Her first work was the reporting of the meetings of the Joint High Commission in Quebec, and in this she succeeded in a way that ranked her work with that of the ablest Ottawa and Washington correspondents. From that time her rise has been steady, and though she has several times visited Winnipeg, she has evinced no tendency to occupy her old desk.

The Moose.

The moose is the largest animal now existing of the deer family, standing often as high as six feet, and sometime weighing 1,200 pounds; but notwithstanding its great size, it is very fleet of foot. When brought to bay, a blow with its fore foot or horns is a very serious matter for the huntsman. Often when pursued by man they have their intelligence to thank for their escape, for sometimes, if closely followed, they double in their tracks and stand motionless in some thicket until the hunter has slipped by, when they quickly glide away. At other times they make such a commotion as to unnerve any but an experienced hunter, and thus escape.

Tickling or dry Coughs will quickly loosen when using Dr. Shoop's Cough Remedy. And it is so thoroughly harmless, that Dr. Shoop tells mothers to use nothing else, even for very young babies. The wholesome green leaves and tender stems of a lung healing mountainous shrub give the curative properties to Dr. Shoop's Cough Cure. It calms the cough and heals the sensitive bronchial membranes. No opium, no chloroform, nothing harsh used to injure or suppress. Demand Dr. Shoop's. Accept no other. Sold by all dealers.

ADVERTISE IN THE TIMES.

Widows' Caps.

Widows' caps are as old as the days of Julius Cæsar. An edict of Tiberius compelled all widows to wear one under the penalty of a heavy fine and imprisonment.

Shooting Flying Birds.

In Smith's "History of Kerry," published in 1754, is found the statement that the art of shooting flying birds was taught to the Irish people by the French refugees who came over after the revocation of the edict of Nantes and that to this circumstance is due the decline and disappearance of falconry.

Bicycles.

The first bicycle with pedals was made about 1880.

St. Paul's, New York.

The oldest public building in New York is St. Paul's chapel, at the corner of Broadway and Fulton street. It was built in 1766, ten years before the Declaration of Independence.

A Nincompoop.

A nincompoop was originally a person of unsound mind (non compos mentis).

England Is Exclusive.

The Victoria cross has never been awarded to a woman. It is not designed for female decoration. In Germany heroines are decorated with the iron cross and in France with the Legion of Honor.

Land and Water.

There is three times as much sea as land in the world.

Hats Were Once a Luxury.

In the reign of Elizabeth the wearing of hats was considered a sign of luxury. By an act of parliament every person above the age of seven years and under a certain degree was obliged on Sundays and holidays to wear a woolen cap made in England and finished by some of the fraternity of cappers.

Icebergs.

For every cubic foot of an iceberg that is above the surface of the water there are eight cubic feet below.

Personal Taxes in Holland.

There are five kinds of personal taxes levied in Holland, as follows: Government tax, including business and income tax, and capital tax, city income tax and provincial tax.

Haydn's Drum.

The drum which Haydn once played at a festival in 1740 is still preserved in Hamburg.

The Boomerang.

The Australian aborigines are not the only users of the boomerang, nor were they the first to use that missile. The Egyptians knew all about it, just as they seem to have known all about everything else.

The Gravitation Theory.

The theory of gravitation is a discovery attributed to Newton and bears date of 1687 notwithstanding that the same idea was advanced by Kepler seventy years before.

Great Britain's Crown.

The present crown of Great Britain was constructed in 1808 with jewels taken from old crowns and others furnished by command of the queen. It contains 4 large pear shaped pearls, 273 small pearls, 147 table diamonds, 1,273 rose diamonds, 1,363 brilliant diamonds, 5 rubies, 11 emeralds and 17 sapphires.

A Dutch Custom.

A piece of white muslin tied round the bell handle of a house in Holland informs intending visitors that a case of infectious disease is in the dwelling.

The Shape of the Earth.

That the earth is round was not a generally accepted theory in the time of Columbus, though Thales taught and Pythagoras demonstrated the theory several centuries before the Christian era.

South African Winter.

The South African winter begins toward the end of April and lasts until September.

Parepa Rosa's Voice.

At the peace jubilee in Boston, 1869, Mme. Parepa Rosa's voice was distinguishable above 12,000 singers, an orchestra of over 1,000 instruments and in a hall where the audience consisted of 40,000 people.

Uninhabited Islands.

Between Madagascar and the coast of India there are about 16,000 islands, only 600 of which are inhabited, but most of which are capable of supporting population.

Korean Grass.

The Korean grass used in the manufacture of grass cloth is grown very thickly and is usually cut the second or third year after planting the roots. The grass reaches a height of four to five feet and with a proper start and under favorable conditions yields, it is roughly estimated, about 2,000 pounds to an acre.

Mexican Postal Law.

The Mexican postal law does not require the postal department to deliver mail addressed to a city on which the name of the state also does not appear.

A Rough Diamond.

An uncut diamond looks very much like a bit of the best gum candy.

It's a pity when sick ones drug the stomach or stimulate the heart and Kidneys. That is all wrong! A weak Stomach means weak Stomach nerves, always. And this is also true of the Heart and Kidneys. The weak nerves are instead crying out for help. This explains why Dr. Spoon's Restorative is promptly helping the Stomach, Heart and Kidney ailment. The Restorative reaches out for the actual cause of these ailments—the failing "inside nerves." Anyway test the Restorative 48 hours. It won't cure so soon as that, but you will surely know that help is coming. Sold by all dealers.

Cosgrave's Beer

Words of praise have ever prevailed in advertising "copy." That a producer should wax enthusiastic over his own wares is but human. But it's the praise of the consumer that counts—and it is to a discrimin ting and critical public that "Cosgrave's" refers you

It is safe to say that no product, of any kind, enjoys a more enviable reputation than does this same Cosgrave Beer of Toronto in markets where it is offered.

Its self-evidenthonesty of purpose, purity, brilliancy, body, and every other attribute that goes to make a perfect beer are ever in evidence.

HOW TO TELL

If the Kidneys and Liver are Not Acting Well.

Thousands die every year from aggravated kidney distress that could have been saved if they only knew.

Your back may ache, you think it's tiredness or physical weakness.

You grow irritable and nervous—it's put down to loss of sleep.

Joint, ache, muscles get sore,—that's all put down to bad weather.

Then digestion gets poor, appetite fades away, color bleaches, spirits droop.

Can't you see it's all from your over-worked kidneys, which can't keep the body clear of poisons that are now surging through the whole system.

Cure your kidneys with Dr. Hamilton's Pills.

"When I was so stooped and back weary, so lame and sore with kidney and bladder trouble, I cured myself quickly with Dr. Hamilton's Pills," writes C. C. Ferrier, a well known merchant in Plainsville. "Dr. Hamilton's Pills touched the spot at once gave my back ease, lifted depression and weariness, made a new man of me. I can also say for a good spring medicine to clear and enrich the blood Dr. Hamilton's Pills have no equal."

The housewife whose aching back makes every little duty a burden, the working man who is tired all day and can't rest at night, whose back aches, and whose feet swell—these people have kidney trouble. Women whose kidneys are sick, suffer continually from blind and sick headaches faint and dizzy spells, bearing down pains, sharp twinges when stooping distressing urinary troubles, aching muscles, and joints lack of appetite, and loss of sleep, teach the cause. Cure the kidneys. Use Dr. Hamilton's Mandrake and Butternut Pills, which have cured thousands, 25c. at all dealers. 7

An exciting runaway took place Friday night on Hunter street, east, when a horse driven by an Otonabee farmer took fright and made a wild dash for liberty. The animal was left standing just east of the Hunter St bridge where it became frightened and started away. It ran along to Mark street where it turned and went south. When caught it was found that no serious damage had been done.

What Are They Worth?

ARE the eyes worth at least five hundred dollars per year to any man, woman or child. You would spend five dollars per year upon them if necessary would you not. How much do they cost you? How much do you spend for your feet your nats, Your Teeth, etc. Some wait until they must see about their eyes and would give hundreds of dollars but find it too late. Many parents bring their children that we may examine their eyes and see whether or not they need glasses. In childhood is the time to both remedy and prevent eye troubles. Again we ask what are your eyes worth to you and what to the child? We devote exclusive attention to the eyeglasses and artificial eyes.

Gun was Accidentally Discharged and Mr. C. Hicks is Dead

Another life has been sacrificed as the result of the accidental discharge of a firearm.

The victim of the accident is Clarence E. Hicks, son of Mr. Lorne Hicks, 30 Park street. The second party in the regrettable affair is Clifford Chapman, a brother in-law of the dead man. It appears that the two men decided to spend Monday afternoon shooting, and both went off in the direction of Jackson Park. Their wanderings finally brought them to a point near the Quarter line, immediately west of the park and on the Omemee road. Noticing a number of squirrels running about Chapman decided to try a shot. As he was taking aim, the squirrel jumped out of sight, and as Chapman was in the act of lowering his shot gun, his finger touched the trigger and the contents of the gun entered the left leg of Hicks who for some reason or other had stepped a couple of feet in front of his friend. The shot entered the muscles below the hip bone and tore the flesh in a horrible manner, and causing the loss of a great quantity of blood which caused him to become very weak. Chapman immediately ran to a farmer's house for help, but un fortunately everybody was absent. Soon after, however, he espied a number of men at work in a field who rushed with him to the scene of the accident, and the injured man was taken to Tully's farm house. This was shortly after four o'clock. Word was sent to the city and an endeavor made to get the services of Dr. Scott, but he could not be found until after six o'clock. When notified he hurried to the farm house and the patient, after his injuries had been attended to, appeared to be in a satisfactory condition but as the evening lengthened he took a turn for the worse and death resulted about 11 o'clock.

The victim of the sad calamity was about 29 years of age, and had for some time been engaged at Collier and Cunningham's. He was a tool-maker by trade, and was well known in the city.

The funeral will take place on Thursday afternoon at 2 o'clock, from his father's residence, 30 Park street.

Otonabee Navigation Co's. Successful Season

The passenger traffic upon the Kawartha lakes and adjacent streams has about ceased for 1909. The tourist season is practically over and the freight business is decreasing. For these reasons the steamers Otonabee and Manita of the Otonabee Navigation Co. are being laid up for the winter. The two boats arrived in the city on Monday and they are being prepared for their long rest. The steamers Monarch and Water Lily, belonging to the same company, will continue in operation until the upper lakes freeze up. They will be devoted entirely to towing, and they will have a busy month or so yet.

The past season has been a most successful one. It has far exceeded all other seasons for the amount of business done and the profits made. The Otonabee was kept on the jump practically all the time and many night runs were made to connect with the excursions. The big steamer carried more excursions this year than ever before and she had a great many heavy loads and not infrequently the boat had to pull out and leave many passengers on the wharf. The year's success speaks volumns for the capable and energetic general manager, Ald R. Hicks. Although that gentleman only took hold of the company last spring, he introduced a business system which was sound and coupled with it an enthusiasm which was bound to make the season a success. Manager Hicks worked hard and he deserves all the credit coming to him

The trip from Peterborough to Lindsay on the Otonabee became very popular, and it was financially a success. The Lindsay people also took well to the Otonabee and patronized every trip beyond expectations. Of course the trip between these two cities is without doubt one of the most beautiful in all Canada, bar none, and the people of this district known how to appreciate it.

Next year the Otonabee Navigation Co will have a larger fleet and they will cover more territory.

Cavan Twp. Swamp Again Before Council

Peterborough has lost practically all the northern trade and every business man in the city has felt the effects of the loss. The trade was diverted from Peterborough to Lindsay because Peterborough slept that sleep of self-satisfaction which always ends disastrously. Lindsay was wide awake and got the railways and incidentally got the business. Now the question comes up "will Peterborough try to hold the little county trade she has or will she continue to sleep and allow smaller towns to make inroads upon and undermine her commerce? The people of Cavan asked the city to help them to build a road through a swamp so that the distance to Peterborough will be greatly shortened. The council has already turned down the request but another letter has been received from Mr. McNeil, of Cavan, asking that the matter be reconsidered before finally thrown out. It might be well for the council to give the question at least a little thought. The letter is as follows:—

To the Mayor and Aldermen of the City of Peterborough.

DearSirs:—I have learned with the deepest regret that you have decided not to make an appropriation to assist in the construction of the 14th concession road of Cavan. The council of the township of Cavan has spent a large amount of money to make this work feasable and that too with the assurances of assistance from your city. You cannot form an idea of the benefits your city derive without seeing for yourselves. What I would suggest is that the mayor and council fix a time to visit the work and notify the Cavan council and representatives of that body will meet you at Dunlops corners and show you what has been done already in the swamp. I feel sure that such a visit would be of interest to your honorable body as well as enabling you to form a more correct idea of the benefits the city will derive from this work. The Cavan council, will, I feel sure defray the expense of such a trip, I mean the livery hire. Trusting that you will consider this matter favorably, I remain,

Yours truly,
CHAS McNEIL.

The Reason
Postum builds up the human body to a prime condition of health, is that when coffee is left off, the drug effects of its poison—caffeine—disappear and the elements in Postum unite with the albumen of food to make gray matter and rebuild the delicate nerve centres all over the body and in the brain.
This sets up a perfect condition of nerve health, and the result is that the entire body feels the effect of it.

HARRY WEIR HURT.

Fell from Scaffold at Top of Dr. Marshall's New House.

About three o'clock yesterday afternoon, Harry Weir, a painter, fell from the scaffold he had erected in front of Dr. Marshall's new house, near the roof. The unfortunate man put the scaffold up himself for the purpose of painting the wood work. It was of a very flimsy nature and one end gave way letting Weir down with great force. Before striking the ground he fell across a plank doing considerable injury to his right arm and side. Dr. Marshall was called and had him removed to the hospital.

At the hospital it was discovered that his right shoulder was badly bruised and two ribs on the right side were broken. The man was badly shaken up. but his injuries are not serious unless some internal trouble develops in a day or two. In falling Weir struck his shoulder on the brick pillar in front of the main entrance and that threw him sideways on the plank connecting the two pillars. The fall was a good 30 feet and that the man survived at all is remarkable.

FORMAL OPENING.

GibbonBusiness College Began Business Yesterday Morning.

Yesterday morning the Gibbon Business College was formally opened with a fair number of students in attendance. Mr. Gibbon arrived in the city just a week ago and his marvellous energy was amply demonstrated by the opening of the college in so short a time. He will have a competent staff of teachers to assist him in his work and it is his intention to make the college one of the best in the Province. There is no doubt that Mr. Gibbon will succeed in his object and that he will also receive a large number of students. He will also be a valuable citizen to Peterborough as he is a public-spirited man and takes an interest in his surroundings.

CADETS COMPLIMENTED.

Splendid Report from Lt.Col. T. D. R. Hemming, Inspecting Officer.

The Peterborough Collegiate Cadet Corps has been highly complimented by the inspecting officer, Lt. Col. T. D. R. Hemming, C.S.O., E. O., and the citizens might well feel proud of them. Below will be found the report of the remarks:—

PRESENT ON PARADE.

Officers	14
N.C.O. and men	120
	134
Total strength	150

Arms and accoutrements — Very good (suitable for No. 1 Company.
Squad drill—Very good.
Company drill—Very good.
Battalion drill—Excellent by Cadet Capt. Hall (act. major).
Manual exercise—Good (No. 1 and 2 Companies.
Firing exercise—Good (No 1 and 2 Companies.
Ceremonial drill—Very good.
Armory—Well kept and dry.
Officers—Very good.
Extended order Excellent "Bysignal all ranks").

GENERAL REMARKS.

The above Cadet Corps has made excellent progress during the past year and are still being drilled as a 4 company battalion. The officers and section commanders are very well up in their work, good work of command and lots of control. All ranks very steady and no talking. The Board of Education insists on all students belonging to this organization unless medically unfit. Only one company has arms, the remaining three have requested to be armed with the short Snyders. The principal is endeavoring to uniform this corps before another year, also organize a bugle band. Lieut. T. E. Hodgeson, 57th Regt., deserves very great credit for the organization and drill of the corps. During the inspection he did not interfere in any way.

(Sgd.) T. D. R. Hemming, Lt.-Col C.S.O., E.O.
Inspecting officer, P.T.O.,

From Headquarters—

Remarks—This is a very creditable report and most satisfactory. Compliment officer commanding, principal of the school and Lieut. Hodgeson, 57th Regiment, upon progress made. Efficiency in battalion drill and extended corps especially noted. Why has delay occurred in arming three companies.

Col. A. G.

TOOK POISON.

Ashburnham Woman Tried to End Her Life.

Running into the home of Mr. Frank Adams, 50 Robinson street, Ashburnham, on Monday, Mrs. Edward Carpenter, 52 Robinson street stated that she had taken a dose of poison. The woman appeared to be sick and Mr. Adams at once summoned medical aid. Drs. Halliday and Amys were soon on the scene and after temporacy relieving the woman, she was removed in the Dan Spence ambulance to Nicholls Hospital. Yesterday morning she was reported to be out of all danger. Mrs. Carpenter took a small dose of corrosive sublimat which is deadly poison. Jealousy is said to have been the motive for the act.

THE STRIKE OVER.

Miners are Returning to Work at the Coal Mines.

Montreal, Sept. 7.—Mr. Alexander Johnston, former member of Parliament from Cape Breton, who was at the Windsor, reports that the strike at Glace Bay "is settling itself."

"There is nothing now to be done," said he, "but to wait for the end. The men are gradually breaking away from the United Mine Workers and coming back to work."

"Did Premier Murray intervene to negotiate for a settlement?" was asked.

"No," was Mr. Johnston's reply, there was no need of negotiation; the strike is settling itself."

"The foreign organization had to be driven out sooner or later. It is being done so thoroughly, too, that they are not likely ever to come back again."

Does the Territory of Arctic Region Belong to Canada?---The Question Before Imperial House

Are in Danger of Tidal Wave

Monterey, Sept. 7.—Sota la Marina, and the surrounding country in which are many American oil men, has been overwhelmed by a tidal wave, and the inhabitants of the district have taken refuge in the hills, according to a despatch to General Trevino, commanding the military zone.

The message came from the alcalde of the town of Pres Aldama. The loss of life is not stated.

Will Peterboro' Have a Wireless Telegraph?

A brand new proposition has been placed before the city council which that body will do well to give its very careful consideration. Peterborough must be kept in the front ranks All the new inventions which save money and time for the citizens and the business people must be adopted If the council does not do it then it will be hard to find any individual or body of men who will. The new thing is a wireless telegraph station, and when it is gone into carefully it will no doubt appeal to the good business judgment of the aldermen. The proposition was received in the form of a letter from the Lepel Wireless System, and was in part as follows:—

The company asked the city to consider the installation of a wireless telegraph and telephone system for Peterborough.

Some predominent features in lavor of the Lepel Wireless System are:

A low tariff rate for messages, they being able to supply service to any point in the Dominion and to a large number of stations in the United States at a rate of one cent a word up to 25 words, and one cent for every two words above that number, this rate being general and applying to service between two stations of the company irrespective of distance.

Lepel wireless service is absolutely free from interference on account of weather or atmospheric conditions, there being no wires or poles to maintain and service being equally efficient under disturbed conditions of atmosphere as well as on clear days.

On the point of cost, the cost of installing the Lapel Wireless station capable of sending and receiving 20,000 words per day of 12 hours, being from $1,500 to $2,500.

The company stated that if the city was prepared to spend that amount of money they would instal the station at once.

Harold Payne Meets Tragic Death in a Mill

Warsaw, Sept. 7.— Harold Payne, son of S. R. Payne, of Payne and Taylor, the local millers, was instantly killed this morning at Bridgport, ten miles from Berlin, Ont., word to this effect having just been received by his parents here, who are naturally prostrated with grief.

No particulars of the tragic affair have been received except that the unfortunate man was caught in a belt. He left here a month ago to accept a position in the mill of Shirk and Snider.

The deceased was nineteen years of age and was well known in this district aswell as in Peterborough, where he attended the Collegiate Institute. His many friends will be deeply grieved to learn of the accident.

He is survived by his parents and one sister, residing in Warsaw. The funeral will take place on Friday.

The Coal Strike is Nearing an End

(Special to The Times.

Glace Bay, N.S., Sept. 7.—Two conferences between the representatives of the U.M.W. and the coal company took place at the offices of the company on Union street on Saturday evening. The Deputy minister of labor acted as the go-between.

The company offer to recognise the U.M.W. provided the U.M.W. will drop all outstanding and proposed actions against the company.

This absolute release of actions it is thought that the settlement the U.M.W. declined to accept. is nearing completion.

The strike has been in progress ten weeks, and the losses to the men and to the company aggregate over a million dollars.

Thirty-Year-Franchise Sent Back to Com. to be Reconsidered

For two hours last evening the Committee of the Whole Council talked about the thirty-year franchise for the Peterborough Light & Power Company. This was nearly the 'steenth meeting on this subject, and as one alderman remarked after it was all over. "Well we got a little more information." The result of all the talk was the recommendation of several changes and the sending back to the Manufacturers' Committee of the agreement to again take it up with the city solicitor and have a bylaw drawn ready for the council to give its first and second reading before submitting it to the ratepayers. A special meeting will be called for this purpose only.

Board of Education in Regular Session

The regular monthly meeting of the Board of Education was held in the secretary's office last night, when routine business was transacted.

COMMUNICATIONS.

The following communications were received and dealt with.

From Miss S. Grant Davidson of the kindergarten department asking for leave of absence for one year, beginning October 1st, 1909, as she desires to visit foreign countries.

From Miss Ruth E. Carlisle resigning her position as teacher on the Public school staff, to date from Sept. 1st.

From MacGregor & Reid offering to instal six enamel iron drinking fountains 5x18x6, in place of those now in the King Edward school, and made complete for $250, or would put two in basement for $85.

From Adamson & Dobbin offered to make alterations in the plumbing of the King Edward school for $118

From Prof. Henri Fontaine, asking to be appointed teacher of conversational French at a salary or to be allowed the free use of a room in the Collegiate to teach a class or classes under the management of the board and he will collect fees from the students.

From James Drain asking board to pay him $2.15 for window guards he bought to protect his windows from the boys of the No. 5 Ward school.

From the Monarch Typewriting Co. asking for a share of the board's typewriting business.

When the digestion is all right, the action of the bowels regular, there is a natural craving and relish for food. When this is lacking you may know that you need a dose of Chamberlain's Stomach and Liver Tablets. They strengthen the digestive organs improve the appetite and regulate the bowels.

Dr. A. W. MacPherson, city medical health officer, has received a report from Dr. Amyot, the Provincial Bacterialogist, in connection with samples of city water sent to him for inspection. He reports that the water is slightly contaminated, and that while it is not bad it is safer to boil the water before using. Dr. MacPherson therefore suggests that the citizens should take this warning and boil the city water before drinking it, believing that it is better to be on the safe side in so important a matter as health.

Sir Gilbert Parker will Ask Premier Asquith if the Territory Just Discovered Does Not Belong to Canada

(Special to The Times.

London, Sept. 7.—The question of the ownership of the land of the North Pole is to come up in the House of Commons. Sir Gilbert Parker has given notice of his intention of asking Premier Asquith whether this territory is not considered as belonging to Canada, and if Dr. Cook has planted the American flag there, whether or not that gives the United States any right of possession over the region.

"The honor of planting the national flag at the North Pole undoubtedly belongs to America," said Lieut D. H. Shackleton, the English explorer, who recently led an expedition into the Antarctic region today.

City Council Decides to get Specifications for Isolation Hospital

It was a very dull session the council held last night. Too much time was occupied in the committee room to permit of much business being taken up in the council. It was decided, however, to get the specifications and tender for the isolation hospital ready for a special meeting of the council.

Those present were: Aldermen Duffus, Hicks, Morgan, Bradburn, Phelan, Morrow, Metheral, Turner, Gillespie and Buller.

The minutes of the last meeting were taken as read and adopted.

COMMUNICATIONS.

The following communications were received and dealt with:—

From the Board of Railway Commissioners of Canada, notifying the council that their application to construct a sewer under the G.T.R. tracks at Reid street had been granted.

From Sam Moore applying for position of janitor of new public library.

From Geo. W. Wegg applying for the same position.

From Dumble & Johnston on behalf of Thomas Mitchell, lessee of the city farm, claiming $50 damage from the city caused by the small pox tents being placed on the farm.

From R. H. Hunter, who is building a residence between London and McDonel streets, on George street, contrary to the building bylaw, asked to be allowed to proceed with work as at present. He pointed out the injustice of the fire bylaw.

From Weir & O'Brien, coal and wood merchants, complaining about being taxed for street watering on Robinson street, and that street is not watered.

From the Peterborough Cereal Company enclosing the declaration which is required by the city before the fixed assessment is allowed.

From Mrs. John Cacigan notifying the council that the sewer in Ward 5, which empties into the "cess pool" was leaking into her well and the water was not fit to use. If not remedied at once she would come on the city for damages.

When the question of the isolation hospital came up Ald. Hicks said that he did not think it was at this time to increase the fixed assessment of the city. He would oppose the construction of such a building only on those grounds.

Ald. Bradburn pointed out that the maintenance of a poor building would be equal to the maintenance of a good one and there would still be the difference between the interest and sinking fund of the good and poor building. The committee had gone thoroughly into the matter and they could not find anything cheaper that would answer the purpose of this city. If anyone could suggest anything different that would accomplish the same purpose his committee would be glad to go into it.

The mayor asked Dr. MacPherson to give the council some light on the subject, and the medical health officer did so. He said the plans called for an hospital that would be up-to-date, although there were a few extras that could be made but that are not necessary in this city yet.

The Property Committee was instructed to have specifications prepared and tenders called. Then the Committee of the Whole will meet and deal with it.

Ald. Morgan took another crack at the chairman of the Board of Works because the sidewalk gang had not been sent to Ashburnham as promised.

Ald Phelan answered the member from Ashburnham and they had a few words about as warm as usual.

It is understood that the gang will go to Ashburnham in a few days.

The time was extended to permit a couple of bylaws to be passed and the council then adjourned.

Fire Chiefs of Ontario Formed an Organization Chief Howard's Paper

Chief Howard of the Fire Department, arrived home from Toronto last night on the midnight after having attended the first meeting of the Fire Chiefs' Association of Ontario. It was really the organization and and it was successful in the extreme There were 25 fire chiefs present from all parts of the Province and all were enthusiastic over the prospects of a great association.

The meeting was held in the Lombard street fire station and was presided over by Chief Ten Eycke of Hamilton and Secretary Chief Howard of Peterborough, took the minutes. The delegates were given a royal welcome by Controller Graham, chairman of the Reception Committee and Ald. Church, Chief Thompson and the Firemen of the city. The chief entertained the guest to an automobile ride around the city and presented them all with tickets for the exhibition.

The first business was the president's address and the opening ceremonies and then followed an address by Chief Howard, which was as follows;—

Mr. President, and Gentlemen,—There are a number of important matters to be dealt with that each and every fire chief should take a keen interest in. It is a duty we owe the municipalities we represent.

One of the reasons for organizing a Provincial Association of Fire Chiefs, is to enable us to give more attention to local conditions that cannot be given the required attention at the international meetings. At the present time there is no uniform rule for the equipping of fire departments with the necessary appliances and the required number of men to man the apparatus.

We find some cities and towns spend a great deal of money on their fire departments while other places neglect this important part of municipal government until they are visited by a disastrous fire. When that time comes the municipality is crippled financially to such an extent that they are unable to provide ways and means, even though they have the desire.

If sufficient pressure could be brought to bear upon the government, legislation may be enacted to overcome these difficulties, and this by relieve members of municipal councils of a great deal of responsibility, and so avoid the stern opposition that is so often forthcoming from people who are opposed to advancement.

The matter of insurance rates is something that might be taken up by this association. We find some places who pay very little attention to their fire department, have as good a rating as other places that keep pace with the times. In my opinion this all important matter should be under the control of the Dominion Government. These are subjects for much thought, and I trust the gentlemen who have assembled here today will give these matters due consideration, so that in times these obstacles may be overcome.

This association as a fraternal society will undoubtedly in due time, become a power for good. I have merely thrown out these hints for the purpose of bring out discussions. It may be that my ideas are not feasible, but if such a thing as government legislation in these matters is possible, I feel confident we will receive the support and co-operation of every municipal council in the Province.

There was considerable discussion on the address and it was sent on to the next meeting for further consideration.

The convention then drafted a constitution and a set of bylaws and ordered the secretary to have them printed.

Votes of thanks were extended to Chief Thompson of Toronto, Capt. Dunn and the firemen of the Lombard street station for the many courtesies shown and for the valuable assistance rendered. The first convention was then adjourned and the organization will be continued throughout the year, and it is expected that there will be a hundred or more chiefs present next year.

A boon to Stock Raisers

To Know How to Cure Colic, Distemper, Colds, Swellings, Etc.—Saves Thousands Each Year.

It is matter of vital importance to every farmer, horse owner and stock-raiser to know exactly what to do when one of his animals is taken suddenly sick.

The letter of Mr. Frank F. Dullerton, which we print below, gives information of inestimable value, and tells of his experience in curing ailing stock during the past thirty-eight years.

SAVED $1,000 BY NERVILINE

"Several years ago when my horses took colic I used to give them Cayenne Pepper in hot milk, but in a few cases only did it help, and because I had no proper means at hand I lost several valuable animals. Some one told me of the success Mr. Wendling, of Bloomville, Ont., had in his racing stables with "Nerviline", so I laid in a supply. It wasn't very long before Nerviline saved the life of a valuable stallion of mine, which was worth at least $1,000.00. This horse was taken with colic, and would have died, had it not been for Nerviline. I have used Nerviline for reducing swellings, for taking out distemper lumps, and easing a bad cough, and always found it worked well. I recommend every man who owns horses or cattle to keep Nerviline on hand.

Mr. Fullerton is one of the best known residents of Stormont, and his recommendation as an experienced and practical horseman proves beyond question how valuable Nerviline really is.

Give Nerviline a trial. It is good for man or beast, internally or externally. 25c. per bottle or five for $1.00. At all dealers or The Catarrhozone Co., Kingston, Ont. 19

WOULD THE U.S. HELP BRITAIN?

The Montreal Star, is discussing this subject says that British and American papers are still discussing fitfully what the United States would do in the event of a great war breaking out between Britain and Germany. Some British papers are sanguine enough to believe that the Americans would assist the British; but there is usually an American editor or two with time enough to set the British brother right. The truth is that the Americans would do precisely what their own best interests at the moment seemed to dictate.

It is an exceedingly serious thing for a great nation to go into even the smallest war. It means an immense expenditure and probably the loss of many lives. But if this be true of little wars, we can imagine the cost of deliberately entangling one's self in such a titantic struggle of giants as a life and death combat between Britain and Germany. Our American neighbors must be very sure that their interests were deeply involved before they would enter such a contest.

We have on several occasions given our reasons for believing that they would be so involved. Our readers know that it is fixed opinion that the United States would be making a fatal national mistake to permit the mastery of the sea to pass out of the hands of Britain and into that of any continental power. But the Americans at present do not think so, if their press at all reflects their opinions. They feel quite capable of dealing with Germany. If that belief still persists when and if the great struggle comes, the United States will stand aside. The British Empire will have to fight its own battles. And it would be no more than prudent for it to get ready to do so.

ADVERTISE IN THE TIMES.

THE STAGE IN JAPAN.

Origin of the Drama—Women's Arduous Preparations of Dress.

There is a legend in Japan that the theater had its origin in that country in the ninth century by reason of an earthquake which took place in the province of Yamato. A large crevice was formed by reason of the upheaval, from which emanated poisonous vapors which spread death and destruction all around. An awful scourge was the result until the priests conceived the idea of performing a symbolic dance of incantation on the grass covered hill outside the temple. As if by magic the death vapors vanished, and peace and happiness were restored to the country. The legend concludes that this is how Japanese acting originated. The Japanese word for theater, shibai-ya, is supposed to have come from its origin, shibai, meaning sod, and ya, a house.

In Japan when a Japanese lady intends to go to the theater she is called upon the day previous by a hairdresser to build up the artificial structure which is the pride of every Japanese highborn lady. This necessitates her spending the night in her state dress, reclining her head on a wooden block, called makura. A few hours before going to the theater she covers her lips with a thin layer of gold, as it takes several hours for this paint to change into the cherry color which lends charm to the artificial white complexion of the face.

As a rule, Japanese performances last from 6 a. m. to 9 p. m., although certain historical dramas which follow the life of the hero through all his vicissitudes to his death go on for several days.

In Japan, officially, the social position of the actors is that of the lowest class of society, but in reality they enjoy great consideration and are idolized by the general public.

HUGO AS AN ARTIST.

The Great French Writer's Opinion of His Own Drawings.

When Victor Hugo's "Marion Delorme" was read before the troupe of the Porte-Saint Martin theater, the actor Laferriere, then a young man, protested against the insignificant role assigned him, in which he would have only ten lines to recite. Hugo promptly reduced him to silence by thundering, "Ten lines of Victor Hugo are something not to be refused—for they endure." Hugo attached a similar exaggerated significance to everything he did and to every object that was in any way associated with him.

For instance, he considered his drawings, which were for the most part commonplace enough, of sufficient importance to make them the subject of a testamentary provision. In his will of Aug. 31, 1881, he wrote, "I give my drawings and everything which shall be drawn by me to the National Library of Paris, which will be one day the Library of the United States of Europe."

Hugo's drawings are said to have been produced more often than not in the following manner: If a blot of ink chanced to fall on his paper while he held his pen aloft in quest of a word or rhyme, he enlarged the spot absentmindedly and made additions to it instinctively under the influence of a species of subconscious direction until he had produced a sinister moonlight scene or a "venerable bourg dominating with its bristling ruins the shuddering waters of a river of legend." He elaborated with great care, however, during his irksome exile at Guernsey certain crude impressions he had transferred to his sketchbook during his journeys in the valley of the Rhine. Furthermore, being a great lover of children, he drew figures of the most extravagant sort for the amusement of the young people of his household.—Alvan L. Sanborn in Book man.

Ending a Letter.

The simplicity of "Yours" as a letter ending would have astounded Jeremy Taylor, whose letters to John Evelyn often wind up with perfect triumphs of complexity in this respect. His best is, "Believe me that I am, in great heartiness and dearness of affection, dear sir, your obliged and most affectionate and endeared friend and servant," or "Your very affectionate friend and hearty servant." Even in his shortest perorations of the kind the "affectionate" and the "servant" are always the two indispensable words. Probably no man, woman or child would combine these two at the end of a letter today.—London Tatler.

IF SICK--WHY PAY

Unless Health First Returns.

Here is what should and can be done!

How you would not willingly pay for food that was worthless—would you?

Then why pay for medicine until that medicine first proves to you its actual worth?

Positively knowing what Dr. Shoop's Restorative can do for the sick, I say to all "don't pay unless has the first results". And I back my statement with a signed and sealed 30 day "no risk, no pay" guarantee.

I positively pledge to the sick, every where that "Dr. Shoop's Restorative is absolutely free if it fails". Let others do the passing out pain they prescriptions by.

If you need more strength, more vitality, more vigor or more vim, use my Restorative a few days and note the immediate improvement.

When the Stomach, Heart, or Kidneys go wrong, then test Dr. Shoop's Restorative. I do not claim the Stomach nor stimulate the Heart or Kidneys, for that is wrong. Years ago I cast away that antiquated idea in medicine. The booklet below will best tell you how I am succeeding.

These books also tell of a tiny hidden "inside nerve," no larger than a fifine thread. That tell how that nerve, until it fails, normally gives to the Heart its power, its tone, its nerve-force action or impulse.

Those books will open up new and helpful ideas to those who are not well. They tell how the Stomach, and Kidneys each have their "inside" or power nerves. They tell how that nerve is tried especially made to vanish and terrible when weak or failing besides nerves. All of these facts tell why I am able to say: "It is free if it fails".

This is why I say "I take no chance on a medicine whose maker dare not back it just as I do by this remarkable offer".

So write me today for the order.

I have appointed honest and responsible druggists in nearly every county to hand out Restorative on this risk.

But write me first for the order.

All druggists sold Dr. Shoop's Restorative, but all are not authorized to give the 30 day risk.

So drop me a line, please—and then save Shoopo-nize and delays. Tell me also which book you need.

A postal will do.

Besides, you are free to consult me as you would your home physician. My advice and the book below are yours—and without cost.

Perhaps a word or two from me will show no more serious ill cases. I have helped thousands upon thousands by my private prescriptions or personal advice plan. My best efforts is surely worth your simple request. So write now while you have it fresh in mind, for tomorrow never comes. Dr. Shoop, Box 12, Racine, Wis.

NASTY ACCIDENT.

With the Boys at Perth Caused by Discharge of Cannon.

A deplorable accident occurred on Monday afternoon in Perth, in which George Kerr, a married man, residing in the town received a discharge of powder in the face and body, and will as a result lose the sight of one eye. His arms and face were badly burned and lacerated from the effects of the discharged powder Wm. Gibson, member of No. 4 Co. of the 57th Regiment, who was standing close by was also burned, but not seriously and his injuries were attended to by Dr. Eastwood. In the morning a number of the visiting soldiers had taken the cannon from its position at the wharf and hauled it about the streets of the town. Shortly after noon they returned it to its proper place and commenced discharging blank shots. This was kept up for nearly half an hour, on preparing to discharge the shot which caused such painful injuries, Kerr took the swab from another young lad and it was while he was engaged in plugging a quantity of paper into the cannon that it was discharged with the above results.

$90,000---7 Per Cent.

9,000 Shares 7 Per Cent Cumulative Preferred Stock ($10 a Share) Offered at Par with 40 Per Cent Immediate Bonus of Common Stock. We Reserve the Right to Withdraw Offer Without Notice and to Return any Subscription Received Too Late. Previous Offerings Were Immediately Oversubscribed.

MORE THAN A THOUSAND BANK OFFICERS, LAWYERS, PHYSICIANS, MINISTERS, BUSINESS MEN AND OTHERS HAVE BECOME STOCKHOLDERS IN THE CIRCLE PUBLISHING COMPANY WITHIN THE PAST FEW MONTHS.

Presidents and Cashiers of Banks, Presidents and other officers of Insurance Companies and of prominent business concerns who are thoroughly qualified to pass upon the soundness of such a proposition have comended the investment and have put their own money into it.

Many leading Physicians, Ministers and Educators in all the big cities of the United States and several in Europe have very highly endorsed THE CIRCLE MAGAZINE and THE CIRCLE PUBLISHING COMPANY, and have been glad to become part owners in the enterprise.

These men, and a good many splendid women, also, have known THE CIRCLE for several years and have watched it grow better and stronger constantly. They know what a sterling good property it is; they know that it is founded on a plan that ought to success, and they know that it is held always true to that plan; they know from personal experience that its business methods are good, careful, and conservative, yet aggressive and successful; they are convinced, therefore, that there is a large and very profitable career ahead of THE CIRCLE PUBLISHING COMPANY. For these reasons they have been glad of a chance to get some of its stock.

Twice we offered by letter, without any blow of trumpets, Five Thousand Shares of our Cumulative Seven Per Cent, Preferred Stock for subscription. Each time the Five Thousand Shares were promptly over-subscribed before we could finish sending out the letters to the selected list. There are only Twenty Thousand Shares of Preferred Stock in all, therefore more than half was taken up at once, and we have not offered the balance until now.

For a short time we are going to give the same opportunity to those who did not receive our letters: but as the amount is necessarily limited, prompt action will be required.

HERE IS THE PLAN: The Capital Stock of The Circle Publishing Company is $500,000, of which $200,000 is Preferred Stock with 7 per cent. Cumulative dividend, and $300,000 is Common Stock upon which all dividends over and above the 7 per cent. on the Preferred Stock will be paid. Measured by the opportunities for rapid development of the business and by the known earnings of other great magazine and book publishing properties, the dividends on the Common Stock should soon exceed the fixed dividend on the Preferred Stock, and our Plan gives you some of both kinds.

The following extract from an article in a recent number of Leslie's Weekly is to the point:

"HOW A FEW DOLLARS MADE A FORTUNE"

"Among the most interesting commercial facts in this country are the astonishing fortunes which are being made by magazine publishers.

"Every year more than the immense sum of about $80,000,000 is spent in buying advertising space and in buying copies of periodicals. A large portion of this huge amount of money becomes profits for magazine owners.

"The great popular monthly publications have risen to wealth and prominence so quickly that only $100 invested in Munsey's a few years ago is now worth between $10,000 and $12,000, and is earning dividends at the rate of $1,000 a year.

"McClure's Magazine made a profit for its stockholders of 1,000 per cent. in about ten years. The total annual income of The Ladies' Home Journal and The Saturday Evening Post, both of which are owned by the Curtis Publishing Company, of Philadelphia, is not far from $6,000,000. The Cosmopolitan, Everybody's, The Outlook, and others, are immensely profitable.

"Unfortunately, however, magazine readers have rarely had an opportunity to share in these splendid earnings. Nearly all the magazines are in each case owned by a few individuals, who receive all the enormous income.

"A chance to secure an interest in one of the great popular magazines, on a basis that insures absolute safety and gives a liberal share of all the profits of the business, is an opportunity that attracts the immediate attention of the shrewdest investors."

OUR OFFER IS THIS: The par value of all shares is $10. They are full paid and non-assessable. The taxes on the stock are paid in full. Nine thousand shares of the Cumulative 7 per cent Preferred Stock are offered now at ten dollars a share, par. Every subscriber for five shares of Preferred Stock will be given a bonus of one share of Common Stock and will be made also a life subscriber for THE CIRCLE Magazine without additional payment. A subscriber for any multiple of five shares will be given a corresponding number of shares of Common Stock, as bonus, and will be allowed to present a life subscription for THE CIRCLE as a gift to some relative or friend for each five shares of Preferred Stock subscribed. Additional shares of Common Stock may be substituted in lieu of life subscriptions as bonus, or vice-versa. Thus, ten shares of Preferred Stock will entitle the subscriber to two shares of Common Stock and two life subscriptions for THE CIRCLE, or four shares of Common Stock. One hundred shares of Preferred Stock will carry with them a bonus of twenty shares of Common Stock and twenty life subscriptions for THE CIRCLE, or forty shares of Common Stock.

If you can not afford to take five or more shares, you may subscribe for three shares, and with such a subscription we will give you either the life subscription for THE CIRCLE or a bonus of one share of Common Stock, as you prefer.

We must say now, however, that this offer with its bonus is conditioned upon your prompt acceptance, and we reserve the right to withdraw or modify the offer without further notice.

YOU NEED NOT SEND ALL THE MONEY NOW IF NOT CONVENIENT TO DO SO, but write at once, saying how many of the 9,000 shares you will take and how soon you will be ready to pay for them. Ten per cent. of the amount of your subscription should be sent at the time of making the reservation. If more convenient to you the total amount may be divided into several instalments. Please use one of the Application Forms below, or a copy of the same.

Just an earnest word or two: You ought to know something about the "Plan" and aim of THE CIRCLE. We are all deeply in earnest about this matter. Every one of the men and women who now control the editorial and the business policy of the magazine is pledged to the carrying onward to its highest possible success the work of making a great, high-class, popular magazine of world-wide circulation which shall portray and encourage the good in individual, social, business, and political life, rather than the evil; which shall stand for peace rather than war; which shall search out beauty rather than ugliness; which shall build up rather than teardown; which shall constantly plan and labor, and co-operate with those who are planning and laboring, to make this world a better and happier place to live in, both for the poor and the wealthy, for the unlearned and the learned, for the weak and for the strong.

This is not mere rainbow painting. It is a real and definite program, based upon strong convictions and practical plans. We know that there are many splendid men and women who are in sympathy with this program and want to see it carried out. They know, as we know, that there is a positive cure in sun shine and fresh air. The poisonous, ill-smelling places often can be purified and made beautiful just by letting in the sunlight and the sweet winds of heaven. No man can remain a pessimist who will open his eyes and his heart to the good and the beautiful around him. All he need do is to give it just a fair share of his attention. It will surely sweeten his blood, cheer and lift up his heart, lighten his step, brighten the glance of his eyes, and inspire him in his work. There is plenty of evil to fight, and it calls for strenuous and constant effort, but the man who sees nothing but the evil will never be able to overcome much of it. You who will help to support and boldly develop and broaden the work of THE CIRCLE Magazine, until its influence is felt in countless American homes, satisfying the great need, recognised or unrecognised, of American life—you who will help to accomplish this will come closer to the hearts of multitudes of people and do more universal and lasting good than can be done in any restricted field. No single instrument within the grasp of any group of men can be so effective as this great, clean, purposeful magazine in bringing to pass that "Peace on Earth, Good Will to Men," for which the world has been waiting for so many centuries.

This is a business enterprise. We want to make money for ourselves and for our stockholders, and we shall do so; but this business enterprise—this sound, common-sense, money-making enterprise is inspired with an ideal; this corporation has a soul.

Men of long and successful experience in the magazine and book publishing business and in financial affairs make up the Board of Officers and Directors of The Circle Publishing Company.

This additional capital will be used to increase the circulation and advertising patronage of THE CIRCLE Magazine and to develop profitable book publishing enterprises of the Company. No magazine in the world possesses more real elements of large business profit and immense usefulness to society than does THE CIRCLE magazine itself shows tangible evidence, month by month, of the truth of these statements.

We trust you will join with us—that you will write quickly and reserve five, ten, twenty, fifty or more shares of the Preferred Stock, and so have a part in THE CIRCLE work and THE CIRCLE success. Write at once, if possible, filling out one of the blank forms below.

IMPORTING BUFFALOES.

Exciting Scenes Attended Transportation of New Herd.

Canada has now the largest, indeed the only considerable, herd of buffaloes in the world, and the stirring and even dangerous work has accompanied the assembling of that herd. Except for about one hundred head which have been at Banff, and which will now be transferred, the colony of buffaloes in Buffalo Park, Wainwright, Alta., has all been secured from the herd owned by Michael Pablo in Montana. Pablo's 600 or 700 buffaloes were the outgrowth of a small group of twenty purchased thirty years ago from "Walking Coyote," a Flathead Indian, returning from a great buffalo hunt in southern Alberta, so that Canada now secures her own, with interest, on payment, of course, of a considerable sum in cash, $300 per head.

Two years ago the first round-up of the Pablo herd commenced, the captives being shipped to Elk Island Park, at Lamont, Alberta. The ground here was unsuitable for a large herd, and the enclosure too small, so the Government secured a new park of 107,000 acres at Wainwright, on the Grand Trunk Pacific, 100 miles or so east of Edmonton. To this point 340 buffaloes were removed from Lamont a few weeks ago, now to be joined by 196 fresh from the latest round-up in Montana. Adventures and dangers, with narrow escapes from death, marked almost every day of the round-up. The animals ran wild over a country fifty miles in extent. Riders chased them to the valley of the Little Bitter Root, then into a lane which led to the Pend D'Oreille River. They then swam this and entered a large coral, from which they were driven into a smaller enclosure. When the rounding-up was finished, they were loaded into cages on wagons and hauled 36 miles to Ravalli, a railway station on the Northern Pacific, and then entrained for Canada. Every now and again a buffalo could stand the hounding no longer, and turned on his aggressors, resulting in such incidents as the impaling of Johnny Decker's horse, and the carrying of horse and rider on a buffalo's horn across the corral.

The Canadian Girl.

In the first instance, we must admit that the French-Canadian girl has remained quite aloof from her more modern sisters, and is in many respects like the Evangeline whom Longfellow described, the dark-tressed gentle Acadian whose love-story began in the far-off days when Grand-Pree had neither bolts nor bars. La petite Canadienne is a conservative, in fact, who follows her great-grandmothers' ways, and is akin to the Norman maidens of long ago. She is, says a writer in The Girl's Realm, gentle, industrious, and vivacious, a devout daughter of Mother Church, and usually gives herself at a very early age to a youth who is as fond as herself of the ways of their forefathers. In Quebec and the provinces along the Atlantic may be found many a Marie, Josephine, or Jacqueline, who might have given the New England poet the model for his ill-fated heroine. To the British world, however, the Canadian girl belongs to the English-speaking majority of the Dominion, and to her we are willing to give exhaustive attention. In connection with her qualities, it is almost impossible to avoid international comparisons, for the visitor from the United States finds points for divergence, while the English guest is likely to pronounce the Canadian girl very American.

Travels Far Into the North.

Miss Annie S. Nash of Carstairs, Alberta, will travel over a thousand miles straight north of Edmonton before she reaches Hay River, a Hudson Bay post, where she will wed Rev. Alfred J. Vale, an English Church missionary, formerly of Berlin, Ont., and a graduate of Wycliffe College, Toronto, in 1906. The trip will take in the neighborhood of two months to complete, and will be made by rail, stage, scow and river steamer. It is a trip scarcely ever made by a woman, and one that few men except traders take.

Miss Nash is accompanied by Archdeacon Lucas and wife of London, England, who are in Canada for a year's holiday. The archdeacon is going north to perform the marriage ceremony, and will probably spend the winter in that district with his wife, returning to London in the spring of 1910.

Miss Nash has had a wide and varied experience in the five or six years that she has been a trained nurse. Her early home was in Berlin, Ont.

Aged Indian Dies.

Old "Indian Dave" died in his wigwam in Gilford Township a few days ago, where he had made his home for 60 years. He was sure he had passed his 106th birthday. He was known to the oldest settlers in 1836, and was then considered quite old.

Dave claimed to be the son of Chief Nitmup of the Chippewa tribe, but was never recognised as such by his tribesmen. He was known as "Indian Dave," but was recorded as Dave Stecker as a citizen.

He spent the winter in his bark and hide hut manufacturing baskets and bows and arrows, and during the summer traveled about the resorts selling his wares. He is survived by one son, James.

Old Dave was liked by everybody and the citizens of Gilford Township arranged to give him a citizen's burial.

A Private Still?

A private detective is being engaged at St. Catharines to look into the rumor that the "Indian Listers" of this vicinity have a private still where they manufacture the best of whisky for 20 cents a gallon. The still used is said to be a relic of the Scott Act days, when it was kept in active operation in Raleigh.

PATENTS PROMPTLY SECURED

FADS OF CRIMINALS.

Murderers Who Were Particular as to Personal Appearance.

Oscar Slater, who murdered Miss Gilchrist in her Glasgow flat, proved himself a typical dandy even in the condemned cell and also a stickler for the proprieties. He insisted, for instance, from the very beginning in being called "Mr." Slater, and each morning he changed his linen, varied his neckwear and demanded polished boots.

Similar exhibitions of strutting peacock vanity are not uncommon on the part of men doomed to die on the gallows. Wainwright on the day preceding his execution absolutely refused to dress because his clean linen had not arrived from the laundry, and a new shirt and collar had to be bought for him. When the evening arrived—his last on earth—he craved a smoke. A pipe and tobacco were brought to him, but he rejected them with disdain. He would have a cigar. And he got it.

Letroy, who murdered poor old Mr. Gold in a railway carriage on the way to Brighton, wore an evening dress suit during the whole of the period that elapsed between his condemnation and his execution; also he was greatly upset at the refusal of the authorities to allow him to be hanged in a new silk hat presented to him in court.

As a rule, however, the thoughts of the condemned turn mostly toward food. Rush, the Stansfield Hall murderer, was an educated man. "I want my slippers and The Times," were his first words on returning to jail after his conviction. But a little later he called for pen and paper and wrote out an order for his next day's dinner, 'Pig and plenty of apple sauce."

In those days it was the custom to give capital convicts whatever they asked for in the way of food. But the rule was abolished soon afterward, one of the first delinquents to come under the new regulations being a certain Jeffrey, who murdered his six-year-old child by hanging him in a cellar in Seven Dials. He was unaware of the alteration and called for a roast duck directly he entered the condemned cell, and when it was refused him he behaved so violently that he had to be put in a straitjacket.—Pearson's Weekly.

The Genesis of the Cravat.

Cravats date from the incursion of the Croats into French territory during the Thirty Years' War. The French termed there invaders "Cravates," and a freak of fashion made their somewhat clumsy neckgear popular about 1636. The fancy must have spread very rapidly, for we find lace cravats with bread ends hanging in front replacing the wide collars of the cavaliers during the earlier stages of the civil war in England. Charles II. made white cravats a part of the uniform of his life and dragoon guards. The palmy period of the cravat was early in the eighteenth century, when these articles were made of the very finest lace and were so expensive that even the richest of fashionable young men could not afford to have more than two of them in their wardrobes. —London Standard.

The Time to Save.

As a general rule the question whether a man's career is to spell success or failure is settled between the ages of thirty and forty-five.

If a man cannot attain prosperity at forty his chances after that age are remote.

At fifty the sensible man plays for safety rather than for high stakes, for after that age not one man in five thousand can recover his financial position if he should come a cropper.

At sixty 98 per cent. are either dependent upon their daily earnings or upon their relatives.

It is evident, therefore, that no man should put off saving for old age after he has passed his fortieth birthday.

Twenty-First Century Wooing.

The grave young medical man entered the front parlor with sober mien. Unfastening his small black satchel, he produced a little purple vial, and, taking therefrom a tiny bag, he slipped it into a hypodermic syringe and advanced toward the shrinking girl.

"No, no!" cried the pretty Penelope. "It cannot be! I could not love you in the world!"

"You just wait until Mr. Consumaroitis gets busy in your delicate blue veins," said the young doctor, injecting the love germ.

Their devotion is now almost proverbial.

Consistent.

In a hospital in one of the large cities of central France the physician in chief, in the course of his round of inspection, approached a cot and after feeling the patient's pulse remarked, H'm—he is doing very nicely; his pulse is much better."

"It is as you say, doctor," replied the nurse, "but it is not the same man. Yesterday's patient is dead, and this one has been put in his place."

"Ah," said the doctor, "different patient, oh yes; same treatment." And he was.

He Had the Best of It.

Nervous passenger (on lake steamer)—It must be really terrible to think of an accident happening to the boat while you are away down there in that hole.

Stoker—It's just the other way, ma'am. If the boat sinks I won't have to go through more'n about half as much water as you will 'fore I get to the bottom of the lake.

A Way Out.

Servant—A newspaper reporter wishes to interview your, sir.

Great Man—Did you not tell him I was hoarse—could hardly speak?

Servant—Certainly, sir! But he assured me he would only ask questions which you could answer by a nod or a shake of the head.

Great Man—Then tell him I have a stiff neck.

"Sausages Grown Here."

One of the natural curiosities of South Mashonaland is a "German-sausage-tree." It bears deep-crimson flowers, 3 inches long, in blazing bunches of twelve; but when the tree fruits into fat, substantial, sausage-like pods, there remains no heaven, and it looks like a sausage larder indeed.

These beans are 20 inches long, and 12 inches in girth, and are beloved of the native tribe of Shangaans and baboons. But the tribe of the Karanga are a very superior people, and would never deign to eat them. There can be no reason for this, as, at least, no one can accuse these "sausages" of being connected in any way with dogs or cats!

ICED TEA.

How to Make and Serve This Refreshing Summer Drink.

However the doctors and health fearful may revile iced tea, it is bound to stay as long as thermometers are so unruly in summer. It is surprising, considering the amount of iced tea Americans consume, how rarely it is good.

The most scientific and supposedly healthful way to prepare it is to pour freshly brewed hot tea over a large lump of ice, then pour into glasses half filled with shaved ice.

More economical is it to make a small quantity of rather strong tea several hours before it is to be used, let it cool in the refrigerator and weaken to the desired consistency with iced water just before needed.

It is a mistake to think iced tea can be cooled by a few lumps in the pitcher. There must be either cracked or shaved ice in glasses to make it palatable.

Lemon is also better added before the meal than at it. The usual way is to pass a section of lemon to each guest. Far better is the taste if both lemon and sugar are mixed with the tea when the iced water is added. Better yet is it to adopt the Russian plan of grating the rind of a lemon and pouring hot tea over it.

If lemon is passed, as it may have to be when some of the family do not like it, cut into lengthwise sections rather than thin rounds and pass in addition a small glass pitcher filled with extra lemon juice.

Mint leaves or lemon verbena added to iced tea, besides the lemon, gives a delicious flavor. It is also good with a little ginger syrup or a few drops of rum.

One hostess on gala occasions serves her iced tea poured cold over lemon, orange or pineapple sherbet. This is served in a punch bowl, and each guest fills her tall glass with the mixture. In this case cracked ice is not used.

The thinner and more slender an iced tea glass is the more refreshing it tastes. It should be stood on a glass saucer or tumbler coaster. If possible use long handled spoons.

USED AGAINST HER.

Congratulations the Actress Received on Her Engagement.

A London music hall belle who had just successfully "landed" an old and wealthy nobleman sued an unpopular manager, alleging that he had not paid her sufficiently well for her engagement at his hall. She won the case and was immediately inundated with flowery congratulations from her friends, all of whom were glad to see the manager go down.

Not content with her victory, however, the belle must needs crow over her beaten manager by packing up the choicest of these telegrams and dispatching them to his house, with the intimation that he might make what use of them he thought proper.

She regretted this last concession the next morning. Taking her at her word, the manager pasted the telegrams on a board outside the music hall, headed them "What Miss Flighte's friends think of her engagement" and left the public to assume engagement, the professional or the matrimonial, was meant.

Then followed such messages as "Good for you, old girl!" "Pinned the old horror at last!" "Don't let him wriggle off the hook!" "Stick to him till you get the dibs!" "Congratulations on your splendid haul!"

Jingoes v Dingoes.

Australia has succeeded in taking all the sting out of the term jingo. Adherents of the fallen Ministry who were opposed to the offer of a Dreadnought to the Mother Country attacked the Imperialists by accusing them of jingo policy. The Imperialists defended themselves by stating that they preferred a jingo policy to a dingo policy. The contrast so caught popular fancy that it spread quickly through all the states, and Australians are now classified as dingoes or jingoes. The dingo, or wild dog, is such a contemptible beast, cunning and a propensity to bite the hand that feeds it, being its chief characteristics, that jingo is now regarded as a term of honor.

English Villages Without Churches.

England cannot be said to be lacking in churches, and yet there are remote districts that are sometimes put to strange devices for want of one. In the tiny village of East Horndon, in Essex, which possesses a railway station, but no church, service is held every Sunday evening in the station waiting-room. The congregation consists of the railway men and the people of the sparsely-inhabited neighborhood, which only needs a railway station because it is able to send milk to that devouring London, which must seem to be a very incomprehensible place to the simple villagers.

Startling Equine Sagacity.

A startling story of equine sagacity comes from the provinces. A horse was standing in the shafts of a carriage just outside the local theatre. It had a weary look, as of one that desired repose. Suddenly it brightened up, and before it could be stopped it made a dash for the box office. The reason for this unexpected behavior gave rise to much discussion till at last one of the crowd, more observant than the others, pointed out that the legend "To the Stalls" was written in large letters over the box office window.—London Globe.

What He Wanted.

The old man turned from his desk as his son-in-law entered the office.

"Well, what is it now?" he asked.

"I—er—have been thinking," answered the new member of the family, 'that you ought to give me a pension."

"A pension!" exclaimed the old man. "What in thunder do you mean, sir?"

"Well, it's like this," explained the other. "Ever since I did your daughter the honor to marry her I have been dependent on you for support and I want to be independent. See?"

It's a pity when sick ones drag the stomach or stimulate the heart and Kidneys. That is all wrong! A weak Stomach means weak Stomach nerves, always. And this is also true of the Heart and Kidneys. The weak nerves are instead crying out for help. This explains why Dr. Speop's Restorative is promptly helping the Stomach, Heart and Kidney ailment. The Restorative reaches out for the actual cause of these ailments—the failing "inside nerves." Anyway test the Restorative 48 hours. It won't cure so soon as that, but you will surely know that help is coming. Sold by all dealers.

A DREAM STORY.

The Startling Vision That Saved the Life of Lady Vernon.

The following dream story is told in "The Story of My Life," by Augustus J. C. Hare. The story was told to Mr Hare in Rome in 1870:

Lady Vernon dreamed that she saw the butler, with a knife in one hand and a candle in the other, crossing the entrance hall, and she awoke with a great start. After awhile she composed herself to sleep again, and she dreamed she dreamed that she saw the butler, with a knife in one hand and a candle in the other, on the middle of the staircase, and she awoke with a great shock. She got up. She thought she could not be quite well, and she took a little sal volatile. At last she fell asleep again, and she dreamed—she dreamed that she saw the butler, with a knife in one hand and a candle in the other, standing at her bedroom door and she awoke in a great terror, and she jumped out of bed, and she said, "I'll have an end of this; I'll have an end of these foolish imaginations." And she rushed to the door, and she threw the door wide open. And there at the door stood the butler, with a knife in one hand and a candle in the other. And when he suddenly saw Lady Vernon in her white nightdress, with her hair streaming down her back, he was so dreadfully frightened that he dropped the candle on the floor and rushed off down the staircase and off to the stables, where there was a horse ready saddled and bridled, on which he meant to have ridden away when he had murdered Lady Vernon. And he rode away without having murdered her at all, and he was never heard of again.

THERE WAS NO ACCIDENT.

And the Message She Received Was Not a Practical Joke.

She was reclining in a low chair in the drawing room, thinking about her dear Willie, who had been legally her property for the space of three months, when a telegram arrived for her. Hurriedly tearing open the envelope, she scanned the contents, then fell back in a swoon. The message was from her brother in the city and read:

Will run over today. GEORGE.

Her maid at last restored her to consciousness. Her Willie run over! She could not grasp the full significance of it. One thing she would do—go to him at once. So she hastily attired herself and at length reached her brother's office, who, having sent the news, would be able to tell her all about it.

"How is he, and where have they taken him?"

Her brother stared at her stupidly.

"Oh, don't keep me in suspense! Tell me where he is."

"Where who is?"

"Why, Willie."

"At his office, I presume. I haven't seen him today."

"Then what does this mean? Isn't he run over? Is this one of your silly jokes?"

George took the telegram from his sister, read his own message, then exploded with laughter. It was a long time before he could convince her that this simple intimation that he would run over and pay her a visit was not a detestable and practical joke.

The Talker.

You'll note the man who talks too much is always working round. He never seems to hold the job which some one else has found for him because he's bound to keep his tongue upon the wag and spend his boss' precious time in self bouquets and brag. He stays until his story's told and then told once again, and by this time the boss' ear is overfull of pain, and he is told to take his grip, although the boss feels sad, because he's lost his other grip upon the job he had. And yet he never, never learns, but talks his jobs away, because the habit's grown on him that he must have his say. And so he talks until he dies, up to his waning breath; he's talked his chances all away and talked himself to death.

Confessions.

The woman begged the bachelor girl not to go yet awhile. She was so urgent that the girl finally sat down again. Then the two sat perfectly still and silent, looking at each other.

"I know what you are thinking," said the bachelor girl by and by.

"What?" asked the woman.

"That, now you've got me to stay, you wonder why it was you insisted on. You don't know what to do with me or to say to me, now I'm here to stay."

"How did you guess it?" the woman laughed.

"I've felt just that way myself," said the bachelor girl "many and many a time."

A Bad Hole to Get Into.

A gentleman was going round a strange golf course with a local caddie, and after playing part of the way he pointed to a rather high wall and inquired, "Is there a hole over there?"

"Yes, sir," replied the caddie solemnly; "there's the cemetery over there. Don't put yourself into a hole there if you can help it."—London Scraps.

His Transformation.

Little Harold aged six felt very proud when he donned his first pair of trousers. Taking his three-year old brother behind the door, he was overheard to say, "Willie, Willie do you remember me?"—Delineator.

All is not false which at first seems so.—Southey.

A HARASSING QUESTION.

What Is the Business Woman to Wear In Hot Weather?

The question of midsummer wearing apparel for the business woman is not an easy one.

In the first place, she wants to be cool in summer, but in any case she must be neat. And if she is neat she will at least look cool, a thing that she would not do were she ever so thinly clad in apparel that was other than neat.

As it grows warmer it is a great temptation for the business woman, especially if she is rather new in the field, to resort to some of the cool, dainty frocks that suggest themselves for July and August wear. But if she has been a business woman long enough to understand the situation she knows that frills and furbelows have no place for her. She also knows that they are not essential to feminine charm and that even in the hottest weather perfect tailoring and immaculate cleanliness will do as much toward making her look and even feel cool as sash ribbons and lacy garnitures.

But just what is the business woman to wear in hot weather?

Must she stick to the cloth skirt and white waist of fall and winter? Not necessarily. There are days when she doesn't want to think of a cloth skirt. In this case if she still wishes to retain the two piece suit arrangement it would pay her to have a coat and skirt of linen or cotton poplin in tan or blue.

But this is not wholly satisfactory, as it necessitates the purchase of a coat which is not entirely suitable for wear with other garments, and the coat must be pressed often to keep it in trim. Besides this, the skirt will require more frequent laundering than the coat, and even with the best material this is sure to make a difference in the appearance of the two garments.

This season affords a peculiarly fortunate solution to the dress problem of the business girl in the smart one piece tailored dress. It is, if strictly tailored, entirely proper for wear on the street without a coat, while the shirt waist and skirt seem to suggest the presence of a coat like the skirt. Then, too, the plainly made one piece dress is perfectly suitable for business wear and can be carried out in almost any material. Even a gingham in shepherd's check of black and white has a smart tailored look, though the more common materials are cotton poplin, racket cloth, rep or linen. The last, however, is only suitable for the woman with an unlimited amount of money for laundry and pressing.

The final advantage of the one piece dress is that it is quickly adjusted, no tiresome fussing with belt, collar and cuff links, but on and fastened up in a minute.

To add to this a skirt of some lightweight material, such as mohair or lightweight suiting, will provide an alternate costume for wear with shirt waists.

It takes a little courage, to be sure, but the wise business girl has learned that even in hot weather she must not yield to the temptation of wearing those soft, rumply feminine looking things. And, too, if she is wise and has a position of any responsibility or importance she will go just a little easy on this "Dutch neck" craze and will not despise the starched collar altogether.

BATHING HINTS.

A little good toilet water or cologne poured into a bath is delightful in its effects.

When you feel exhausted after bathing hunt for the cause. The water may be too hot or too cold. You may be staying in it too long or bathing when too tired. A cup of hot milk is a great pick-me-up after a hot bath.

Don't rush immediately into the cold air after a hot bath, both for the sake of your skin and to prevent colds. Dashing with water as cold as you can stand it will make an early outdoor trip safe after the pores are opened by the hot water.

If we cannot copy the old time women, with their aromatic baths, there are many things which can be used in the water to soften it and make it more refreshing. Among these is a lemon cut in slices and placed in the bath ten minutes before using. A little borax will also soften the water, or a bag about five inches square filled with half bran and half oatmeal.

THE KEARN'S INK CO. of Toronto was organized two years ago to manufacture the new CANADIAN WRITING INKS, invented by J. J. Kearns. The past two years has been spent in experimenting and improving quality and today it stands among the top notchers in the ink world. This ink has met with such spontaneous approval from users, and the trade has shown such willingness to buy in quantities, that the management deem it wise to enlarge their operations and make a big staple business enterprise out of this Company hence offer to the public.

The total capital is only $40,000, so that you can see that this is no inflated and watered wild cat scheme but a first-class legitimate investment offered to you—one where a dollar invested today will be worth at least two in a year and will pay 10 per cent, income on this.

PROFITS

There is a gross profit in this ink of from 28 per cent. to 300 per cent.

This is a clear cut business statement, every word of which we can substantiate.

Some Orders that We Received as to the Sale of Kearn's Ink

We found the demand practically without limit; we receiving orders and inquiries for the Ink far beyond our ability to supply the goods. Orders came from such houses as Central Business College, Ontario Government, Separate School Boards of Toronto and Peterboro. The Toronto Railway Co., Consumers Gas Company, National Trust Co. Ltd., King Edward Hotel and many other large concerns of the country.

A SAFE MANAGEMENT

The entire management is in the hands of a Board of Directors of leading business men— men of executive and financial ability, men of "made reputations," men who can be counted upon to capably and honestly direct the affairs of the enlarged Company, and see that each and every stockholder receives every dollar of the earnings of his stock.

"FEEBLE STOMACH."
Caused Digestive Weakness and Poisons the Entire System.

"No one can have suffered more than I did with stomach trouble," writes Phil. E. Pascalar, well known at St. Andrews Corners. "My doctor told me my indigestion and sleeplessness were due to poisons in the blood Certainly my condition was desperate, and it seemed from the despondent feelings that swept over me that I would lose my reason. I happened to read about Dr. Hamilton's Pills and bought five boxes from the druggist. Six [illegible] cleansing pills I never used; they were mild and yet quite strong enough to drive all the humors out of the blood. My stomach gained strength rapidly with Dr. Hamilton's Pills and I improved so much that in eight weeks I could eat and digest all ordinary food. Depression and weariness passed away and I am, thanks to Dr. Hamilton's Pills enjoying robust good health"
No remedy for biliousness, indigestion, headache, sick stomach or constipation that compares with Dr. Hamilton's Pills. Refuse substitutes. Sold in 25c boxes. All dealers, or The Catarrhozone Co., Kingston, Ont

OBITUARY

WM. HENRY PARK DONNELLY

The news of the death of William Henry Park Donnelly, which occurred yesterday morning, will be heard with regret by a large number of friends and acquaintances. The late Mr. Donnelly, who was 49 years of age, had been ailing for some time. He was born in Smith, but had lived in the city for a number of years, his parents both predeceasing him some time ago. He was unmarried, and had lived with his sisters, Misses Mary and Jane Donnelly of 263 Townsend street. Another sister Mrs. Matthew Johnston resides in Monaghan. The deceased also leaves two brothers, Alexander and Edward, who reside in Carbery, Man., and Oregon, respectively.

MRS. JOHN MALONEY.

The death occurred Monday evening at St. Joseph's Hospital, of Celia Moher, wife of Mr. John Maloney of Ennismore. The deceased, had only been sick for one week. She was born in Dour[illegible] and was 43 years of age. Besides her husband, seven children, four girls and three boys, the youngest being four years old, are left to mourn her loss. The funeral will take place this morning at nine o'clock from her late residence lot 5, in the 5th concession of Ennismore to St. Martin's church, and thence to St. Martin's cemetery

DORPTHY FLORENCE HILLIER.

A particularly sad death occurred Monday night when Dorothy, Florence Hillier, aged one year and seven months, only child of Mr. and Mrs. A. D. Hiller, of Toronto, passed away at the residence of Mr. L. Hiller, 161 Park street. Mr. and Mrs Hiller, accompanied by their daughter, came down from Toronto Saturday night, on a visit and during the journey the deceased contracted a cold which developed into pneumonia and death resulted. The remains were taken on the 4.38 C.P.R. train to Toronto yesterday after noon and interment will take place there.

DAVID LE MAY.

At the age of seventy years, David LeMay, one of the pioneer business men of the city, passed away last Monday evening at 10 o'clock at the residence of his son-in-law, Mr. H. Le Brun. He had not enjoyed good health for several years, and his death was not unexpected. Eight years ago he had a paralytic stroke, and had a second one within the last three weeks. The end came peacefully.

Mr. LeMay is survived by two sons and five daughters. The sons are L. M. LeMay of Rochester, and Albert of Cleveland. The daughters are Mrs. H. LeBrun of Peterborough Mrs. R. P. Gough of Toronto, Mrs. F. Tilston of Toronto, Miss Heloise of Montreal, and sister Heloise of the Congregation of Notre Dame, Montreal.

The funeral will take place this morning at nine o'clock from the residence of Mr. LeBrun to St. Peter's Cathedral, and thence to the Catholic cemetery.

Mr. LeMay's death will be learned of with deep regret by a wide circle of friends.

A clever, popular Candy Cold Cure Tablet—called Preventics—is being dispensed by druggists everywhere. In a few hours Preventics are said to break any cold completely. Peary Says Cook Did Not Go Far North or Out of Sight of Land

Declares That Two Eskimos Who Were With Dr. Cook Say He Was Not Near Pole.

Wife Says Cook Can Prove It

Rest of Tribe Corroborate Story — Cook's Claim Not to Be Taken Seriously.

(Special to The Times).

New York, Sept. 8.—Mrs. Frederick A. Cook, wife of the explorer, who returned to New York last night from Maine, said today that her husband has facts which, when they become known, will set at rest all doubts as to his discovery of the North Pole. When he returns to the United States, Mrs. Cook said, her husband will produce absolute substantiation of his claims.

New York, Sept. 8.—Commander Peary's despatch today from Indian Harbor to the Associated Press gives his first expression concerning the claim of Dr. Cook that he reached the North Pole almost a year prior to Peary, on April 21, 1908.

Peary's latest telegram is hardly less notable than his first announcement, which absorbed the attention of the entire world, as it gives concrete form to the issues already vaguely outlined in scientific quarters of the authenticity of Dr. Cooks announcement, and the question of priority in reaching the Pole. At the same time it is the first expression of opinion from anyone in a position to know the facts of the Arctic region on which Dr. Cook's claims are based. In contained a direct intimation that Cook never reached the Pole at all.

BREAK IN ISLAM FAITH.

Bishop Sees This as Next Great Change in Religious World.

"The next great change in the religious condition of the world will probably be a widespread in the ranks of Mohammedanism. There is much ferment and unrest among the followers of Mohammed, and within a few years it is likely that large inroads will be made on that religion by Christianity."

Rev. Joseph C. Hartzell, bishop of the Methodist Episcopal church for the entire continent of Africa, voiced that opinion yesterday.

Bishop Hartzel, is in this country for the purpose of raising a fund of $300,000 for the extension of the campaign of Methodism in Africa. Field days are being held all over the United States in aid of the fund, and the work will come to an end by a great meeting in Carnegie Hall, New York, Dec. 13, at which President Taft will be the chief speaker.

Captured By Police.

Madrid, Sept. 2.—The police of Barcelonia Province have succeeded in arresting Francisco Ferrier, a notorious Anarchist, who has been wanted for a long time in connection with a number of outrages.

It is still believed that he was a member of the gang responsible for the bomb outrage on the occasion of King Alfonso's wedding.

One of the advantages of Grape-Nuts food is that it is pre-digested in the process of manufacture.

The starch contained in the wheat and barley is transformed into grape sugar by exactly the same method as this process is carried on in the human body, that is, by the use of moisture and long exposure to moderate warmth This grows the diastase in the grains, then long baking completes the remarkable change from starch to grape-sugar.

Therefore, the most delicate stomach can handle Grape-Nuts and the food is quickly absorbed into the blood and tissue certain parts of it going directly to build and nourish the brain and nerve centres.

"There's a Reason"

Cook's Story Should Not be Taken Seriously

New York, Sept. 8.—The following despatch was received here early today:

"Indian Harbor, Labrador (via wireless via Cape Ray, Nfld.) Sept. 8:

"To Melville E. Stone, President Associated Press, New York:

"I have sailed the Stars and Stripes to the North Pole. This is authoritative and correct.

"Cook's story should not be taken too seriously. The two Eskimos who accompanied him say he went no distance north and not out of sight of land. Other members of the tribe corroborate their story.

(Signed) "PEARY."

Broker's Office Closed Leaving Many Creditors

A local brokerage concern has closed its doors and there is much weeping and wailing and gnashing of teeth among the creditors of the concern. It is said that the liabilities will exceed $15,000, most of which is owing to local people. The losses run from $100 to $2,000 and $3,000. The individual losses will run from $50 to a couple of thousand.

The manager of the concern left the city last week and a few days later attempted to remove his furniture. One of the victims got wind of it and seized the stuff at the station. In this way he may secure his money. There are several prominent business men among the sufferers.

Directors of Otonabee Navigation Co. Meet

The directors of the Otonabee Navigation Company held a meeting in their offices last night when the manager, Ald. R. Hicks, presented a report of the year's business. That report was such that all the directors were well pleased. The business for the past season has exceeded very largely all past seasons and the future of the company never was so bright. The boats of this company were well manned and were well looked after, while the business policy followed was sound. The Otonabee Navigation Company will begin at once to prepare for next season. They will extend their territory and will make further improvements all along the line. During the past season the public has been given an exceptionally good service and the many excursionists have been well looked after and everybody was satisfied. As a matter of fact this year has been a record one.

Bright Prospects for the Local Exhibition

September 16, 17 and 18.

Peterborough's big fair commences just one week from today.

As the circus bills say, "Bigger, Grander and Greater than ever."

Entries are coming in fast and there will be a record number of exhibits.

Peterborough's Midway will give the "Fay Streak" at Seattle a close run for the honors.

Watch for the drill of the 24th Field Battery on Friday night, its your first chance to see the crack artillery men perform.

The performances in front of the grand stand will be the best in years Large expense has been incurred in arranging for the attractions.

The directors will be busy for the next ten days but they are already wearing a broad smile. The prospects are bright, hence the glow of satisfaction.

The full band of the 57th Regiment will give concert programs on Friday afternoon and evening and on Saturday afternoon.

Several excursions from out of town points will swell the attendance.

Single fare prices prevail on all transportation lines.

It's up to the local people to do their share toward boosting the attendance above the highest previous notch.

There will be more to see and do at the Peterborough Industrial this year than ever before.

The good purses hung up for the trotting events are a "guarantee that the harness horse races will be classy throughout. Many prominent horsemen will be here for the Exhibition.

Ex-Mayor Yelland's Dog Race prize money may be money "going to the dogs," but the canines are sure to provide a bushel of amusement.

That expressmen's race will be a corker. Keep your eye on some of the delivery "Hambourg Belles" or "Thians," who are in training for the event.

The grounds will be brilliantly illuminated for the night performance on Friday evening.

Collegiate Institute is Already too Small

It was a hard blow to the people of this city when it was learned through Principal Kenner's report that the new Collegiate Institute is too small to accommodate the classes. It seems almost impossible to build for the future. When the Collegiate was built everyone patted themselves on the back that it would afford ample accommodation for some years. But only one year has gone by and more room is necessary and must be provided. The influx of pupils this fall was away ten and expectations, and now the Board of Education must knit their brows, scratch their heads and figure out a way to relieve the congestion. Mr. Kenner's report is as follows:—

To the Chairman and Members of the Board of Education—

Gentlemen.—I wish to present, as briefly as possible, the following facts. We had a record first day's attendance this morning, of 340. We are overcrowded in the first forms. In I.B we had 44, and in I.C 50, and we will have more during the next few weeks. This congestion can be relieved only by the opening up of another room. Section 18, subsection 4 C, of the new regulations reads as follows:

"Schools in which any of the forms or classes are so large as to interfere with the efficiency of the teaching shall not be approved. In schools with five or more teachers the total number on the roll at any one time shall not exceed an average of 30 to each teacher.

The very first day we have an average of 36.

According to the Department Text Book regulations the editors of text books no longer authorized, which were in use before July 1st, 1909, and the continued use of which is recommended by resolution of the Board of Trustees on or before the re-opening of the schools in September, shall be deemed authorized for such school until their authorization is cancelled by the minister of education. I wish the board to recommend the continued use of the Primary Latin book in the middle school and the High School Arithmetic in Form II. and Form 3A. This will save the pupils the cost of the new books in these subjects in these rooms.

The same regulations say that the Board of Trustees shall provide in the school library a supply of the chemistry manuals sufficient for class use by the pupils who shall not be required to buy it. Forty copies will be required and they cost 20 cents each.

We had last year 150 boys in the cadet corps. We have only 50 rifles. As the report of the inspecting officer says the others should have rifles. These are supplied by the government but racks will be necessary for them.

Arthur Rosborough won the Nicholls scholarship in the honor matriculation examinations, securing 740 marks on ten papers, an average of 74 per cent. Margaret Anderson won the Nicholls scholarship in the junior matriculation examinations, obtaining 1009 marks on 14 papers, an average of 72 per cent. The winners of the other two scholarships have not yet been announced by the department.

I should like the use of the armories for the boys' physical culture classes during September and October as we have not a suitable room in the building.

I would also direct the attention of the board to the following note in the new regulations, 30, 2: "After August, 1911, Collegiate Institute which has not provided a gymnasium satisfactory to the minister of education shall forfeit its status." Would it not be possible to arrange with the Y.M.C.A. authorities for the use of their gymnasium from November to April in the meantime.

Your obedient servant,
H.R. H. KENNER.

ROYAL SUITE READY.

Portugal's Ruler to Be Made Knight of Garter at Windsor.

London, Sept. 8.—Arrangements are going forward rapidly for the reception of the King of Portugal at Windsor Castle in November. The young king will be housed in the state suite of apartments, which overlook the beautiful gardens of the castle, with Windsor forest in the distance.

Intimation has just been received from Lisbon to the effect that the young ruler hopes to spend about a week in this country, and that in all probability he will be accompanied by his mother, Queen Amelie.

The chief feature of his visit will be his admission as a Knight of the Garter, a special chapter of the knights to be held in St. George's chapel for this purpose. It is proposed that King Manuel shall be assigned the stall in the chapel occupied for many years by his late father, and the banners of the knights are accordingly to be rearranged in order to allow this to be done.

MARVELS YET TO COME.

Edison Says That Greater Inventions are Upon Us.

New York, Sept. 8.—Thomas A. Edison believes the triumphs achieved by man this year are only forerunners of others yet to come. In speaking of the discovery of the north pole, he said:

"Although this year has been note worthy in respect to scientific progress, it must be borne in mind, has been more spectacular than solid in its results. The great and really useful inventions are yet to come. These will take the form of discoveries that will lift the submerged 'tenth' to the level of his fellow man, in other words, they will 'back up' the workingman by providing automatic machinery that will perform all the menial tasks and thus compel him to fit himself for something better.

"Other inventions will provide pleasant and sanitary homes for the rental that is now paid for an unhealthy dirty, dark tenement. Still others will reduce the cost of decent living to a minimum by perfecting fertilization that will make fifty crops grow where one is yielded now.

The Navy of France to be Reformed

ADMIRAL BOU DE TAPEYRERE.

New Minister to Sweep Away Abuses and Restore Fighting Strength of Warships.

Paris, Sept. 7.—Admiral Boue de Lapeyrere, the new minister of marine, is engaged in a complete reorganization of the French navy.

In an interview with a representative of the Matin he declared that the number of squadrons in the new navy would depend on the number of battleships available but provision was made for a minimum of five squadrons of four vessels each.

Discussing the question of armored cruisers, the admiral declared that he was not in favor of this type of warship.

"Our vessels ought to be capable of confronting any battleships," explained the admiral. "I do not think that speed can compensate for disproportion in armament and protection. If an effort has to be made, let it be complete.

"Concerning torpedo-boat destroyers and submarines, I consider that they are indispensable for the protection of our coasts. They are not intended to accompany the squadrons. From this they are debarred by their weak tonnage. In short, their function is to be vessels of offensive defense."

The new minister has resolved to strike off all obsolete vessels, a long which are the Courbet, Formidable, Stax and Elan, and as for "sailors who are to be found everywhere except on board their ships," a merciless campaign is to be undertaken against them.

Big Liberal Convention Called for June

Whole Town Disappears

Mexico City, Sept. 8.—Word was received here last night that the destruction of Soto La Marina, a town in the State of Tamaulipas, was so complete that the whole place has completely disappeared with the exception of a few church towers that project from the surface of a veritable sea. No one has been able to get closer than a league from where the town once stood. From this point rescue parties have noticed teats on the side of a tall hill, the only evidence of life remaining.

A "Black Fast to be Observed on Friday

For the first time in eight years there will be a "black fast" in Canada on Friday next. The occasion is the Plenary or National Council of the Catholic Church to be opened in Quebec City next week, and fast is as an offering from the whole people of the Church to ask God's blessing for the success of the Council.

Black fasts are so called on account of their severity, as there is comparatively little that appeals to the ordinary man's appetite that is left for him to partake of. Here is a list of things he cannot eat:

Meats of all kinds, cheese, eggs, milk, butter.

About all that are left are fish, tea, coffee, bread, rice, cake and cereals.

The fast follows the ordinary regulations as to those who are exempt. Those under 21 and over 60 are not bound to fast, neither are they with whose work fasting would seriously interfere, nor the sick. The usual quantities are also allowed, that is, 2 ounces in the morning, a full meal at mid-day, and 8 ounces in the evening.

The last black fast was during year 1901, the year of the Diamond Jubilee. No special day was set, but those who desired to gain the Plenary indulgence had to observe the black fast one day during the year.

A Plenary Indulgence can be gained during the time the council is in progress in Quebec by those who follow out the accustomed regulations. The council opens on the 16th of the month.

FIGHT WITH KNIVES.

One of Duelists Receives Dozen Gashes and Dies.

Akron, Ohio, Sept. 8.—In a bloody knife fought in the street here early today an unidentified man inflicted injuries upon Jovan Kuruchich which resulted in his death. Kuruchich received more than a dozen deep gashes about his arms, chest, neck and head. Kuruchich is believed to have started the fight. He was seen about the city late Saturday night armed with a large butcher knife. A few hours later he was found, slowly bleeding to death. Kuruchich told an interpreter that a neighbor had quarreled with him and a duel resulted.

"WAS FADING AWAY."

A Young Woman—Scarcely Thirty—Seemed to Be Dying on Her Feet.

"I think if should be the duty of the schools to teach children how to keep well," writes Miss Nannie E. Naydon, a well-known and highly esteemed resident of Bristol. "Ignorance of the laws of health and the use of improper remedies destroyed my vigor and led me to the verge of invalidism. I was as a girl ruddy and strong. Nothing seemed to affect me until I was about thirty. Then gas began to form in the stomach. I suffered with bloating and a general failure in strength set in. If I went upstairs my breath hurt. My system was very irregular and until I grew pretty bad I didn't pay much heed to my condition. Then I got blue, worried all the time, wakened in the night and couldn't get to sleep again None of the medicine I took helped me. One day I was reading of a very interesting case like mine cured by Dr. Hamilton's Pills. I took the same treatment, It was just right—didn't physic me to death, but took hold of the weak, sick parts of my system and set things right. It seems as if Dr. Hamilton's Pills have made me young again and all my color, spirits, vigor and health of former days have returned to stay."

Every girl and woman should use Dr. Hamilton's Pills regularly. They help a woman in many ways. Beware of the dealer who asks you to take an inferior pill on which his profit is larger than on Dr. Hamilton's. Sold in yellow boxes, 25c. per box, all dealers, or The Catarrhozone Co., Kingston, Ont.

The Ontario Reform Association Decided to Have the Meeting as Soon as Possible After the Next Session.

Convention will Likely be Held in June

Hon. G. P. Graham Says the Federal Government Will Bring Down an Aggressive Policy, Setting Forth Its Course on Imperial Defence.

Toronto, Sept. 8.—The Liberals of Ontario to the number of one hundred and fifty gathered to their standard this morning in a spirited meeting held in the Blue Room of the Temple Building.

Mr. H. M. Mowat, K.C., president of the association, in his opening address, expressed the opinion that a convention should be called to give a definite expression of views in regard to the Liberal position in the Legislature.

TO HOLD CONVENTION.

The eagerness of the meeting to decide upon a date for a convention was expressed in a number of brief speeches. A portion of the delegates favored one of the later months in 1910, but the desirability of securing a mandate of the party as soon as possible after the next session prevailed. The month of June, 1910 was therefore chosen.

Hon. Geo. P. Graham, minister of railways and canals, addressed the meeting briefly. There would be introduced by the Federal Government at the next session, he said, a well defined, aggressive policy setting forth the Canadian Government's course regarding Imperial defence. This he felt sure would meet with the approval of the country at large. Referring to the Railway Commission of Canada as in some degree the product of his own labor, Hon. Mr. Graham said that no tribunal in this country or Europe had equally broad legal power.

NEW SCHOOL FOR CANADA.

The medical men of the empire in session in Winnipeg, have many good good things to discuss. The president, Sir J. Thompson, hints that what Canada wants—what it must have at once—is a school in which the assimilation of the races in our population can be properly examined There are coming the representatives of every country in Europe. Some of them are old enough to be fixed in their habits. Some of them are young enough to readily take up with Canadian conditions anywhere, and Sir J. Thompson says the question of the hour is (What kind of men is Canada making out of the raw material which Europe is feeding in, to God's mills on this side)" It is an anxious question, and an important one, and the answer will be valued at its real worth when, in time, it is forthcoming.

Kingstonians Wait for Laundry while Celestials go to Circus

Kingston, Sept. 8.—This city has learned in a very thorough fashion that when the Chinaman plays checkers with the white man it isn't the latter who wins out. A few weeks ago the City Council imposed a special tax of $50 a year on all Chinese laundries. This was vigorously objected to by the Celestials, who complained that the burden would drive them out of business. Early last weeks when the tax was to be collected, a number refused to pay, and were promptly fined. But they fought even the fine.

"Then you go to jail," said Magistrate Farrell. And the sauve Chinamen prepared to board at the State's expense for just so long as their stubbornness would allow.

Meanwhile, as Saturday approached, scores of Kingstonians began to grow anxious at their prospects of clean laundry for the ensuing week. With the washers in jail, there was no one left to turn the gas irons or manipulate the washboards. Friday arrived and local excitement grew into murmurs of protest that to satisfy the letter of the law a city's shirts must be sacrificed. This difficulty at length reached the ears of Justice, and arrangements were made to release the prisoners on Saturday, so that they might hurry home and finish up their laundry before the Sabbath morning.

The court's announcement greatly pleased hundreds of fearsome citizens and sent them home happy.

But at this point the wife of the Chinaman began to work. The circus of Norris & Rowe had arrived in town on Saturday morning. What better fun, thought the laundrymen, than to pay these Kingstonians back by letting their laundry soak in the tubs for a few days longer? Accordingly they held a meeting and decided on their course of action.

A Wonderful Fruit Crop in Ontario's Garden of Eden

The condition of the fruit market is at the present time of some thing more than ordinary interest to the good housewife who is looking forward to the long cold winter when desert for breakfast and tea are necessary but hard to get the material. In other words the canning and preserving season is in full swing and naturally the ladies want to get the best of everything at the lowest possible price. It will be said by many that fruit is so much cheaper in Toronto and Hamilton and in the towns of the Niagara district. It is unwise to listen to those people for they are sadly mistaken. As a matter of fact they don't know what they are talking about. There are occasions when the growers or wholesalers get caught with a quantity of overripe fruit on their hands and they are compelled to sacrifice them. Cheap fruit is then obtainable, but it is cheap in price and quality. First-class fruit in the best condition can be bought from the Peterborough stores just as cheap as it can be bought in any of the western towns or cities. This is a fact remarkable as it may seem. For instance the early Crawford peaches last Saturday sold on the Toronto, St. Catharines and other Niagara district markets at $1 per large basket. The same quality peaches from the same district, were sold and are being sold in the Peterborough stores this week for $1 per large basket. Other grades of peaches and other fruits which are grown in the Niagara district are sold just as cheap here as up west. The way the local merchants accomplish this is by going up to the Niagara district and buying whole orchards at a price and have the fruit shipped down in quantities as desired.

This year the fruit crop in the Niagara district is a very heavy one. All kinds of fruit are plentiful, of good size, excellent flavor and particularly free from blights. At the present time the peaches are the reigning fruit, and the prices, 65c. to $1 are very reasonable indeed. A trip through that district from Hamilton to Niagara Falls is worth a good deal. All along the roads and railways are acres and acres, in fact miles of peach orchards, plumb orchards, pear orchards and apple orchards, with acres and acres of vineyards all heavily ladened. The trees are bending over from the very tops to the lowest branches and great care must be exercised by the pickers so that the branches will not be broken and the trees ruined. Practically all the fruit is picked from ladders as the trees with the exception of apple trees are too small and too frail to permit a person to climb into them. The vineyards will give forth a bountiful crop unless a severe frost catches them before they are ripe. As the vines stand now they will bear many tons of grapes and not only do the Niagara

Dying of Cholera

Local Physician Says Thousands Dying in Europe Can Be Saved With Proper Medicine.

What is it that keeps down cholera cramps, and summer complaints in America? Ask any doctor or live druggist and he will tell you "Nerviline." Just fancy, a million bottles are sold every year to people who use Nerviline for stomach disorder, cramps, flatulence, and summer complaint. For fifty years in most Canadian homes no other pain-relieving medicine but Nerviline is kept. Nothing cures the aches, pains and sickness of the entire family so quickly as Nerviline.

LETTER NO. 4672

"As far back as I can remember, at least 50 years ago, there was never a time that our house was without 'Nerviline'. In the summer time, when the children ate green apples and got sick with diarrhoea and cramps, it was Nerviline that cured them. My father used Nerviline frequently to cure gas on his stomach and acute indigestion. There are but few minor ailments that Nerviline does not cure, and I know of no medicine so useful; in fact, so indispensable around the home as Nerviline."

This letter, written by Mrs. N. C. Butcher, a well known resident in Battersea, shows the high opinion entertained of Nerviline by those who have used it constantly for nearly half a century.

You'll never regret using Nerviline. Get it to-day, keep it on hand for an accident or sudden case of sickness in your home. Refuse anything else offered you instead of Nerv line. 25c. per bottle, or five for $1.00. All dealers, or The Catarrhozone Co., Kingston, Ont. 20.

BRITAIN'S SEAMEN.

A prominent Danzig newspaper recently published a sensational article relative to the Baltic cruise of the British armoured cruiser Cornwall. This vessel, it appears, gave an exhibition of steamanship which has deeply impressed our Teuton friends. The journal in question reports that on the occasion of the Cornwall's visit to Kiel a dense mist prevailed, and the harbor authorities, who had been advised of her pending arrival in the evening, did not expect her to put in an appearance before morning. However, when day broke there she was moored in her assigned position, and appearing to be quite at 'at home. She had navigated the difficult Kiel flord in the darkness and mist without a pilot on board.

This performance she repeated at Danzig and Swinemunde, according to the report, in both cases without a pilot. The German journal is extremely indignant at this "ostentatious display of the navigator's art" and is still more alarmed at the possibilities it connotes. "From this performance," it says, "we are compelled to ask our naval authorities what would happen in the event of a sudden outbreak of war with England It is obvious that if British naval officers are so thoroughly conversant with some of our most difficult harbors they would have not the slightest difficulty in bottling up the high seas fleet in Kiel or elsewhere.)'

THE UNITED STATES CURRENCY

Senator Aldrich having successfully carried the Tariff legislation through the United States Congress is now stated to be about to turn his attention to the reform of the country's currency system. There are many persons who consider that reform of the currency system is as important and necessary for the prosperity of the country as was a revision of the Tariff. It is probable, however, that the former will prove to be as difficult as the latter has been found to be. The weakness of the present currency system is that it expands when it should expand. It has been suggested that the organization of a Government bank would enable these defects to be overcome. That would depend to a great eftent on the question as to whether such an institution and its operations could be kept from the control or manipulation of leading financiers and speculators, whose interests might often be different from those of the country at large.

Mrs. H. F. Foote and Master Nor[illegible] left yesterday morning for Winnipeg, Brandon and Qu'Appelle Sask. where they will join Mr. Foote and will be the guests of friends for the next two months.

If Sick

Don't risk even one single penny!

And I will tell you why I say this.

It is because every package of Dr. Shoop's medicine is absolutely free if it fails.

No one need risk even one single penny.

Just think what this means to the suffering sick!

No risk, no expense, nothing whatever unless health first returns. For 23 full days, and without the risking a penny, you can use either of my two famous remedies—Dr. Shoop's Restorative or Dr. Shoop's Rheumatic Remedy.

Then why take any chance whatever?

Why purchase any medicine whose maker dare not back it just as I do by this remarkable offer?

And besides, I am no stranger to you.

My "No help-no pay" plan has made Dr Shoop's Restorative a household word in every drug store in the land. The sick know boldly said, "We take no chance when we deal here."

For twenty years Dr. Shoop's medicines have become thoroughly standardized all over America. And I have supplied honest and responsible druggists in every city and village everywhere to accept my offer to their people. Then selected druggists are authorized to sell medicines with the sick—and the entire risk is mine alone.

But write me first for an order.

I have an agent in almost every community—but all druggists are not authorized to grant the 23 day test.

So drop me a line, please—and thus save all disappointments and delays.

Besides, you are free to consult me by letter as you would your home physician. Do so freely and fully—if you desire. My advice and the book below are yours—and without cost. Perhaps a word or two from me will clear up your entire ailment. I have helped thousands upon thousands by my private prescription or personal advice plan.

Besides, the books will open up new and helpful ideas to you. They tell of my 25 years experience at the bedside of the sick in Home, Hospital and Private Practice. All about the [illegible] and rules are told of here. They tell [illegible] "inside nerve" no larger than a silken thread that stirs by the Heart to impulse. How the Stomach and Kidneys each have their inside or private nerve. How these organs simply falter when these controlling or master nerves begin to fail. How Dr. Shoop's Restorative or Dr. Shoop's Rheumatic Remedy [illegible] these nerves with rich, red blood, nerve force, nerve [illegible] and nerve power. Then [illegible] nature will [illegible] within the power of medicine to do so. My best effort is to simply worth your while to write me now, while it is fresh in mind. No nonsense never comes. CROOKS INVADE LONDON.

Old Time Tricks Still Worked on the Public.

Hundreds of the cleverest sharpers and "crooks" from various parts of the world have lately invaded London for the purpose of preying on those very innocent people—visitors mostly —who fondly imagine they are going to get something for nothing.

These criminals have the same old "gag," the same old tricks, the same old bundles of flash notes; but they can always find new victims to fleece of hoarded wealth, and they manage to do their work so neatly and so efficiently that at times even the "flats" themselves do not know they have been swindled.

"The police," says a well-known Scotland Yard detective, "do their best to protect these people who are not able to protect themselves from these rogues, but, of course, we cannot always succeed.

"One of the most astonishing things is that the older the swindle the more it seems to flourish. Take the purse trick, for instance. The sharper offers to sell three half crowns in a purse for one half crown.

"His many victims do not stop to reason out the matter themselves. They think they are going to get something for nothing, and, naturally, they are trapped. They find only three pennies in the purse.

"Then there is the three-card trick, which is practiced in trains and on race-courses as often as ever it was. Here again the deluded folk who are lured into 'finding the lady,' imagine they are smart enough to trick the trickster, and that they will go home with pockets bulging with gold.

"West End hotels are the headquarters of the confidence trick gentleman. As a rule, they are well-educated men, and, of course, nimble-witted. They dress stylishly, talk 'big,' and show a considerable display of wealth while they mark down their victims

"One of them 'tells the tale.' He has inherited a fortune, and in order to show his deep appreciation of his new friend's many acts of kindness he intends to intrust him with $250,000 to invest for him.

"Confederates—all apparent strangers to each other — sing the lucky heir's praises, and eventually the new friend consents to hand over just as much money as he possesses in order to show that he, too, has confidence in the honesty of the smooth-tongued swindler. And the fool and his money are parted—forever.

"Quite recently the police broke up a clever gang of Australians—one of whom was actually a member of the Automobile Club—who swindled a man of hundreds of pounds by the old trick of backing a horse after the result of the race was known; but in spite of the publicity given to the case this particular form of swindle will be practiced in the future with similar results."

An Accomplished Lady.

Mrs. Hertha Ayrton, widow of the late Prof. William Edward Ayrton, F.R.S., the famous electrical engineer and inventor, has herself achieved much in the realm of science.

This accomplished lady is the only female member of the Institution of Electrical Engineers, and though debarred by her sex from election to the Royal Society on her nomination to that distinction after reading an able paper before that body, she was awarded the first medal ever granted by the society to a woman

At an age when most girls are puzzling over the toilets of their dolls, Mrs. Ayrton was showing an aptitude for deep and serious study in various directions, and she had only just turned sixteen when she was earning her own living as a teacher at Girton.

Mrs. Ayrton discovered herself the connection between current length and pressure in the arc, as also the cause and laws of hissing therein, and has written learnedly and lucidly upon the subject. This remarkable lady has also read interesting papers on special scientific subjects at several of the meetings of the British Association, as well as before the International Electrical Congress and the Institution of Electrical Engineers.

The Monks of Old London.

The monk was generally, at any rate in London, drawn from the ranks of the gentry and the aristocracy. He usually paid a good round fee to be taken into an abbey or a priory, and he lived for the most part in ease and comfort—often in luxury, as luxury was reckoned in those days. Many of the abbeys and priories were little less than high-class social clubs for younger sons. They were often as exclusive as the West-End social clubs are to-day. The monks of London frequently vied with the nobility in horses and hawks and hounds, and in every other accompaniment of a sportsman and a man of the world They dressed in the latest and gayest fashion, with nothing to mark their special calling. They lived the fashionable and worldly life to the full.—

TRIP OF 57TH.

Had Great Time in Perth, and are Glad They Went.

It was just three o'clock Tuesday morning when the special train from Perth pulled in at the C.P.R. station with the officers and men of the 57th Regiment on board. It was the return from the annual three-day trip. This year the boys went to Perth and they had a great time. They arrivedin Perth on Sunday at 3.30 in the morning and went direct to their camps and slept for several hours. The program consisted of a church parade to St. James Anglican church at 10.30, a band concert in the evening by the 57th; on Monday morning an address of welcome was read by the Mayor, Capt. F. W. Hall, and Monday afternoon a large number made a trip down the canal to Rideau lake. The cooks' parade put on by the bugle band was a feature of the visit. Mayor and Mrs. Hall entertained the officers to a garden party at their residence about four o'clock.

$90,000---7 Per Cent.

9,000 Shares 7 Per Cent Cumulative Preferred Stock ($10 a Share) Offered at Par with 40 Per Cent Immediate Bonus of Common Stock. We Reserve the Right to Withdraw Offer Without Notice and to Return any Subscription Received Too Late. Previous Offerings Were Immediately Oversubscribed.

MORE THAN A THOUSAND BANK OFFICERS, LAWYERS, PHYSICIANS, MINISTERS, BUSINESS MEN AND OTHERS HAVE BECOME STOCKHOLDERS IN THE CIRCLE PUBLISHING COMPANY WITHIN THE PAST FEW MONTHS.

Presidents and Cashiers of Banks, Presidents and other officers of Insurance Companies and of prominent business concerns who are thoroughly qualified to pass upon the soundness of such a proposition have comended the investment and have put their own money into it.

Many leading Physicians, Ministers and Educators in all the big cities of the United States and several in Europe have very highly endorsed THE CIRCLE MAGAZINE and THE CIRCLE PUBLISHING COMPANY, and have been glad to become part owners in the enterprise.

These men, and a good many splendid women, also, have known THE CIRCLE for several years and have watched it grow better and stronger constantly. They know what a sterling good property it is; they know that it is founded on a plan that ought to success, and they know that it is held always true to that plan; they know from personal experience that its business methods are good, careful, and conservative, yet aggressive and successful; they are convinced, therefore, that there is a large and very profitable career ahead of THE CIRCLE PUBLISHING COMPANY. For these reasons they have been glad of a chance to get some of its stock.

Twice we offered by letter, without any blow of trumpets, Five Thousand Shares of our Cumulative Seven Per Cent, Preferred Stock for subscription. Each time the Five Thousand Shares were promptly over-subscribed before we could finish sending out the letters to the selected list. There are only Twenty Thousand Shares of Preferred Stock in all, therefore more than half was taken up at once, and we have not offered the balance until now.

For a short time we are going to give the same opportunity to those who did not receive our letters: but as the amount is necessarily limited, prompt action will be required.

HERE IS THE PLAN: The Capital Stock of The Circle Publishing Company is $500,000, of which $200,000 is Preferred Stock with 7 per cent. Cumulative dividend, and $300,000 is Common Stock upon which all dividends over and above the 7 per cent. on the Preferred Stock will be paid. Measured by the opportunities for rapid development of the business and by the known earnings of other great magazine and book publishing properties, the dividends on the Common Stock should soon exceed the fixed dividend on the Preferred Stock, and our Plan gives you some of both kinds.

The following extract from an article in a recent number of Leslie's Weekly is to the point:

"HOW A FEW DOLLARS MADE A FORTUNE."

"Among the most interesting commercial facts in this country are the astonishing fortunes which are being made by magazine publishers.

"Every year more than the immense sum of about $80,000,000 is spent in buying advertising space and in buying copies of periodicals. A large portion of this huge amount of money becomes profits for magazine owners.

"The great popular monthly publications have risen to wealth and prominence so quickly that only $100 invested in Munsey's a few years ago is now worth between $10,000 and $12,000, and is earning dividends at the rate of $1,000 a year.

"McClure's Magazine made a profit for its stockholders of 1,000 per cent. in about ten years. The total annual income of The Ladies' Home Journal and The Saturday Evening Post, both of which are owned by the Curtis Publishing Company, of Philadelphia, is not far from $6,000,000. The Cosmopolitan, Everybody's, The Outlook, and others, are immensely profitable.

"Unfortunately, however, magazine readers have rarely had an opportunity to share in these splendid earnings. Nearly all the magazines are in each case owned by a few individuals, who receive all the enormous income.

"A chance to secure an interest in one of the great popular magazines, on a basis that insures absolute safety and gives a liberal share of all the profits of the business, is an opportunity that attracts the immediate attention of the shrewdest investors."

OUR OFFER IS THIS: The par value of all shares is $10. They are full paid and non-assessable. The taxes on the stock are paid in full. Nine thousand shares of the Cumulative 7 per cent Preferred Stock are offered now at ten dollars a share, par. Every subscriber for five shares of Preferred Stock will be given a bonus of one share of Common Stock and will be made also a life subscriber for THE CIRCLE Magazine without additional payment. A subscriber for any multiple of five shares will be given a corresponding number of shares of Common Stock, as bonus, and will be allowed to present a life subscription for THE CIRCLE as a gift to some relative or friend for each five shares of Preferred Stock subscribed. Additional shares of Common Stock may be substituted in lieu of life subscriptions as bonus, or vice-versa. Thus, ten shares of Preferred Stock will entitle the subscriber to two shares of Common Stock and two life subscriptions for THE CIRCLE, or four shares of Common Stock. One hundred shares of Preferred Stock will carry with them a bonus of twenty shares of Common Stock and twenty life subscriptions for THE CIRCLE, or forty shares of Common Stock.

If you can not afford to take five or more shares, you may subscribe for three shares, and with such a subscription we will give you either the life subscription for THE CIRCLE or a bonus of one share of Common Stock, as you prefer.

We must say now, however, that this offer with its bonus is conditioned upon your prompt acceptance, and we reserve the right to withdraw or modify the offer without further notice.

YOU NEED NOT SEND ALL THE MONEY NOW IF NOT CONVENIENT TO DO SO, but write at once, saying how many of the 9,000 shares you will take and how soon you will be ready to pay for them. Ten per cent. of the amount of your subscription should be sent at the time of making the reservation. If more convenient to you the total amount may be divided into several instalments. Please use one of the Application Forms below, or a copy of the same.

Just an earnest word or two: You ought to know something about the "Plan" and aim of THE CIRCLE. We are all deeply in earnest about this matter. Every one of the men and women who now control the editorial and the business policy of the magazine is pledged to the carrying onward to its highest possible success the work of making a great, high-class, popular magazine of world-wide circulation which shall portray and encourage the good in individual, social, business, and political life, rather than the evil; which shall stand for peace rather than war; which shall search out beauty rather than ugliness; which shall build up rather than teardown; which shall constantly plan and labor, and co-operate with those who are planning and laboring, to make this world a better and happier place to live in, both for the poor and the wealthy, for the unlearned and the learned, for the weak and for the strong.

This is not mere rainbow painting. It is a real and definite program, based upon strong convictions and practical plans. We know that there are many splendid men and women who are in sympathy with this program and want to see it carried out. They know, as we know, that there is a positive cure in sun shine and fresh air. The poisonous, ill-smelling places often can be purified and made beautiful just by letting in the sunlight and the sweet winds of heaven. No man can remain a pessimist who will open his eyes and his heart to the good and the beautiful around him. All he need do is to give it just a fair share of his attention. It will surely sweeten his blood, cheer and lift up his heart, lighten his step, brighten the glance of his eyes, and inspire him in his work. There is plenty of evil to fight, and it calls for strenuous and constant effort, but the man who sees nothing but the evil will never be able to overcome much of it. You who will help to support and boldly develop and broaden the work of THE CIRCLE Magazine, until its influence is felt in countless American homes, satisfying the great need, recognized or unrecognized, of American life—you who will help to accomplish this will come closer to the hearts of multitudes of people and do more universal and lasting good than can be done in any restricted field. No single instrument within the grasp of any group of men can be so effective as this great, clean, purposeful magazine in bringing to pass that "Peace on Earth, Good Will to Men," for which the world has been waiting for so many centuries.

This is a business enterprise. We want to make money for ourselves and for our stockholders, and we shall do so; but this business enterprise—this sound, common-sense, money-making enterprise is inspired with an ideal; this corporation has a soul.

Men of long and successful experience in the magazine and book publishing business and in financial affairs make up the Board of Officers and Directors of The Circle Publishing Company.

This additianal capital will be used to increase the circulation and advertising patronage of THE CIRCLE Magazine and to develop profitable book publishing enterprises of the Company. No magazine in the world possesses more real elements of large business profit and immense usefulness to society than does THE CIRCLE magazine itself shows tangible evidence, month by month, of the truth of these statements.

We trust you will join with us—that you will write quickly and reserve five, ten, twenty, fifty or more shares of the Preferred Stock, and so have a part in THE CIRCLE work and THE CIRCLE success. Write at once, if possible, filling out one of the blank forms below.

VISCOUNT KITCHENER.

A Brief Biography of Soldier Who May Visit Canada.

General Horatio Herbert, first Viscount Kitchener of Khartoum—who has just completed the great work he undertook in 1902 of reorganizing the British Indian Army—was born on Midsummer Day at Ballylongford, in the County Kerry.

During his exceptionally brilliant military career the retiring Indian commander has asserted himself with characteristic confidence and unbending will, and Lord Kitchener must be accounted one of the most strenuous soldiers that the British Empire has ever possessed.

Coming of a military family, Lord Kitchener passed thirty-eight years ago from Woolwich into the Royal Engineers. Since then his career has been one of scintillating brilliance, for "K. of K."—as he is now often called "for short"—has been to the fore in many expeditions and campaigns, and has "built himself an everlasting name" for thoroughness in the profession of arms.

A veritable "glutton for work," he assisted in the Palestine survey in 1874-78 and that of Cyprus of 1878-82.

Then he was sent to Egypt, and entrusted with the command of the Khedive's cavalry and the remodelling of the native army. Having effected this to his own exacting desiring, he, as Sirdar, conducted a vigorous opposition to the forces of the Khalifa. He found it necessary to build a railway to Omdurman before he finally broke the power of the prophet, annihilating the Khalifa's army in 1898.

By this time he had reached the rank of major-general and been made a K.C.B., and he came home covered with Egyptian honors, to receive the thanks of the British Parliament, a peerage, and a grant of £30,000.

In the year following, when matters seemed to be going wrong with our forces engaged against the Boers in South Africa, Lord Kitchener was sent out as Chief of Staff to Lord Roberts. Here, again, he distinguished himself for determination and dash in combination; and when Cronje had been circumvented at Paardeberg and the British flag hoisted in Pretoria, he was promoted to the commandership of the forces in South Africa on Lord Roberts' return to England.

Kitchener brought the long campaign to a close. Again the gallant fighter and fine organizer was thanked by Parliament, given a further £50,000 from the country's public purse, and raised in the peerage to a viscounty.

As a full general he was sent out in 1902 to India as Commander-in-Chief with practically a free hand to reform the army of our great Empire of the Orient. His ideals of duty brooking no civilian interference in matters military, Viscount Kitchener soon came into conflict with the then Viceroy, Lord Curzon, and the friction ensued in the resignation of that able statesman in 1905.

Since then Lord Kitchener has practically been permitted to have his own way at headquarters in India, and on the completion of his task in the Orient, he is credited by some with hankering after overthrowing the influence of the non-military element in the War Office for good and all.

Barrister's First Brief.

My first brief I have the best of reasons for remembering particularly clearly. It was engaged for the defence in a case of robbery. Two men, the prisoners, had seized the prosecutor on the platform of Shrewsbury Station, and while one of them held his arms the other quietly rifled his pockets.

They were caught red-handed, and I had a brief to defend the prisoner who had held the prosecutor by the arms. I made the obvious defence. I urged that it was vindictive to sacrifice two victims to justice when one would suffice, that the distinction between the two prisoners was manifest, and as the case I defended had not taken any money at all it was impossible to pretend that he was as guilty as his companion.

To the amazement of everybody not excepting the chairman—who had been careful in his summing up to sweep away my sophistries—the jury made the distinction I suggested to them, and returned a verdict of "Not guilty" against my prisoner.—"Reminiscences of Mr. A. C. Plowden," in The Strand Magazine.

A Pageant of Priests.

Pageants have so far illustrated the history of a single town or city, but the one held recently in the grounds of Fulham Palace, London, was unique. It depicted the growth and history of the Church of England.

It was split up into a number of episodes, and, beginning with the publication of the Edict of Emperor Constantine, came right down through the ages to the acquittal of the Seven Bishops in 1688. A final tableau, representing the church "throughout the world," concluded the gigantic spectacle.

The grounds of Fulham Palace, lent by the Bishop of London, were well fitted for such a purpose.

The spectators were housed in a grand stand, 394 feet in length, 90 feet in depth, and covering an acre of ground. In addition to a large royal box, there was seating accommodation for 6,750. His Grace the Archbishop of Canterbury performed the opening ceremony.

An Amiable Violinist.

Robert Browning and Joachim met one evening at a friendly gathering in London. The violinist had "obliged" without satisfying certain ladies, who entreated the poet to obtain from him another solo. Browning, feeling the delicacy of his task, discharged it diplomatically and spoke, as sometimes he wrote, so as to conceal his thoughts, while the violinist, not understanding, bowed and smiled and did not play.

As they left the house Joachim asked, "What did you mean just now?"

"Oh," said the poet, "I wanted you to give us some more music."

"Then, why did you not come and say, 'Joe, old boy, give us another tune?'" returned the amiable violinist.

Tickling or dry Coughs will quickly loosen when using Dr. Shoop's Cough Remedy. And it is so thoroughly harmless, that Dr. Shoop tells mothers to use nothing else, even for very young babies. The wholesome green leaves and tender stems of a lung healing mountainous shrub give the curative properties to Dr. Shoop's Cough Cure. It calms the cough and heals the sensitive bronchial membranes. No opium, no chloroform, nothing harsh used to injure or suppress. Demand Dr. Shoop's. Accept no other. Sold by all dealers.

FAMOUS WAX ARTIST

Mme. Tussaud Had an Exciting and Dramatic Career.

IN THE FRENCH REVOLUTION.

During That Era of Bloodshed She Modeled Some of the Heads That Fell by the Guillotine and Was For a Time in Prison Herself as a Suspect.

This is the story of Mme. Tussaud, who was born in Berne in 1760 and died in London in 1850, and who, during the stormy time of the French revolution, modeled in wax some of the heads that fell by the guillotine.

Marie Gresholtz was the daughter of an aid-de-camp of General Wurmser in the Seven Years' war. She was born after the death of her father.

Her mother was the sister of Dr. John Christopher Curtius of Berne. This Dr. Curtius had made many anatomical and other models in wax and had attracted the attention of the Prince de Conti. This nobleman urged Curtius to come to Paris and establish himself as a modeler in wax.

The Curtius studio became the rendezvous of the fashionable world, and in connection with this he had a museum of curiosities. Among his patrons were Voltaire, Jean Jacques, Rousseau, Mesmer, Mirabeau, Diderot, Benjamin Franklin, Paul Jones and many other notable persons.

In his visits to his sister at Berne Dr. Curtius had taught his niece, Marie, many of the secrets of modeling in wax. She showed such ability in this that her uncle urged her mother to make a home with him in Paris and to allow him to adopt Marie as his daughter.

Marie began earnest study with Dr. Curtius, and she was so skillful in the modeling of wax flowers that this art became a craze. Even the royal personages in the palace took it up, and Marie spent some time giving lessons to Mme. Elizabeth, the young sister of Louis XVI.

When the revolution broke out Dr. Curtius took the side of the people and sent for Marie to come from the palace. It was rather singular that two of his wax models should have played a foremost part in the opening scenes of that awful period. In his collection of models was a bust of the minister, Necker, father of Mme. de Stael, and one of Philippe, duke of Orleans. Two days before the storming of the Bastille a mob took these two busts from his museum in the Palais Royal, draped them in black crape to show their sympathy and started to parade the streets with these.

As the procession filed across the Place Vendome a troop of dragoons and one of the regiments charged. A sword stroke cut the bust of Necker in halves, and the man who was carrying it was hit by a musket ball in the leg and received the thrust of a sword in his breast.

The bust of the Duke of Orleans escaped injury, but in the fight to defend it several persons were killed. The soldiers made desperate efforts to demolish it.

At the taking of the Bastille Dr. Curtius was active and for his services to France was rewarded by the national assembly. A badge of honor was presented to him, and this was inscribed with the famous date and a memorial of his bravery and patriotism. His house was a favorite place of meeting with the leaders of the revolution, so Marie had an opportunity to see them all.

There was only one time when Marie was in any danger during this desperate period. She was "suspected" and sent to prison. Here at the same time was Mme. de Beauharnais, who had barely escaped the guillotine and who was later the Josephine of Napoleon Bonaparte. Her uncle was able to get Marie's release from prison, and she came out in time to see the downfall of Robespierre, Danton and Desmoulins.

In the days of their power she had been called to model the heads of many who fell by the guillotine. She was obliged to take them just after the fall of the fatal knife. She did this awful work with the heads of poor Marie Antoinette and of the Princess Lamballe, the queen's friend. When the leaders suffered by the guillotine in their turn she modeled their heads.

After the revolution her uncle died, and in 1795 she married M. Tussaud. She could not overcome the shock of her experiences during the revolution, and she persuaded her husband to take her and the valuable collections of wax models left her by Dr. Curtius over to England.

They established this collection in the Strand. The collection was taken all about the country, and in 1833 it was brought back to London and made a permanent exhibition. Her sons conducted the business, and she took an active share in this till she was eighty years of age.

Naming Their Children.

It was a musical man who gave his four daughters the following names: Do-re, Mi-fa, So-la, Ti-do. The first escaped with the nickname Dora, the second answered Miffy, the third owned up to Solly, while the youngest generally got Tiddy.

The case of the musical man is matched by that of the provincial printer who named his children from the type fonts he used—Ruby, Pearl, Diamond. The first two are no uncommon names for girls, only Ruby happened to be a boy. He followed in his father's footsteps and afterward became a printer's manager in London.—London Chronicle.

Bernard Shaw's Next Play.

Bernard Shaw has written another play since "The Showing Up of Blanco Posnet," says The Nation. It is entitled "Press Cutting. Compiled From the Correspondence and Editorial Columns of the Daily Press," and consists of an ironical discussion of woman's suffrage and universal military service.

England's Oldest Barber Dead.

Allen Batchelor, of Guildford, England, who was reputed to be England's oldest barber, died recently at the age of 88. He claimed to have been patronized by kings, dukes, bishops, judges, policemen, politicians, publicans, "and sinners no end."

ARMY CORPS CALLED OUT.

Utmost Efficiency Shown In Recent Mobilization.

A British army corps was called out for war the other day, and afforded a fine object-lesson of how quickly and effectively British troops can be organized nowadays.

Never before in the history of the British army has so unexpected, and yet so complete, a mobilization been carried out. Nearly twenty thousand men of all arms were lined up ready to entrain, and it was only by the absence of a call to the Reservists that the feat differed from what the authorities hope to effect in case of an actual or threatened invasion.

No warning of what was coming was given. At six o'clock in the morning Lieut.-Gen. Smith-Dorrien rode down to the headquarters' office and gave the order for the alarm to be sounded, followed by the order for every unit in his command to turn out as rapidly as possible, fully mobilized, and ready for active service.

The military telephones linking up the barracks were soon busy with the order, and mounted orderlies carried the summons to those officers who live out of barracks.

Some of the battalions were already in the field; the Gloucesters, for instance, having left barracks at four o'clock for a long night's operations. They were summoned back by mounted men and cyclist messengers, and within the hour every barracks was the centre of activity.

Wagons were dragged out and loaded with stores, water-carts filled, ammunition drawn from the magazines and distributed, and field dressings and emergency rations issued to the men with their metal identity discs and pocket ledgers.

For some time past the chiefs of staff have been working at this mobilization scheme to render it perfect for a sudden call, and the test that was being applied could only be equalled by the actual call of war. Indeed, among many of the troops the belief was accepted that an invasion was an accomplished fact.

The telegraph wires had carried the news to those officers and men away on week-end leave, and the early trains to Aldershot were filled with anxious soldiers, who on reaching the stations raced up to their barracks, to appear in a short space of time accountred and equipped for service.

Six hours was the time given for the units to get on parade, ready to move off, but so perfect was the machinery that in the great majority of cases little more than half that time was needed to report all ready.

From the Army Service Corps barracks parties of butchers and bakers, clerks, saddlers, and artificers marched off to join the brigade and divisional headquarters, every man having his allotted place and his special duties.

No confusion marked the preparations, and long before the allotted time was up nearly 20,000 men, artillery, cavalry, and infantry, with engineers and supply transport services, were marching out of barracks to go wherever needed.

To Punish the Mullah.

Col. Gough, says a report from Aden, according to present arrangements, will begin military operations this month against the Somaliland mullah, who has continued to harass the friendly tribes.

It is understood that the operations will take the form of flying columns, composed of mounted infantry and irregulars, which will endeavor to round up the elusive enemy.

Practically everything is now ready, and ample native troops on the spot are being supplied with white officers.

The chief difficulty is, as it has always been, transport. British agents have been buying animals all along the Red Sea, but prices have been high, particularly for camels. The Emperor Menelik has, moreover, forbidden the export of these animals from his territory.

It is thought that Sir Reginald Wingate, who has arrived in the country from Cairo, will, from his experience of Soudan "drives," be able to give Col. Gough some useful advice.

Berbera is the base of the new operations, which will cover a wide area. The British Government has for some time been collecting information as to the situation, particularly along the northwestern Somaliland border, and the authorities are very hopeful of success.

St. Fillan's Bell.

Early in the nineteenth century a bell was stolen from Killin, in Perthshire. This bell, which was said to have been used by St. Fillan, was supposed to possess marvelous healing powers, and was placed on the heads of all the mad people, who were brought to be dipped in the saint's pool, in order to complete the cure.

Popular opinion had it that the bell, which was not very large, would extricate itself from the hands of any one who stole it and return home, ringing all the way. The antiquary who finally annexed it explained his action by a desire "to abate superstition."

A Mild Reproach.

One cold morning little Elsie was being bathed by her mother, and usually her bath was a great delight to her. But this morning her mother talked incessantly while she worked.

Elsie loved her dearly and tried hard to be patient. But the lecture was so tiresome! Her mother was laying out a course of conduct for the day, and it was all so old. She had heard it over and over again.

Finally she said very sweetly, but very wearily: "Please, mamma, don't talk any more. You do make such a draft!"

Jerry Needn't Bother.

It was the beloved and lamented Monsignor Connolly, of the Church of St. John the Baptist, at St. John, N.B., who noticed an old parishioner stealing a glance at his watch as the text was read out one fine summer morning.

"It's just twenty minutes past eleven, Jerry Callahan, and at a quarter to twelve I'll be through, so you can save yourself the trouble of taking your watch out of your pocket," said his reverence, and proceeded with the sermon.

Staterooms and Portholes.

An experienced traveler warns the uninitiated against paying from $5 to $10 extra for an outside stateroom on ocean liners. The inside rooms she has found to be perfectly comfortable and perfectly ventilated, and the portholes in the outside ones she considers a doubtful advantage. "They are kept locked," she says, "most of the time unless the weather is very pleasant, and even in calm weather they sometimes ship a deluge of salt water. Dirty water, too, swept from the deck above by the cleaners, may come into a porthole of a room below, and the odors from the deck is another thing. Why, then should one pay extra for a porthole?"

C. P. R's BIRTHDAY.

Railroad Is 23 Years of Age—Tales of the Early Days.

The C.P.R. did not mark in any special way the twenty-third anniversary, which occurred the other week, of the sending of the first transcontinental train across the Dominion. At the same time, in looking back to the achievements of the last twenty-three years, the official breast was inclined to swell a little with satisfaction.

It is twenty-three years since the last lines of the great transcontinental system were put together, making one long whole out of many disjointed parts.

The head offices were then on St. James street, facing Place d'Armes Square. Lord Mount Stephen was president, and Sir William (then Mr. William) Van Horne general manager.

The offices themselves were small and stuffy. All was in the formative stage. The sense of stability had yet to be impressed upon the system. The general manager could be found in his shirt sleeves. Sir Thomas Shaughnessy was then purchasing agent of the company. Mr. McNicoll acted as general passenger agent. Business was done, but it was done under crude conditions.

The staff was small, and the thousand or more clerical employes now at the head office were not dreamed of.

Great railway men were then in the making. The highest was accessible. It was desirable to propitiate the public.

The visible assets were slight, and the local cartoonists of the time used to poke fun at the C.P.R. trying, with the aid of Mr. Clouston, the general manager of the Bank of Montreal, and a lighted candle, to find a surplus in the vaults of the bank.

There was the old Dalhousie Square station, which sufficed for all the business offering.

Little was defined. Able men took off their coats, but when any enthusiastic person spoke of dividends, he was greeted with an indulgent smile.

This can be said—that everybody hustled.

As Sir William Van Horne has many times said to the writer, in going over the past, "we literally took off our coats to work."

The offices were removed to Victoria Square, to the building formerly occupied by the Co-operative Association. The annual meetings were then held in secret, and it was a sight to see the local newspaper men holding up Sir William Van Horne after the meeting was over.

The tone of those meetings was vastly different from that which prevails at present. A tremendous undertaking had been espoused, but the future was dark. The Northwest was merely a name—vague, distant. The business had to be made.

Such growth, however, manifested itself in the course of a few years that it was deemed necessary to have a West End station and general offices, which the company itself could control.

In the early years the earnings of the company varied from $5,000,000 to $10,000,000 per annum. They are now something like $75,000,000 per annum.

Even after the new station and general offices were taken possession of, there were days of darkness to be encountered; and it became necessary for Lord Strathcona to come over to reassure the pessimistic stockholders, many of whom openly lamented that they had put their money into such a doubtful enterprise.

"An enterprise," said His Lordship, "which, nevertheless, will, in the course of the next few years be one of the best dividend-earners in the Dominion."

The event proved the correctness of Lord Strathcona's prophecy.

Telephones at Osgoode Hall.

Osgoode Hall, Toronto, slumbered for half a century or more, so far as telephones and other modern equipment were concerned, and "then it awoke or was awakened, whichever you prefer.

A young man came to Osgoode Hall. He was J. A. C. Cameron, and like other wise men, he came from the east. He hailed from Cornwall, to succeed the late Neil McLean as referee and clerk to the Master-in-Ordinary.

It occurred to him that new office furniture would be a good thing, and, likewise, improved ventilation. He got 'em. Then he asked for a telephone.

"Why, people will bother you to death," he was told.

"That's all right," he answered, easily. "It's a good thing to be stirred up." Mr. Cameron's telephone, the first business hello machine in Osgoode, was installed. There were three 'phones at Osgoode, but they belonged to the Law Society. Then, after the Cameron innovation, came the definite decision by the Government to equip the various offices with telephones.

A Difficult Task.

A good story is told of Rev. Dr Sipprell, president of Columbian College, New Westminster, B.C., and a great exponent of Methodism on the British Columbia coast. Dr. Sipprell is possessed of the silver tongue, and his flowery sermons and addresses are the pride of Methodist hearts.

On a recent trip through the Rockies, returning from a visit east, the doctor was enjoying, for the first time, the grandeur of the Canadian mountains. He was talking to a little coterie of admiring friends.

"Ah!" he said rapturously, waving his arm oratorically toward a colossal pile of rock, "What would we find friends, were we to drive to the bottom of you wonderful mountain?"

"Humph!" ejaculated a brakeman who overheard the remark. "You'd find a —— of a lot of hard work."

Place For Dullards.

Admiral Kingsmill, advocates a Canadian navy because it will provide places for our dullards. His theory has all the authority that antiquity can lend it, and no more. It prompts The Kincardine Review to recall the story of the captain who was receiving the new middy:

"Well, boy, the old story, I suppose —fool of the family sent to sea?"

"Oh, no, sir," piped the boy, "that's all altered since your day."

It's a pity when sick ones drag the stomach or stimulate the heart and Kidneys. That is all wrong! A weak Stomach means weak Stomach nerves, always. And this is also true of the Heart and Kidneys. The weak nerves are instead crying out for help. This explains why Dr Agnew's Restorative is promptly helping the Stomach, Heart and Kidney ailment. The Restorative reaches out for the actual cause of these ailments— the failing "inside nerves." Anyway test the Restorative 48 hours. It won't cure so soon as that, but you will surely know that help is coming. Sold by all dealers.

IRELAND.

George Meredith's plea for home rule is embodied in his last poem, "Ireland," which leads off "Scribner's" for June, accompanied by a hitherto unpublished portrait which was painted in 1897 for J. M. Barrie by Alice Dryden Stevens. We quote three of the seven stanzas:

Fire in her ashes Ireland feels
And in her veins a glow of heat.
To her the best old time appeals
For resurrection, soul to greet;
Not as a shape to spectral eyes,
But humanly maternal young
In all that quickens pride, and wise
To speak the best her bards have sung.

Why she not call herself her own?
That is her cry and thence her spite
Of fury, there her graceless tone
At justice given in bits and bits.
The heeds once free with gnawing chains
Will fret at season when God's beams
Of freedom beckon for the plains
From regions that show it more than dreams.

A nation she, and formed to charm,
With heart for peace and hands all sound,
No longer England's broken arm,
Would England know where strength is found;
And strength to-day is England's need:
To-morrow it may be for both
Salvation: heed the portents, heed
The warnings, free the mind from sloth.

WOULDN'T CONFIRM BOY.

Anglican Vicar Refuses Sacrament to Canadian Lad.

The Rev. F. W. Clarke, vicar of Caldicot, South Monmouthshire, England, has refused to allow a Church lad, a Canadian, to attend his confirmation class because the youngster is a member of the Boys' Brigade, which holds its meetings in the Wesleyan school-room. The lad has been brought up in the Church of England, his parents belong to the Church, it was at the invitation of the curate that he presented himself at the vicar's confirmation class, but the vicar asked him at the close of the class if he belonged to the Boys' Brigade, and, when informed that he did, said, "We must draw the line somewhere."

The complaint seems to be that a church lad, though willing to claim full membership of the Church, should have been guilty of the grievous sin of "schism" by belonging to an unsectarian organization, and attending a Bible class in connection with the Boys' Brigade, in which simple Bible teaching is given. The vicar called upon the father of the lad, Mr. Arthur C. Luff, and said: "We must draw the line somewhere. Seeing he is in the brigade, we cannot very well confirm him." Mr. Luff said: "Very well; that finishes the matter."

To an interviewer, Mr. Luff observed: "It is strange to me, after living for fifteen years in British Columbia, where things are so different." When invited to give his version of the matter, the Rev. F. W. Clarke said he hoped no newspaper would interfere in a matter of this kind—"this is a matter which must be left to the clergy to deal with."

Mr. Alfred Kemp, the Wesleyan evangelist, who has charge of the Caldicot Boys' Brigade, said they were absolutely unsectarian, and told the boys to attend what place of worship they pleased, but several members of the Boys' Brigade were asked to leave the church Sunday school because of their membership, and a lieutenant of the brigade left the church choir for the same reason. The curious thing is that the brigade have attended Rogiet Church, where the Archbishop of Monmouth preached to them. But Boys' Brigade members are not wanted in the parish church of Caldicot.

From Journalism to Playwriting.

Quite a number of popular playwrights served their literary apprenticeship as journalists. J. M. Barrie was a reporter on a Nottingham paper before he came to London. Henry Arthur Jones wrote articles and stories from boyhood, and did not enter a theatre until he was eighteen years of age. Hubert Davies was for some years a journalist in America, while Hall Caine, after being trained as an architect, became a journalist and leader-writer on the staff of the Liverpool Mercury, and after coming to London wrote for the Athenaeum, Academy, and other papers.

Cecil Raleigh, the author of so many Drury Lane dramas, wrote for Vanity Fair, and was at one time sub-editor and dramatic critic for the Lady. Cosmo Hamilton has filled the editorial chair of the World. Adrian Ross has done much journalistic work, while it would be impossible to say how many papers and periodicals George R. Sims has written for.

Haydn Manuscript as "Rubbish."

Dr. Cummings, principal of the Guildhall School of Music, in an address on Haydn at the rooms of the Incorporated Society of Musicians, Hanover square, a few days ago, said that some time ago he visited a second-hand music seller's in St. Martin's lane and purchased a Haydn manuscript for two shillings and sixpence. The manuscript was rescued out of a sack of what the music seller described as rubbish.

LONE ST. KILDA.

How the Inhabitants Live on Isolated Little Island.

Surrounded for eight months of the year by an isolating sea which hides it almost impenetrably from the outer world, St. Kilda casts its mists in [illegible] chorus of the isles again. With the resumption of the tourist traffic, the farthest flung of the Western Hebrides [illegible] upon its summer "season." From now till August its people live in the stir of coming and going steamers. It is only within the last 15 years, says The Scotsman, that the Lone Isle began to be included in the itinerary of the tourist. In earlier days the islanders had to be satisfied with the certainty of a call from the factor's smack once or twice a year. It brought the factor on board. He came as he comes yet, to collect the rents in kind—cattle, grain, cheese, sea bird feathers, fulmar oil, dried fish, and other limited products—and he supplied them with their fresh stock of meal, flour, salt, tea and sugar and shawls. Tea and sugar are still comparatively modern luxuries, with only 20 years' familiarity to spice their pleasure. Shops are unknown on the island, so each household must calculate the exact quantity of goods and merchandise he will require to tide him over the winter. There remain, of course, the dairy produce of the island, and the mutton which its sheep supplies. Beef or pork are never eaten.

The St. Kildians give all their cattle to the proprietor for rent, and, unlike the Irish, they don't keep pigs. Comparatively modern illustrations show the fashion in dress to have been distinctly bizarre, but it is much more up to date now. The men manufacture their own tweed and act as their own tailors. Occasionally, indeed, they ply the needle on behalf of the women, who are fond of bright colors, a not unknown feminine idiosyncracy. Scarlet is their favorite shade. Imported shawls are worn on the head in winter time, and Turkey red napkins in summer. Some of the younger women order their costumes from the "mainland," but the majority are content with dresses of their own making. Education is now on an organized basis, although it is only within recent years that the Ladies' Association in Edinburgh began to send students to teach English to the children. Previously the children were taught Gaelic by the most proficient individual among the adults; obviously a haphazard method.

There are about 1,000 sheep scattered over the islands on common pasturage, and every owner has his private mark on his possessions. The sheep are small and wild, and can only be caught by dogs. That accounts for the number of dogs which are kept. In June, the shearing season, all the sheep are driven to ledges on the rocks, where they have a choice of being caught, or of jumping over the precipice. The latter alternative is not infrequently accepted. Tweed making is the principal industry, and it provides the women with the classic occupation of spinning the wool derived form their own sheep. The men do all the weaving, contrary to the custom in Harris, where the women weave as well as spin. At this work the long winter nights are spent, spiced with rivalry. The spinners and weavers of one house vie with those of others as to the quantity and quality of the tweed which will be produced, and it is a case of sitting up and rising early almost to the limit of endurance. In April the land claims attention, and the tweed is laid aside pending the arrival of the Glasgow steamers in May. With the first boat this year has gone out the Glasgow agent, who disposes of the manufactured tweed.

Shipwrecked Thirteen Times.

Mr. John Beveridge, of Kirkcaldy, who recently passed away, had an unusually adventurous career, and was quite a "character." At an early age he ran away to sea, and started as a ship's boy. For the forty-two years following he was only on shore for short periods and at long intervals, and thirteen times suffered shipwreck. Once, when wrecked in St. Andrew's Bay, he saved his life by swimming ashore, hanging to a live sheep. Beveridge sailed in many of the vessels which belonged to the Kirkcaldy whaling fleet, and when the last three whalers belonging to that port were wrecked he was a member of the crew on each occasion. For fifteen years he was a naval reservist, and twenty years ago he sailed his last voyage in the Empress of Dundee to the Baltic. To the last he always wore his seafaring garb.

Wonders of the British Museum.

The resignation of Sir Edward Maunde Thompson from the post of director and principal librarian of the British Museum creates a vacancy worth £1,500 a year and a house to live in. The post, however, is no sinecure. There are over 2,000,000 volumes for which the chief librarian is responsible—the only larger collection is the 2,600,000 volumes of the Bibliotheque Nationale of France—not to mention 70,000 valuable maps, over 100,000 manuscripts (many of which could not be replaced if stolen or destroyed), and a magnificent collection of prints and drawings. Altogether there are eleven departments in the British Museum, which originated in [illegible] three—namely, printed [illegible]

THE KEARN'S INK CO. of Toronto was organized two years ago to manufacture the new CANADIAN WRITING INKS, invented by J. J. Kearns. The past two years has been spent in experimenting and improving quality and today it stands among the top notchers in the ink world. This ink has met with such spontaneous approval from users, and the trade has shown such willingness to buy in quantities, that the management deem it wise to enlarge their operations and make a big staple business enterprise out of this Company hence offer to the public.

The total capital is only $40,000, so that you can see that this is no inflated and watered wild cat scheme but a first-class legitimate investment offered to you—one where a dollar invested today will be worth at least two in a year and will pay 10 per cent, income on this.

PROFITS

There is a gross profit in this ink of from 25 per cent. to 300 per cent.

This is a clear cut business statement, every word of which we can substantiate.

Some Orders that We Received as to the Sale of Kearn's Ink

We found the demand practically without limit; we receiving orders and inquiries for the Ink far beyond our ability to supply the goods, orders came from such houses as Central Business College, Ontario Government, Separate School Boards of Toronto and Peterboro. The Toronto Railway Co., Consumers Gas Company, National Trust Co. Ltd., King Edward Hotel and many other large concerns of the country.

A SAFE MANAGEMENT

The entire management is in the hands of a Board of Directors of leading business men— men of executive and financial ability, men of "made reputations," men who can be counted upon to capably and honestly direct the affairs of the enlarged Company, and see that each and every stockholder receives every dollar of the earnings of his stock.

Got Their Butter.

Lindsay Post:—One of the Lindsay grocers put a crock of butter and a crock of lard on the steamer Otonabee Friday morning to be put off at Sturgeon Point wharf. However, with the rush and hurry which there always is at the landing the crocks were overlooked. The owner of the goods and his wife and family happened to be on board the steamer, and when the boat hands called out to know if any one knew the owner, they quickly claimed the articles. As the party had to take the train from Peterboro to Lindsay on their return trip, the merchandise was bought by the Otonabee people on the steamer.

Wedding Bells

THORNTON—DAWE.

A quiet wedding took place yesterday afternoon at 2.30 o'clock, at the residence of Mr. and Mrs. D. D. C. Dawe, 479 Gilmour street, when their youngest daughter, Nettie Gladys was united in marriage to Mr. Wilbert Everett Thornton, son of Mrs. M. Thornton, by the Rev. G. H. Henderson, pastor of Charlotte street Methodist church. Both of the contracting parties were unattended, and the guests only included the immediate relatives. The bride looked pretty in a dress of cream silk eolienne, trimmed with embroidered chiffon and she carried a beautiful bouquet of roses and lilies-of-the-valley. At the conclusion of the ceremony, all present sat down to a wedding repast which had been prepared by Mr. T. Hooper, the tables and rooms being decorated with smilax and astors.

The bride was the recepient of many beautiful and useful presents, evidencing the high esteem in which she is held by a large circle of friends.

The groom, who is identified with the Dominion Express Company, is popular among his associates, and is a member of the Belmont Club.

Mr. and Mrs. Thornton left on the 4.38 train for Detroit and points west, and on their return to the city, they will reside at 216 Rubidge street. The bride's going away suit was of ameythest cloth with hat to match.

KINGSCOTE—NOYES.

A wedding of interest to the many friends of the contracting parties was solegmnized at St. John's church yesterday morning at 7.15, when Miss Carrie Noyes, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. John Noyes, 224 Munro avenue, Ashburnham, was united in the holy bonds of matrimony to Mr. Charles Harris Kingscote, son of Mr. Alf. Kingscote. The Rev. Canon Davidson officiated at the ceremony. The newly wedded couple left on the eight o'clock C.P.R. train for Toronto and Niagara, and on their return to the city will reside on Park street.

The bride received many handsome presents from her friends and relatives.

ON BOARD WRECKED STEAMER.

J. C. Gibson Was Passenger on the Steamer Ohio.

J. P. Gibson, who is well known in Peterborough, having been a student with Dr. Johnston, V.S., until he graduated from the Ontario Veterinary College a few months ago, was one of the passengers on the ill-fated steamer Ohio, which struck a reef and went to the bottom of the Pacific Ocean on August 26th. G. E. Eccles, the Canadian wireless operator, who stayed at his post of duty till it was too late to save himself, was one of those who perished in the wreck. The Ohio went down on the edge of Millbank Sound 250 miles south of Ketchikan. Dr. Gibson was on his way to Alaska, and had a narrow escape. He had been appointed veterinary inspector of a large contracting firm, who are doing work in Alaska, and, was bound to the north when the wreck occurred.

Dr. Johnston has received a letter from Dr. Gibson in which he tells about the wreck. He also forwards a copy of the Seattle Times in which an account of disaster appears.

Part of the letter is as follows: "I am alive all right, but I lost all my instruments and diplomas and clothes and all I had when it went down. It was an awful experience and I hope never to have such a one again. When I got out of my bed at the call it made my hair stand on end. At 1.30 a.m., it was rainy and very dark—the ship hit a rock. There was a panic and a rush for the life boats. They kept her going till 1.48 and then ran her ashore. At 2.15 she went down. There were four or five lost I got into a boat and we started for no one knows where. It was so dark that we felt like blind men groping about. At last the boat struck shore, and we landed on a desolate island. There we remained till we were picked up late the next day. It is easy to sit here and write this, but I hope I never again see such a wreck."

Takes to London.

Mr. Pierce Butler, Perry street, has been received into the Victoria Home for Incurables, London, Ont., where he has been taken. His case has been under consideration by the Charity Board, who arranged for his reception. Mr. F. W. Miller, who accompanied him, carefully looked after him on the journey. The maintenance of Mr. Butler of $5 a week is paid by the city.

A DELIGHTFUL TRIP.

Str. Otonabee Makes Its Last Trip for Season to Peterborough.

The trip to Peterboro on the steamer Otonabee was a genuine treat. When the boat reached Pleasant Point and Sturgeon Point quite a number boarded the boat. The trip through the stretch of waters was a delightful one, and Peterboro was reached at 6.30 o'clock. A number of American visitors were on board, and they were entertained with the trip. The excursionists were loud in their praises of the courtesy of Captain White. Purser Henderson and the rest of the crew. They left no stone unturned in looking after the pleasure of those on board—Lindsay Post.

New Uniforms Ordered for Fire Department

Considerable Business Put through by the Fire, Water and Light Committee

A lot od business was put through the Fire, Water & Light Committee last night and it was despatched without any trouble and without any wrangling. Some of the business transacted was for the purchase of a set of heavy harness for the fire engine, an order for an extension of the water mains on Bethune street, ordering new uniforms for the firemen, an addition to Fireman Denno's salary for special work and several minor matters.

Those present were Chairman Ald. Buller, Aldermen Hicks and Turner.

The letter re the new dwelling, Contractors Heffernan & Sons, are erecting, was read and was received until a special meeting can be arranged to take up the fire limits bylaw.

WRIT ISSUED.

The committee was notified that a writ was about to be issued against them by a farmer who brought in a load of straw that the chairman or the chief had not ordered. The farmer brought in the straw and put it in the mow. When the chief saw it he telephoned the chairman and Ald. Buller told him to take the straw out as it had not been ordered. The farmer refused to do this and rather than have further trouble the chairman offered to give him $4 for the load. The farmer refused to take less than $5. He put the matter in Mr. R. F. McWilliams hands and now the committee will fight the suit.

MORE WATER WANTED.

Mr. Saxby was present, and presented a petition for a water main to be laid down on Bethune street, from Smith street. He has several houses on the street, and if he could get water and fire protection he would probably build a couple more They would require at least one hydrant and maybe two hydrants.

The committee decided to notify the water commissioners that if they will run the main down Bethune street the city would take a hydrant. The locating of the hydrant to be left to the chairman and fire chief.

NEW UNIFORMS.

A letter was received from Fire Chief Howard requesting the committee to advertise for tenders for new uniforms for the men.

The chairman said it was necessary to get busy on this at once as the men would be naked before long.

On motion of Aldermen Hicks and Turner it was decided to advertise for tenders for uniforms with an extra pair of pants for the men. Uniforms must be tailor made and made in the city.—Carried.

ADDITIONAL PAY.

An application was received for an increase in Fireman Jos. Denno's salary as he is a good lineman.

The committee decided not to raise his salary as a fireman until he had served the proper time. The committee, however, will give him an extra $50 a year fordoing the line work. This is to take effect at once.

LIVERY BILL TO BE PAID.

An account from Dr. Robinson of $37 for livery rigs hired for the fire hall of last year was presented. Last year'schairman disputed the account and it was allowed to stand over.

On motion of Aldermen Turner and Hicks, the account was ordered to be paid.

LOWER INSURANCE.

It was moved by Ald. Turner and seconded by Ald. Hicks, that the city clerk write the secretary of the Fire Underwriters' Association, and remind him of his promise of a reduction of the insurance rate and ask that it be given.—Carried.

Moved by Ald. Turner and seconded by Ald. Hicks that the arc lamp at the corner of Water and Murray streets be put out on an arm.—Carried.

A couple of accounts were presented and ordered to be paid.

It was moved by Ald. Hicks and Ald. Turner, that the chairman procure harness for the fire steamer, and the battery sink.—Carried.

Moved by Ald. Turner and Ald. Hicks, that the Board of Works be requested to place the stands along the river for the use of the fire engine as soon as possible. The list of places will be given the chairman of the Board of Works by the chief of the fire department and it will include one for Auburn.—Carried.

The above motion is a most commendable one as stands along the river banks for the fire engine are badly needed. As a matter of fact, the engine is of very little use without them as it is impossible to get down to the water. If the stands are not build the engine might as well be sold. The stands will not cost very much.

WATER LILY'S TRIP.

Special Week End Trip to Stony Lake on Saturday.

For the benefit of those who desire to spend one more week end at their cottages at Stony Lake, or for those who desire to go up and get the balance of their goods and to close up their cottages for the winter the steamer Water Lily will run a special trip on Saturday, leaving the Wolfe street wharf at 1.30 o'clock for Stony Lake, and returning will leave the lake Monday afternoon, getting to the city early in the evening.

BILLY BUCHANAN.

Is a Great Man in the West and the People Say So Too.

"One of the best talks that was ever made in this district was made by W. A. Buchanan, editor of the Lethbridge Herald and Liberal representative in the Parliament of Alberta for the City of Lethbridge, at the banquet in Fernie, Monday. 'Billy' Buchanan is one of the best men that God ever created and the people got a great asset, when they located him there in the newspaper business. He is 'gilly' bold, wherever you take him and you can gamble on him from start to finish for there are no better made. We know Buchanan and we know him well, and we will give him a certificate any time he shows his face."—Cranbrook Herald.

LOCKED IN WITH CORPSES

Kingston, Sept. 9.—Mr. Lawson, J.P., Elginburg, was examining the vault at the Sydenham cemetery yesterday during a funeral when another gentleman, who had been in the vault, on his way out closed the door behind him, thus making Mr. Lawson a prisoner behind a spring lock. His shouts and cries for help were of no avail, as they could not penetrate the thick walls. Fortunately for the imprisoned, there occurred the next afternoon a funeral. When the door of the vault was thrown open Lawson rushed out in a terrible condition of mind as a result of his experience. His liberator and those standing around were greatly terrified at what appeared to be an apparition fleeing from the vault. Lawson was half famished and suffered severely from shock. He had been locked up for over twenty-four hours.

NO LAND AT POLE

ASQUITH'S ANSWER TO SIR GILBERT PARKER'S QUESTION.

Canadian in British House Wanted Question of Jurisdiction Settled —A Hypothetical Question.

London, Septf 9.— Prime Minister Asquith replied in the House of Commons today to Sir Gilbert Parker's question with regard to the ownership of land at the North Pole The question was in two parts, the first asking if North Pole land was considered as belonging to the Dominion of Canada, and the second whether the planting of the American flag there would give the United States any rights of possession over the region. The Prime minister said "I do not understand that there is any land at the North Pole. The second part of the question involves too much hypothetical matter for me to be able to give any definite answer."

The reply was received with laughter. James F. Remnant, member for Finsbury, then asked whether, if it should prove that land existed there, Mr. Asquith would tax it as undeveloped land. To this the Prime Minister made no reply.

LIVES INCOGNITO.

Infante Alfonso in Disfavor Because of Recent Runaway Match.

London, Sept. 9.—Infante Alfonso, the King of Spain's cousin, who made a runaway match with the Princess Beatrices of Cobourg, is now staying incognito at Brownsea Island, near Poole, with Mrs. Van Ralte. This wealthy woman is a close friend of the Princess Henry of Battenberg. They are nominally in the black books of both King Edward and King Alfonso.

Twenty-Six Priests Have Been Suspended

Montreal, Sept. 9.—When the Roman Catholic College at Marieville, Que., was birned some time ago, the fathers in charge desired to remove to St. John's, but the Bishop of St. Hyacinthe refused permission An appeal to Rome had no beneficial effect, so the college authorities moved without the necessary adthority, and the bishop has placed Canon Lemieux, a relative of the postmaster-general, and the 25 priests under him on the suspended list.

They are not permitted to have any clerical communication with the faithful, and are debarred from all priestly functions. They have appealed to Mgr. Sbaretti, and a delegation has gone to see him, while another has been sent to plead for the intervention of Archbishop Bruchesi of this city.

DREADFUL TRAGEDY

FRENCH STEAMER SEIZED BY NEW HEBRIDES SAVAGES.

Other Vessels are Missing—German New Britain Natives in Revolt.

Sydney, N.S.W., Sept. 9.—A dreadful tragedy is reported from the New Hebrides. Capt. Lindsay, master of the ketch Rabaul, was first speared and then clubbed to death by a horde of savages; the crew numbering ten, was massacred and the vessel seized by the savages and burned at Malliallo, New Hebrides where cannibalism still exists.

Dr. Geo. Fritch Arrested in Connection with the Hillman Murder

The Detroit Physician was All Right while in Drumbo and Bore an Excellent Reputation

Woodstock, Sept. 9.—Dr. George A. Fritch, arrested in Detroit as a suspect in connection with the murder of Maybelle Hillman, was born at Drumbo, near here, where his father and brother still reside. He is about 43 years of age. Until about eight years ago he lived at Drumbo, where he worked on his father's farm. Being desirous then of entering the medical profession he crossed the line and studied medicine in Chicago and Detroit, securing a degree about five years ago. Since that time he has been practicing in Detroit. The family is one of the best known and most highly respected in Drumbo, and while resident there he bore an excellent reputation. He made frequent visits to his old home since his removal.

Detroit, Sept. 9.—Early today Sheriff Gaston received word from Postmaster Prettyman at Ann Arbor, revealing the name of a young man in Detroit, who sent money in letter to Miss Maybelle Millman, whose body was found in Esorse Creek. An arrest of the man suspected of the crime, is expected today. His name was immediately connected with the case last night, following the apprehension of Dr. G. A. Friteh, who is held at police headquarters as a suspect. Dr. Friteh was taken into custody after Martha Henning, Maybelle Millman' boon companion, was brought to Detroit from Ann Arbor and told more to the authorities concerning Maybelle Millman's mysterious movements in Detroit than she had heretofore revealed. Sheriff Gaston induced the girl to talk yesterday afternoon, and her parents told her to tell all she knew, if she had been holding anything back. Detectives brought her to Detroit. Sheriff Gaston followed and the arrest of Dr. Friteh developed an hour afterward.

Detroit, Sept. 9.—At eleven o'clock last night, detectives arrested bell avenue, charged with the murder of Maybelle Millman, whose dismembered body was found in the marsh, Monday and Tuesday.

Dr. Fritch was tried for the murder of Edith Pressley, an employe of the State Capitol, in Lansing two years ago. He was finally acquitted, largely on circumstantial evidence.

He is a Canadian, his old home being at Drumbo, Ont., where his relatives still reside. He is considered wealthy.

THE BIG COMIC OPERA

At the Russell Theater, Ottawa, all Fair Week—The "Gay Musician"

Of the many musical attract presented in Ottawa last season, the most popular was the charming Comic Opera "The Gay Musician" by Julian Edwards, and presented by Joseph P. Slocum's Company.

Nothing but praise was heard after "The Gay Musician" was sung and many inquiries were afterwards made as to whether the comic opera would be heard again in Canada.

After considerable negotiation, Manager Slocum has been induced to bring his Company this season and "THE GAY MUSICIAN" will be the attraction at the Russel Theater for Fair Week, opening Monday evening, Sept. 13th, with matinees on Wednesday and Saturday afternoons.

An entire new scenic production and the most costly costuming will be presented with a superb singing company of principals, the most beautiful of showgirls, a remarkable pony ballet and the best singing in America. Manager Slocum is known for "doing things lavishly" and this season is no exception for he has excelled himself in presenting to the public the best company which numbers 75 people that could be secured in the theatrical field

The entire press of Toronto say, that the "GAY MUSICIAN" is the very best Comic opera seen there in years.

Visitors to Ottawa Fair are certainly in good luck in having a chance of hearing this excellent organization.

Wonderful Reception to be Given Peary

(Special to The Times.

Dr. Cook, Peary's rival, was with the latter in one of his earlier expeditions. This is what he says of him in his book:

"To Dr. Cook's care may be attributed the almost complete exemption of the party from even the mildest indispositions, and personally I owe much to his professional skill and unruffled patience and coolness in an emergency. In addition to this work, in his special ethnological field, in which he has obtained a large mass of most valuable material concerning a practically unstudied tribe, he was always helpful and an indefatigable worker."

Sydney, N.S., Sept. 9—Shouldthe program which American Consul Kehl is at present using every endeavor to whip into shape be carried out, then the arrival of Commander Robert E. Peary at Sydney after his successful cruise in search of the North Pole, should rival in the way of welcome anything ever attempted of this description at this port.

With anything like fair weather, the Roosevelt should arrive early Saturday morning, and certainly not later than that evening, that is provided Peary does not call at Red Bay on the Straits of Belle Isle, where the explorer may stop to send Arrangements are being made to tender a banquet to the explorer and his crew. The holding of such banquet would of course depend entirely on the length of Commander Peary's stay in Sydney.

It Pays to Send Delegates to Conventions

The Fire, Water and Light Committee had a lengthy and interesting discussion on the recent convention of the International Fire Engineers' Association held in Grand Rapids. The fire chief made a report by letter and this was read to the committee. Then the chairman, Ald. Buller, gave a verbal report, explaining a portion of the exhibits he saw in Grand Rapids. When asked by Ald. Turner, the chairman said that he certainly considered that the $100 the city voted to pay the chief's and chairman's expenses, was certainly money well spent. He got a great deal of valuable information and he thought that each year one of the members of the council should go with the chief to the convention.

The chief'sreport was in part as follows;—

We arrived twenty-four hours before the regular meeting time, and were accordingly permitted to make a careful examination of the different exhibits of fire fighting apparatus before the crowds arrived. Fifty-six manufacturers were on hand to exhibit their product, and latest inventions. The motor-driven fire appliances were very much in evidence, and it is generally conceded that in the very near future the automobile apparatus will supersede our present horse-drawn vehicles.

There were several motor chemical engines, which would be most suitable for Peterborough, and I would respectfully request that your committee make provision for the purchase of one of these machines for next year.

The third day of the convention was given over entirely to demonstrating gasoline fire engines, chemical engines, and other large apparatus.

The meeting was the most successful of its kind ever held. There was nearly double the attendance from Canada of any preceding year, and fifteen active chiefs from the Province of Ontario with their associate delegates. About twelve hundred persons in all registered at headquarters, with five hundred and forty-eight chiefs in active service.

The number of topics and papers presented were exceptionally interesting.

On August the 18th at 8 p.m., a special meeting was called at headquarters, of all the Canadian delegates for the purpose of forming provincial associations to work in conjunction with the international association. The Ontario delegates were in accord with the other provinces, and acted accordingly. Officers elected were Chief A. B. Ten Eyck, Hamilton, president; Ald. T. L. Church, Toronto, hon. solicitor; Chief. W. A. Howard, Peterborough, sec.-treas.

Ald. T. L. Church, chairman of the Fire, Water & Light Committee Toronto, extended an invitation to the Ontario delegates to meet in Toronto at the City Hall on September. the 7th, as the guests of the city.

I have sent out eighty-seven notices extending the invitation to the chief of the fire department of each city and town in the province, together with an invitation for the mayor and chairman of the fire committee of each municipality.

A printed report of the proceedings of the Grand Rapids convention in book form, will be issued from the office of the international secretary, and sent out to each municipality represented within a month from date.

I wish to thank the gentlemen of the council for permitting Ald. Buller and myself to attend, and also for the appropriation. It was undoubtedly time and money well spent.

Your obedient servant,
W. A. HOWARD,
Chief Fire Dept.

A NEW YORK TRAGEDY.

Woman Kills Husband, and Then Suicides.

New York, Sept. 9.—"I shot him" He was untrue to me. He was going around with other women, so I made up my mind to end it all." This is the explanation the police say Mrs. Clara Gunther gave them when they rushed into her little flat in Brooklyn this afternoon and found her husband dead and the woman dying. George Gunther, the husband had been shot three times through the head. Mrs. Gunther had a bullet wound in her breast. The revolver was still in her hand.

TARIFF HITS POSTAL CARDS.

German Manufacturers to Lose Lucrative American Trade.

Berlin, Sept. 9.—The German printers and publishers of picture postal cards already are beginning to feel the effect of the new American tariff law. Heretofore they controlled this industry, and even the illustrations of American views were "made in Germany" and shipped to American dealers. All is changed now, and the art printers of Berlin, Leipzig and Munich are seeking other channels for large part of their productions. It is a hard blow for the German postal card industry.

Minsk, Russia, Sept. 9.—A remarkable trial on charges of polygamy has just come to an end here. A tailor named Pris was found guilty of having married twenty young women and was sentenced to four months in prison.

BOWMANVILLE'S GREAT FAIR.

Big Day Wednesday, September 22nd —Last Day of the Show.

West Durham Fall Fair stands in front rank of the purely agricultural exhibitions of Canada. It is not the largest, but there are none better from the standpoint of high-class stock. It is not a circus but a great farmers' field day and live stock show. Durham County has an enviable reputation for good farm stock and the flower of it can be seen at Bowmanville Fair. So many animals are sold every year, too, that it might appropriately be called an annual live stock market day. Horse-buyers from Toronto and other places attend regularly. C. C. James, Esq., Deputy Minister of Agriculture will officially open the new grounds and the Fair at 1.30 p. m. Wednesday, Sept. 22.

are features that mark this fair and give it enhanced interest. A greater crowd than ever is expected. Expert judges will judge every class. Single fare on railways, tickets good three days, Sept. 21 to 23 inclusive. Best concert Fair Night that has been given in late years. Entries should be made to John S. Mooreraft, Secretary, Bowmanville, not later than Sept. 16.

OBITUARY

WILLIAM EDWARD COOK.

An old resident was lost to Peterborough by the death of Mr. Wm. E. Cook, at his late residence, 92 Douro street, Wednesday afternoon at 1.30 o'clock. The deceased had been ill during the past three months and slowly sank until it seemed to his family and friends that the end could not be far off. The late Mr. Cook was in his 74th year and was born at Cape Rich, Gray County, near Owen Sound. Forty-six years ago he was married at Harwood to Miss Anne Cain, and forty years ago they moved to Peterborough, where they have resided continuously ever since. The surving family is the wife and following children, one daughter, Mrs. Ed. Wease, Mark street, Ashburnham, and the following sons, Edward, Fred and George, all of Peterborough. Other relatives are the late Mr. Cook's brothers and sisters as follows:—Samuel, of Vancouver; John, of Harwood; Garrett, of Midland; Mrs. Vanatto, of Parry Sound. The deceased was member of the Mark street Methodist church and a member of the Orange Order, Nassau Lodge, No. 457. The funeral will be held today at three o'clock, from the family residence, 92 Douro St., to the Little Lake cemetery. The funeral will be conducted by the Orange Order, and all members of the Order and visiting brethren are apprised of the funeral.

The Poor Dogs.

At a meeting of the council on Tuesday Chief Bond reported that there were 295 dogs and 19 bitches on the assessors' rolls; 63 dogs and 10 bitches had been destroyed, and 311 dog licenses and 9 bitch licenses have been sold. That is, 22 dogs in town have no license.—Port Hope Times.

How Chief Bond figures out the above is a question. But then a police officer's veracity must not be questioned.

Four Teams will Enter Senior Series of O.R.F.U

Toronto, Sept. 9.—The semi-annual meeting of the Ontario Rugby Football Union was held last night at the Iroquois Hotel, with First Vice President Scott of London, in the chair. There will be four clubs in the senior series. T.A.A.C., Peterborough, Parkdale Canoe Club and Dundas, while eighteen clubs are entered in the junior series, including a western district, comprising two teams from London, Woodstock College, and Petrolea, two Toronto districts, a Peterborough-Lindsay group, and an Eastern group. There will be an intermediate series. The senior series is nice and compact, and with equally matched teams should furnish some excellent football, as well as provide the players with plenty of games. N. F. Culverhouse of Toronto was elected junior representative, but the other elections, including that of president, were left over

Wedding Bells

HAIGUE—RHODEHOUSE.

The marriage of Miss Jennie Victoria Rhodehouse, daughter of the late Stephen Rhodehouse, to Mr George Haigue of Campbellford, was quietly solemnized at the Charlotte street Methodist parsonage Wednesday morning at 11 o'clock, the Rev. G. W. Henderson officiating. The bride wore a traveling suit of blue with hat to match and was unattended. After the ceremony a reception was held at the home of the bride's mother, 303 Lewis street, and afterwards the newly wedded couple left on trip to Toronto and other western points. Mr. and Mrs. Haigue will reside in Campbellford.

The bride received many beautiful presents, and these included a music cabinet, the gift of the J.M. Greene Music Company, with which she had been identified for some time.

DODDS—HAWLEY.

The marriage took place yesterday afternoon of Miss Elizabeth Hawley, daughter of Mr. Burial Hawley, 548 Downie street, to Mr. Hurrell Dodds of Ashburnham. The ceremony was performed at the home of the bride, by Rev. Robt. Pogue of St. Paul's church.

COONES—VANZANT.

A quiet wedding was solemnized at St. Andrew's manse yesterday morning when Mr Clinton Bishop Coones of this city, was united in marriage to Isabella McDonald Vanzant, daughter of Mr. Daniel McDonald of Georginian, Ont. The Rev. J. G. Potter officiated and neither party was attended.

Member of Local Gun Club Receives Prize

The secretary of the Peterborough Gun Club has just received from Montreal the trophy donated by the Nobel's Powder Co., for competition by the local club to be shot for at five regular shoots during the past season. The member making the highest score in the five shoots to be the winner. Mr. H. Routley, who is the fortunate man, received the prize yesterday, and is to be highly congratulated on his success, this being his first year as a member of the club. The trophy is a sterling silver watch fob, bearing the emblem of the Dominion Cartridge Co. with the inscription presented by the Nobel's Powder Company, of Montreal, and was offered on condition that the Dominion Cartridge Company ammunition, loaded with Nobel's powder be used throughout the competition. This ammunition has given splendid satisfaction and all members are highly pleased with the shells.

LION LICKED CHILD'S HAND.

Tot Put Her Hands Through Bars and No Harm Resulted.

Pittsburg, September. 9.—Conia, the most feared lion at the Highland Park Zoo caused wild excitement when Lena Meck, 3 years old, placed her hand in the savage monster's cage and he jumped towards the baby. Women in the crowd watching the beast screamed, several of them fainting, and men turned their faces, fearing to see the child mangled by the animal. Keepers rushed to the scene and stood stupefied for an instant when they saw the lion affectionately licking and pawing the hand of the little girl. However, they soon caught the child and took her out of harm's way. A remarkable instance of the affair is that but a few moments before the lion had tried to break through the heavy bars of his cage in an effort to reach another beast with which he had had a quarrel. The animal several years ago killed three of its guards and while with a side show at an amusement park he broke away and killed a woman.

Invaluable to Every Farmer

Its Wonderful Power in Curing Sick Cattle and Colicky Horses Makes "Nerviline" Worth Its Weight in Gold.

The stockman or farmer that doesn't know of the thousand and one uses of "Nerviline" around the stable, has a great deal to learn. "Why, I wouldn't think of locking my stable door at night without knowing I had a supply of 'Nerviline' on hand. Always get a dozen bottles at a time from my druggist. "To cure colic in NERVILINE digestion and bad stomach in a horse or cow there is no CURES remedy on earth in the same class as COLICKY Nerviline. Last summer I had a $250 HORSES horse that got the scours, and I would have lost him if I hadn't been able to give him Nerviline. I poured a [illegible] in a pint of water down his throat and saved his life. I know of stablers who have saved many hundreds of valuable stock with Nerviline, and by using it regularly good as a preventive. I now from my own experience that for real 'Nerviline' it's worth a dozen times its weight in gold." James H. McCullough, Stock Breeder, etc.

You will not regret using Nerviline—but see you get it and not something else. 25c. per bottle or five for $1.00, at all dealers, or The Catarrhozone Company, Kingston, Ont. 21

AS TO FOOD FADS.

Professor Armstrong who, at the opening session of the chemistry section of the British Association pointed to women as the international peril now winds up the meetings by denouncing food fads. The basis of his views is much the same in both cases It rests on deep belief in "old customs." The old customs about women are what Professor Armstrong likes, and the reason he fears and distrusts the new woman is that she deviates from them. The old customs about food, he says, are based on long and valuable race experience, and not to be thrown aside too lightly.

In the matter of food, however, there is an old saying in existence which has more wisdom in it than any crude advocacy of old customs. It is that what is one man's meat may be another man's poison, and vice versa. Because Professor Armstrong's tastes and dietary habits do not receive the new foods and food fads favorably, it does not follow that these fads are perils to everybody else.

It is true that there is much foolishness about many of these food fads But the foolishness is only in the insistence of the extreme advocates of each one of them that his own views. And by this test the professor critic is himself convicted of similar foolishness. He makes his own stomach too absolute a standard.

Occasionally a case is heard of in which some invalid who needed a variety of food has injured himself by a slavish belief in some new specialty of diet, but as much may be said of some invalids who eat too many potatoes. And surely the potato is not among the dietary fads of today, whatever it may have been once upon a time.

The real reason for the existence of the fads is the existence of excesses which they are designed to counteract. If some extremist advocates 100 chews to a mouthful of meat as the only way to preserve one's health, he may influence many rapid eaters to consider the question and eat a little more slowly. The net result of that will be good, not bad. And if some other extremist has a food specialty which he praises in highly colored language he may influence many people to vary their diets in certain useful respects. Nothing of which need really worry the digestion of even a

VISCOUNT KITCHENER

A Brief Biography of Soldier Who May Visit Canada.

General Horatio Herbert, first Viscount Kitchener of Khartoum—who has just completed the great work he undertook in 1902 of reorganizing the British Indian Army—was born on Midsummer Day at Ballylongford, in the County Kerry.

During his exceptionally brilliant military career the retiring Indian commander has asserted himself with characteristic confidence and unbending will, and Lord Kitchener must be accounted one of the most strenuous soldiers that the British Empire has ever possessed.

Coming of a military family, Lord Kitchener passed thirty-eight years ago from Woolwich into the Royal Engineers. Since then his career has been one of scintillating brilliance for "K. of K."—as he is now often called "for short" has been to the fore in many expeditions and campaigns and has "built himself an everlasting name" for thoroughness in the profession of arms.

A veritable "glutton for work," he assisted in the Palestine survey in 1874 and that of Cyprus of 1878-9.

Then he was sent to Egypt, and entrusted with the command of the Khedive's cavalry and the remodelling of the native army. Having effected this to his own exacting desiring, he, as Sirdar, conducted a vigorous opposition to the forces of the Khalifa. He found it necessary to build a railway to Omdurman before he finally broke the power of the prophet, annihilating the Khalifa's army in 1898.

By this time he had reached the rank of major-general and been made a K.C.B., and he came home covered with Egyptian honors, to receive the thanks of the British Parliament, a peerage, and a grant of £30,000.

In the year following, when matters seemed to be going wrong with our forces engaged against the Boers in South Africa, Lord Kitchener was sent out as Chief of Staff to Lord Roberts. Here, again, he distinguished himself for determination and dash in combination; and when Cronje had been circumvented at Paardeberg and the British flag hoisted in Pretoria, he was promoted to the commandership of the forces in South Africa on Lord Roberts' return to England.

Kitchener brought the long campaign to a close. Again the gallant fighter and fine organizer was thanked by Parliament, given a further £50,000 from the country's public purse, and raised in the peerage to a viscounty.

As a full general he was sent out in 1902 to India as Commander-in-Chief with practically a free hand to reform the army of our great Empire of the Orient. His ideals of duty brooking no civilian interference in matters military, Viscount Kitchener soon came into conflict with the then Viceroy, Lord Curzon, and the friction ensued in the resignation of that able statesman in 1905.

Since then Lord Kitchener has practically been permitted to have his own way at headquarters in India, and on the completion of his task in the Orient, he is credited by some with hankering after overthrowing the influence of the non-military element in the War Office for good and all.

Barrister's First Brief.

My first brief I have the best of reasons for remembering particularly clearly. I was engaged for the defence in a case of robbery. Two men, the prisoners, had seized the prosecutor on the platform of Shrewsbury Station, and while one of them held his arms the other quietly rifled his pockets.

They were caught red-handed, and I had a brief to defend the prisoner who had held the prosecutor by the arms. I made the obvious defence. I urged that it was vindictive to sacrifice two victims to justice when one would suffice, that the distinction between the two prisoners was manifest, and as the one I defended had not taken any money at all it was impossible to pretend that he was as guilty as his companion.

To the amazement of everybody, not excepting the chairman—who had been careful in his summing up to sweep away my sophistries—the jury made the distinction I suggested to them, and returned a verdict of "Not guilty" against my prisoner.—"Reminiscences of Mr. A. C. Plowden," in The Strand Magazine.

A Pageant of Priests.

Pageants have so far illustrated the history of a single town or city, but the one held recently in the grounds of Fulham Palace, London, was unique. It depicted the growth and history of the Church of England.

It was split up into a number of episodes, and, beginning with the publication of the Edict of Emperor Constantine, came right down through the ages to the acquittal of the Seven Bishops in 1688. A final tableau, representing the church "throughout the world," concluded the gigantic spectacle.

The grounds of Fulham Palace, lent by the Bishop of London, were well fitted for such a purpose.

The spectators were housed in a grand stand, 394 feet in length, 90 feet in depth, and covering an acre of ground. In addition to a large royal box, there was seating accommodation for 6,750. His Grace the Archbishop of Canterbury performed the opening ceremony.

An Amiable Violinist.

Robert Browning and Joachim met one evening at a friendly gathering in London. The subject had "cobwebbed" without satisfying certain ladies who entreated the poet to explain from his own brother musician's feeling or intelligence, if not from discharged diplomatic and social duties, as some thought, while the violinist, not understanding, bowed and smiled and did not play.

As they left the house Joachim asked, "What did you mean just now?"

"Oh," said the poet "I wanted you to give us some more music."

"Then, why did you not some and say, 'Joe, old boy, give us another tune?'" returned the amiable violinist

Winnipeg, Sept. 9.—Train service to Edmonton has brought into the world twenty-five new towns, from Edmonton east to Wainwright including Ardrossan, Uneas, Deville, Tofield, Shonts, Ryley, Poe, Holden Bruce, Nestor, Meighen, Phillips, Kinsella, Junkins, Irma, Hawkins and Fabyan. From Edmonton west to Edson the towns are Acheson, Spruce Grove, Stony Plains, Carvel, Duffield Wabamun, Faith, Gamford, Harrowep, Isfield, Jarrow, Keston, Lesmas, Mackay, Niton, Otby, Penn, Roseveau, Thornton, Yates.

ARMY CORPS CALLED OUT.

Utmost Efficiency Shown In Recent Mobilization.

A British army corps was called out for war the other day, and afforded a fine object-lesson of how quickly and effectively British troops can be organized nowadays.

Never before in the history of the British army has so unexpected, and yet so complete, a mobilization been carried out. Nearly twenty thousand men of all arms were lined up ready to entrain, and it was only by the absence of a call to the Reservists that the feat differed from what the authorities hope to effect in case of an actual or threatened invasion.

No warning of what was coming was given. At six o'clock in the morning Lieut.-Gen. Smith-Dorrien rode down to the headquarters' office and gave the order for the alarm to be sounded, followed by the order for every unit in his command to turn out as rapidly as possible, fully mobilized, and ready for active service.

The military telephones linking up the barracks were soon busy with the order, and mounted orderlies carried the summons to those officers who live out of barracks.

Some of the battalions were already in the field, the Gloucesters, for instance, having left barracks at four o'clock for a long day's operations. They were summoned back by mounted men and cyclist messengers, and within the hour every barracks was the centre of activity.

Wagons were dragged out and loaded with stores, water-carts filled, ammunition drawn from the magazines and distributed, and field dressing and emergency rations issued to the men with their metal identity discs and pocket ledgers.

For some time past the chiefs of staff have been working at this mobilization scheme to render it perfect for a sudden call, and the test that was being applied could only be equalled by the actual call of war. Indeed, among many of the troops the belief was accepted that an invasion was an accomplished fact.

The telegraph wires had carried the news to those officers and men away on week-end leave, and the early trains to Aldershot were filled with anxious soldiers, who on reaching the stations raced up to their barracks, to appear in a short space of time accountred and equipped for service.

Six hours was the time given for the units to get on parade, ready to move off, but so perfect was the machinery that in the great majority of cases little more than half that time was needed to report all ready.

From the Army Service Corps barracks parties of butchers and bakers, clerks, saddlers, and artificers marched off to join the brigade and divisional headquarters, every man having his allotted place and his special duties.

No confusion marked the preparations, and long before the allotted time was up nearly 20,000 men, artillery, cavalry, and infantry, with engineers and supply transport services, were marching out of barracks to go wherever needed.

To Punish the Mullah.

Col. Gough, says a report from Aden, according to present arrangements, will begin military operations this month against the Somaliland mullah, who has continued to harass the friendly tribes.

It is understood that the operations will take the form of flying columns, composed of mounted infantry and irregulars, which will endeavor to round up the elusive enemy.

Practically everything is now ready, and ample native troops on the spot are being supplied with white officers.

The chief difficulty is, as it has always been, transport. British agents have been buying animals all along the Red Sea, but prices have been high, particularly for camels. The Emperor Menelik has, moreover, forbidden the export of these animals from his territory.

It is thought that Sir Reginald Wingate, who has arrived in the country from Cairo, will, from his experience of Soudan "drives," be able to give Col. Gough some useful advice.

Berbera is the base of the new operations, which will cover a wide area. The British Government has for some time been collecting information as to the situation, particularly along the northwestern Somaliland border, and the authorities are very hopeful of success.

St. Fillan's Bell.

Early in the nineteenth century a bell was stolen from Killin, in Perthshire. This bell, which was said to have been used by St. Fillan, was supposed to possess marvelous healing powers, and was placed on the heads of all the mad people, who were brought to be dipped in the saint's pool, in order to complete the cure.

Popular opinion had it that the bell, which was not very large, would extricate itself from the hands of any one who stole it and return home, ringing all the way. The antiquary who finally annexed it explained his action by a desire "to abate superstition."

Get Well First

Don't risk even a penny—until health first returns.

And I mean just exactly that.

I am the one physician who says to the sick "I will put of my own pocket, pay for your medicine if it fails to bring you help!"

And for 20 years Dr. Shoop's medicines have been used and recommended in every city and hamlet in America. They are positively standard in every community—and everywhere.

Then why pay the cash and at your risk, for other never-tested and uncertain medicines? Thousands upon thousands have in the past successfully used Dr. Shoop's Restorative.

When the Stomach nerves, or the Heart or Kidney nerves fail, these sick ones know how quickly Dr. Shoop's Restorative will bring them back to health again. But best of all, they positively take no money risk whatever. They know that when health fails to return, Dr. Shoop will gladly pay the drug cost for that test. And no one but a full 30 day treatment is freely granted. But write me first for an order.

This will save delay and disappointment. All druggists sell Dr. Shoop's Restorative and Dr. Shoop's Rheumatic Remedy, but all are not authorized to give the 30 day test. So drop me a line now—for I have appointed an agent in almost every community to introduce my medicines to the sick. Tell me which book you need. The books below will surely open up new and helpful ideas to those who are not well. Besides you are perfectly free to correspond just as you would your home physician. My advice and the book below are yours—and without cost.

Perhaps a word or two from me will clear up some serious ailment. I have helped thousands upon thousands by my private prescription or personal advice. My best effort is entirely yours for simple asking. Just write me now, while you think of it, and, for tomorrow never comes, Dr. Shoop, Box 81, Racine, Wis.

$90,000---7 Per Cent.

9,000 Shares 7 Per Cent Cumulative Preferred Stock ($10 a Share) Offered at Par with 40 Per Cent Immediate Bonus of Common Stock. We Reserve the Right to Withdraw Offer Without Notice and to Return any Subscription Received Too Late. Previous Offerings Were Immediately Oversubscribed.

MORE THAN A THOUSAND BANK OFFICERS, LAWYERS, PHYSICIANS, MINISTERS, BUSINESS MEN AND OTHERS HAVE BECOME STOCKHOLDERS IN THE CIRCLE PUBLISHING COMPANY WITHIN THE PAST FEW MONTHS.

Presidents and Cashiers of Banks, Presidents and other officers of Insurance Companies and of prominent business concerns who are thoroughly qualified to pass upon the soundness of such a proposition have comended the investment and have put their own money into it.

Many leading Physicians, Ministers and Educators in all the big cities of the United States and several in Europe have very highly endorsed THE CIRCLE MAGAZINE and THE CIRCLE PUBLISHING COMPANY, and have been glad to become part owners in the enterprise.

These men, and a good many splendid women, also, have known THE CIRCLE for several years and have watched it grow better and stronger constantly. They know what a sterling good property it is; they know that it is founded on a plan that ought to success, and they know that it is held always true to that plan; they know from personal experience that its business methods are good, careful, and conservative, yet aggressive and successful; they are convinced, therefore, that there is a large and very profitable career ahead of THE CIRCLE PUBLISHING COMPANY. For these reasons they have been glad of a chance to get some of its stock.

Twice we offered by letter, without any blow of trumpets, Five Thousand Shares of our Cumulative Seven Per Cent, Preferred Stock for subscription. Each time the Five Thousand Shares were promptly over-subscribed before we could finish sending out the letters to the selected list. There are only Twenty Thousand Shares of Preferred Stock in all, therefore more than half was taken up at once, and we have not offered the balance until now.

For a short time we are going to give the same opportunity to those who did not receive our letters: but as the amount is necessarily limited, prompt action will be required.

HERE IS THE PLAN: The Capital Stock of The Circle Publishing Company is $500,000, of which $200,000 is Preferred Stock with 7 per cent. Cumulative dividend, and $300,000 is Common Stock upon which all dividends over and above the 7 per cent. on the Preferred Stock will be paid. Measured by the opportunities for rapid development of the business and by the known earnings of other great magazine and book publishing properties, the dividends on the Common Stock should soon exceed the fixed dividend on the Preferred Stock, and our Plan gives you some of both kinds.

The following extract from an article in a recent number of Leslie's Weekly is to the point:

"HOW A FEW DOLLARS MADE A FORTUNE"

"Among the most interesting commercial facts in this country are the astonishing fortunes which are being made by magazine publishers.

"Every year more than the immense sum of about $60,000,000 is spent in buying advertising space and in buying copies of periodicals. A large portion of this huge amount of money becomes profits for magazine owners.

"The great popular monthly publications have risen to wealth and prominence so quickly that only $100 invested in Munsey's a few years ago is now worth between $10,000 and $12,000, and is earning dividends at the rate of $1,000 a year.

"McClure's Magazine made a profit for its stockholders of 1,000 per cent. in about ten years. The total annual income of The Ladies' Home Journal and The Saturday Evening Post, both of which are owned by the Curtis Publishing Company, of Philadelphia, is not far from $6,000,000. The Cosmopolitan, Everybody's, The Outlook, and others, are immensely profitable.

"Unfortunately, however, magazine readers have rarely had an opportunity to share in these splendid earnings. Nearly all the magazines are in each case owned by a few individuals, who receive all the enormous income.

"A chance to secure an interest in one of the great popular magazines, on a basis that insures absolute safety and gives a liberal share of all the profits of the business, is an opportunity that attracts the immediate attention of the shrewdest investors."

OUR OFFER IS THIS: The par value of all shares is $10. They are full paid and non-assessable. The taxes on the stock are paid in full. Nine thousand shares of the Cumulative 7 per cent Preferred Stock are offered now at ten dollars a share, par. Every subscriber for five shares of Preferred Stock will be given a bonus of one share of Common Stock and will be made also a life subscriber for THE CIRCLE Magazine without additional payment. A subscriber for any multiple of five shares will be given a corresponding number of shares of Common Stock, as bonus, and will be allowed to present a life subscription for THE CIRCLE as a gift to some relative or friend for each five shares of Preferred Stock subscribed. Additional shares of Common Stock may be substituted in lieu of life subscriptions as bonus, or vice-versa. Thus, ten shares of Preferred Stock will entitle the subscriber to two shares of Common Stock and two life subscriptions for THE CIRCLE, or four shares of Common Stock. One hundred shares of Preferred Stock will carry with them a bonus of twenty shares of Common Stock and twenty life subscriptions for THE CIRCLE, or forty shares of Common Stock.

If you can not afford to take five or more shares, you may subscribe for three shares, and with such a subscription we will give you either the life subscription for THE CIRCLE or a bonus of one share of Common Stock, as you prefer.

We must say now, however, that this offer with its bonus is conditioned upon your prompt acceptance, and we reserve the right to withdraw or modify the offer without further notice.

YOU NEED NOT SEND ALL THE MONEY NOW IF NOT CONVENIENT TO DO SO, but write at once, saying how many of the 9,000 shares you will take and how soon you will be ready to pay for them. Ten per cent. of the amount of your subscription should be sent at the time of making the reservation. If more convenient to you the total amount may be divided into several instalments. Please use one of the Application Forms below, or a copy of the same.

Just an earnest word or two: You ought to know something about the "Plan" and aim of THE CIRCLE. We are all deeply in earnest about this matter. Every one of the men and women who now control the editorial and the business policy of the magazine is pledged to the carrying onward to its highest possible success the work of making a great, high-class, popular magazine of world-wide circulation which shall portray and encourage the good in individual, social, business, and political life, rather than the evil; which shall stand for peace rather than war; which shall search out beauty rather than ugliness; which shall build up rather than teardown; which shall constantly plan and labor, and co-operate with those who are planning and laboring, to make this world a better and happier place to live in, both for the poor and the wealthy, for the unlearned and the learned, for the weak and for the strong.

This is not mere rainbow painting. It is a real and definite program, based upon strong convictions and practical plans. We know that there are many splendid men and women who are in sympathy with this program and want to see it carried out. They know, as we know, that there is a positive cure in sunshine and fresh air. The poisonous, ill-smelling places often can be purified and made beautiful just by letting in the sunlight and the sweet winds of heaven. No man can remain a pessimist who will open his eyes and his heart to the good and the beautiful around him. All he need do is to give it just a fair share of his attention. It will surely sweeten his blood, cheer and lift up his heart, lighten his step, brighten the glance of his eyes, and inspire him in his work. There is plenty of evil to fight, and it calls for strenuous and constant effort, but the man who sees nothing but the evil will never be able to overcome much of it. You who will help to support and boldly develop and broaden the work of THE CIRCLE Magazine, until its influence is felt in countless American homes, satisfying the great need, recognised or unrecognised, of American life—you who will help to accomplish this will come closer to the hearts of multitudes of people and do more universal and lasting good than can be done in any restricted field. No single instrument within the grasp of any group of men can be so effective as this great, clean, purposeful magazine in bringing to pass that "Peace on Earth, Good Will to Men," for which the world has been waiting for so many centuries.

This is a business enterprise. We want to make money for ourselves and for our stockholders, and we shall do so; but this business enterprise—this sound, common-sense, money-making enterprise is inspired with an ideal; this corporation has a soul.

Men of long and successful experience in the magazine and book publishing business and in financial affairs make up the Board of Officers and Directors of The Circle Publishing Company.

This additional capital will be used to increase the circulation and advertising patronage of THE CIRCLE Magazine and to develop profitable book publishing enterprises of the Company. No magazine in the world possesses more real elements of large business profit and immense usefulness to society than does THE CIRCLE magazine itself shows tangible evidence, month by month, of the truth of these statements.

We trust you will join with us—that you will write quickly and reserve five, ten, twenty, fifty or more shares of the Preferred Stock, and so have a part in THE CIRCLE work and THE CIRCLE success. Write at once, if possible, filling out one of the blank forms below.

Synopsis of Canadian Northwest Land Regulations.

ANY PERSON WHO IS THE sole head of a family, or any male over 18 years old, may homestead land in Manitoba, Saskatchewan or Alberta. The application must appear in person at the Dominion Lands Agency or Sub-Agency for the district. Entry by proxy may be made at any agency, on certain conditions, by father, mother, son, daughter, brother, or sister of intending homesteader.

Duties—Six months' residence upon and cultivation of the land in each of three years. A homesteader may live within nine miles of his homestead on a farm of at least 80 acres, solely owned and occupied by him, or by his father, mother, son, daughter, brother or sister.

In certain districts a homesteader in good standing may pre-empt a quarter-section alongside his homestead. Price $3.00 per acre. Duties—Must reside six months in each of six years from date of homestead entry (including the time required to earn homestead patent) and cultivate fifty acres extra.

A homesteader who has exhausted his homestead right and cannot obtain a pre-emption may take a purchased homestead in certain districts. Price $3.00 per acre. Duties—Must reside six months in each of three years, cultivate fifty acres and erect a house worth $300.00.

SUPERSTITIONS.

They Play at Times an Important Role in Human Affairs.

When Sir Charles Napier had conquered Mehemet Ali, he found it impossible to force or coax the wily Egyptian into signing the treaty which only would make his victory effective. He had nineteen interviews with Mehemet, in which the Englishman by turns argued, flattered and threatened his antagonist, who listened day after day with the same immovable, smiling countenance.

One day Sir Charles in speaking of England said casually that it "was governed by a lucky woman." A strange flash passed over the pasha's countenance, but he made no answer. As soon as Napier had gone Mehemet sent for the English consul, who was an Egyptian, and demanded:

"You were in London when the English queen was crowned. Were the omens bad or good?"

"All good."

"You think that good luck is written on her forehead?"

"I did not think upon the matter before, but now that you ask me I believe that it is. When she asked Allah to help her in her work, her eyes ran over. Allah loves the innocent."

"No doubt of that," said Mehemet anxiously. "She must be lucky."

Early the next morning he sent for Sir Charles and signed the treaty. English power and English cannon he could brave, but not "the luck" written upon the forehead of a good woman whom he had never seen.

General Gordon's remarkable influence over the Chinese was in a large degree due, it is stated, to their belief in his extraordinary luck. During the Taiping rebellion he was followed by an army which did not comprehend either his ability or his religious zeal, but which believed that he was protected by an invisible being who led them to victory. No sword could wound him or bullet kill. A certain black ebony cane which he carried was supposed to be the magic talisman which brought him victory, and General Gordon was shrewd enough always to carry this cane when he led them into battle.

These superstitions seem absurd to us, but they show that the ignorant men who hold them believe in an invisible power who can give good or ill fortune at his will.—London Truth.

MAN EATING TIGERS.

The Killing Methods of These Terrible Brutes in India.

The theory that a man eating tiger is always an old tiger, more or less toothless and feeble, which has found the strain of catching vigorous wild game too much for its failing strength, has been upset by the bagging of notorious man eaters which were found to be young animals in the full pride of their powers. And it is likely that the taste for human flesh is passed on from mother to child, the tigress herself a man eater, teaching her cubs to hunt as she hunts. How terrible a thing a man eater may be can be judged from the fact that a tiger generally kills every second night, whether its quarry be man or beast. Having killed, it makes one meal that night, then drags the carcass somewhere into cover and more or less conceals it as a dog may hide a bone. On the next night its habit is to return to the same kill, and it is in that second visit that the hunter usually finds his opportunity. It is not the rule for a tiger to return again a third time, not because it is above eating carrion, but seemingly it tires of the carcass, which it has already twice mumbled over.

Thus one tiger in India has been known to kill regularly its fifteen natives a month with almost mechanical punctuality. Another, which seemingly did not confine itself entirely to human flesh, devoured an average of eighty people, men and women, for several years, while yet another is reported to have killed 127 people and to have stopped traffic on a public road for many weeks. There have been both English sportsmen and native shikaris who have accounted for their hundred tigers and upward, but many a tiger has killed more human beings than any man has ever scared tigers.—London Times.

A Reasonable Request.

"Arabella," said old Billyuns as he finished his dinner, "I am going to ask you to do me a favor. I want you to give your young man—Mr.—Mr. Whatshisname—a message from me."

Arabella blushed and looked down at her plate.

"Tell him," the blunt old millionaire went on, "that I don't object to his staying here and running up my gas bills, but that I do object to his carrying the morning paper away with him when he leaves."—London Answers.

Force of Habit.

"Force of habit, I guess. I'm president of a real estate improvement company."

"Well?"

"Well, they're a vacant lot."

Lost and Found.

"Lucky boy!"

"Not so lucky. In stooping to pick it up I dropped and broke my eyeglasses."

ICED TEA.

How to Make and Serve This Refreshing Summer Drink.

However the doctors and health fearful may revile iced tea, it is bound to stay as long as thermometers are so unruly in summer. It is surprising, considering the amount of iced tea Americans consume, how rarely it is good.

The most scientific and supposedly healthful way to prepare it is to pour freshly brewed hot tea over a large lump of ice, then pour into glasses half filled with shaved ice.

More economical is it to make a small quantity of rather strong tea several hours before it is to be used, let it cool in the refrigerator and weaken to the desired consistency with iced water just before needed.

It is a mistake to think iced tea can be cooled by a few lumps in the pitcher. There must be either crushed or shaved ice in glasses to make it palatable.

Lemon is also better added before the meal than at it. The usual way is to pass a section of lemon to each guest. Far better is the taste if both lemon and sugar are mixed with the tea when the iced water is added. Better yet is it to adopt the Russian plan of grating the rind of a lemon and pouring hot tea over it.

If lemon is passed, as it may have to be when some of the family do not like it, cut into lengthwise sections rather than thin rounds and pass in addition a small glass pitcher filled with extra lemon juice.

Mint leaves or lemon verbena added to iced tea, besides the lemon, gives a delicious flavor. It is also good with a little ginger syrup or a few drops of rum.

One hostess on gala occasions serves her iced tea poured cold over lemon, orange or pineapple sherbet. This is served in a punch bowl, and each guest fills her tall glass with the mixture. In this case cracked ice is not used.

The thinner and more slender an iced tea glass is the more refreshing it tastes. It should be stood on a glass saucer or tumbler coaster. If possible use long handled spoons.

USED AGAINST HER.

Congratulations the Actress Received on Her Engagement.

A London music hall belle who had just successfully "landed" an old and wealthy nobleman sued an unpopular manager, alleging that he had not paid her sufficiently well for her engagement at his hall. She won the case and was immediately inundated with flowery congratulations from her friends, all of whom were glad to see the manager go down.

Not content with her victory, however, the belle must needs crow over her beaten manager by packing up the choicest of these telegrams and dispatching them to his house, with the intimation that he might make what use of them he thought proper.

She regretted this last speculation the next morning. Taking her at her word, the manager pasted the telegrams on a board outside the music hall, headed them "What Miss Flighble's friends think of her engagement" and left the public to assume engagement, the professional or the matrimonial, was meant.

Then followed such messages as "Good for you, old girl!" "Pinned the old horror at last!" "Don't let him wriggle off the hook!" "Stick to him till you get the dibs!" "Congratulations on your splendid haul!"

Jingoes v Dingoes.

Australia has succeeded in taking all the sting out of the term jingo. Adherents of the fallen Ministry who were opposed to the offer of a Dreadnought to the Mother Country attacked the Imperialists by accusing them of jingo policy. The Imperialists defended themselves by stating that they preferred a jingo policy to a dingo policy. The contrast so caught popular fancy that it spread quickly through all the states, and Australians are now classified as dingoes or jingoes. The dingo, or wild dog, is such a contemptible beast, cunning and a propensity to bite the hand that feeds it, being its chief characteristics, that jingo is now regarded as a term of honor.

English Villages Without Churches.

England cannot be said to be lacking in churches, and yet there are remote districts that are sometimes put to strange devices for want of one. In the tiny village of East Horndon, in Essex, which possesses a railway station, but no church, service is held every Sunday evening in the station waiting-room. The congregation consists of the railway men and the people of the sparsely-inhabited neighborhood, which only needs a railway station because it is able to send milk to that devouring London, which must seem to be a very incomprehensible place to the simple villagers.

Startling Equine Sagacity.

A startling story of equine sagacity comes from the provinces. A horse was standing in the shafts of a carriage just outside the local theatre. It had a weary look, as of one that desired repose. Suddenly it brightened up, and before it could be stopped it made a dash for the box office. The reason for this unexpected behavior gave rise to much discussion till at last one of the crowd, more observant than the others, pointed out that the legend "To the Stalls" was written in large letters over the box office window.—London Globe.

What He Wanted.

The old man turned from his desk as his son-in-law entered the office.

"Well, what is it now?" he asked.

"I—er—have been thinking," answered the new member of the family, 'that you ought to give me a pension."

"A pension!" exclaimed the old man. "What in thunder do you mean, sir?"

"Well, it's like this," explained the other. "Ever since I did your daughter the honor to marry her I have been dependent on you for support, and I want to be independent. See?"

What to Push.

"Any one," remarked the old gentleman, "can build up a fortune if he has plenty of push."

"That depends upon the way the push is applied," rejoined the wise youth. "There isn't much money in pushing a gocart or a lawn mower."—St. Louis Republic

Their Training.

"I should think baseball men would be particularly useful in the army in actual warfare."

"Why especially baseball men?"

"Because they would know better than others how to fight a pitched battle."—Boston Transcript.

HISTORIC WEAPONS.

Trophies Wrested From the Crusaders Found in the Sudan.

Among the trophies of arms displayed on the walls of Windsor castle one of the most interesting of the long series is a group of weapons and armor sent to Queen Victoria by Lord Kitchener after the Dongola campaign on the upper Nile in 1896.

The trophy consists of a coat of chain mail, a number of spears and a long cross hilted sword. On the straight steel blade of the sword there is an inscription in odd fashioned letters: "No me saques sin razon. No me entrames sin honor."

The words are Spanish, but the same motto was inscribed on sword blades in the days of chivalry in most of the languages of Europe. Its meaning is the knightly rule for all who bear the sword: Do not draw me without reason. Do not sheathe me without honor.

The weapon was taken from the abandoned camp of Wad Bishara, the dervish general, after the battle of Hafir (Sept. 23, 1896). How came a blade with such a motto to be found in a Moslem bivouac in the heart of the Sudan?

The presence of these crusader swords in the Sudan is not so difficult to explain. In the thirteenth century the Mohammedan caliphs of Egypt not only carried on successful wars against the crusaders in Syria, destroying the last vestiges of the Latin kingdom of Jerusalem, but also defeated two attempts of the Europeans to invade Egypt itself, one of them led by St. Louis of France.

Enormous quantities of western arms and warlike equipments must have thus passed into the possession of the Mohammedan conquerors.—Chambers' Journal.

BABY TALK.

An Infantile Habit That Sometimes Sticks and Breeds Trouble.

Once in awhile a rare stammering case comes to the laboratory where there's nothing the matter with the child—the matter is with his dear mamma. In 1905 Dr. Witmer examined a boy of twelve who talked baby talk—a bright, alert youngster, to all appearances normal. But nobody could understand a word he uttered—except mamma; she understood it all perfectly. "I—aw—ow—ay" was to her ear "I want to go out to play" as plain as anything could be. It was her tender custom to reply likewise, and she took pride in the thought that she had never allowed her Willie to associate with the children on the block. She had encouraged him to be her baby and "kept him from growing up too soon" by prattling to him.

Except for his unintelligible language, the examination did not reveal a defect, physical or mental, in the boy, and Dr. Witmer was forced to the conclusion that the trouble lay in the persistence of an infantile habit of articulation for which the mother was solely responsible. Through sentimentality and overindulgence "she had almost ruined his chances for a useful and possibly successful life." (Psychological clinic, March, 1907.) Months of painstaking, expert labor had to be expended upon him to break up the habit his mother had carefully developed before he could even begin to make himself understood by any one else.—Dr. Witmer of Yale in McClure's Magazine.

Almost Disbelieved Her Eyes.

"Among the memories of my boyhood," said a New York man, "there is one odd episode that is particularly vivid. It is a conversation that I overheard one morning as I walked toward the Boston high school between two women.

"The women were talking about babies—their size, weight, health, and so forth.

"'Why, when I was a week old,' said the first woman, 'I was such a little baby that they put me in a quart pot and put the lid on over me.'

"The other woman was amazed and horrified. 'And did you live?' she asked.

"'They say I did,' her friend answered.

"'Well, well, well!' exclaimed the second woman. And she glanced at the other almost doubtfully."

In the Wrong Place.

A one legged Welsh cadet named Jones was pretty successful in bantering an Irishman, whom the latter asked him:

"How did you come to lose your leg?"

"Well," said Jones, "on examining my pedigree and looking up my descent I found there was some Irish blood in me, and, becoming convinced that it was settled in the left leg, I had it cut off at once."

"By the powers," said Pat, "it would have been a very good thing if it had only settled in your head!"—London Mail.

The Fool.

He was a noble lord, and he was in an awful rage with one of his footmen.

"It is intolerable!" he continued. "Are you a fool, or am I?"

"Oh, my lord," replied James, with humility, anxious to appease the great man, "I am sure you would not keep a servant who was a fool."

The Greatest Inventor.

Teacher—Who is the greatest inventor? Shaggy Haired Pupil—Pat Pending, I guess. I see his name on more inventions than I do any other man's.

A person who talks with equal velocity on every subject catches no fish.—Ram's Horn.

"Sausages Grown Here."

One of the natural curiosities of South Switzerland is a "German-Swiss dog." It bears deep grimaces [illegible] inches long. In blinding tempests of twelve; but when the mad dogs [illegible] fat, substantial, sausage-like pads, there remains no horror, and it looks like a sausage badly infected.

These beasts are 20 inches long, and 12 inches in girth, and are beloved of the native tribe of Shangaans and Batongas. But the tribe of the Karenga are a very superior people, and would never deign to eat them. There can be no reason for this, as, at least, no one can accuse these "sausages" of being connected in any way with dogs or cats!

HOW TO WIN.

Determination and Unity of Purpose Will Work Wonders.

Once you have chosen your occupation or profession hold fast thereto. Let nothing allure you from the main traveled road. Having chosen, hold like steel. Make everything feed into the main current of your life. Even modest talents, organized and unified, have conquered great distinction and worldwide success. History is full of illustrations of the unifying power of a great purpose. Witness the poor child Hastings looking at a distant manor house that once had belonged to his father. The determination to win back that estate before he died lent power and momentum and produced Lord Hastings. Witness the influence of purpose upon that little Scotch boy, out upon a holiday on the banks of the Clyde, with three precious coppers as his entire possession. He determined to build a house on the hilltop overlooking the river and forty years later moved into the castle, from which he looked down upon twenty ocean steamers he had built. Witness the purpose of William the Silent, filling all the days and nights for the hero struggling to deliver brave little Holland from Spain. Witness Milton's vow to write a poem that the world would not willingly let die and who therefore lived an epic life. Witness Paul's resolution to do one thing and one thing alone and who, with that unit purpose, achieved democracy for all subsequent peoples and centuries. Aimlessness will make your life like a sand heap.—Rev. Newell Dwight Hillis.

FULL OF HUMAN INTEREST.

Landscapes of the Dutch Painters of the Seventeenth Century.

The Dutch painters of the seventeenth century were as little concerned with poetic feeling as with idealism. They used their eyes and painted what they saw, but neither their imaginations nor their feelings were touched. While most modern painters interpret how the scene has affected themselves, the Dutch looked at it as something entirely outside themselves.

Otherwise the Dutch landscapes present us pictures of a pleasant workaday world or of the quiet evenings that follow after the labors of the day—never a hint of disturbance, though war and rumors of war were constant; instead, the perpetual suggestion of prosperous peace and thrifty comfort, for they abound with the evidences of busy humanity. Not only is nature brought into touch with human life by the little figures, so charmingly lifelike, which animate the scene, but everywhere are the results of man's handiwork seen in little things as well as big—in the trimly kept fruit trees of a laborer's garden plot no less than in the handsome facade of a rich burgher's town house. There is no country in the world where the influence of man is so minutely imprinted upon every foot of ground, and as these artists were eager to represent the things they saw no landscapes are so full of human interest as theirs.—Charles H. Caffin in St. Nicholas.

Her Home.

Some years ago, when a part of the Japanese imperial palace was burned at Tokyo, the empress was forced to flee to one of the old daimio houses near by. It was not at all comfortable, and, as the story goes, her majesty, appreciating that her subjects would be much concerned at her living in such a mean place, sat down and wrote them a little poem in which she denied that she had changed her residence. The poem, which was in the best Japanese language, stated that her majesty's home had always been in the hearts of the people and that neither the flames nor the cold could ever drive her from that dear abode.

The Dead Larks.

In Baluchistan even the wolves go mad. In his book, "The Frontiers of Baluchistan," G. P. Tate writes: "The shepherds give a strange reason for the epidemic of rabies. According to them, it was caused by the wild beasts eating dead larks. In some years, they said, the larks develop extraordinary vitality and pour forth such a flood of songs as they rise on the wing that they become suffocated and fall to the ground dead. A wild animal which eats one of these dead birds invariably develops rabies. This is a widespread superstition and seems not unfamiliar to the natives of India who were with me."

A Butchers' Common.

William, earl of Warren, in the time of King John, while standing upon the castle walls saw two bulls fighting in the castle meadow till all the butcher dogs pursued one of the maddened bulls quite through the town. The sight pleased the earl so much that he gave the castle meadows, where the duel of the bulls began, for a common to the butchers of the town, after the first grass was mowed, on condition that they should find a mad bull the day six weeks before Christmas day for the continuance of that sport forever.—London Standard.

Fine Crops.

"Do you raise anything worth while in your garden?" said the visitor from the city.

"I should say so," answered Mr. Cromlots. "It's the best place for fishing worms in the entire village."

Plain Talk.

"I think she's double faced."

"Oh, don't say that! One face like hers is bad enough!"—Comic Cuts.

It's a pity when sick ones drug the stomach or stimulate the heart and Kidneys. That is all wrong! A weak Stomach means weak Stomach nerves, always. And this is also true of the Heart and Kidneys. The weak nerves are hunted crying out for help. This explains why Dr. Agnew's Restorative is promptly helping the Stomach, Heart and Kidney nerves. The Restorative reaches out for the actual cause of these ailments—the failing "inside nerves." Anyway test the Restorative 48 hours. It won't cure so soon as that, but you will surely know that help is coming. Sold by all dealers.

Cosgrave's Beer

Words of praise have ever prevailed in advertising "copy." That a producer should wax enthusiastic over his own wares is but human. But it's the praise of the consumer that counts—and it is to a discriminating and critical public that "Cosgrave's" refers you

It is safe to say that no product, of any kind, enjoys a more enviable reputation than does this same Cosgrave Beer of Toronto in markets where it is offered.

Its self-evident honesty of purpose, purity, brilliancy, body, and every other attribute that goes to make a perfect beer are ever in evidence.

What Are They Worth?

ARE the eyes worth at least five hundred dollars per year to any man, woman or child. You would spend five dollars per year upon them if necessary would you not. How much do they cost you? How much do you spend for your feet your hats, Your Teeth, etc. Some wait until they must see about their eyes and would give hundreds of dollars but find it too late. Many parents bring their children that we may examine their eyes and see whether or not they need glasses. In childhood is the time to both remedy and prevent eye troubles. Again we ask what are your eyes worth to you and what to the child? We devote exclusive attention to the eyeglasses and artificial eyes.

Nothing seemed to affect me until I was about thirty. Then gas began to form in the stomach. I suffered with bloating and a general failure in strength set in. If I went upstairs my breath hurt. My system was very irregular and until I grew pretty bad I didn't pay much heed to my conditions Then I got blue, worried all the time, wakened in the night and couldn't get to sleep again None of the medicine I took helped me. One day I was reading of a very interesting case like mine cured by Dr. Hamilton's Pills, I took the same treatment, It was just right—didn't physic me to death, but took hold of the weak, sick parts of my system and set things right. INDUSTRY FOR LINDSAY.

Lindsay is Hot After This New Industry.

Lindsay, Sept. 8.—Mr. Jas. Fleury addressed the council on a matter of vital importance last evening, and if the action about to be taken is productive of results Lindsay will secure another industry.

The Corrugated Pipe Co., an important American concern, has samples of its product at Toronto Exhibition, and their representative informed Mr. Fleury that the firm intended locating a branch in Peterhe did not locate in Lindsay and he certainly must have used strong arguments, for the representatives promised to bring samples to the Lindsay fair, a well as consider Lindsay as a site for the new industry.

The company has laid a great deal of their pipe in Michigan and also in Essex county. The clerk will communicate with the firm and emphasize L'ndsay's advantages as a manufacturing center.

GROUSE SHOOTING

ON THE SCOTTISH MOORS IS ON FOR THE UPPER TEN.

Rush to the North — The Opening Has Started With Severity.

London, Sept. 9.—Grouse shooting on the Scottish moors is on and in a short time London will be almost deserted by the "Upper Ten."

The rush to the North for the opening of shooting has set in with its usual severity, and the termini of the Great Northern, Midland and London and North-western railways have during the week witnessed busy scenes of departure for the moors. The exodus this year was not so large as commonly takes place, for the simple reason that Parliament was sitting and some legislators with whom it is almost a religion to begin shooting on the 12th had to defer their devotions to a period when the whips cease from troubling.

Reports as to the prospects of sport differ, and, judging from the accounts in a lugubrious newspaper here, the birds and those who generally shoot them are suffering alike from a predatory budget. The anxiety regarding their future—for it is suggested that grouse moors will cease to exist under the land clauses—has apparently produced a strange new disease, a kind of wasting sickness among the grouse.

It is obvious, too, that the prospect of having to pay a halfpenny in the pound in respect of the site value of undeveloped land, few landlords can afford to rent shootings. So the sick grouse will have to wait until some philanthropist takes pity on their miserable condition and puts an end to their suffering. All the same, we may expect the usual supply of grouse in the London markets As a rule, they make an appearance much earlier than is compatible with having been shot on the 12th, but as the act says that they must not be exposed for sale until the 12th and does not lay down when they shall be shot this is not surprising. And in addition to this is the fact that many birds are kept in cold storage from year to year and emerg on the 12th when better prices are obtainable than later in the season. Last year the first legitimately shot birds arrived in London from Yorkshire during the afternoon, and were dispatched to King Edward at Marienbad, a precedent that will probably be followed this year.

Alymer St. Extension Through Mr. H. Best's Property Worth $800

The extension of Aylmer street south, has been a knotty question for the Board of Works Committee for the past few years. The extension has been completed as far south as Mr. H. Best's property and there it stops. The committee and Mr. Best cannot agree on the price that is to be paid for the right of way through the ex-mayor's property. The committee offers $500 and Mr. Best wants $800. He bases his claim on the price paid for other property purchased between his land and Lake street, and he holds out for the $800. The probability is that it will go to arbitration.

It will be remembered that Mr. Best gave the right of way for George street free along with two or three other parties. He thinks now he should be paid for Aylmer street right of way.

Mr. Best was present at the Board of Works meeting last night, and he submitted a new proposition to the board. He suggested that he give the city a strip of land 20 feet wide facing the park from George street to Aylmer street for $400. He asks that all houses built on his lots face the park and that a walk be built along the front. This, of course, did not bear on the question of the right of way of Aylmer street, so the committee asked Mr. Best to put his offer in writing and it would be considered in due time.

This closed the deal so far as any bargain was concerned except that Mr. Best told the committee that his offer for $800 was without prejudice in case of any arbitration proceedings.

Board of Works Had a Busy Session

The Smith street bridge contract may be awarded to Messrs. Conroy, instead of to the St. Catharines' firm as first intended. The Board of Works considered this matter along with a number of other things last night. They also decided not to build Cresent street sewer but the catch basin on George street in front of Mr. Shortly's store will be built.

Those present were Ald. Phelan, chairman; Aldermen Bradburn, Gillespie, Turner and Mayor Rush.

ENGINE STANDS.

The application from the Fire, Water and Light Committee for the board to build the stands for the fire engine was taken up next. The board considered this once before and turned it down.

Ald. Turner and Ald. Bradburn thought the board should do it as they have to be done. One is wanted at the Quaker Oats Company, one at Auburn, and one at Lake street. If the stands are not built the fire engine is of very little use.

Alc. Bradburn then suggested that the engineer make a report at once, and submit it to the Committee of the Whole Council at its next meeting early next week. The report to include the stand at Auburn and at the Quaker Oats anyway.

SMITH STREET BRIDGE.

Mr. Begy of St. Catharines, interviewed the committee re his contract for the Smith street bridge. He asked to be relieved of his contract owing to circumstances beyond his control. The committee decided to refer the matter to the Committee of the Whole Council, and a meeting of that committee will be held on Tuesday night. The next lowest tenderer was Mr. Conroy.

MORE HOLIDAYS.

Mr. Matchett, who drives the Board of Works grey team asked for two weeks' holidays. He will get them but later on in the season, when it will not be necessary to engage a substitute.

CRESCENT STREET SEWER.

City Engineer Hay presented a report on the proposed Cresent and Romaine street sewer which will be 1650 feet long. He finds that there are a great many obstacles in the way and it would not be satisfactory so he recommended that the sewer be deferred for the present until the council decided upon the improvement in the whole sewer system.

On motion the committee decided that the building of Crescent street sewer be deferred owing to the report of the engineer.

Moved by Aldermen Turner and Bradburn, that the selection of the inspector for Smith street bridge be left in the hands of the chairman and engineer.—Carried.

SENSE ABOUT FOOD.

Facts About Food Worth Knowing.

It is a serious question sometimes to know just what to eat when a person's stomach is out of order and most foods cause trouble.

Grape-Nuts food can be taken at any time with the certainty that it will digest. Actual experience of people is valuable to anyone interested in foods.

A Terre Haute woman writes: "I had suffered with indigestion for about four years, ever since an attack of typhoid fever, and at times could eat nothing but the very lightest food, and then suffer such agony with my stomach I would wish I never had to eat anything.

"I was urged to try Grape-Nuts and since using it I do not have to starve myself any more, but I can eat it at any time and feel nourished and satisfied, dyspepsia is a thing of the past, and I am now strong and well.

"My husband also had an experience with Grape-Nuts. He was very weak and sickly in the spring. Could not attend to his work. He was put under the doctor's care but medicine did not seem to do him any good until he began to leave off ordinary food and use Grape-Nuts. It was positively surprising to see the change in him. He grew better right off, and naturally he has none but words of praise for Grape-Nuts.

"Our boy thinks he cannot eat a meal without Grape-Nuts, and he learns so fast at school that his teacher and other scholars comment on it. I am satisfied that it is because of the great nourishing elements in Grape-Nuts."

"There's a Reason."

It contains the phosphate of potash from wheat and barley which combines with albumen to make the grey matter to daily refill the brain and nerve centres.

It is a pity that people do not know what to feed their children. There are many mothers who give their youngsters almost any kind of food and when they become sick begin to pour the medicine down them. The real way is to stick to proper food and be healthy and get along without medicine and expenses.

Ever read the above letter? A new one appears from time to time. They are genuine, true, and full of human interest.

GOT EIGHT MONTHS.

Howell Was Sentenced by Judge Hoyeke—Wilson Got Off.

His Honor Judge Huyeke, held his first criminal court in Peterborough yesterday morning when two prisoners, Wesley Howell, charged with escaping from custody, and Gordon Wilson, charged with harboring Howell, were given a trial. The circumstances of the case are well known and after his honor heard the evidence he gave the following verdict:—

Judge Huyeke first dealt with Wilson's case. He felt that Wilson had understood that he should not assist Howell and he had also shown by that act that he was in active sympathy against the police. On the other hand he had always lived respectably and had a good reputation. He had a wife and five small children to care for and the judge did not feel like visiting them with disgrace which the father had thoughtlessly brought them in danger of. He therefore allowed Wilson to go on suspended sentence, pointing out that the crime was a serious one, and that he was not acquitted, but should he live in the future as in the past, maintaining the good reputation he had won, he would probably never hear of the case again.

In addressing the prisoner, Howell his honor stated that he had not answered his conscience and come back to the police station, but was preparing to get away for good, when he was recaptured. He had treated his wife badly, and himself worse, through a tendency to strong drink. A sentence of eight months in Central Prison was imposed to run concurrently with the sentence received in police court.

ANOTHER YEAR OF EXPANSION BY CANADA'S GREAT RAILWAY

DAVID McNICHOLL

GENERAL MANAGER C.P.R.

Financial Report of the Canadian Pacific Railway for the Year Ending June 30th.

IS GROWING RAPIDLY

As Result of year's Operations the Directors Have at Their Disposal $15,835,028.

Montreal, Sept. 10.—The financial report of the Canadian Pacific Railway Company for the year ending June 30th, shows the gross earnings of the road to be $76,313,320 with working expenses of $53,357,748, leaving net earnings $22,955,752 this being increased by steamship and other receipts to $25,262,060. The fixed charges were $9,427,032.

As the result of the year's operations the directors have at their disposal $15,835,028.

The appropriation for steamship replacement was $800,000; the grant to the employees' pension fund was $80,000; the sum of $11,107,866 was distributed in dividends and $3,847,161 was brought forward to add to a surplus which now amounts to $35,164,830.

The railway and equipment cost $302,196,637, the ocean and other steamship lines costing in equipment the sum of $18,085,886.

The securities of the company, in owned or controlled lines are $63,153,544. There are various other investments including one million pounds of Canadian bonds.

The company possess 10,543 miles of track, owned, operated or under construction; 1,478 locomotives; 53,000 cars, 38 ocean and coast, and 25 inland navigation steam vessels.

The railway is still growing rapidly, in the last three years the system having been increased by 1,101 miles. Work is now being pushed for the construction of 403 miles of additional track.

In receipts, for moving 16,549,000 tons of freight the sum of $48,182,520 was received. This was just a trifle over three-quarters of a cent a ton for a mile. For carrying 9,784,150 passengers $20,153,000 was received. This works out at the rate of 1.88 cents a mile.

A WONDERFUL TRIP.

Traveled 16,728 Miles in 218 Days, In Darkest Africa.

London, Sept. 10.—After traveling 16,728 miles in 218 days, during which she journeyed without a companion, and absolutely unprotected through the heart of savage Africa, from the Cape to Cairo, Miss Charlotte Mansfield, the poet and novelist, has reached her home in London again safely. Here is a feat that no white woman accomplished before her.

Miss Mansfield sought no help beyond that of the blacks to take her through parts where a white woman had never before been seen, even where white men have not yet trod. She walked alone among savages, who gathered around her in hordes—alarmed and curious—but, as a reward to her remarkable courage, only curious.

When not on foot, she engaged the blacks to carry her by means of the machili—a kind of hammock swung on a pole carried between two natives. In the more remote parts of the dark continent the savages ran ahead to the villages, announcing that the "White Donna" had arrived. They had never seen a white, whether man or woman, and gathered in crowds at the villages through which she passed, unable to understand the whiteness of her skin and the color of her hair.

AFRAID OF HER BOOTS.

The fact that she wore boots at first startled the people, who would stand at a respectable distance, until receiving the assuarance that she meant them no harm.

Once accustomed to the spectacle of a white woman and the habiliments of Western civilization, however, they would stand around and laugh in their peculiar native way, and would interrogate her natives, who had known her longer upon the antecedents and intentions of the strange visitor they carried with them.

Miss Mansfield's diary records the following dates:

Left London, Jan. 9.
Reached Cape Town, Jan. 26.
Left Cape Town, Feb. 8.
Arrived outside Cairo, Aug. 6.
Back in London, Aug. 14.

WONDER OF THE NATIVES.

From the Cape she went to Broken Hill by rail, after a tour in Bulwayo, and then covered the 340 miles to Abercorn on foot, and by means of the machila—a kind of hammock swung on poles and carried by two natives. From Abercorn she traversed British Central Africa by rail, subsequently making a further tramp for nine days, until Maronga was reached on the northern side of Lake Nyassa.

"Can be depended upon" is an expression we all like to hear, and when it is used in connection with Chamberlain's Colic, Cholera and Diarrhoea Remedy it means that it never fails to cure diarrhoea, dysentery or bowel complaints. It is pleasant to take and equally valuable for children and adults. 23

Traction Engine Almost Through Hales Bridge

Two accidents occurred on the Trent Canal, Thursday, both of which might have proved more serious than they actually proved to be. Thursday morning a traction engine in passing over Wallace's Point or as it is also known Hales, Bridge, smashed the stringers and planking on the swing portion of the bridge. The engine was very nearly precipitated down into the channel.

The same evening, when the Water Lily was on its way to Peterborough, she dashed into one of the gates at Lock No. 2, between Peterborough and Lakefield bending the iron shaft that is used in operating the gate and doing other damage to a considerable extent. Mr. Gordon, overseer of this division, immediately had a force of men repairing the work, but it will be some days before the lock is in its usual good working order. In the meantime, however, provision is made whereby boats can be locked through without any interruption to navigation.

Downey St. Creek Demands Attention of Board of Works

The old and time worn Downey street creek commanded attention from the Board of Works again. It is many years since the turbulent waters of spring freshets first made this little creek a source of trouble to the council, and of late years every board of works committee has worried over what should be done with it. A couple of three years ago it was decided to divert the course of the stream but some little differences between the city and property owners have delayed the work being done. Now, however, the property owners, or at least most of them are anxious to have the considers that he asked too many concessions from the city. However the Board of Works will go up and look the creek over on Tuesday next and make an effort to satisfy all parties concerned.

Mr. D. W. Dumble addressed the board on behalf of two property owners on the Downey street creek. Years ago an ex-alderman in the north end, Mr. Rutherford, had the course of the creek changed. Now the walk over the creek is badly decayed and needs repairing. Instead of repairing it, it should again be changed and run through Mr. Tomlin and Mr. Blodgett's property. Mr. Tomlain offers to give the right of way in exchange for a little bit of street. Mr. Blodgett will give his consent if the city will dump the excavations from the new water course onto his property and also to crib the banks of the creek with the old timber taken from the old drain and elsewhere. Tomlin built a house on his land and part on the street and put a mortgage on it and now he is in a bad position as he cannot sell his property. There will be no trouble in getting him to carry out his part.

Mr. Blodgett wants the city to do all the crib work and all the work at their own expense. He positively refuses to do any work himself.

Ald. Bradburn suggested that the city sell at a low cost part of the gore to Mr. Tomlin and let the drain stay just where it is.

It was decided that the Board of Works would go up to Tomlin's and Blodgett's property on Tuesday and decide it. They will go up in the morning at 10 o'clock.

ELECTRICAL POWER IN CANADA.

A report issued by the Department of the Interior at Ottawa shows the present development of electrical energy from water power in the several Provinces and the amount available for development works now under way. This report shows a total of 496,587 horse-power already developed, with a possibility of developing 25,695,907 from the works under consideration. The following table shows the possible amount available and that already being utilized:

	Amount Available	Being Utilized
Yukon	470,000	73,100
Brit. Columbia	2,065,500	73,100
Alberta	1,144,00	1,330

Ordination of Rev. Father Meagher at St. Peter's

One of the most interesting ceremonies performed in St. Peter's Cathedral for a long time was the ordination of Rev. Wm. Meagher of Emly, County Tipperary, Ireland, which took place on Friday morning, Sept. 10th, at 8 o'clock. The new priest, who will be a curate in the cathedral, is a young man just out from Ireland, about three weeks having come direct from his homeland to Peterborough. Although young he possesses qualities which will win for him the reverence of the people and the best wishes of all for his success in the future is extended.

Rev. Father Meagher was born in Emly, Tipperary. He entered upon his studies for the priesthood at St. Ailbes Seminary, Emly, and from there he went to Mount Mellery Seminary, where he read philosophy and then he went to All Hallow's College, Dublin, where he completed his theological course and from which college he came to Canada.

The ordination services were conducted by the Rt. Rev. R. A. O'Connor, D.D., and he was assisted at the ceremony by Rev. M. J. O'Brien, D.D., Rev. W. J. McColl rector of the cathedral, and Rev. P. J. Kelly. The following clergymen were also in the sanctuary:—Rev. Joseph Phelan, P.P., Lakefield; Rev. J. O'Sullivan, P.P., Kirkfield; Rev. P.J. Galvin, P.P., Kinmount; Rev. C. S. Retherton, P.P., Hastings; Rev. T. Crowley, P.P., Warren, and Rev. T. Trainer, P.P., Cache Bay.

After the ceremony, His Lordship Bishop O'Connor, delivered an address to the immense congregation which filled the cathedral to its full capacity. He pointed out to the people the great advantage in having a young man ordained to the priesthood and what an example it would be to them to train up their youth in piety and virtue. He urged them to try and foster the vocation of the priesthood and in a few well chosen words he pointed out the dignity of the priesthood.

Following the address his lordship extended his blessing to the clergy and the people in front of the chancel railing.

Rev. Father Meagher will enter upon his new duties at once and will sing his first mass at Mount St. Joseph on Sunday morning at 7.30 and will sing his first high mass in the cathedral on Sunday morning at 10.30.

HANGED HERSELF.

Committed Suicide in a Most Sentional Manner.

Woodstock, Sept. 9.—Miss Agnes Scott, aged 45 years, committed suicide in a most sentational manner early this morning at the home of her brother-in-law, Mr. Bawtenheimer, lot 4, east concession of Blenheim, by hanging herself to an apple tree in the family orchard.

Some time during the night Miss Scott arose and made her way to the barn behind the house, where she secured a small tender rope, not as large as a good clothes line, after which she proceeded to the orchard. A box, which was lying near by, was used to reach one of the limbs of the tree, to which the rope was tied. Miss Scott then tied the other end of the rope tightly round her neck, and shoving the box away with her feet she dangled in the air until finally she was strangled to death.

Mr. McLay, coroner of this city, was called, and after an examination, decided that an inquest was unnecessary

What Electric Power Costs in Neighboring Towns and Villages

The Seymour Power and Electric Company are Getting Sale for Their Power

The Campbellford Herald has the following interesting power information in its columns this week:

The Seymour Power & Electric Company are getting sale for their power. A power bylaw will be voted on in Madoc village in a few weeks, and doubtless the people will ratify the agreement made with the council. Stirling has already signified its intention to have power for lighting purposes, and Marmora and Delora will require over 800 horse power.

In all these agreements it may be noticed that the company is getting a price for power commensurate with the cost of development. They are not and cannot afford to sell power at a rate such as was talked of in town a yearago, when the Steel Company agreement was proposed. The price proposed to Madoc for a 24-hour service for industrial purposes is $42.50 per h.p. and for electric lighting service is $25.00 per h.p. continuous for 24 hours, while power required for daylight hours alone will be given at $12.50 per h.p. These figures seem indeed reasonable when we consider the enormous expense of development and transmission, and we have no doubt the village of Madoc will endorse that agreement.

The figures quoted will be a guide for the sale of power by our municipality. The plant should be run for the benefit of the town and not simply with a view of getting industries no matter whether profits accrue or not. We should, however, in view of the cheap cost of production be in a position to compete favorably with any company that may have power for sale.

A Serious Riot in a Quebec Village

Gaspe, Sept. 10.—A serious riot has broken out among the fishermen at Fox River about forty miles from here. The trouble is said to be caused by local agitators working up a bad class of people a few miles west of Fox River. On the 7th inst., about 500 men assembled around the establishments of William Fruing & Company, and William Hyman & Sons, and demanded $4 per quintal for fish throughout the season and the cancellation of all book debts.

They then mobbed Hyman & Son's agent, who had to wound one or two before he could be rescued from being killed. They intercepted the manager of W. Fruing & Company's establishment. Mr. Brien and whilst six men held him and lashed him to a fence, one or two struck him in the face and another held a revolver to his head, giving him two minutes to sign a paper granting their request or die on the spot.

He granted their request. The merchants then closed their stores and left with their clerks for Gaspe. The mob threatened to come on down the coast to Grand Grave and Gaspe. Cruisers Canada and Christine are en route to Fox River, but it is feared at least a hundred men will be needed to quell the riots.

Unusually Brisk Campaign by Sunday School

er and the people are getting settled down for another year's work. Likewise the churches and Sunday schools are preparing for an active campaign. The ministers are home from their holidays and they are getting their works together and an unusually brisk campaign for the moral advancement of the city is being prepared. The Murray street Sunday school is taking the lead in this matter and yesterday a printed circular was sent to every former attendant requesting them to again unite with the school and take an active part in the class work. The Murray street school expects soon to have its own orchestra and Sunday school choir, and other improvements have also been made to make the sessions more interesting.

To Centralize the Police Control

Toronto, Sept. 10.—The General Council, Moral Reform Society of Canada, met this morning in St. George's Hall, with Rev. Dr. Carman of Toronto, in the chair.

The Congregational Union of Canada, the Salvation Army, and the Canadian Purity Education Association of Canada were admitted as members.

During the year Provincial councils have been organized in Nova Scotia, New Brunswick, and British Columbia, leaving Quebec as the only Province without such a council.

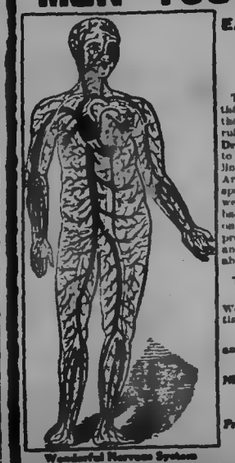
The topic for discussion this morning was law enforcement. Several recommendations were passed, and will be forwarded to each of the Provincial legislatures. They included a recommendation that the municipal police forces be under the control of some governing body which is not subject to the influence of local authority or opinion, and therefore outside the realm of municipal politics.

A recommendation that rural police forces be discontinued and the Provincial forces increased.

That the attorney-general of each Province be given power to compel the police commissioners to perform their sworn duty in the enforcement of laws.

That the liquor laws be invariably enforced by Provincial officers, and particularly that a special movable detective force be installed, such as the one in Ontario.

MEN—YOU NEED NERVE



Wonderful Nervous System

EARLY INDISCRETIONS AND EXCESSES HAVE UNDERMINED YOUR SYSTEM

The nerves control all actions of the body so that anything that debilitates them will weaken all organs of the system. Early indiscretions and Excesses have ruined thousands of promising young men. Unnatural Drains sap their vigor and vitality and they never develop to a proper condition of manhood. They remain weaklings, mentally, physically and sexually. How you feel? Are you nervous and weak, despondent and gloomy, specks before the eyes with dark circles under them, weak back, kidneys irritable, palpitation of the heart, bashful, debilitating dreams, sediment in urine, pimples on the face, eyes sunken, hollow cheeks, careworn expression, poor memory, lifeless, distrustful, lack energy and strength, tired mornings, restless nights, changeable moods, premature decay, bone pains, hair loose, etc.

This is the condition our New Method Treatment is GUARANTEED TO CURE

We have treated Diseases of Men for almost a lifetime and do not have to experiment. Consult us FREE OF CHARGE and we will tell you whether you are curable or not.

We guarantee curable cases of NERVOUS DEBILITY, VARICOCELE VEINS, BLOOD AND SKIN DISEASES, GLEET, BLADDER URINARY AND KIDNEY COMPLAINTS

Chest Inflamation

Suffered from a Heavy Cold, Pleuritic Pains in Side—Constant Coughing.

"NERVILINE" CURED QUICKLY.

"Anyone that goes through all that I suffered last winter will appreciate the value of a remedy that cures like Nerviline cured me." These are the opening words of the solemn declaration of E. P. Von Hayden, the well known violinist of Middleton. "My work kept me out late at night, and playing in cold drafty places brought on a severe cold that settled on my chest. I had a harsh racking cough and severe pains darted through my sides and settled in my shoulders. I used different liniments, but none broke up my cold till I used Nerviline. I rubbed it on my neck, chest and shoulders morning and night, and all the pain disappeared. Realizing that such a heavy cold had run down my system I took Ferrozone at meals, and was completely built up and strengthened. Since using Nerviline I have no more colds or pleurisy, and enjoy perfect health."

NERVILINE CURES CHEST COLDS

It's because Nerviline contains the purest and most healing essences and medicinal principles, because it has the power of sinking through the pores to the kernel of the pain—these are the reasons why it breaks up colds, cures lumbago, stiffness, neuralgia, sciatica and rheumatism. Refuse any substitute your dealer may suggest—insist on Nerviline only. Large 25c. bottles, five for $1.00. Sold everywhere, or The Catarrhozone Co., Kingston, Ont. 22

BABY TALK.

An Infantile Habit That Sometimes Sticks and Breeds Trouble.

Once in awhile a rare stammering case comes to the laboratory where there's nothing the matter with the child—the matter is with his dear mamma. In 1906 Dr. Witmer examined a boy of twelve who talked baby talk—a bright, alert youngster, to all appearances normal But nobody could understand a word he uttered—except mamma; she understood it all perfectly. "I—ew—ow—ay" was to her ear "I want to go out to play" as plain as anything could be. It was her tender custom to reply likewise, and she took pride in the thought that she had never allowed her Willie to associate with the children on the block. She had encouraged him to be her baby and "kept him from growing up too soon" by prattling to him.

Except for his unintelligible language, the examination did not reveal a defect, physical or mental, in the boy, and Dr. Witmer was forced to the conclusion that the trouble lay in the persistence of an infantile habit of articulation for which the mother was solely responsible. Through sentimentality and overindulgence "she had almost ruined his chances for a useful and possibly successful life." (Psychological clinic, March, 1907.) Months of painstaking, expert labor had to be expended upon him to break up the habit his mother had carefully developed before he could even begin to make himself understood by any one else.—Dr. Witmer of Yale in McClure's Magazine.

Almost Disbelieved Her Eyes.

"Among the memories of my boyhood," said a New York man, "there is one odd episode that is particularly vivid. It is a conversation that I overheard one morning as I walked toward the Boston high school between two women.

"The women were talking about babies—their size, weight, health, and so forth.

"'Why, when I was a week old,' said the first woman, 'I was such a little baby that they put me in a quart pot and put the lid on over me.'

"The other woman was amazed and horrified. 'And did you live?' she asked.

"'They say I did,' her friend answered.

"'Well, well, well!' exclaimed the second woman. And she glanced at the other almost doubtfully."

Drive Rheumatism out of the blood with Dr. Shoop's Rheumatic Remedy and see how quickly pain will depart. Rub-ons never did reach the real disease. Rheumatism isn't in the skin. It's deep down—it's constitutional. Getting rid of the pain, is after all, what counts. That is why Dr. Shoop's Rheumatic Remedy goes by word of mouth from one to another. And herein lies the popularity of this Remedy. It is winning defenders everywhere. Tablets or Liquid. Sold by all dealers.

STUDYING ESQUIMAUX.

Government Will Make Further Investigations In North.

The Canadian Geological Survey, under the late Dr. G M. Dawson gathered from time to time a large amount of interesting and valuable information regarding the native races. Since the death of Dr. Dawson this portion of the work of the department has been allowed to languish, but this year a fresh start was made in a direction which cannot but prove to be of great historical and ethnological interest, as well as being of particular value in allowing the people of Canada to become better acquainted with their fellow citizens who occupy the vast frozen territory which forms our northern boundary.

The present subject of ethnological research by the department is the Esquimaux race; and it is deemed especially desirable that this work should be resumed amongst them just now, because their habits are rapidly changing and becoming more difficult for scientific study, as the white man penetrates the Far North.

The Esquimaux is perhaps by his natural gifts the most admirable of the native races of Canada. There are no more intelligent and kindly people than the Esquimaux of Northern Canada, and none that so readily respond to courtesy and good will; and yet they are probably the most misunderstood and misrepresented of all native races The expedition which was fitted out last year for the study of the Esquimaux consists of Mr. V. Stefansson and Dr. R. M. Anderson. The undertaking is by no means a new task to Mr. Stefansson, as it is the second of a series of journeys he has planned to carry out within the next fifteen years, during which period he hopes to visit and study every Esquimaux settlement from East Cape, Siberia, to the east coast of Greenland and the shores of of Labrador.

The present journey is planned to cover two years, one of which Mr. Stefansson expects to spend between Cape Brown and Bathurst Inlet, Canada, the other on the Colville river, Alaska. He believes that near the mouth of the Coppermine river there is a group of Esquimaux who have never seen a white man; these he desires to study while as yet they are uncontaminated by white influence, and before "civilized" ways change their system of living.

Dynamited by Dog.

The news of a very remarkable accident at a mining camp at Hanging Stone Lake, near Gowganda, by which one man was killed and two injured, was brought to Montreal recently by Frederick Dunn, a resident of St. Johns, Quebec, who accompanied from Northern Ontario the remains of Andrew Dunn, the principal victim, for interment at his old home just outside that city.

Andrew Dunn and companions were dynamiting a vein. The fuse was ignited and the men ran, followed by Dunn's collie dog, which picked up the dynamite stick in his teeth. The explosion came just as the dog reached the cabin and dropped the explosive.

Dunn was killed almost instantly, his skull being fractured in two places, and one of his arms and two ribs being broken. One of the other men, Sims, was stunned and badly cut about the neck, while the other miner, Hackett, escaped with a few bruises. The dog, which was the cause of the disaster, bounded away and escaped injury.

A Man of Weight.

People in many Ontario towns know Mr. Holland, of Whitby, who has done excellent work as grand organiser of the Sons of Temperance. Mr. Holland is a big man—not only big in achievement, but big in person. He related on one of his tours how he had gone into a certain place to be weighed, but as the scales went up to only two hundred and fifty pounds, he could not succeed.

One time he went to the little village of Port Robinson, where the lodge was presided over by a demure but droll Worthy Patriarch. After the customary preliminaries Mr. Holland was admitted, and as he made his ponderous way to the platform the halting Worthy Patriarch remarked dryly:

"Well! they told me Holland was coming, but I think it's all of Holland and part of Belgium."

She Didn't Go Back.

Miss Agnes Laut, whose address on "yellow journals" and how they may be got rid of, created such a stir at the International Congress of Women, has ever been noted as one with views of her own and with a courage of her convictions. In Winnipeg she is remembered as a delicate girl with definite opinions and an independent spirit that entirely belied her looks.

When Miss Laut left Winnipeg to try her fate in the big world of journalism and literature, there were not wanting those who predicted that she would soon be back at her desk in The Free Press office. Her first work was the reporting of the meetings of the Joint High Commission in Quebec, and in this she succeeded in a way that ranked her work with that of the ablest Ottawa and Washington correspondents. From that time her rise has been steady, and though she has several times visited Winnipeg, she has evinced no tendency to occupy her old desk.

The Moose.

The moose is the largest animal now existing of the deer family, standing often as high as six feet, and sometime weighing 1,200 pounds; but notwithstanding its great size, it is very fleet of foot. When brought to bay, a blow with its fore foot or horns is a very serious matter for the huntsman Otter when pursued by man they have their intelligence to thank for their escape, for sometimes, if closely followed, they double in their tracks and stand motionless in some thicket until the hunter has slipped by, when they quickly glide away. At other times they make such a commotion as to unnerve any but an experienced hunter, and thus escape.

A Royal Philatelist.

It is, of course, well known that amongst British stamp collectors the Prince of Wales occupies a prominent position. Exactly what his Royal Highness's collection is worth has not been made public; but in view of the fact that five years ago he paid £1,450 for a specimen of the twopenny blue Mauritius, it is apparently one of great value. It is not generally known that the Prince of Wales caused this stamp over the head of the German Postoffice Museum, who sent an agent here to secure it at any price. At £1,400 the agent lost courage, however, and thus the stamp came into the royal collection.

A DREAM STORY.

The Startling Vision That Saved the Life of Lady Vernon.

The following dream story is told in "The Story of My Life," by Augustus J. C. Hare. The story was told to Mr. Hare in Rome in 1870:

Lady Vernon dreamed that she saw the butler, with a knife in one hand and a candle in the other, crossing the entrance hall, and she awoke with a great start. After awhile she composed herself to sleep again, and she dreamed—she dreamed that she saw the butler, with a knife in one hand and a candle in the other, on the middle of the staircase, and she awoke with a great shock. She got up. She thought she could not be quite well, and she took a little sal volatile At last she fell asleep again, and she dreamed—she dreamed that she saw the butler, with a knife in one hand and a candle in the other, standing at her bedroom door, and she awoke in a great terror, and she jumped out of bed, and she said, "I'll have an end of this; I'll have an end of these foolish imaginations." And she rushed to the door, and she threw the door wide open. And there at the door stood the butler, with a knife in one hand and a candle in the other. And when he suddenly saw Lady Vernon in her white nightdress, with her hair streaming down her back, he was so dreadfully frightened that he dropped the candle on the floor and rushed off down the staircase and off to the stables, where there was a horse ready saddled and bridled, on which he meant to have ridden away when he had murdered Lady Vernon. And he rode away without having murdered her at all, and he was never heard of again.

THERE WAS NO ACCIDENT.

And the Message She Received Was Not a Practical Joke.

She was reclining in a low chair in the drawing room, thinking about her dear Willie, who had been legally her property for the space of three months, when a telegram arrived for her. Hurriedly tearing open the envelope, she scanned the contents, then fell back in a swoon. The message was from her brother in the city and read:

Will run over today. GEORGE.

Her maid at last restored her to consciousness. Her Willie run over! She could not grasp the full significance of it. One thing she would do—go to him at once. So she hastily attired herself and at length reached her brother's office, who, having sent the news, would be able to tell her all about it.

"How is he, and where have they taken him?"

Her brother stared at her stupidly.

"Oh, don't keep me in suspense! Tell me where he is."

"Where who is?"

"Why, Willie."

"At his office, I presume. I haven't seen him today."

"Then what does this mean? Isn't he run over? Is this one of your silly jokes?"

George took the telegram from his sister, read his own message, then exploded with laughter. It was a long time before he could convince her that this simple intimation that he would run over and pay her a visit was not a detestable and practical joke.

The Talker.

You'll note the man who talks too much is always working round. He never seems to hold the job which some one else has found for him because he's bound to keep his tongue upon the wag and spend his boss' precious time in self bouquets and brag. He stays until his story's told and then told once again, and by this time the boss' ear is overfull of pain, and he is told to take his grip, although the boss feels sad, because he's lost his other grip upon the job he had. And yet he never, never learns, but talks his jobs away, because the habit's grown on him that he must have the say. And so he talks until he dies, up to his waning breath; he's talked his chances all away and talked himself to death.

Had It Lowered.

Sir Augustus Harris once settled the pitch question in his own offhand fashion. A famous prima donna of his opera company came to him complaining that the piano used for vocal rehearsals was too high and asking that it might be lowered.

"Certainly," replied Drurielaane, with a bow. "Hose, Forsyth, have a couple of inches sawed off the legs of this piano."

Tell Some Sick One

It Is Free If It Fails.

Will you do an act of Humanity?

Will you tell some sick friend of this, my remarkable offer?

Tell him or her, that you have learned of a medicine so certain that its maker dare say to the sick, "Try it absolutely and unconditionally and if it fails."

And you, no doubt, already know of Dr. Shoop's Restorative and its popularity.

For 39 years it has been the standard remedy for Stomach, Kidney and Heart ailments every where in America.

When the "inside" or controlling nerves of these vital organs begin to fail, it is Dr. Shoop's Restorative that has quickly vitalized, and strengthened, and brought these nerves and organs back to health again.

I do not dose the Stomach, nor stimulate the Heart or Kidneys—for that is all wrong.

Dr. Shoop's Restorative goes direct to the source of these ailments—the failing, faltering, inside or controlling nerves. And herein lies the keynote to my success.

When these nerves are again made well and strong, then that is the certain end of all such sickness.

To me it is a great satisfaction that I am the only physician able to say to the suffering sick, "Take my prescription for full 30 days, and if it fails to help you, the entire expense is mine—not yours."

Then why should the sick take any chance on any other medicine, when maker dare not back it just as I do by this remarkable offer?

I also have a Rheumatic Remedy—and that remedy is covered by the same identical "No help, no pay" protective plan.

Besides, you are free to consult me just as you would your home physician. My advice and the book below are yours—and without cost.

Perhaps a word or two from me will clear up some serious ailment. I have helped thousands upon thousands by my private prescription or personal advice plan. My best effort is ready worth your simple request.

So let me send you an order at once. Take the message to some sick friend.

A postal will bring the opportunity.

I will have an honest and trustworthy drug-gist to whom you can conveniently go for the 30 day test.

But first, send me for the order, for all drug-gists are not authorized to give the 30 day test. So write me now and save all delays. Address me that tomorrow never comes. Address Dr. Shoop, Box 12, Racine, Wis.

Which Book Shall I Send You?

Sculptural Competition of Designs for Two Monuments.

1. Competitive designs are invited for two monuments, one to the memory of the late Honourable George Brown and the other to the memory of the late Honourable Thomas D'Arcy McGee.

2. Each monument is not when completed and in position, to cost more than ten thousand dollars, including pedestal from the level of the ground.

3. The competition is open only to artists resident in Canada, and artists of Canadian birth residing elsewhere.

4. The site will be at a point in the Government property at Ottawa, to be hereafter decided.

5. Designs shall be in the form of sketch-models, in plaster, made at a uniform scale of one and one-half inches to the foot. A description of the design shall accompany each model. No name motto or other distinctive mark thereon.

6. The author of the best designs will be awarded the commission of the work, the second best $500.00 and the third best $300.00.

7. The models and all communications regarding this matter shall be addressed to

Advisory Art Council,
C—o, Department of Public Works,
Ottawa, Canada.

The designs must be delivered before the 1st day of February, 1910. They will be kept from public view until the reward has been made. All expenses of delivering the sketch-models and accompanying descriptions shall be paid by the competitors. Sketch models will, after the award at the expense of the department be returned upon the request of competitors, but at the risk of the competitors.

Notice of the award will be sent to each competitor.

The award will only be binding provided the successful competitor is prepared to furnish satisfactory guidance, with security if demanded, that he can execute the work for the sum mentioned above.

What Are They Worth?

ARE the eyes worth at least five hundred dollars per year to any man, woman or child. You would spend five dollars per year upon them if necessary would you not. How much do they cost you? How much do you spend for your feet your hats, Your Teeth, etc. Some wait until they must see about their eyes and would give hundreds of dollars but find it too late. Many parents bring their children that we may examine their eyes and see whether or not they need glasses. In childhood is the time to both remedy and prevent eye troubles. Again we ask what are your eyes worth to you and what to the child? We devote exclusive attention to the eyeglasses and artificial eyes.

NEW ZEALANDER ON ENGLAND.

Sir Robert Stout Delivers a Sharp Criticism on Old Land.

Sir Robert Stout, ex-Premier and present chief justice of New Zealand, has very definite ideas on the consequences of England's failure as a world-power. Sir Roberts knows the Antipodes as a man who has spent nearly all his life there, going out from the Shetland Islands at the age of 14, and returning to Great Britain for the first time now at the age of 65. He also knows New Zealand as one who has been chiefly concerned in building up the Island Dominion.

In an interview with the navy builder of 1885 Wm. T. Stead, he declares that England suffers chiefly from slackness and illogical views. The non-Conformists, for example, wish to disestablish the church, and at the same time establish religion in the parish school.

Laborers are very slack in their methods, and three men are needed to do the work of one. The young Englishmen are not equal to the New Zealanders and the farms are not well cultivated. There is lack of enterprise, care and energy on the part of the manufacturer. As a result Americans captured the best part of the New Zealand trade. The habit of fuddling, on which $800,000,000 a year are spent in England, is another source of national weakness noted by Sir Robert.

"We hope there will be no war," said the New Zealander, "and if war should come we hope Britain will be victor. But do not make any mistake about it. If by any disaster any foreign power were to dictate a peace in London which transferred New Zealand to the conquerer, the next day we should hoist the Stars and Stripes, the only other flag save that of the Union Jack under which New Zealanders would live."

Sir Robert should pay a visit to Canada.

Boom on Rand.

After a long interval it is once more quite "boom time" in Johannesburg. It is generally agreed that prospects have never been so good since 1895. All classes of business are already feeling the effects of better times. Activity on the Stock Exchange is enormous, for the public have at last fairly "gone into it."

One feature of the moment is the immense amount of pegging of claims going on in the surrounding district. Thousands of claims allowed to lapse in times of depression have been taken up again, and many flotations are probable, but there are fears in some quarters that this may be overdone and produce a reaction.

The general view, however, is that the upward tendency will last. The reduced working costs on mines have made payable the working of millions of tons of reef which hitherto have not been a profitable proposition, and at the same time have immensely increased the profits of the more valuable mines.

It is regarded as a good sign that so far the improvement has not produced the mania of gambling which marked the 1895 "boom." In the commercial part of the town traders report a marked increase in trade, especially in luxuries, such as pianos, motor-cars, carriages and horses, which first felt the bad times.

There are strong hopes that the wave of prosperity will result in the opening up of new mines and that it will thus absorb the unemployed.

Two Female Quixotes.

Two women in Natal are at present engaged in fighting the whole force of the British Government. The battle waged by the Misses Colenso—two sisters—is carried on without visible signs of outward warfare, and yet it is a struggle as daring, as strenuous, and a adventurous as any real engagement. Embarked in a quixotic attempt to rescue the native chief, Dinizulu, from the coils of British diplomacy, they have spent almost every cent they had in the world. For the last five years the elder sister, Harriet, has been the guide, philosopher and friend of the native chief, and remained near him while he waited in prison until her efforts got him out, only to be tried and re-convicted on another count. The devotion of the Colenso sisters to the cause of the black chief has won the respect of even their inveterate enemies, the English foreign wire-pullers, who wish to turn the land of Dinizulu over to white explorers.

No white people in the whole of South Africa have greater knowledge and experience of the Natal natives than the two sisters. They are the daughters of the famous Bishop Colenso, first and last Bishop of Natal, who devoted his life to studying the needs and ministering to the spiritual wants of the black men.

Lady Bancroft's Lovebird.

My wife had lost a little green parrot, for the return of which I offered a reward of ten shillings, giving our address, but no name. One of the newspapers, however, had a paragraph headed, "Lady Bancroft's Lost Lovebird." It was my privilege, with others, to receive at this period our present King and Queen—then Prince and Princess of Wales—at the Botanical Gardens, when His Royal Highness produced a newspaper cutting and said, "I think I have Lady Bancroft's lost bird. One of the bread was flying about for some days in the garden at Marlborough House, and a gardener succeeded in catching it this morning. Pray go and see if it is yours, as I hope it may be; but, mind, I shall claim the reward." I replied, "Certainly, sir; it is small, but appropriate, being—half a sovereign."—From "The Bancrofts: Recollections of Sixty Years."

LONE ST. KILDA.

How the Inhabitants Live on Isolated Little Island.

Surrounded for eight months of the year by an isolating veil, which hides it almost impenetrably from the outer world, St. Kilda casts its mists in May, and comes forth to join the chorus of the isles again. With the resumption of the tourist traffic, the furthest fling of the Western Hebrides enters upon its summer "season." From now till August its people live in the stir of coming and going steamers. It is only within the last 15 years (says The Scotsman) that the Lone Isle began to be included in the itinerary of the tourist. In earlier days the islanders had to be satisfied with the certainty of a call from the factor's smack once or twice a year. It brought the factor on board. He came, as he comes yet, to collect the rents in kind—cattle, grain, cheese, sea bird feathers, fulmar oil, dried fish, and other limited products—and he supplied them with their fresh stock of meal, flour, salt, tea and sugar, and shawls. Tea and sugar are still comparatively modern luxuries, with only 20 years' familiarity to spice their pleasure. Shops are unknown on the island, so each householder must calculate the exact quantity of goods and merchandise he will require to tide him over the winter. There remain, of course, the dairy produce of the island, and the mutton which its sheep supplies. Beef or pork are never eaten.

The St. Kildians give all their cattle to the proprietor for rent, and, unlike the Irish, they don't keep pigs. Comparatively modern illustrations show the fashion in dress to have been distinctly bizarre, but it is much more up to date now. The men manufacture their own tweed and act as their own tailors. Occasionally, indeed, they ply the needle on behalf of the women, who are fond of bright colors, a not unknown feminine idiosyncrasy. Scarlet is their favorite shade. Imported shawls are worn on the head in winter time, and Turkey red napkins in summer. Some of the younger women order their costumes from the "mainland," but the majority are content with dresses of their own making. Education is now on an organised basis, although it is only within recent years that the Ladies' Association in Edinburgh began to send students to teach English to the children. Previously the children were taught Gaelic by the most proficient individual among the adults; obviously a haphazard method.

There are about 1,000 sheep scattered over the islands on common pasturage, and every owner has his private mark on his possessions. The sheep are small and wild, and can only be caught by dogs. That accounts for the number of dogs which are kept. In June, the shearing season, all the sheep are driven to ledges on the rocks, where they have a choice of being caught, or of jumping over the precipice. The latter alternative is not infrequently accepted. Tweed making is the principal industry, and it provides the women with the classic occupation of spinning the wool derived form their own sheep. The men do all the weaving, contrary to the custom in Harris, where the women weave as well as spin. At this work the long winter nights are spent, spiced with rivalry. The spinners and weavers of one house vie with those of others as to the quantity and quality of the tweed which will be produced, and it is a case of sitting up and rising early almost to the limit of endurance. In April the land claims attention, and the tweed is laid aside pending the arrival of the Glasgow steamers in May. With the first boat this year has gone out the Glasgow agent, who disposes of the manufactured tweed.

Shipwrecked Thirteen Times.

Mr. John Beveridge, of Kirkcaldy, who recently passed away, had an unusually adventurous career, and was quite a "character." At an early age he ran away to sea, and started as a ship's boy. For the forty-two years following he was only on shore for short periods and at long intervals, and thirteen times suffered shipwreck. Once, when wrecked in St. Andrew's Bay, he saved his life by swimming ashore, hanging to a live sheep. Beveridge sailed in many of the vessels which belonged to the Kirkcaldy whaling fleet, and when the last three whalers belonging to that port were wrecked he was a member of the crew on each occasion. For fifteen years he was a naval reservist, and twenty years ago he sailed his last voyage in the Empress of Dundee to the Baltic. To the last he always wore his sailoring garb.

Misgivings.

"That was a very lucid document you prepared," said the friend

"Yes," answered the statesman dubiously. "I made it so lucid that I am afraid the public will fail to regard it as able and profound."

A Reminder.

THE KEARN'S INK CO. of Toronto was organized two years ago to manufacture the new CANADIAN WRITING INKS, invented by J. J. Kearns. The past two years has been spent in experimenting and improving quality and today it stands among the top notchers in the ink world. This ink has met with such spontaneous approval from users, and the trade has shown such willingness to buy in quantities, that the management deem it wise to enlarge their operations and make a big staple business enterprise out of this Company hence offer to the public.

The total capital is only $40,000, so that you can see that this is no inflated and watered wild cat scheme but a first-class legitimate investment offered to you—one where a dollar invested today will be worth at least two in a year and will pay 10 per cent, income on this.

PROFITS

There is a gross profit in this ink of from 25 per cent. to 300 per cent.

This is a clear cut business statement, every word of which we can substantiate.

Some Orders that We Received as to the Sale of Kearn's Ink

We found the demand practically without limit; we receiving orders and inquiries for the Ink far beyond our ability to supply the goods, Orders came from such houses as Central Business College, Ontario Government, Separate School Boards of Toronto and Peterboro. The Toronto Railway Co., Consumers Gas Company, National Trust Co. Ltd., King Edward Hotel and many other large concerns of the country.

A SAFE MANAGEMENT

The entire management is in the hands of a Board of Directors of leading business men— men of executive and financial ability, men of "made reputations," men who can be counted upon to capably and honestly direct the affairs of the enlarged Company, and see that each and every stockholder receives every dollar of the earnings of his stock.

400 FOOT TUNNEL—140 FOOT SHAFT

Mines located near Valentina, Durango, Mexico, only six miles by wagon road and three miles straight line from the property of the Guggenheims upon which they have recently erected a $1,000,000 smelter. Sample assays have averaged from $64 to $160 per ton.

Up to the present time, the Turquoise Copper Co., has been practically a close corporation; an initial offering of 100,000 shares has just been made at 20 cents, par value $1.00, full paid and non-assessable. Proceeds will be used to further continue the development work already begun.

We have options on 50,000 shares of this stock and advise immediate purchase at 20 cents per share. It is the intention of The Board of Directors to list the stock on the New York Curb and it should sell at $1.00 per share by the first of the year.

OUT ON THE COD BANKS

A DAY IN THE LIFE OF THE LUNENBURG FISHERMAN.

The Men Who Supply the World With Its Codfish Have a Hard and Dangerous Life—Fifty Tons Is the Average Size of Schooners—Squid Is the Favorite Bait—Casting Is All Done From Dories.

Like that of a policeman, the life of a "Banker" is not a happy one. It is a long record of toilsome endurance, of simple heroism, of the bearing of incredible hardships, of but scant reward.

The great banks of Newfoundland are a rich harvesting ground, and year in, year out thousands of men exploit them to the full. Not alone do the fishing towns of Canada and the United States send their representatives to the warfare of man against nature; Scotland sends its quota, so does France; in fact, during a good season few seafaring countries but are represented there in some form or other. Cod is the spoil, the wily, elusive cod; valuable as a food, exacting of chase; cheap as to price.

On the principle of fitting the back to the burden, Bankers do not fare forth in little luggers or smacks. They ship themselves aboard large, seaworthy schooners, capable of weathering the hardest gales that ever blow.

These schooners vary in tonnage, but fifty tons is a fair average size. They are manned by eight men usually, sufficient to handle the vessel comfortably in going from port to fishing ground and back, and also in following the fish as they travel from point to point. But this is not their only work; it is a very small part of it. Their real work is to catch fish.

Imagine yourself for the nones aboard a schooner out of Lunenburg. She is well-found, a comfortable vessel, once possessed of a good turn of speed, for she has been a racer in her day, though now her glory has departed. This speed will serve her in good turn when the holds are full and the homeward race for market commences. The captain is a grizzled veteran, with a down east drawl that you could cut with an axe. But he has a reputation for being able to play the elusive cod at his own game; to "think cod," in short, which means that he can place himself in the position of the fish, and meet every move they make.

It is not a very long journey to the Banks, for the schooner is fast. Once there, the skipper begins to cast about for fish, watching the crested waves narrowly as if he could read their most cherished secrets, as indeed he can. There are certain signs and tokens, known to the Banker, which indicate the presence of cod, or, failing their presence, the direction in which they have traveled; and these signs your skipper reads as an open book. The schooner slips away on its own appointed course, and morning shows a deserted sea.

"Waal, I guess we're here or hereabouts," says the skipper, and the word is passed for work to commence. The schooner's decks have been filled with a number of small boats called dories; double-ended craft, a cross between a ship's dinghy and a Canadian canoe; easily managed by one man, fairly safe in rough weather, and as light as a feather.

Meanwhile the spare hands have been busy for days in baiting vast lengths of cod-line—stout, tough stuff, strong enough to hold a runaway whale in its flurry. Squid or cuttlefish is the favorite bait, for cod loves squid as a trout loves the May fly. At stated intervals along the line hooks are firmly hitched, and each hook receives its piece of bait, after which the line is coiled away into shallow tubs; one tub to each dory, and the material is ready.

The complete equipment of a dory consists of a small anchor, a coir cable, for anchoring the boat; a heavy maul for stunning big fish as they are hauled aboard; a gaff, an axe; a compass, a stock of provisions, a tin horn for fog signals, a pair of sculls, and rowlocks, lamp and oil. All is in readiness, and a start is made at once, for the longer you wait the greater possibility of other schooners encroaching on your chosen ground. Each line is fitted with floats and sinkers at intervals, and your dory is swung outboard by a single whip from the masthead. You lower yourself into it as it touches the water, fit bottom boards and thwarts in place, receive your impedimenta, and start off.

Arrived at the spot you have selected, you commence to throw out your lines, which sink from sight as you pull back on the way you have come, until the entire line is submerged, after which you pull along to your first float, grapple the line—and probably receive some cruel jags from the hooks in so doing, and under-run the apparatus; pulling your dory along by the line, hand over hand, and as each hook comes into view it is more than likely that it holds a big fish.

One by one you pick off the spoil, fling them carelessly into the dory, until you are up to your knees in fish, and when the last hook has been reached you are ready to go back aboard, though as you unhooked each fish you rebaited the hook from the bait tub in the bows, and let the line drop out of sight again.

Such is the Banker's life in fine weather; but in a storm it is full of the grimmest dangers. The blinding blizzards of the Banks sweep down in howling fury, and woe betide the ship that is caught unawares. The mighty Atlantic seas rage on crashingly, and the spray freezes where it falls, so that the schooner becomes but a floating mass of solid ice.

But no matter what the weather the work goes on.

England Increasing.

Staterooms and Portholes.

An experienced traveler warns the uninitiated against paying from $5 to $20 extra for an outside stateroom on ocean liners. The inside rooms she has found to be perfectly comfortable and perfectly ventilated, and the portholes in the outside ones she considers a doubtful advantage. "They are kept locked," she says, "most of the time unless the weather is very pleasant, and even in calm weather they sometimes ship a deluge of salt water. Dirty water, too, swept from a deck above by the cleaners, may pour into a porthole of a room below, and the noise from the deck is annoying." Why, then should one pay extra for a porthole?"

HUNTING THE RHEA.

Ostrich-like Bird Furnishes Exciting Sport in Patagonia.

Down in Patagonia one of the principal sports is the chase of the rhea, a member of the ostrich family, but not quite so large as the ostriches we see in the circuses and the zoological gardens. The bird, however, is a swift runner and can set a fast pace for a horse or a greyhound. It has also some sagacity, for frequently it will double on its course and sometimes in that way succeeds in eluding its pursuers altogether. The requisites for the rhea hunter are a horse, a fast dog and a bola. The dog finds the scent of the bird, and the hunter pursues as fast as he can on the horse. When he comes close enough he makes use of the bola. This instrument is made of two or three balls of lead or stone attached to a throng which is six or eight feet long. When it is hurled at the fleeing bird the balls wind about the part where the bola strikes and serve to impede its progress. The hunters and dogs then rush forward and dispatch the rhea.

When the bird sees that it is in danger often it will crouch down flat on the ground and stretch its neck out under the grass and wait until the dogs pass. If the wind is blowing against the scent this ruse often saves the life of the game. If it is discovered it usually is so startled that it makes no effort to escape. The rhea will run for five or six miles on a stretch, and it gives dogs and riders all they can do to keep up with it. But when the game is captured the hunters feel that the chase is worth while, for the wings of the birds are not unlike turkey meat in flavor, and the meat of the thigh has a taste not unlike that of horsefesh, which connoisseurs pronounce very fine.

THE PIPE OF PEACE.

Etiquette of the Calumet Observed by the American Indian.

When you read an account of the conclusion of a treaty with the Indians you are pretty sure to find that the calumet was brought out and handed around. The calumet is a pipe of peculiar construction. The bowl is of red sandstone, and the stem is of reed, about two and a half feet long. The stem is decorated with women's hair and feathers, which hang from it like a fringe.

This pipe is the famous "pipe of peace," used by the American Indian. After a treaty has been concluded the pipe is produced and filled with tobacco. It is then handed to the representatives of the party with whom the treaty has been made, and they must take at least one whiff of it. It is afterward passed around among the Indians present, who also take a whiff of it, and that ceremonial ratifies and makes sacred the compact that has just been entered into. The passing around of the calumet is an act of hospitality, and a refusal to take it is considered a dire offense.—Chicago News.

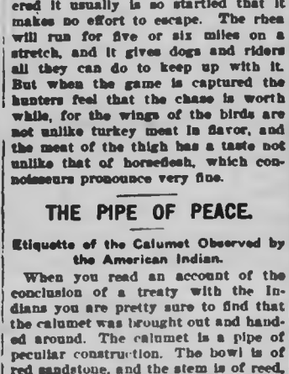
A Fireside Game.

Word guessing is a good game to play in the evening. One of the players thinks of a word and says, "I have a word of six letters; the first letter is 'g' and the last is 'a.'"

The guessers are allowed to ask any questions they like, which the leader is bound to answer, if he can do so without actually telling the word. The player who guesses the word correctly chooses the next one, and a prize is won by the player guessing the largest number of words.

An Order For the Grocer.

Good morning, Mr. Grocer Boy! My order's long today.
My pantry's nearly empty now, because I've been away.
I want a pound of nice white flour and yeast to make some bread,
Ten pounds of currants for a cake, some baking powder red.
Of butter give me half a pound, of sugar meet a ten.
I must make candy right away, before the morning's done.
Potatoes? Why, of course I don't. And codfish? No, indeed!
You interrupt and bother me. I know the things I need.



A quart of strong vanilla bring, and nonsense, too, and spice.
A pound of nutmeg—don't forget—it makes things taste so nice.
I want ten dozen freshest eggs, some 'vaporated cream
And apples, 'bout a peck or two; some dumplings I must steam.
I'll take a box of oranges and chocolate, five cakes,
And desiccated cocoanut—such lovely things it makes!
Now, hurry up my order, please. I want them very soon,
So I can get them all spoiled up by luncheon time this noon.

It's a pity when sick ones drug the stomach or stimulate the heart and Kidneys. That is all wrong! A weak Stomach means weak Stomach nerves, always. And this is also true of the Heart and Kidneys. The weak nerves are instead crying out for help. This explains why Dr. Spoon's Restorative is promptly helping the Stomach, Heart and Kidney ailment. The Restorative reaches out for the actual cause of these ailments—the failing "inside nerves." Anyway test the Restorative 48 hours. It won't cure so soon as that, but you will surely know that help is coming. Sold by all dealers.

A HUNGRY TIGER.

Persistent Attack on a Camp Reported From India.

The Indian mail brings the story of an exciting adventure which befell a surveying party in Assam. They were attacked by a tiger The party were working in the Lushai hills adjoining the Cachar district of Assam, and the tiger appeared at the camp of surveyor Gopal Singh. It sprang at the surveyor and one of his khalasis, but fortunately touched neither of them, and disappeared as suddenly as it had come. Three days later the tiger returned, and seized a khalasi, who was washing his cooking pots in a stream 20 yards from the camp A native armed with a stick, rushed to the rescue, and tried to beat the tiger off. When other men arrived the brute dropped its prey and disappeared again. In a few minutes it was back again. In spite of the shouts of the natives it seized the plucky native who had gone to the rescue of the first man. Once more it was driven off, and again it returned, this time to seize a third khalasi.

Frightened away again, the beast left the camp, but the party sat up all night surrounded by a chain of fires. At daybreak they proceeded to a Lushai village An armed party set off for the abandoned camp to collect the goods left behind. They found that the tents, bedding, blankets, and bags of rice had been dragged about by the tiger, and on a sight-rule and plane-table were marks of the brute's fangs. When Mr. Williams, the camp officer, met the party all the men were so profoundly affected that not one of them could speak above a whisper. They begged not to be sent back to the same locality, but to be allowed to work for the rest of the field season in the open cultivated country. The first man seized by the beast died four days afterwards.

NEW VEGETABLE FIBER.

Australian Marine Plant Possesses Valuable Properties.

In Australia there was recently discovered an extraordinary fiber of marine growth which by reason of the vast amount of the deposit and the remarkable qualities of the fiber is expected to prove of great commercial importance.

This fiber is the result of the sheddings of the leaf sheath of a sea grass botanically known as Posidonia australis and so far has been found only in Spencer Gulf, South Australia, where the sheddings have been imprisoned by the action of wind and waves in the sand flats of the gulf.

The uses of the fiber are found by experiments made by competent persons to be many and varied, and it possesses unique qualities. It will spin and weave in union with wool and will also take dye equally well, being so far as is known the only vegetable fiber to do this. It is practically noninflammable, its charring point being 373 degrees F., and it is to that extent a nonconductor, unlike cotton. It does not shrink and has more resilience than kapok. It is also found to be as good for ship caulking as oakum.

Blankets and cloth woven of a mixture of wool and this fiber, together with samples of the fiber in various stages of production from plant to yarn, are now on view in the sample room of one of the leading wool houses in Australia, and the manufactured articles are being most favorably commented upon by those interested in the textile industries. On account of its splendid dyeing properties it can also be used in the making of carpets; also for coir matting, hessian, bagging, woolpacks, and it appears difficult to say to what other uses with proper machinery it cannot be put.

War on Bicycles.

"Give me ten thousand well-disciplined cyclists and I will guarantee to hold up any invading army that attempts to land on our shores," once remarked that ardent believer in the utility of the bicycle in warfare, Gen. Sir Charles Douglas. In this connection he tells an amusing story. He was carrying out some cyclist manoeuvres, and found a troop of men sitting calmly under a hedge watching an opposing force of cyclists rapidly approaching them. "Don't you worry about those chaps, sir," said the young officer. "I have peppered their road pretty well with sixpennyworth of tin tacks. Wait til they get off to mend their punctures and I will round the whole of them up in something like no time."

On the Royal Menu.

Sir Harry Johnston once had the grim experience of being captured by a cannibal king, who genially informed him that he was to form the "piece de resistance" of the royal menu that evening. "Eat me if you like," was Sir Harry's calm reply; "but if you do, the Great White Mother will send her soldiers, and you and your wives and your people will all be killed." This made the king waver, and after a consultation with his court he decided to forego the meal. But it was not enough for the captive. "You must send me down the river in your best barge," he announced, "till my white brothers meet me." And so great an impression had his sang-froid created that this was no sooner said than it was done.

Dr. Grace on Murdoch's Golf.

Here is a story about the famous Australian cricketer, W. H. Murdoch, in connection with golf. Murdoch, it seems, drove into a deep sand-bunker, and once in it was completely hidden from the view of the spectators. However, the ball came out amid the usual shower of sand, and the stroke was duly applauded. "At lunch one of the members remarked on Billy's excellent recovery, when Billy, having taken it all in quite seriously, whispered to me, "Knew I should never get out of that blessed hole, so I took a double handful of sand and the ball and flung 'em out.'"—From "W. G.'s Little Book."

STRANGE PEOPLES.

Denizens of Darkest Africa Described For Geographers.

Major R. G. T. Bright, C.M.G., gave an interesting account of survey and exploration in the Ruwenzori and Lake region, Central Africa, before the Royal Geographical Society. The country described is in the neighborhood of the western border of the Uganda Protectorate and the Congo State. Maj. Bright gave some interesting details regarding the natives of the country through which the expedition passed. The people of Bavira were noticeable for their women wearing a particularly disfiguring ornament in their upper lips—an embellished wooden disc, from 21-2 to 3 inches in diameter. These tribes bartered their food for beads and cloth, much preferring the latter, though they were but scantily clothed. The males wore a piece of cloth carried between the legs, with its ends tucked, both in front and behind, through a belt of hide or rope, and for ornaments ivory and wooden bracelets. With the women a bunch of weeds worn behind was all that was considered necessary, though their necks were encircled with many strings of different-colored beads. The young men and women dressed their hair with a mixture of light clay.

A finer and a darker race—the Lendu—was warlike and continually fighting amongst themselves or with anyone else they thought themselves strong enough to overcome. They were treacherous, and would go to almost any extremes in their anxiety to obtain arms and ammunition. The district between the Congolese stations, Kasindi and Beni, Maj. Bright reported, was an ideal elephant country, and was tenanted by some large herds. The Etuli forest and the wooded slopes of Ruwensori formed veritable strongholds for elephant, while in the Toro Game Reserve devastated plantations and spoor testified to the numbers still living in and around the protected country. In the open country on the southern shore of Lake Albert, when the plains are marshy, elephant and buffalo roam over them. In the kingdom of Ankoli the population could be roughly classified as the Bahima, the aristocracy, and the Baero, the cultivators and serfs. The Bahima believed vaguely in an all-powerful Deity, who was associated mainly with rain, thunder, and other weather phenomena. They endeavored to propitiate various devils—most of whom were connected with the prevalent diseases—by erecting joss-houses, in which food and beer were placed. They invariably carried round the neck wooden charms or small goats' horns, which had been invested with magical power by the medicine men, and usually wore wire bracelets and anklets. The Bahima were a purely pastoral people. All forms of agriculture were held in contempt, and were relegated to their Baero servants.

The Baamba people living in the forest near the Etuli river were addicted to cannibalism of a particularly loathsome form. Families exchanged their young children, who were then eaten. The Baamba in many cases filed their teeth, but this practice was not quite general. They were a jovial people. A constant warfare went on between village and village. They are built on the top of a ridge, and a stout wooden stockade is erected round. Each village has a club-house, furnished with a few rough three-legged chairs, made of the forked boughs of a tree, on which the members lie, the men gather there to talk and smoke.

Wifely Pride.

There is no telling what quaint turns wifely pride and devotion may take. Sir Melvill Beachcroft, who is at work in connection with the London County Council is well-known, was waiting in a tenement house for a participant of the first floor to join him, chanced to overhear two women conversing on the stairs.

One remarked that her husband always wore a clean shirt every Sunday morning.

"Well, now," responded the other, "I never cares about Sundays, but I allays do see that 'e 'as a clean shirt Saturday afternoons, 'cos that's the time 'e is generally drinking, and when 'e does take 'is coat off to fight I do like to know 'e looks nice and clean.—M.A.P.

That's the Question.

Clifford can ask questions quicker than we can answer them, and a few days ago his uncle told him he would turn into an interrogation point. I agreed with him and said that I had once seen a picture of a little boy turning into one. He had become more and more curved and finally had become just a large interrogation point.

Cliff listened intently, and when I had finished he instantly asked "Well, how did they keep the dot under him?"—Delineator.

Explaining It.

We were moving a 4,000 pound safe from one office to another, says a writer in The Saturday Evening Post. George, the negro janitor, with a 4 by 4 pine stick was pinching the safe along. The boss man said "George, why don't you pick that safe up and carry it instead of monkeying with that contraption?"

George replied: "Boss, I hain't feelin' very pickish dis mawnin' suh. I's feelin' a bottle duplicate."

Postman's Long Service.

An Imperial Service medal has lately been presented to Mr. Joseph Holt, Coventry's (Eng.) oldest postman, for long and faithful service. The recipient served nearly thirty years, and during that time the population of the Warwickshire city has grown from 37,670 to 91,000.

Tickling or dry Coughs will quickly loosen when using Dr. Shoop's Cough Remedy. And it is so thoroughly harmless, that Dr. Shoop tells mothers to use nothing else, even for very young babies. The wholesome green leaves and tender stems of a lung healing mountainous shrub give the curative properties to Dr. Shoop's Cough Cure. It calms the cough and heals the sensitive bronchial membranes. No opium, no chloroform, nothing harsh used to injure or suppress. Demand Dr. Shoop's. Accept no other. Sold by all dealers.

Stole His Tools.

Mr Fred Pearson, who is at present doing the carpenter work on a residence at the corner of George and Dublin streets, had a number of tools stolen from the house on Wednesday night. The offender secured an entrance by getting in through the cellar window, and the tools taken are one set of bits and brace, two smoothing planes, one rabbit plane and one coping saw. The guilty party will avoid a police court case by returning the stolen articles to the owner at once.

New Lighthouse.

The lighthouse situated in the eastern fork of the Otonabee, where it empties into the lake, is being removed further east, in order to give better service to the boatmen. The lighthouse has been placed on a point of land at the elbow the river makes in turning east to enter the lake. A pier several hundred yards east of the point and out in the lake is now nearly completed, and to this the lighthouse will be removed in a short time.

Graduating as Nurses.

Several Peterborough people have received invitations from the president and directors of the Jackson Sanitorium, Dansville, N.Y., to the graduating exercises of the training school for nurses to be held on Wednesday evening, Sept. 29th at seven o'clock. There are seven in the graduating class two of which are Peterborough young ladies. They are Miss Caroline (Lena) McMillan and Miss Daisy Dobbin. Miss Laura Pears of Toronto, who is well know here, is also one of the graduates.

GROWING GINSENG.

Smith Farmer has a Good Crop That is Worth Money.

W. A. Boyce, who is farming on the 11th concession, Smith township, about 11 miles from Peterborough, has a thriving bed of ginseng, that he is growing as a commercial crop. Four years ago he started with 100 plants and now has 4,000 plants and 14,000 seeds undergoing the first process towards producing plants. His old plants have been growing for seven years, and are now matured and ready to market, and Mr. Boyce is looking for a buyer. The price ranges from $4 to $10 per lb., the exporter who has the most direct connection with the Chinese market, where it is all consumed, being able to pay the best price. The plant is grown under flat houses, and the culture though simple, is little known. Shade is necessary, as the plant will not thrive where exposed to the open sunlight.

Mr. Boyce is not the only one engaged in the growing of the profitable plant in this part of the country, and all are making a success of the experiment.

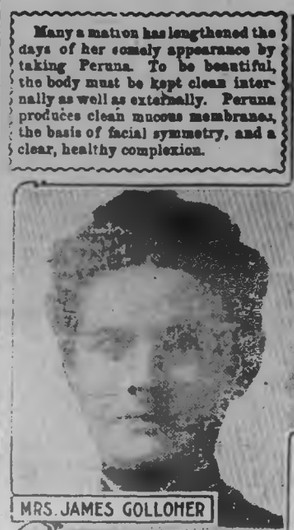
Mr. Mudde is enthusiastic in his praise of Peterborough, and in regards to the development of the city during his absence, he says it is simply marvelous. His many friends will be pleased to know that he is here again to stay.

To All The Women Who Suffer Pe-ru-na Is Earnestly Commended.

Many a matron has lengthened the days of her comely appearance by taking Peruna. To be beautiful, the body must be kept clean internally as well as externally. Peruna produces clean mucous membranes, the basis of facial symmetry, and a clear, healthy complexion.



Systemic Catarrh.

Mrs. James Golloher, Norwood, Ontario, writes:

"I was suffering from systemic catarrh for about two years. In damp weather I was unable to do my work, as my back and sides would ache, and I thought if I did not soon find a cure I could not live long.

"I saw where Peruna had cured hundreds who had suffered as I was; I decided to try it.

"After taking the first bottle I felt a big change. I have taken five bottles and I am completely cured.

"I thank Dr. Hartman for his kind advice to me."

Sick Headaches.

Miss Nettie E. Bogardus, R. F. D. 21, Westfield, N. Y., writes:

"I have been a great sufferer from sick headaches, but am now entirely free from that trouble. I have not felt so well in ten years as I do now. I would recommend Peruna and Manalin to all sufferers. I will say, God bless Dr. Hartman and his wonderful remedies."

Catarrh Made Life Miserable.

Dlle. Marie L. Meunier, 913 Ontario street, Montreal, Can., writes:

"I take pleasure in stating that I have been cured of catarrh by Peruna.

"This disease made my life miserable, especially in the morning, when I had to cough and spit and make every effort to clear my throat and air passages.

"This remedy cured me promptly and I recommend it most highly to persons afflicted with this terrible disease."

My Sister Advised Me to Try Peruna. I Took Your Treatment and My Appetite Returned Speedily. I Gained Strength and Flesh and am in Perfect Health. I am so Thankful Your Medicine has Done Me so Much Good.

So says —Miss Julia Butler, of Appleton, Wis.

Grateful for Relief.

Mme. Leo Gabourg, 215 Rue Arago, St. Sauveur, Quebec, Canada, writes:

"I thank you very much for the advice you have given me. I am very well indeed. It seems to me that I am no longer the same person.

"Some of my friends have been troubled with colds and have used Peruna with very satisfactory results. As for myself, I am happy to be so successfully cured, and so promptly."

Catarrh of Bowels.

Mrs. Maggie Durbin, 1322 North St., Little Rock, Ark., writes:

"I was troubled for five years with a chronic disease. I tried everything I heard of, but nothing did me any good. Some doctors said my trouble was catarrh of the bowels, and some said consumption of the bowels. One doctor said he could cure me; I took his medicine two months, but it did me no good.

"A friend of mine advised me to try Peruna and I did so. After I had taken two bottles I found it was helping me, so I continued its use, and it has cured me sound and well.

"If any one wants to know what Peruna did for me if they will write to me I will answer promptly."

Pains in the Side.

Mrs. Julia Braxton, Apollo, Pa., writes:

"Peruna has cured me of heart trouble and pains in the side.

"A year ago I was expected to die at any time, and the doctor was sometimes called at two o'clock in the morning. But I am thankful to say that I do not have to send for a doctor now.

"Since I have used your Peruna as you advised me, I am well and able to do all my housework.

"I have all the faith in the world in Peruna, as it cured me, and I know that it will cure others."

$60 AND COSTS.

Mr. A. H. Stratton's Auto Caused Injuries to Dummer Resident.

Mr. A. H. Stratton has been called upon by the Division Court to pay $60 to Henry Moore of Dummer as well as the costs of the court, for negligence while running his automobile. Moore was driving when he met Mr. Stratton's auto and his horse became unmanageable. As a result the driver was hurt and the autoist was found guilty of negligence.

Mr. F. D. Kerr acted for the plaintiff, and S. T. Medd for the defendant.

The particulars of the case are as follows:—

On June 19th, Henry Moore, of Dummer, ex-reeve and ex-councillor, was driving from Peterborough to Warsaw on the Lakefield road, when he met with an accident. His horse became frightened and the buggy was overturned into the ditch, and the occupant received injuries which included a broken finger on the left hand. Mr. Moore began an action, claiming that an automobile belonging to Mr. A. Stratton which was conveying a party of ladies from Lakefield to Peterborough, was the cause of the accident. The complainant alleged that the automobile was running at an excessive rate of speed and crowded him into the ditch.

The evidence of each side was absolutely contradictory to the other, but it was pointed out by plaintiff's counsel, that the law respecting accidents caused by automobiles, compelled the owner of the machine to explain and satisfy the court that the injury was not caused by the negligence of the owner and where there was an accident caused on the highway by an automobile it was for the defendant to explain and justify the accident. This view of the law was upheld by the jucge.

Mr. Joseph A. Maynerd, of the mechanical department of the Examiner, has resigned his position in that office, and left last night for Ottawa, where he has accepted a lucrative position on the Journal in that city.

Bones were Those of a Woman Wearing a Man's Clothing

Mr. Geo. Bidgood Made a Gruesome Discovery While Hunting for a Lost Pig—Body Had Been There For More Than a Year —Lying Under Top of Fallen Pine Tree—Coroner Grey Opened Inquest.

A skeleton of a man or a woman was found on George Campbell's farm, near Springvi lle yesterday mornibg by Geo. Bidgood, a farmer, who was hunting for a lost pig. The discovery has caused a great sensation in the neighborhood, and it is a mystery beyond solution, so far as the people of that neighborhood are concerned. No one could throw any light upon it as no one knew of anyone in the district missing.

The Times gathered the following story from prominent parties who reside at Springville, and who saw the remains and who talked with Mr. Bidgood, and from Coroner Dr. Grey:—

The body was found on Mr. Campbell's property, lot 3, con. 9, Monaghan, on Sunday morning, by Mr. Geo. Bidgood, who was hunting in the woods for a lost pig. The body was lying under the top of a big pine tree which had fallen a year ago last winter by Mr. Matthew Clark, who took the logs away and left the top there. The spot was just east of Kendry's siding and about 30 yards from the north side of the railway fence. The body was dressed in man's clothing. The coat had been removed and was under the back. There was a striped shirt, a rough best, black tweed trousers and a new pair of No 6 shoes on it. It was lying on its back with the right leg slightly bent outwards at the knee, while the right leg was straight with the toes turned up. shoulders and head had been lying against a limb of the tree, which was about the size of a man's arm, although the head had fallen off and lay on the ground behind with the lower jaw seperated from the upper jaw. Both arms were seperated from the body. The left arm was lying outward and the right one quite close to the body. The part of the skull which had been exposed to the weather was bleached white, while the part on the ground still had short hair attached to it. The man had either laid down himself or was placed there by another party. It is quite certain that he did not fall in that position.

In the palm of the right hand was a white handled razor, somewhat rusted while attached to the heel of the razor was a little tuft of hair, longer than that on the head. A few feet away was a can of Paris green, opened, and it was still dry and fresh, a condition most remarkable in comparison with the state of the body and the circumstances surrounding the case.

The clothes were searched and in the pockets were found $1 in bills, some Dominion Bank, and some other bills so badly decayed that only the word Montreal could be made out, besides 90c. in silver. There was a pipe and a new package of T. & B. tobbaco, but no signs of a bottle. There was also a good jackknife and matches.

Mr. Bidgood notified the authorities, and Coroner Dr. Grey when he arrived selected a jury from those who were gathered around and opened an inquest. The jury viewed the remains with the above results.

The tree was cut down over a year ago and the body has evidently been there for a year or more, but why it was notdiscovered before is a mystery in itself. That part of the woods is visited frequently by hunters and berry pickers and several of the neighbors had stopped and rested on the same tree. The body was somewhat secluded by the brush.

Dr. Grey says it is a very mysterious case and what bothers him most is that some features of the skeleton would lead him to believe that the remains were those of a woman, and an educated woman at that, judging from the cranidm. The bones were all small and fine and measured 4 ft. 11½ inches so that the person in life would not be over 5 ft., 2 inches tall. The teeth were in excedition were in excellent condition and were distinctly those of a woman in the coroner's opinion. Only three were missing and they may have fallen out when the bones were moved.

There was a little flesh still on the back and hips. There was nothing found which would give any clue to who the person was.

The inquest was adjourned indefinetly as at the present time there is nothing for the authorities to work on.

work on. The remains were left in charge of County Constable Archie Reynolds.

LOCAL OPINION.

The scene of the tragedy was visited by a large number of residents of the village and district who were greatly surprised at the discoverty. The general opinion is that the body was placed there and the following reasons are advanced for the theory The person was the victim of foul play as the body was in areclining posit ion. Haddeath been due to self-destruction by the razor the the body would most likely have been in some other position, and had it been due to Paris green poisoning the person would have suffered agony and woul have threshed about considerably.

Apsley Freight Rates Matters for Board Trade to Consider

A matter which the Board of Trade might take up with considerable profit to the city is the freight rates between Peterborough and the north country, particularly Apsley, the seat of government for Burleigh and Anstruther. Below is a quotation from a letter received by The Times which will give the Board of Trade grounds to work on:—

Freight rates are killing the back country trade with Peterborough. The business is being sent to Belleville and Trenton via Coe Hill and O.C.R. A basket of cherries from Peterborough cost me 10c freight; the voters' lists from our offices were 65c., and so on. One of the largest merchants here gets his goods, even flour, feed etc., via C.O.R., and others are following his example."

The country trade is indeed a big thing and it should be carefully looked after by the Board of Trade. Practically all of it has left the city for reasons of railway accommodation, freight rates, etc., and now the last threads connecting the city with the county threatens to break. Every farmer or villager who does not trade here is a direct loss to the city and that loss is felt by every class in the community. The country people prefer to trade here, but not at the expense of time and dollars.

The Apsley people are also under the impression that they were promised a daily mail service between Peterborough and their village. What ever promises that were made to them along that line has not been carried out. The mail leaves Peterborough via Lakefield on Monday, Wednesday and Friday at 10 o'clock a.m., and Wednesday and Saturday at 7 a.m. The Board of Trade might also take up the matter and endeavor to bring the northern townships into closer touch with the city.

Cook Sets Sail With Cheers of a Nation

On board the steamer Oscar II., Sept. 11, by wireless telegraphy to Copenhagen:

The greeting accorded Dr. Frederiek A. Cook upon his arrival this morning at Christiansand savored strongly of the triumphial return to his own country of a victorious warrior. The explorer came over from Copenhagen on board the steamer Melchior, and it was 11 o'clock by the time his vessel had cast her anchor a cable's length from the Oscar II. From daylight, however, Christiansand had been on the qui vive for the entrance of the Melchior. Every vessel in the harbor was gaily dressed with flags and all the available small craft had been chartered to bring out sightseers from the shore.

A salute of seven guns was fired from the deck of the Melchior and answered by seven guns from the Christiansand fort. This especial honor was accorded Dr. Cook, a civilian, on a special order issued by King Haakon. As soon as the smoke of the saluting guns had cleared away steam launches darted out from the shore bearing the civil and military authorities to the vessel with Dr. Cook on board. The explorer awaited the officials on the bridge of the Melchoir. M. Cold, the manager of the Scandinavian Line, who had accompanied him from Copenhagen, stood by his side. The ship's band played the star spangled banner, while the Norwegian deputation paid homage to the explorer.

Rebuilding the Grand Stand for Exhibition

Everything is booming at the Exhibition Grounds now. This morning Superintendent J. J. Bennett starts with a big gang of men to rebuild the grandstand and put it in a solid and safe condition so that the visitors to the fair need have no fear to sit there and see the races and the performances.

The main building is being reshingled and made water tight and the inside is being remodelled. A great improvement will be noticed.

The night exhibition this year will be the best ever put on here. The military games alone will alone be worth going to see and they will rival the famous manoevers of the Royal Dragoons at Toronto.

The directors are all working hard and are displaying much enthusiasm while Secretary Hall is up to his neck with work getting out entries.

OBITUARY

Ottawa, Sept. 11.—Mr. Peter Larmouth, aged 76, one of the Capital's most respected residents, died rather suddenly early this morning. He leaves two sons, John Herbert Larmouth, manager of the Peterborough Light & Power Company, Peterborough; and Norman Larmouth, barrister, of Ottawa, a widow and three brothers.

The late Mr. Larmouth was born at Lachine, Que., 76 years ago, but had resided here many years. He was a member of the Ottawa Curling Club and St. Andrew's Presbyterian church. Mr. J. H. Larmouth of Peterborough, is expected to reach here tonight or early tomorrow morning.

RECTOR WAS ILL.

St. John's Pulpit Occupied by Rev. Mr. Montgomery of Port Hope.

Owing to the illness of Rev. Canon Davidson, rector of St. John's, Rev Mr. Montgomery rector of St. Marks Port Hope, took both services in St. John's yesterday. He is a powerful speaker, and delivered two splendid addresses. Rev. Canon Davidson has been very poorly for several days, but he expects to be able to resume his duties tomorrow or next day.

FIRST ENGINE.

On I.B. & O. Has Been Consigned to the Scrap Heap.

Gooderham, Sept. 11.—Time works its ravages on everything: there is nothing free from its grip. There is wonderful strength in steel bars, but there is a limit to their endurances. The locomotive engine that first ran on the I.B. & O. on the I.O.U., as it was called in the early days, was not really new when it came to the road. It had indeed already seen its best days but for many a year in sunshine and through winter's storms the good old "Mary Ann" drew her train as long as there was a rail to run on, and when the rails gave out she would quietly squat and never hurt a soul. The great north country will never again see "Mary Ann." She will live only in the memory. John Dobensky of Bancroft, the scrap dealer, has given $100 for her, and is taking her to to pieces. Poor old "Mary Ann." She was not much of a flyer and made no pretensions to style, but she did her work well and faithfully and gave a lot of valuable services for this part of the Province.

Many people from Peterborough have been conveyed from place to place at a greater or less speed by the old "Mary Ann," and they will regret to learn of her end.

The Ontario Bank.

Now that summer vacations are over the Ontario Bank matter will be taken up again. The investigation into the claim of the Bank of Montreal has been delayed, owing to a difference as to who should pay the costs of an audit.

Won Prizes.

Dr. F. L. Robinson returned from Toronto Friday night, where he had been attending the International Dog Show at the Toronto Exhibition, and where his Boston terriers carried off a number of prizes. His terriers carried off seconds in the novice, puppies and limit classes. Dr. Robinson's dogs beat the winners at the New York and Pittsburg shows, and all the Canadian dogs in their classes. He also won third prize for the best dog in the open class.

New True Blue Lodge at Hall's Bridge

What proved to be a very profitable meeting to the Loyal True Blue Association took place on Saturday evening, Sept. 11th, at Halls Bridge, when one more lodge was added in this district. When the brethren that went up from the city arrived, they found that the members were already in their hall and ready for the ceremony. This new branch of the order is in the best of condition. Besides owning their hall and furniture, they have a large bank account for the treasury, possibly the most wealthy lodge in the county. They were well prepared for the opening of the lodge and have a banner costing early one hundred dollars, and expensive band instruments, and to say that they know how to entertain visiting brethren is a very mild expression.

After the organization had been formed, the officers duly elected and installed the members and visiting brethren sat down to a neat and tasty luncheon, and after hearty good wishes to crash the meeting was brought to a close, having been profitable in every way.

Bro. M. E. Ketcheson, district organizer, is much pleased over the prospects in this lodge, and has never presided over a meeting where more agreeable and earnest endeavors were put forth.

A lodge for ladies is being organized at the same village, and it is expected the night of organizing, the local lodges of the city will go up in hacks to assist in the opening.

Following is a list of the officers of the lodge organized Saturday evening.

Y.M.C.A. NOTES.

Bowling Alleys are Opened and Matriculation Classes Will Start.

The Y.M.C.A. bowling alleys have been put in fine shape for this season and were opened on Saturday night when several good bowlers turned out and started training for fancy work later on. It is expected that the alleys will be very popular this season and that great interest will be taken in the competitions which will be arranged by the committee.

MATRICULATION CLASSES.

Matriculation classes will again be conducted this year and the first session opens Tuesday night at 7.15. From present indications the class will be much larger than last year.

BOARD MEETING.

An important meeting of the Board of Managers will be held Tuesday night.

LADIES' BALL CLUB.

Their Manager Here Trying to Arrange a Game With Peterborough Club.

A. L. Richardson, representing the Chicago Ladies' Baseball Club, arrived in Peterborough Saturday, and is quartered at the Oriental. This famous female organization is now touring Canada, and to date have played Petrolia, London, Brantford, Hamilton and Toronto. They are booked at Bowmanville for this afternoon and at Port Hope tomorrow. If arrangements can be arranged with the management of the Peterborough Exhibition Association, a game may be put on the fair grounds on Wednesday.

ILLUSTRATED ADDRESS.

On Work of Bible Society in the Springville Church.

Rev. Mr. Hassare, B.A., B.D., of Toronto, gave an illustrated limelight address on the work of the Bible Society in the Springville Presbyterian church last night. The church was crowded and the address greatly appreciated. A substantial offering was made towards the fund of the Bible Society.

HARVEST FESTIVAL.

The annual Harvest Festival services will be held in St. John's church on Thursday next and the congregation are requested to bear it in mind so that the attendance at all services will be very large. In the morning at 10 o'clock Holy Communion will be celebrated with evensong at 8 o'clock. The sermons will be preached by Rev. J. H. Teeney of Toronto. The church will be decorated for the occasion, and all who have offerings of flowers, fruit and grain are requested to leave them at the church Tuesday afternoon or early Wednesday morning.

Cook Hears Good News Whitney Has Records

New York, Sept. 11.—A private cable was received today from Copenhagen, stating that Dr. Cook has heard from Whitney, and that he assures the explorer that his records are safe and will be delivered to him on Whitney's arrival at New York.

The authenticity of Dr. Cook's claim, it is now admitted, will depend very largely upon Mr. Whitney's corroboration.

The polar controversy is the supreme topic of interest here, and it must be admitted that Dr. Cook, under the searchlight of public discussion is steadily gaining supporters. It is clear that the personal character of the Peary attacks is dividing the two camps, and the chasm is as wide as that between opposing armies on the battlefield.

HO! FOR ASHBURNHAM.

Board of Works Gang Start Laying Walks There Today.

The sidewalk gang start work in Ashburnham today. Ald. Morgan will smile pleasantly at the chairman of the Board of Works. There are a lot of walks to be laid in Ashburnham, and the gang will be kept busy until the frosty nights call a halt. The walks will all be laid on the inside of the tree line too. The rule which has been followed all season will be continued until the end. After Ashburnham is done and if there is time two or three short pieces will be laid in the south end.

KNOCKED DOWN.

Small Boy With Cart Bumped Into an Old Lady.

An elderly lady while returning home was knocked down on Aylmer street by a small wagon, which was being pushed along the sidewalk at a rapid rate of speed by two young boys. The lady carried a basket in each hand, and as the wagon approached her a sudden jerk of the handle resulted in a collision and she fell off the sidewalk on to the hard road, but fortunately did not receive any severe injuries.

This practice of young boys, who are a source of danger to citizens, on account of the great speed with which they ride around the sidewalks should be stopped or at least the offenders should be given a lesson, which would have the effect of making them more careful in the future. Why should they not be compelled to take the road like the bicycle.

GAS DRILLING.

On Kincaid Farm Continues and Drill is Down 475 Feet.

The gas company are still drilling at the first well on the Kincaid farm. It was reported that granite had been struck about 300 feet down. This was not correct although the drilling since has been very hard and the drill is only down about 475 feet now. The work however will be continued until gas or oil is struck or until the drillers are convinced that the product does not exist.

FLOWER SUNDAY.

Beautiful Ceremony in St. John's Church Yesterday.

Yesterday was children's flower Sunday in St. John's church, and it proved to be one of the most beautiful ever witnessed here. In the afternoon the Sunday school pupils marched in classes to the church, and up to the chancel where they presented their floral offerings. A feature of this ceremony was a cross which had been placed at the foot of the altar and each pupil placed a white aster in holes in the cross while the whole was a beautiful mass of white flowers. For the evening the cross was filled with electric lights and the illumination was very attractive. After the evening service the flowers were distributed among the sick of the city, and to the hospitals. The children also made monetary offering in aid of missions.

SOME BUSY TIMES

Are in Store for the City Council This Week.

A special meeting of the Committee of the Whole Council will be held tomorrow night for the purpose of taking up the Begy contract for the Smith street bridge. It will be necessary for the aldermen to decide upon what conditions the St. Catharines firm will be allowed to drop out, if allowed to do so at all. Then the contract must be awarded to the next lowest tenderer and a bylaw prepared for a special council meeting which will be held on Wednesday night.

The isolation hospital is now all ready for the council to pass, if that body sees fit to no so. The matter of increasing the fired expenditure of the city to the extent necessary if the big hospital is built may cause some farther discussion.

RALLY DAY.

At St. Andrew's Church Next Sunday for the School Children.

Next Sunday is rally day for the children at St. Andrew's church. The whole day will be devoted especially to the work among the children through the Sunday school. The special Sunday school services will be held in the afternoon when the program prepared by the general assembly will be followed. In the morning a special message will be delivered by the pastor to the parents. Everyone is requested to attend St. Andrew's on that day and help make it a great success. The church will be decorated and the choir will render special music.

OUR NATIONAL DISEASE.

Caused by Coffee.

Physicians know that drugs will not correct the evils caused by coffee and that the only remedy is to stop drinking it.

An Arkansas doctor says:

"I have been a coffee drinker for 50 years and have often thought that I could not do without it, but after many years of suffering with our national malady, dyspepsia, I attributed it to the drinking of coffee, and after some thought, determined to use Postum for my morning drink.

"I had the Postum made carefully according to directions on the pkg. and found it just suited my taste.

"At first I used it only for breakfast, but I found myself getting so much better, that I had it at all meals, and I am pleased to say that it has entirely relieved me of indigestion. I gained 19 pounds in 4 months and my general health is greatly improved.

"I must tell you of a young lady in Illinois. She had been in ill health for many years, the vital forces low with but little pain. I wrote her of the good that Postum did me and advised her to try it.

"At the end of the year, she wrote me that Postum had entirely cured her, and that she had gained 40 pounds in weight and felt like herself again."

Publish My Letter the World Over

The Words of Harold P. Bushy, Who Was Permanently Cured of Chronic Lumbago by "Nerviline."

"Three years ago I discovered that a man subject to lumbago might just as well be dead as alive." These words open the sincere, straightforward letter of H. P. Bushy, a well-known man in the plumbing and tinsmithing business in Portland.

"One attack came after another, and I found I got to be a chronic thing with me. I could scarcely get in a day's work before that knifing catch would attack my back. I used a great many remedies, but not one of them seemed penetrating enough to get at the core of the pain. I read in The Montreal Witness about Nerviline, and got five bottles. It is a wonderful medicine—I could feel it penetrating action every time it was applied. When I got the attack under control with Nerviline, I began to gain strength and finished my cure by taking Nerviline at regular intervals. I recommend Nerviline to my friends, and I urge everyone suffering from the pain, white, or rheumatic they are using, and that is applicable, contrasting, pain-destroying Nerviline.

"Please publish my letter the world over. I want all to hear of Nerviline."

Don't be cajoled into receiving anything from your dealer but "Nerviline." Large bottles 25c.; five for $1.00. Sold everywhere or The Catarrhozone Co., Kingston, Ont. 23

SIMCOE'S HOME.

Famous Lieutenant-Governor's Last Residence Built In 1830.

High among the hills surrounding Honiton, the little country town which is famed far and wide as the centre of the lace-making industry of Devon, England, stands Wolford Lodge, the pleasant English home where General Simcoe, the first Lieutenant-Governor of Upper Canada, spent the last few years of his eventful life. Weakened by the wounds and hardships endured in the disheartening campaigns of the American Revolutionary war, and worn with his anxious toil for the benefit of the new British province which it had been given to him to organize in the wilderness, he came back to England in 1796 to seek well-earned repose. But rest was not for him. Almost immediately he was sent back across the Atlantic to put down an insurrection in the West Indies. Returning again to his native land, he began, about the year 1800, to build himself a spacious mansion on a green slope deep amongst the gently-rounded, well-cultivated hills of lovely Devon. Surely no toil-worn warrior ever found a more restful spot in which to spend the evening of his days, for still, despite a hundred years of progress, despite vastly increased population, despite railways and motor-cars, the whole land speaks of peace.

The lodge was built in solid fashion by the General round an old farm-house, which was on the estate when he bought it. Except for the addition of some large bow-windows, the house has been little altered from the original design, and much of the old furniture remains in its spacious rooms. So large are they that an ancient four-post bedstead appears a comparatively small piece of furniture, and the General's own bedroom is larger than many a village church. In the different rooms numerous relics connected with him have been carefully preserved.

On either side of the staircase window, in the square entrance hall, are two venerable flags, the colors of the Queen's Rangers," a provincial corps of Loyalists, which was raised by Simcoe and did gallant service during the revolutionary war.—Emily P. Weaver.

England's Oldest Barber Dead.

Allen Batchelor of Guildford, England who was reputed to be England's oldest barber, died recently at the age of 85. He claimed to have been patronized by kings, dukes, bishops, judges, policemen, politicians, publicans, "and sinners as well."

Drive Rheumatism out of the blood with Dr. Shoop's Rheumatic Remedy and see how quickly pain will depart. Rub-ons never did reach the real disease. Rheumatism isn't in the skin. It's deep down—it's constitutional. Getting rid of the pain, is after all, what counts. That is why Dr. Shoop's Rheumatic Remedy goes by word of mouth from one to another. And herein lies the popularity of this Remedy. It is winning defenders everywhere. Tablets or Liquid. Sold by all dealers.

IRELAND.

George Meredith's plea for home rule is embodied in his last poem, "Ireland," which leads off "Scribner's" for July, accompanied by a hitherto unpublished portrait which was painted in 1897 for J. M. Barrie by Amy Draper Sumner. We quote three of the seven stanzas:

Fire in her ashes Ireland feels
And in her veins a glow of heat
To her the lost old time appeals
For resurrection, good to greet;
Not as a shape to spectral eyes,
But humanly maternal, young
In all that quickens pride and wise
To speak the best her bards have sung.

May she not call herself her own?
That is her cry, and thence her spite
Of fury, thence her graceless tone
At justice given in bits and bits.
The limbs once rent with gnawing chains
Will fret at silken when God's boons
Of freedom beckon o'er the plains
From mountain that show it more than dreams.

A nation she, and formed to charm,
With heart for heart and hands all round,
Shall Europe England's broken arm,
Would England know where strength is found,
And strength to-day, is England's need;
To-morrow it may be for both
Salvation heed the portents, heed
The warnings, free the mind from sloth.

WOULDN'T CONFIRM BOY.

Anglican Vicar Refuses Sacrament to Canadian Lad.

The Rev. F. W. Clarke, vicar of Caldicot, South Monmouthshire, England, has refused to allow a Church lad, a Canadian, to attend his confirmation class because the youngster is a member of the Boys' Brigade, which holds its meetings in the Wesleyan school-room. The lad has been brought up in the Church of England, his parents belong to the Church, it was at the invitation of the curate that he presented himself at the vicar's confirmation class, but the vicar asked him at the close of the class if he belonged to the Boys' Brigade, and, when informed that he did, said, "We must draw the line somewhere."

The complaint seems to be that a church lad, though willing to claim full membership of the Church, should have been guilty of the grievous sin of "schism" by belonging to an unsectarian organization, and attending a Bible class in connection with the Boys' Brigade, in which simple Bible teaching is given. The vicar called upon the father of the lad, Mr. Arthur C. Luff, and said: "We must draw the line somewhere. Seeing he is in the brigade, we cannot very well confirm him." Mr. Luff said: "Very well; that finishes the matter."

To an interviewer, Mr. Luff observed: "It is strange to me, after living for fifteen years in British Columbia, where things are so different." When invited to give his version of the matter, the Rev. F. W. Clarke said he hoped no newspaper would interfere in a matter of this kind—"this is a matter which must be left to the clergy to deal with."

Mr. Alfred Kemp, the Wesleyan evangelist, who has charge of the Caldicot Boys' Brigade, said they were absolutely unsectarian, and told the boys to attend what place of worship they pleased, but several members of the Boys' Brigade were asked to leave the church Sunday school because of their membership, and a lieutenant of the brigade left the church choir for the same reason. The curious thing is that the brigade have attended Rogiet Church, where the Archbishop of Monmouth preached to them. But Boys' Brigade members are not wanted in the parish church of Caldicot.

From Journalism to Playwriting.

Quite a number of popular playwrights served their literary apprenticeship as journalists. J. M. Barrie was a reporter on a Nottingham paper before he came to London. Henry Arthur Jones wrote articles and stories from boyhood, and did not enter a theatre until he was eighteen years of age. Hubert Davies was for some years a journalist in America, while Hall Caine, after being trained as an architect, became a journalist and leader-writer on the staff of the Liverpool Mercury, and after coming to London wrote for the Athenaeum, Academy, and other papers.

Cecil Raleigh, the author of so many Drury Lane dramas, wrote for Vanity Fair, and was at one time sub-editor and dramatic critic for the Lady. Cosmo Hamilton has filled the editorial chair of the World. Adrian Ross has done much journalistic work, while it would be impossible to say how many papers and periodicals George R. Sims has written for.

Haydn Manuscript as "Rubbish."

Dr. Cummings, principal of the Guildhall School of Music, in an address on Haydn at the rooms of the Incorporated Society of Musicians, Hanover square, a few days ago, said that some time ago he visited a second-hand music seller's in St. Martin's lane and purchased a Haydn manuscript for two shillings and sixpence. The manuscript was rescued out of a sack of what the music seller described as rubbish.

Do Only "Dreadnoughts" Count.

The "King Edwards," "Lord Nelsons," and even the "Royal Sovereigns" are still formidable ships, and could render an excellent account of themselves. It will be many years before an enemy's fleet will be composed only of "Dreadnoughts," and therefore our older ships will be able to find opponents with whom they are evenly matched. Between two fleets, however, of equal numbers and equally well drilled — one of "Dreadnoughts" and the other of "King Edwards"—victory should declare in favor of the "Dreadnoughts."—"Navalis," in The Fortnightly Review.

Caught!

He was a smart junior, with a rising reputation for genius in the art of cross-examination. Said he to witness, a gigantic but alert old lady—"How much money had you in your pocket when you say it was picked?" "Four shillings, two sixpences, and a sovereign in gold," came the reply, tripping on the tongue. "Did you ever see a sovereign in anything but gold?" was the next question eagerly put. "Yes; I once saw King Edward in a carriage."

ARMY CORPS CALLED OUT.

Utmost Efficiency Shown In Recent Mobilization.

A British army corps was called out for war the other day, and afforded a fine object-lesson of how quickly and effectively British troops can be organized nowadays.

Never before in the history of the British army has so unexpected, and yet so complete, a mobilization been carried out. Nearly twenty thousand men of all arms were lined up ready to entrain, and it was only by the absence of a call to the Reservists that the feat differed from what the authorities hope to effect in case of an actual or threatened invasion.

No warning of what was coming was given. At six o'clock in the morning Lieut.-Gen. Smith-Dorrien rode down to the headquarters' office and gave the order for the alarm to be sounded, followed by the order for every unit in his command to turn out as rapidly as possible, fully mobilized, and ready for active service.

The military telephones linking up the barracks were soon busy with the order, and mounted orderlies carried the summons to those officers who live out of barracks.

Some of the battalions were already in the field; the Gloucesters, for instance, having left barracks at four o'clock for a long day's exercises. They were summoned back by mounted men and cyclist messengers, and within the hour every barracks was the centre of activity.

Wagons were dragged out and loaded with stores, small-arm ammunition drawn from the magazines and distributed, and field dressings and emergency rations issued to the men with their metal identity discs and pocket ledgers.

For some time past the chiefs of staff have been working at this mobilization scheme to render it perfect for a sudden call, and the test that was being applied could only be equalled by the actual call of war. Indeed, among many of the troops the belief was accepted that an invasion was an accomplished fact.

The telegraph wires had carried the news to those officers and men away on week-end leave, and the early trains to Aldershot were filled with anxious soldiers, who on reaching the stations raced up to their barracks, to appear in a short space of time accountred and equipped for service.

Six hours was the time given for the units to get on parade, ready to move off, but so perfect was the machinery that in the great majority of cases little more than half that time was needed to report all ready.

From the Army Service Corps barracks parties of butchers and bakers, clerks, saddlers, and artificers marched off to join the brigade and divisional headquarters, every man having his allotted place and his special duties.

No confusion marked the preparations, and long before the allotted time was up nearly 20,000 men, artillery, cavalry, and infantry, with engineers and supply transport services, were marching out of barracks to go wherever needed.

To Punish the Mullah.

Col. Gough, says a report from Aden, according to present arrangements, will begin military operations this month against the Somaliland mullah, who has continued to harass the friendly tribes.

It is understood that the operations will take the form of flying columns, composed of mounted infantry and irregulars, which will endeavor to round up the elusive enemy.

Practically everything is now ready, and ample native troops on the spot are being supplied with white officers.

The chief difficulty is, as it has always been, transport. British agents have been buying animals all along the Red Sea, but prices have been high, particularly for camels. The Emperor Menelik has, moreover, forbidden the export of these animals from his territory.

It is thought that Sir Reginald Wingate, who has arrived in the country from Cairo, will, from his experience of Soudan "drives," be able to give Col. Gough some useful advice.

Berbera is the base of the new operations, which will cover a wide area. The British Government has for some time been collecting information as to the situation, particularly along the northwestern Somaliland border, and the authorities are very hopeful of success.

St. Fillan's Bell.

Early in the nineteenth century a bell was stolen from Killin, in Perthshire. This bell, which was said to have been used by St. Fillan, was supposed to possess marvelous healing powers, and was placed on the heads of all the mad people, who were brought to be dipped in the saint's pool, in order to complete the cure.

Popular opinion had it that the bell, which was not very large, would extricate itself from the hands of any one who stole it and return home, ringing all the way. The antiquary who finally annexed it explained his action by a desire "to abate superstition."

Don't Risk even a penny—until health returns. And I mean just exactly that.

I am the one physician who says to the sick, "I will, out of my own pocket, pay for your medicine if it fails to bring you help."

And for 30 years Dr. Shoop's medicines have been used and recommended in every city and hamlet in America. They are positively standard in every community—and everywhere. Then why pay the cash, and at your risk, for other unwarranted and uncertain medicines? Thousands upon thousands have in the past unhesitatingly used Dr. Shoop's Restorative.

Get Health

When the Stomach, or the Heart nerves fail, I saw how Shoop's Restorative will bring them back to health again. But best of all, they positively take no message risk whatever.

They know that when health fails to return Dr. Shoop will himself gladly pay the druggist for that test. And for that test a full 30 day treatment is freely granted.

First

Dr. Shoop's Restorative is sold by each druggist in all civilized communities. Kidney, liver, stomach or heart sufferers all are now given the Shoop Restorative on a no-cure-no-pay basis. Or if you prefer, you can send direct to us. We have no agents and no traveling representatives. Any druggist in almost every community, everywhere, is honored with the "no cure, no pay," medicines to the sick.

Sculptural Competition of Designs for Two Monuments.

1. Competitive designs are invited for two monuments, one to the memory of the late Honourable George Brown and the other to the memory of the late Honourable Thomas D'Arcy McGee.

2. Each monument is not when completed and in position, to cost more than ten thousand dollars, including pedestal from the level of the ground.

3. The competition is open only to artists resident in Canada, and artists of Canadian birth residing elsewhere.

4. The site will be at a point in the Government property at Ottawa, to be hereafter decided.

5. Designs shall be in the form of sketch-models, in plaster, made at a uniform scale of one and one-half inches to the foot. A description of the design shall accompany each model. No name motto or other distinctive mark thereon.

6. The author of the best designs will be awarded the commission of the work, the second best $500 and the third best $300 each.

7. The models and all communications regarding the matter shall be addressed to

Advisory Art Council,
C—o, Department of Public Works,
Ottawa, Canada.

The designs must be delivered before the 1st day of February, 1910. They will be kept from public view until the award has been made. All expenses of delivering the sketch-models and accompanying descriptions shall be paid by the competitors. Sketch models will, after the award at the expense of the department be returned upon the request of competitors, but at the risk of the competitors.

Notice of the award will be sent to each competitor.

The award will only be binding provided the successful competitor is prepared to furnish satisfactory evidence, with security if demanded, that he can execute the work for the sum mentioned above.

Byorder,
NAPOLEON TESSIER,
Secretary.

Department of Public Works,
Ottawa, August 17, 1909.

HOW TO WIN.

Determination and Unity of Purpose Will Work Wonders.

Once you have chosen your occupation or profession hold fast thereto. Let nothing allure you from the main traveled road. Having chosen, hold like steel. Make everything feed into the main current of your life. Even modest talents, organized and unified, have conquered great distinction and worldwide success. History is full of illustrations of the unifying power of a great purpose. Witness the poor child Hastings looking at a distant manor house that once had belonged to his father. The determination to win back that estate before he died lent power and momentum and produced Lord Hastings. Witness the influence of purpose upon that little Scotch boy, out upon a holiday on the banks of the Clyde, with three precious coppers as his entire possession. He determined to build a house on the hilltop overlooking the river and forty years later moved into the castle, from which he looked down upon twenty ocean steamers he had built. Witness the purpose of William the Silent, filling all the days and nights for the hero struggling to deliver brave little Holland from Spain. Witness Milton's vow to write a poem that the world would not willingly let die and who therefore lived an epic life. Witness Paul's resolution to do one thing and one thing alone and who, with that unit purpose, achieved democracy for all subsequent peoples and centuries. Aimlessness will make your life like a sand heap.—Rev. Newell Dwight Hillis.

FULL OF HUMAN INTEREST.

Landscapes of the Dutch Painters of the Seventeenth Century.

The Dutch painters of the seventeenth century were as little concerned with poetic feeling as with idealism. They used their eyes and painted what they saw, but neither their imaginations nor their feelings were touched. While most modern painters interpret how the scene has affected themselves, the Dutch looked at it as something entirely outside themselves.

Otherwise the Dutch landscapes present us pictures of a pleasant workaday world or of the quiet evenings that follow after the labors of the day—never a hint of disturbance, though war and rumors of war were constant; instead, the perpetual suggestion of prosperous peace and thrifty comfort, for they abound with the evidences of busy humanity. Not only is nature brought into touch with human life by the little figures, so charmingly lifelike, which animate the scene, but everywhere are the results of man's handiwork seen in little things as well as big—in the trimly kept fruit trees of a laborer's garden plot no less than in the handsome facade of a rich burgher's town house. There is no country in the world where the influence of man is so minutely imprinted upon every foot of ground, and as these artists were eager to represent the things they saw no landscapes are so full of human interest as theirs.—Charles H. Collin in St. Nicholas.

Her Home.

Some years ago, when a part of the Japanese imperial palace was burned at Tokyo, the empress was forced to flee to one of the old daimio houses near by. It was not at all comfortable, and, as the story goes, her majesty, appreciating that her subjects would be much concerned at her living in such a mean place, sat down and wrote them a little poem in which she denied that she had changed her residence. The poem, which was in the best Japanese language, stated that her majesty's home had always been in the hearts of the people and that neither the flames nor the cold could ever drive her from that dear abode.

The Dead Larks.

In Baluchistan even the wolves go mad. In his book, "The Frontiers of Baluchistan," G. P. Tate writes: "The shepherds give a strange reason for the epidemic of rabies. According to them, it was caused by the wild beasts eating dead larks. In some years, they said, the larks develop extraordinary vitality and pour forth such a flood of songs as they rise on the wing that they become suffocated and fall to the ground dead. A wild animal which eats one of these dead birds invariably develops rabies. This is a widespread superstition and seems not unfamiliar to the natives of India who were with me."

A Butchers' Common.

William, earl of Warren, in the time of King John, while standing upon the castle walls saw two bulls fighting in the castle meadow till all the butcher dogs pursued one of the maddened bulls quite through the town. The sight pleased the earl so much that he gave the castle meadown, where the duel of the bulls began, for a common to the butchers of the town, after the first grass was mowed, on condition that they should find a mad bull the day six weeks before Christmas day for the continuance of that sport forever.—London Standard.

BARNUM'S METHODS.

The Showman Always on the Alert For an Advertisement.

One morning the newspapers announced that grave fears were entertained for the safety of an agent of Barnum's big show who had gone to Africa to seek attractions for it in their native lairs. News had come, it was said, that he had last been heard from in a predicament from which escape was practically impossible. It was a very sad piece of business altogether.

Mr Barnum was at a hotel in New York city at the time, and there a relative of the unfortunate agent found him entertaining a squad of reporters with a most interesting version of the African tragedy. The callers knew his man and waited patiently until the interviewers had departed. Then he anxiously asked for news.

"Oh, don't be worried," said the showman. "I've just got intelligence that he's safe and sound and will be back here in a few weeks."

"But he has a great many friends here," objected the visitor, "and this report of his death will cause them much sorrow."

Mr. Barnum looked solemn for an instant, and then he chuckled. "Well," he exclaimed cheerfully, "just think of this—they'll be all the happier when he gets back here alive."

SEA MONSTERS OF OLD.

The Marine Monster That Was Thought to Cause Tidal Waves.

The kraken was one of the sea monsters of old, and if all the stories told about its wondrous size and doings are true it overshadowed the serpent as much as the latter does the common garter snake. An old writer says that this marine giant caused tidal waves by swallowing a goodly part of the waters of the ocean and then belching them out again. He also makes mention of the fact that its gigantic horny beak was often mistaken for mountain peaks suddenly shoved into sight by the internal convulsions of the earth.

Bishop Pontoppidan, a truthful member of the Copenhagen Royal academy, is much more conservative in his estimates of its size, giving it as his opinion that they were seldom found more than "the half of an Italian mile in length and not larger in diameter than the cathedral at The Hague."

He also says that its body was frequently mistaken by sailors for an island, "so that people landed upon it and were engulfed in a maelstrom of water when the creature sank to its hidden ocean den." Other authorities testify that its beak from the eyes to the point "was longer than the mainmast of a man-of-war."

HISTORIC WEAPONS.

Trophies Wrested From the Crusaders Found in the Sudan.

Among the trophies of arms displayed on the walls of Windsor castle one of the most interesting of the long series is a group of weapons and armor sent to Queen Victoria by Lord Kitchener after the Dongola campaign on the upper Nile in 1896.

The trophy consists of a coat of chain mail, a number of spears and a long cross hilted sword. On the straight steel blade of the sword there is an inscription in odd fashioned letters: "No me saques sin razon. No me entraines sin honor."

The words are Spanish, but the same motto was inscribed on sword blades in the days of chivalry in most of the languages of Europe. Its meaning is the knightly rule for all who bear the sword: Do not draw me without reason. Do not sheathe me without honor.

The weapon was taken from the abandoned camp of Wad Biahara, the dervish general, after the battle of Hafir (Sept. 23, 1898). How came a blade with such a motto to be found in a Moslem bivouac in the heart of the Sudan?

The presence of these crusader swords in the Sudan is not so difficult to explain. In the thirteenth century the Mohammedan caliphs of Egypt not only carried on successful wars against the crusaders in Syria, destroying the last vestiges of the Latin kingdom of Jerusalem, but also defeated two attempts of the Europeans to invade Egypt itself, one of them led by St. Louis of France.

Enormous quantities of western arms and warlike equipments must have thus passed into the possession of the Mohammedan conquerors.—Chambers' Journal.

PROFITS—There is a good profit in this Ink. There are 12 or 15 Ink Companies in the United States paying dividends of from 12 to 20 per cent. per annum.

THE KEARN'S INK CO. of Toronto was organized two years ago to manufacture the new CANADIAN WRITING INKS, invented by J. J. Kearns. The past two years has been spent in experimenting and improving quality and today it stands among the top notchers in the ink world. This ink has met with such spontaneous approval from users, and the trade has shown such willingness to buy in quantities, that the management deem it wise to enlarge their operations and make a big staple business enterprise out of this Company hence offer to the public.

The total capital is only $40,000, so that you can see that this is no inflated and watered wild cat scheme but a first-class legitimate investment offered to you—one where a dollar invested today will be worth at least two in a year and will pay 10 per cent, income on this.

Some Orders that We Received as to the Sale of Kearn's Ink

We found the demand practically without limit; we receiving orders and inquiries far beyond our ability to supply the goods. Orders came from such houses as Parson's Fair Syndicate 17 stores in Ontario, Central Business College, Ontario Government, King Edward Hotel, Grand Trunk Railway Co., National Trust Co., Toronto Railway Co., Separate Schools of Toronto and Peterboro', Imperial Accident & Guarantee Co., Central Canada Loan & Savings Co., Consumers Gas Co., Toronto Elec. Light Co., all of Toronto.

A SAFE MANAGEMENT

The entire management is in the hands of a Board of Directors of leading business men— men of executive and financial ability, men of "made reputations," men who can be counted upon to capably and honestly direct the affairs of the enlarged Company, and see that each and every stockholder receives every dollar of the earnings of his stock.

400 FOOT TUNNEL—140 FOOT SHAFT

Mines located near Valordena, Durango, Mexico, only six miles by wagon road and three miles straight line from the property of the Guggenheims upon which they have recently erected a $2,000,000 smelter. Sample assays have averaged from $64 to $103 per ton.

Up to the present time, the Turquoise Copper Co., has been practically a close corporation; an initial offering of 100,000 shares has just been made at 25 cents, par value $1.00, full paid and non-assessable. Proceeds will be used to further continue the development work already begun.

We have options on 20,000 shares of this stock and advise immediate purchase at 25 cents per share. It is the intention of The Board of Directors to list the stock on the New York Curb and it should sell at $1.00 per share by the first of the year.

C. P. R's BIRTHDAY.

Railroad Is 23 Years of Age—Tales of the Early Days.

The C.P.R. did not mark in any special way the twenty-third anniversary, which occurred the other week, of the sending of the first transcontinental train across the Dominion. At the same time, in looking back to the achievements of the last twenty-three years, the official breast was inclined to swell a little with satisfaction.

It is twenty-three years since the last lines of the great transcontinental system were put together, making one long whole out of many disjointed parts.

The head offices were then on St. James street, facing Place d'Armes Square. Lord Mount Stephen was president, and Sir William (then Mr. William) Van Horne general manager.

The offices themselves were small and stuffy. All was in the formative stage. The sense of stability had yet to be impressed upon the system. The general manager could be found in his shirt sleeves, Sir Thomas Shaughnessy was then purchasing agent of the company. Mr. McNicoll acted as general passenger agent. Business was done, but it was done under crude conditions.

The staff was small, and the thousand or more clerical employes now at the head office were not dreamed of.

Great railway men were then in the making. The highest was accessible. It was desirable to propitiate the public.

The visible assets were slight, and the local cartoonists of the time used to poke fun at the C.P.R. trying, with the aid of Mr. Clouston, the general manager of the Bank of Montreal, and a lighted candle, to find a surplus in the vaults of the bank.

There was the old Dalhousie Square station, which sufficed for all the business offering.

Little was defined. Able men took off their coats, but when any enthusiastic person spoke of dividends, he was greeted with an indulgent smile.

This can be said—that everybody hustled.

As Sir William Van Horne has many times said to the writer, in going over the past, "we literally took off our coats to work."

The offices were removed to Victoria Square, to the building formerly occupied by the Co-operative Association. The annual meetings were then held in secret, and it was a sight to see the local newspaper men holding up Sir William Van Horne after the meeting was over.

The tone of those meetings was vastly different from that which prevails at present. A tremendous undertaking had been espoused, but the future was dark. The Northwest was merely a name—vague, distant. The business had to be made.

Such growth, however, manifested itself in the course of a few years that it was deemed necessary to have a West End station and general offices, which the company itself could control.

In the early years the earnings of the company varied from $5,000,000 to $10,000,000 per annum. They are now something like $75,000,000 per annum.

Even after the new station and general offices were taken possession of, there were days of darkness to be encountered; and it became necessary for Lord Strathcona to come over to reassure the pessimistic stockholders, many of whom openly lamented that they had put their money into such a doubtful enterprise.

"'An enterprise,' said His Lordship, 'which, nevertheless, will, in the course of the next few years be one of the best dividend-earners in the Dominion.'"

The event proved the correctness of Lord Strathcona's prophesy.

Telephones at Osgoode Hall.

Osgoode Hall, Toronto, slumbered for half a century or more, so far as telephones and other modern equipment were concerned, and then it awoke or was awakened, whichever you prefer.

A young man came to Osgoode Hall. He was J. A. C. Cameron, and like other wise men, he came from the east. He hailed from Cornwall, to succeed the late Neil McLean as referee and clerk to the Master-in-Ordinary.

It occurred to him that new office furniture would be a good thing, and, likewise, improved ventilation. He got 'em. Then he asked for a telephone.

"Why, people will bother you to death," he was told.

"That's all right," he answered, easily. "It's a good thing to be stirred up." Mr. Cameron's telephone, the first business hello machine in Osgoode, was installed. There were three 'phones at Osgoode, but they belonged to the Law Society. Then, after the Cameron innovation, came the definite decision by the Government to equip the various offices with telephones.

A Difficult Task.

A good story is told of Rev. Dr Sipprell, president of Columbian College, New Westminster, B.C., and a great exponent of Methodism on the British Columbia coast. Dr. Sipprell is possessed of the silver tongue, and his flowery sermons and addresses are the pride of Methodist hearts.

On a recent trip through the Rockies, returning from a visit east, the doctor was enjoying, for the first time, the grandeur of the Canadian mountains. He was talking to a little coterie of admiring friends.

"Ah!" he said rapturously, waving his arm oratorically toward a colossal pile of rock, "What would we find friends, were we to drive to the bottom of you wonderful mountain!"

"Humph!" ejaculated a brakeman who overheard the remark, "You'd find a —— of a lot of hard work."

Place For Dullards.

Admiral Kingsmill, advocates a Canadian navy because it will provide places for our dullards. His theory has all the authority that antiquity can lend it, and no more. It prompts The Kincardine Review to recall the story of the captain who was receiving the new middy:

"Well, boy, the old story, I suppose—fool of the family sent to sea?"

"Oh, no, sir," piped the boy, "that's all altered since your day."

Scipio Africanus.

Scipio Africanus was one of the greatest soldiers, save Julius Caesar, in Roman history. He defeated Hannibal and his Carthaginians at Zama, a city of Carthage, on Oct. 19, in the year 202 B. C., and gave to Rome the ascendancy over the then known world.

VISCOUNT KITCHENER

A Brief Biography of Soldier Who May Visit Canada.

General Horatio Herbert, first Viscount Kitchener of Khartoum—who has just completed the great work he undertook in 1902 of reorganizing the British Indian Army—was born on Midsummer Day at Ballylongford, in the County Kerry.

During his exceptionally brilliant military career the retiring Indian commander has asserted himself with characteristic confidence and unbending will, and Lord Kitchener must be accounted one of the most strenuous soldiers that the British Empire has ever possessed.

Coming of a military family, Lord Kitchener passed thirty-eight years ago from Woolwich into the Royal Engineers. Since then his career has been one of scintillating brilliance, for "K. of K."—as he is now often called "for short"—has been to the fore in many expeditions and campaigns, and has "built himself an everlasting name" for thoroughness in the profession of arms.

A veritable "glutton for work," he assisted in the Palestine survey in 1874-78 and that of Cyprus of 1878-82.

Then he was sent to Egypt, and entrusted with the command of the Khedive's cavalry and the remodelling of the native army. Having effected this to his own exacting desiring, he, as Sirdar, conducted a vigorous opposition to the forces of the Khalifa. He found it necessary to build a railway to Omdurman before he finally broke the power of the prophet, annihilating the Khalifa's army in 1898.

By this time he had reached the rank of major-general and been made a K.C.B., and he came home covered with Egyptian honors, to receive the thanks of the British Parliament, a peerage, and a grant of £30,000.

In the year following, when matters seemed to be going wrong with our forces engaged against the Boers in South Africa, Lord Kitchener was sent out as Chief of Staff to Lord Roberts. Here, again, he distinguished himself for determination and dash in combination; and when Cronje had been circumvented at Paardeberg and the British flag hoisted in Pretoria, he was promoted to the commandership of the forces in South Africa on Lord Roberts' return to England.

Kitchener brought the long campaign to a close. Again the gallant fighter and fine organizer was thanked by Parliament, given a further £50,000 from the country's public purse, and raised in the peerage to a viscounty.

As a full general he was sent out in 1902 to India as Commander-in-Chief, with practically a free hand to reform the army of our great Empire of the Orient. His ideals of duty brooking no civilian interference in matters military, Viscount Kitchener soon came into conflict with the then Viceroy, Lord Curzon, and the friction ensued in the resignation of that able statesman in 1905.

Since then Lord Kitchener has practically been permitted to have his own way at headquarters in India; and on the completion of his task in the Orient, he is credited by some with hankering after overthrowing the influence of the non-military element in the War Office for good and all.

Barrister's First Brief.

My first brief I have the best of reasons for remembering particularly clearly. I was engaged for the defence in a case of robbery. Two men, the prisoners, had seized the prosecutor on the platform of Shrewsbury Station, and while one of them held his arms the other quietly rifled his pockets.

They were caught red-handed, and I had a brief to defend the prisoner who had held the prosecutor by the arms. I made the obvious defence. I urged that it was vindictive to sacrifice two victims to justice when one would suffice, that the distinction between the two prisoners was manifest, and as the one I defended had not taken any money at all it was impossible to pretend that he was as guilty as his companion.

To the amazement of everybody, not excepting the chairman—who had been careful in his summing up to sweep away my sophistries—the jury made the distinction I suggested to them, and returned a verdict of "Not guilty" against my prisoner.—"Reminiscences of Mr. A. C. Plowden," in The Strand Magazine.

A Pageant of Priests.

Pageants have so far illustrated the history of a single town or city, but the one held recently in the grounds of Fulham Palace, London, was unique. It depicted the growth and history of the Church of England.

It was split up into a number of episodes, and, beginning with the publication of the Edict of Emperor Constantine, came right down through the ages to the acquittal of the Seven Bishops in 1688. A final tableau, representing the church "throughout the world," concluded the gigantic spectacle.

The grounds of Fulham Palace, lent by the Bishop of London, were well fitted for such a purpose.

The spectators were housed in a grand stand, 304 feet in length, 90 feet in depth, and covering an acre of ground. In addition to a large royal box, there was seating accommodation for 6,750. His Grace the Archbishop of Canterbury performed the opening ceremony.

An Amiable Violinist.

Robert Browning and Joachim met one evening at a friendly gathering in London. The violinist had "obliged" without satisfying certain ladies, who entreated the poet to obtain from him another solo. Browning, feeling the delicacy of his task, discharged it diplomatically and spoke, as sometimes he wrote, so as to conceal his thoughts, while the violinist, not understanding, bowed and smiled and did not play.

As they left the house Joachim asked, "What did you mean just now?"

"Oh," said the poet, "I wanted you to give us some more music."

"Then, why did you not come and say, 'Joe, old boy, give us another tune?'" returned the amiable violinist.

It's a pity when sick ones drag the stomach or stimulate the heart and Kidneys. That is all wrong! A weak Stomach means weak Stomach nerves, always. And this is also true of the Heart and Kidneys. The weak nerves are instead crying out for help. This explains why Dr. Shoop's Restorative is promptly helping the Stomach, Heart and Kidney ailment. The Restorative reaches out for the actual cause of these ailments— the failing "inside nerves." Anyway test the Restorative 48 hours. It won't cure so soon as that, but you will surely know that help is coming. Sold by all dealers.

THE CARIBOU AT HOME

BIG BEAST IS CANADA'S MOST ERRATIC ANIMAL.

Can Always Be Relied on to Do the Opposite Thing to Any Other Animal—Color Is Like That of Moss-Grown Bushes—It Herds With Its Fellows More Than the Moose or Deer—Feet Adapted to Deep Snow

"The caribou or American reindeer (Rangifer caribou)," writes Mr. W. H. Moore in The Educational Review of St. John, N.B., "which is found in the Maritime Provinces and Newfoundland, is in size midway between the Virginian deer and the moose, and is without a doubt the most erratic in its wanderings of any of our native mammals. Its true habitat is among barrens, somewhat overgrown with black spruce, upon which usnea usnea (really a lichen — Usnea barbata) is the main diet of the caribou, whether its long pendulous threads or fronds grow on the spruces of the barrens or on the trees of rocky, elevated positions. This animal also follows the roads made by the lumbermen and crops the lichens which grow on the felled trees.

When disturbed, the caribou often goes away, perhaps not to return for weeks; and when pursued may be expected to do exactly the opposite to what another animal would do. Herds of half a dozen or more have been known to allow a hunter to come up with them, and to stand staring at him in amazement, as one after another of them was shot down. At other times they flee at the slightest warning at the approach of a hunter. The actions of this animal are very uncertain. If, while wandering about, one of them should come across a man's trail in the snow, it will sometimes wheel about and run for perhaps twenty miles without stopping; and, another time, it is quite as likely to follow up his trail.

The color of the caribou, which in summer is a glossy reddish-brown, becoming grayer towards winter, serves to protect it because it much resembles that of the moss-grown bushes among which it stands. The under parts being of a lighter color than the upper, the form of the animal is much broken, and its outline is rendered indistinct to any but an experienced eye.

The female caribou brings forth a single fawn at first birth, and after that two are born at a time. Unlike the cow moose, she is often the possessor of a pair of antlers, which are, however, much smaller and more slender than those of the male. Some hold that the antlers of the female caribou are never dropped. This statement is based on the belief that the antlers not having an enlargement at their base—known as the "burr"—cannot be dropped and again reproduced. The writer, however, believes that the antlers of the female are dropped and grown just the same as are those of the male, and that as for the burr, the female has as much in proportion to the size of her antlers as has the male.

The caribou is much more gregarious than the moose or the deer. In favorable localities, as many as fifty of them may be seen at one time scattered over the side of a hill in search of their favorite food, locally known as caribou moss.

The caribou, unlike the moose and the deer, does not "yard" in the winter, but roams over a considerable area. The formation of its feet facilitates its progress through deep snow or over snow covered with a thin crust. The hoofs are very shallow and broad, as are also the dew-claws or secondary hoofs. In traveling where the footing is insecure, the animal squats down until the lower part of the leg rests on the surface of the snow, and with the hoofs and dew-claws spread laterally, a support almost equal to that of a snowshoe, quite a surface is covered, and the speed attained is much greater than if it had to wade or plunge through the snow, as animals that run on the extremities of their hoofs have to do.

The flesh of the caribou is much esteemed as food, and clothing made of its skin, is, it is said, so impervious to cold that with the addition of a blanket of the same material one may bivouac on the snow with safety even in the coldest winter night.

With us this animal is a beast of chase merely, but it is well known how useful the tame reindeer is to the Laplander, being his cow, sheep, horse in one animal. The milk of the herds is the principal support of the owner and his family, and as a draught animal his speed and endurance render it the most valuable of creatures to men living in high northern latitudes.

The caribou or American reindeer of these provinces and farther north is regarded by some naturalists as only a variety of the European reindeer (Rangifer tarandus). Another variety is the Greenland caribou, a smaller animal, inhabiting the shores of the Arctic Ocean and the woods and barren grounds adjacent."

His Four Seasons.

An amusing story is told by Sir W. H. Holland of the answer given by a London waif to a Salvation Army captain. The zealous officer had asked the boy what work he did to provide him with food, etc., and the reply was. "I pick strawberries in the summer, I pick hops in the autumn I pick pockets in the winter, and oakum for the rest of the year."

Fine Crops.

"Do you raise anything worth while in your garden?" said the visitor from the city.

"I should say so," answered Mr. Cressleigh. "It's the best place for fishing worms in the entire village."

HERO OF MAGERSFONTEIN.

Victoria Cross Cost Captain Towse His Eyesight.

Pathetic indeed was an incident which marked the recent inspection of the Gentlemen-at-Arms by the King. A tall, well-built, handsome soldier was carefully piloted before His Majesty by a fellow-officer. It was Captain E. B. B. Towse, V.C., whose eyes were shattered while leading a brilliant charge against the Boers during the South African war. The story of that charge will long live in the memories of the Gordon Highlanders, that regiment which has so many heroic deeds on its roll of honor, and to which Captain Towse belonged.

On April 30th, 1900, Captain Towse with twelve men, took up a position on Mount Thaba. He was totally unsupported; but it was not thought any of the enemy were near. Suddenly, however, a party of Boers, over a hundred strong, who had also made for the position, appeared a hundred yards off. Seeing that they outnumbered the Highlanders, the Boers called upon Captain Towse to surrender.

His prompt reply was to give a ringing command to his men to fire and then charge, the Boers being now about forty yards distant. The sudden onslaught of these twelve intrepid Britishers, with their gallant leader, caused the Boers to waver and fall back; and thus the situation was saved.

But the victory was dearly bought; for the men, to their great grief, saw a bullet shatter the eyes of their captain, who has, consequently, never been able to look on the Cross of Valor which was duly awarded him.

Neither was this the only deed of gallantry performed by Captain Towse during the Boer war. Five months previously, on "Black Monday" (December 11th, 1899), at the disastrous battle of Magersfontein, when Lord Methuen fought 15,000 Boers with 11,000 men, with terrible loss, Captain Towse earned the title of the "Hero of Magersfontein." Concealed in their trenches, the Boers could not be driven out, and Lord Methuen was obliged to retire to the Modder River.

A terrible fire from rifles and pompoms at close range struck down one in five of the Highland Brigade under General Wauchope, who also fell, riddled with bullets. Colonel G. T. P. Downman, Captain Towse's commanding officer, was also struck down. But in spite of the hail of bullets Captain Towse hoisted the colonel on his back and bore him away. It was a gallant deed, well in keeping with the glorious traditions of the famous Gordons.

An experienced traveler warns the uninitiated against paying from $5 to $30 extra for an outside stateroom on ocean liners. The inside rooms she has found to be perfectly comfortable and perfectly ventilated, and the port holes in the outside ones she considers a doubtful advantage. "They are kept locked," she says, "most of the time unless the weather is very pleasant, and even in calm weather they sometimes ship a deluge of salt water. Dirty water, too, swept from a deck above by the cleaners, may pour into a porthole of a room below, and the noise from the deck is annoying." Why, then should one pay extra for a porthole?"

Rabbits In a Tree.

Walking with a friend the other day in Wilham Woods, near Oxford, I came across a litter of young rabbits in a tree. It was an oak, with a hole at the base about the size of an ordinary rabbit-hole. We pulled ourselves up the tree to about eight feet from the ground, and found ourselves standing on a mass of mould and decayed wood which seemed to fill the inside of the trunk. On one side was a hollow branch, and at the end of the branch a rabbit's nest containing young rabbits. About a foot from the branch and slightly to one side was an opening which obviously led from the hole at the base of the tree. It could have meant a very steep ascent for the rabbits unless the way up took the form of a spiral. The nest in the branch must have been quite ninefeet above ground.—G. C. Vassall, in The Field.

Thomas Hardy and the Stage.

At one time Mr. Thomas Hardy who has just entered upon his seventieth year, had serious thoughts of devoting himself to dramatic authorship. He is an enthusiastic playgoer, and at one time took a flat in London for three or four months of the year so that he might attend the theatres. As an illustration of the dependence of the author upon the actor, Mr. Hardy tells a good story of "Walker, London," J. M. Barrie's first play, which was produced by J. L. Toole. He witnessed a performance of the play in Barrie's company, and several times found occasion to congratulate the author upon the dialogue, laughing freely and exclaiming, "That's a good thing." But, as sure as he did so, Barrie would reply, Considerate.

TITLE LADY SUED.

Montreal Marchioness Asked to Pay Heavy Damages.

Montreal, Sept. 9.—A marchioness will soon have to appear in the Superior Court of Montreal, if the action entered against her by Mr. Wilfrid Noel for $5,000 damages is pushed to its end. The defendant is Madame la Comtesse de Boishebert Caste-de-Tilly, Marquise de Blaru, who is a resident of Windsor Mills.

This case is a sequel to a famous jewellery affair. The Marchioness of Blaru was proprietor of a magnificent collection of antique jewels, which she offered to any institution sending to her the sum of $100,000. Mr. Noel acted for her in that occasion as a kind of advertising and business manager. But in May last the Marchioness had her former employe arrested, on the charge that he refused to return certain valuable documents, which he had received in his capacity as manager for her. The accusation was never investigated in court and the action was dismissed by default. It is on account of the arrest that Mr. Noel is entering his suit against the Countess of Boishebert, claiming $5,000 compensation.

RUGBY IS BOOMING!

Will Be Senior and Junior Series in the City League.

At a recent meeting of the Rugby executive it was decided that Peterborough is to have a city Rugby league with a senior and junior, series. It is expected that there will be three teams in the senior division and four in the junior section. The junior series is too be started at once, the first game to be played at Riverside Park a week from today.

The president, secretary and Dr. McPherson were appointed a committee to interview those in control of Riverside Park to make arrangements for having lights installed, securing practice hours, etc.

The question of placing a team in the O. R. F. U. was discussed and while no definite action was taken it is practically certain that this city will have a team in the senior series of the provincial organization. It is also possible that there will be a junior team from Peterborough in the Ontario body. From present indications there will be an abundance of good material for two teams.

There will be four teams in the junior series, the T. A. S. Collegiate Y. M. C. A. and Rough Riders. There are three prospective teamas for the senior division. Entries should be made to the secretary before Tuesday night in order that everything will be in shape that evening.

AGAIN THE WARNING.

Again are we advised to keep an eye on Europe at large, Germany, of course, in particular. This time it is Lord Northcliffe, one time Harmsworth, and now the many millioned owner of great London dailies and other papers. Speaking in Winnipeg the other day he offered a suggestion "You Canadians," he said in effect, "are investing money and labor build ing railroads, grain elevators and the figure out why German shipbuild ing yards are turning out under pressure rapid cruisers and first class battleships. Why it is that Kruppe works have increased their hands to over one hundred thousand, the population of Winnipeg, and exactly What would be the effect on your farmers, your railways, your Winnipeg or your Fort William, if about harvest time, as happened to France in 1870, you got a cable in Winnipeg one night that all your stuff was held up in the Atlantic. I should like to know what would then be the price of No. 1 hard."

This is a startling way of putting the case, says the Ottawa Journal It sets straight before us the imminent need for the maintenance of British sea power. Where would we be if our Number One Hard were held up by a German fleet in the Atlantic We should be sitting in our homes awaiting the German shackles, doomed till the end of time to servitude under a government of paternalism run mad but kept alive by the police Who then would have the heart to say that the Canadian West needed box cars then would be employed in carrying Canadian grains, at cost of production and transportation, to German soldiers' mouths.

Lord Beresford has insisted that the fate of the British Empire hangs upon the ability of the British people to keep their trade routes open and that without a supreme fleet the British trade routes cannot be kept open. Lord Northcliffe asks us what would become of our empire building plans if Canadian wheat were commandeered by a German fleet in the Atlantic. Both men in striking and effective manner remind Canadians of their duty.

TENDERS FOR CLOTHING.

A FLIMSY ROOF.

Part of Parliament Buildings at Toronto May Have to Be Torn Down.

Toronto, Sept. 11.—By the fire last week which destroyed the west wing of the parliament buildings a condition has developed that is liable to cause the members of the government serious concern.

The architect and engineer have found that the construction of the entire roof is of a faulty if not flimsy character, and a small fire in any of the large passages above the third floor might cause the collapse of the upper storeys. Large window trusses under the roof span the walls and from these the framework which supports the bulk of the weight of the interior is suspended by iron rods.

This defect of the system of construction was found when the ceiling of the library fell in shortly after the fire had started.

With this danger extending over the whole building there is no wonder, to put it mildly, that Sir James Whitney is indignant.

Notwithstanding the efforts of the insurance companies to minimize the damage, there is no doubt, according to Architect Lennox's examination, that a large portion of the walls will have to come down to make reconstruction safe.

BOWMANVILLE'S GREAT FAIR.

Big Day Wednesday, September 22nd —Last Day of the Show.

West Durham Fall Fair stands in front rank of the purely agricultural exhibitions of Canada. It is not the largest, but there are none better from the standpoint of high-class stock. It is not a circus but a great farmers' field day and live stock show. Durham County has an enviable reputation for good farm stock and the flower of it can be seen at Bowmanville Fair. So many animals are sold every year, too, that it might appropriately be called an annual live stock market day. Horse-buyers from Toronto and other places attend regularly, C. C. James, Esq., Deputy Minister of Agriculture will officially open the new grounds and the Fair at 1.30 p. m. Wednesday, Sept. 22.

Dr. Grenfell's Lapland Deer are Big Success

London, Sept. 12.—According to a dispatch from St. John's, Newfoundland, the success of the reindeer experiment undertaken by Dr. Grenfell, the Labrador missionary in that country, two years ago is beyond dispute.

In 1907 he raised a fund of $15,000 of which the Canadian Cabinet contributed one-third and American friends the remainder, and with this he purchased 300 deer in Lapland, chartering a special ship to convey them to Newfoundland, with two families of Lap herders to look after them.

In less than two years, for the herd was not landed until December, 1907 the number has more than 600 at the feeding grounds near St. Anthony, where, so great has been the attention given to the breeding that the results are better than those attained by the United States authorities in Alaska

There is an unlimited supply of moss and lichen in the vicinity, and the animals thrive amazingly, the only menace being the dogs, which, in spite of all precautions, attack them at times. The deer are fleeter of foot than the dogs, but when stamped are prone to break their legs in rushing over rocky ground and have to be killed.

Dr. Grenfell hopes to provide every resident family on the Labrador coast with a few deer for their own use, enabling them to destroy their dogs and substitute animals that will not only serve for draft purposes as the dogs do, but will take the place of cows as well, providing milk for children, which is the greatest need of the region, and yielding beef and hides when it becomes necessary or desirable to kill them.

COUNCIL MEETING.

Special Session to Pass Bylaws on Wednesday Night.

A special meeting of the City Council will be held tomorrow night for the purpose of putting through several bylaws or rejecting them as the aldermen see fit. Among them are the contract for the Smith St. bridge, the isolation hospital and the 30-year franchise for the Peterborough Light & Power Company. A lively meeting is anticipated.

It's a pity when sick ones drug the stomach or stimulate the heart and Kidneys. That is all wrong! A weak Stomach means weak Stomach nerves, always. And this is also true of the Heart and Kidneys. The weak nerves are instead crying out for help. This explains why Dr. Shoop's Restorative is promptly helping the Stomach, Heart and Kidney ailment. The Restorative reaches out for the actual cause of these ailments—the failing "inside nerves." Anyway test the Restorative 48 hours. It won't cure so soon as that, but you will surely know that help is coming. Sold by all dealers.

OBITUARY

EDWARD GEORGE ADAMS.

Sincere sympathy will be extended Mr. and Mrs. William Adams, 509 Chamberlain street in the loss sustained by them in the death of their infant son, Edward George, whose death occurred Sunday. The funeral took place yesterday afternoon to Little Lake cemetery.

ALBERT SEABROOK.

The death occurred in Toronto on Sunday of Albert Seabrook, son of Mr. and Mrs. Samuel Seabrook, 629 Downie street, Peterborough. He passed away at the Western Hospital, Toronto, death being due to pneumonia, which followed an attack of typhoid fever. He was 20 years and six months of age, and had been working in Toronto since last fall. In addition to his parents he is survived by fourbrothers and three sisters. The brothers are Harry, of the third line of Smith; and Ben, Herman and Thomas, of Peterborough. The sisters are Mrs. Hugh Fletcher, Toronto; Miss Jennie of Toronto, and Miss Lizzie of this city. They will have the sympathy of many friends in their bereavement.

The funeral will take place this afternoon at 2.30 o'clock from 629 Downie street, to Little Lake cemetery.

MRS. JAMES WALKER.

The death occurred Sunday of Esther J. Gillespie, wife of Mr. James Walker, at her late residence, lot 14, in the 13th concession of South Monaghan. The late Mrs. Walker, who was 44 years of age, had been a sufferer for a long time with heart disease. She was born in the township of Otonabee, and was a daughter of the late James Gillespie. Mrs. Joseph Stewart of this city, is a sister.

The funeralwill take place this afternoon to the Little Lake cemetery.

COMMITTEE OF WHOLE.

To Consider Begy Contract on Smith Street Bridge.

A meeting of the Committee of the Whole Council will be held this evening and among other matters to be taken up is the contract for the Smith street bridge, which was awarded to Begy & Co., of St. Catharines, and from which Mr. Begy wishes to withdraw. The next lowest tender is that of Messrs. Conroy, and there is a difference of some $1700. If Mr. Begy's request is granted the city will lose that much money. The committee will however deal with the matter.

STRANGE MICHIGAN ISLAND.

Rises From Lake Orion Every Summer and Sinks Every Winter.

One of the deepest mysteries to be found in Michigan is the island that every summer comes to the surface of Lake Orion over beyond Park Island, and every winter goes back again to the depths whence it arose. its periods of appearance and disappearance are nearly regular. It comes to the surface along about the middle of August and goes down again about February 15. What causes it to act thus strangely is a conundrum that none has been able to solve, and the best efforts that have been put forth to keep it with us or compel it to remain in the depths have been alike without results.

On one occasion a number of farmers and teamsters resolved to put the island out of the floating business. In their efforts to do so they hauled many loads of stone and deposited them on it during the early part of the winter, believing that when it went down in February it would go down for good, weighted as it was with the stones. But the following August saw it bob up serenely from below—minus its load of stones.

At another time an effort was made to keep it on the surface and it was chained to the surrounding country with heavy log chains. When its time for departure came it departed—and the log chains departed with it. The log chains were never recovered.

The island is composed of soft mud and rushes, and there are some sceptical souls who attribute its formation and appearance and disappearance to the gathering of vegetation in one spot by the currents of the lake and its subsequent decay.

Ball Team Not Coming.

The Chicago Ladies Baseball Club will not likely visit Peterborough this fall. The local teams were shy and the girls' advance agent was unable to sign a contract!

Sing In Front of Grand Stand.

Mr. Jos. Halpany has been secured by the management of the Peterborough fair to sing before the Grand Stand on Friday afternoon and evening and on Saturday afternoon Mr. Halpany is a vocalist of ability and will add greatly to the program.

Judging Lawns.

The Peterborough and Ashburnham Horticultural Society, through their judges, Messrs. Jordan, Cooney, Stevenson and Stocker, visited the lawns and gardens in the city which were entered in the competition. Therewas a large number of entries and many beautiful lawns and gardens. The awards will probably be announced today or tomorrow.

CONTRADICTORY EVIDENCE GIVEN AT BOLLARD INQUEST

Blake Cullin's Evidence Was Contradicted in Part by Four Witnesses--Two New Witnesses

Another session of the inquest into the death of Arthur Bollard, who died very suddenly at Chemong Park a few weeks ago, was held in the county court room last night. The seating capacity was overtaxed and many had tostand, The interest in the case seemedto be increased by reports which had been circulated to the effect that Mr. Blackstock of Toronto, was to conduct the prosecution, and that Fred Jopling was to give evidence. The former was not present and the latter wasnot called to the witness box.

Only two new witnesses were called, viz., J. G. Jopling, father of the two boys, and Miss Pearl Jopling, sister of the boys. They threw no new light on the matter.

Blake Cullen was recalled and his testimony was of the vague variety He said he heard Harry Jopling cry out and that caused him to leave a couple of girls and run down where the scrap was going on. He was sure of this. Four other witnesses who were present when the scrap started and saw everything, said that Harry Jopling did not cry out when he and Bollard were down. These witnesses were recalled after Cullen's evidence and again stated that Harry did not shout.

The greater part of the evening was spent in re-examining most of the witnesses who appeared at the previous sessions. But nothing of a startling nature was developed.

The evidence taken was as follows.

MISS ADA MINNS.

The first witness called was Miss Ada Minns, and she was examined by County Crown Attorney R. E. Wood. She said she heard nothing of the affair at the pavilion on the Monday night and had not seen Mr. Cullen then. Fred and Harry Jopling came down first with the others following. She could not see who clinched first but it looked as if all were on top of Mr. Bollard at once. Bollard did not dance on Monday night, the greater part of the evening he was sitting at the ice cream stand near the pavilion. It was there that he joined witness and Marks when going home. She was positive that the Jopling boys ran after them. Then when they got near Harry Jopling said "Here he is," and then Bollard threw off his did not remember speaking to anyone about it.

MISS PEARL JOPLING.

Miss Pearl Jopling, sister of the boys was called. To Mr. Wood she said the first she heard of any trouble between her brothers and Bollard, was that Harry told her Arthur Bolard was going to give him a thrashing that night. It was about 9.30. That was all she knew about it. Afterwards she told Blake Cullen. They were in front of the ice cream stand. Fred and Harry Jopling were around the hotel at about a quarter to ten, just as she was going down towards her home.

To the coroner she said she had not been told what to say by either of her brothers. She knew what to say and had only told the truth.

HARRY MARKS.

Harry Marks of Toronto, was recalled. He said that before when he was on the witness stand, he forgot to give some of the story. Then Mr. Wood asked the witness to rehearse the whole story as he knew it. He heard Bollard call "Let go" three times, and "dirty" twice. Then witness pushed into the circle and saw Fred Jopling have Bollard on the ground and holding him with his right knee and striking him in the face with the right hand. Witness took hold of Fred and said "Let him up." Fred made a pass at witness but missed his mark.

GORDON LONG.

Gordon Long was recalled. He said Bollard was in the hotel store until 8.45 and then he went to the ice cream stand where he stayed until he went home.

To Mr. O'Connel, witness said that Bollard told him on Monday evening about Harry Jopling callcoat and then the fight began. Harry Jopling and his friend both attacked Bollard. Fred Jopling came along with the second number of boys.

Mr. O'Connell said that Marks and Long gave a different version of the fight. Witness said that their description would be more accurate than hers, as they were closer to the fighters.

MR. J. G. JOPLING.

Mr. J. G. Jopling, father of the two boys, was called and said he never heard of any fight until Bollard died. He knew nothing whatever about it until that time. Hearing him (Bollard) a vile name and that he would make himstake it back. As far as he actually saw it was a fair fight.

BLAKE CULLEN.

Blake Cullen was recalled. His evidence in reference to hearing Bollard say he was going to "lick Harry Jopling," had been contradicted by Gordon Long. Witness said he did not remember seeing Long with Bollard at all. Witness told Fred Jopling what Bollard had said. Witness admitted that if he had kept his tongue still there might have been nothing more of it After he told Fred the story spready rapidly. Charlie Forsythe was with the witness when he told Fred. Fred found Harry and they started after Bollard to find out what was the matter.

The witness gave a somewhat vague story of his own actions on that night and of he and Fred Jopling taking a couple of young ladies home. Witness also said that he was 12 or 15 feet away from the fight. He didn't hear the words "dirty" used.

He said he was walking down to the park with two girls and hearing Harry Jopling cry out he left them and ran down. Harry and Bollard were down at the time.

To the coroner, witness admitted that he said no one interfered with Fred or Bollard, and at the same time he stated he stopped Marks from trying to protect his friend Bollard.

Mr. Marks was recalled and he said that he heard no one shout while Harry and Bollard were down. He would have heard it had it been used as he was quite close.

Gordon Long was recalled and he said that he heard no shouting during Harry and Bollard's fight. He was close by at the time and would have heard it.

Miss Minns was recalled and she said that she heard no shouting while Harry and Bollard were fighting.

The inquest was then adjourned until 8 o'clock on Wednesday, September 15th, 1909.

WITNESS ATTENTION.

Coroner Dr. Grey desires all the witnesses who have thus far been subponaed to give evidence at the inquest, to appear before him at the court house on Wednesday evening next at 7.30 o'clock. This is half an hour before the inquest will be resumed.

PAPER SPREADS SEDITION.

Editor Evades the Police and Gets Safely Away.

London, Sept. 11.—The "Indian Sociologist," which earned unenviable notoriety at the time of the foul assassination of Sir Curzon Wyllie, owing to its incitements to murder, has again made its appearance, with the result that on Thursday Guy Alfred Aldred, aged 22, appeared in the dock at Bow-street Police Court, charged with publishing a seditious libel.

The accused, a clean-shaven young man, wore a cycling suit, a flannel colar, and a red tie. He was quite calm and self-possessed.

He was charged before Mr. Curtis Bennett with unlawfully and seditiously printing and publishing and causing to be printed and published a scandalous and seditious libel in the form of a printed publication called the "Indian Sociologist," dated August 1909. The alleged libel concerned the Government of India, and was against peace.

Mr. Bodkin appeared for the prosecution, Sir Charles Matthews, the Public Prosecutor, occupied a seat on the bench, and before the proceedings commenced had a consultation with Mr. Bodkin.

In opening the case for the prosecution, counsel said it was commenced under the direction of the Attorney-General, as being a prosecution for an offence of a public character, and of a very serious and important nature. This prosecution said counsel would disclose some serious matters in reference to the dissemination of seditious printing in this country and elsewhere.

'It would be submitted that the defendant, after a warning, committed the offence of which he was charged not merely as a printer, but also as the writer of some of the seditious matter which appeared in the papers referred to. He was clearly a person who held Anarchist views, and was known as the association of Anarchists in London.

D'HINGRAS' CRIME GLORIFIED

In the same number appeared an article by the accused on the "Ethics of Force," and another by a French writer clearly advocating the use of force as a duty. A protest against "interference with the liberty of the Press" appeared in the paper, and announcing the etermination to publish the paper in spite of the campaign of prosecution.

"We shall see," says M. Bodkin.

Counsel read from an article by the accused: "The question was whether it was possible to meet violence by resort to violence. To this there can be but one answer," said the writer."..... The Government has proclaimed a state of despotism and outlawry, and has given the signal for revolution. Revolution is to answer despotism."

Counsel quoted other passages from the paper extelling the murderer Dhingra's terrible

Chief Inspector McCarthy, of Scotland Yard, gave evidence of arresting the prisoner at Stanlake-road, Shepherd's Bush, where he occupied two rooms. Outside the house appeared a plate bearing the inscription "Siakunian press."

The accused handed to him certain letters and postcards written to him by Krishnavarma. Witness asked if he had any manuscripts, to which he replied, "No, I own that I have burned up some, and those I received from Paris I have sent back."

The defendant was then remanded till Saturday, bail being allowed in two sureties of 50 pounds and his own recognisances of 100 pounds.

The printer of a previous issue of the "Indian Sociologist," Arthur Fletcher Horsley, of Manor Park, was sentenced at the Old Bailey on July 23 to four months in the first division for printing and publising a seditious libel.

Bradburn Homestead For an Orphanage

Announcement was made at St. Peter's Cathedral by His Lordship Bishop O'Connor on Sunday, that the Roman Catholic diocese of Peterborough had purchased from the Bradburn estate the Bradburn Homestead, between McDonnel and London streets. It is to be used as a Catholic orphanage, and it is expected that it will be occupied in this way before October, 1st. The price paid was $17,000 and the ceal has virtually been closed.

The property consists of two acres and there is on it a large brick house and a fine barn, also of brick. The property is bounded on the south by McDonnel street, on the north by London street, on the east by Stewart street, and on the west by Mr. D. W. Dumble's property. The location is an excellent one and the house can be made with a few alterations into an excellent home for the children.

At the present time there are about fifty children in the House of Providence. This is contrary to the Provincial law which states that all children from two to sixteen years of age must be in a seperate building from the old people. On his last two visits to the House of Providence, the Government inspector Dr. Bruce Smith, recommended that the children be placed in a seperate building. It was impossible to do so at the time, however, and on account of the recommendation not being carried out, the government grant for the present year, amounting to $1,535, has been withdrawn. His lordship, however, has hopes of securing the grant if the new home is occupied by Oct. 1st.

There are nearly one hundred inmates in the House of Providence at the present time, half of whom are children. The Bradburn house will provide accommodation for at least fifty inmates. The barn can also be connected into a dwelling if it is found that more accommodation is required.

His lordship announced that sufficient money had been donated by members of the Catholic Church to cover the expense incurred in the purchase of the new home.

LADY GOTHARD WON.

FALL SKIN DISEASES.
An Article for Mothers.
When the children "break out" with eruptions and skin diseases, so common in the fall, don't run to useless and nauseating medicines. Zam-Buk is what is needed. It is a skin food as well as a healing balm.
Mrs. Chas. Levere, of Prescott, North Channel, Ont., tells how Zam-Buk cured her baby. She says:—"My baby's head and face was one complete mass of sores. The itching and irritation were fearful, and the little one's plight was so fearful that at one time we feared her ears would be eaten off.
"We had to keep her hands tied for days to prevent her rubbing and scratching the sores. Doctor after doctor treated her in vain, until we had had five doctors. They all agreed it was a frightful case of eczema, but none of them did any permanent good "As a last resource we were advised to try Zam-Buk. The first box did so much good that we felt sure we were at last working in the right direction. We persevered with the treatment until we had used thirteen boxes, and at the end of that time I am glad to say Zam-Buk effected a cure."
Mrs. Holmes, of 30, Guise Street, Hamilton, is quite as eloquent in her praises. She says:—"Zam-Buk cured my boy of boils and eruptions when he was so bad that he had been unable to mix with other children. Prior to the boils breaking out he had had a bad eruption, but Zam-Buk cleared this away too, and made his skin clear and smooth. It is a wonderful preparation, and mothers throughout the land should always keep it handy."
For eczema, eruptions, rashes, tetter, itch, ringworm, and similar skin diseases, Zam-Buk is without equal. It also cures cuts, burns, scalds, piles abscesses, chronic sore; blood-poisoning, etc. All druggists and stores at 50 cents a box, or post free for price from Zam-Buk Co., Toronto.

LOSE LEFT EYE.

Mr. George Lancaster Met With a Nasty Accident.

Mr. George Lancaster, who resides at 247 Westcott street, suffered an injury to his left eye yesterday afternoon, by which he is liked, to lose the sight of it. He was entering the cellar of a new house that he is building inthe south end of the city. The cellar was dark and Mr. Lancaster not being able to see where he was going, walked against a board, outof which a sharp nail was protruding, the nail entering the left eye.

Dr. T. N. Greer was called and had the injured man removed to Nicholls Hospital, where late in the afternoon an operation was performed.

Mr. Pete Wallace left on Saturday for Sudbury, where he has accepted a position.

Notice

Take notice that the Municipal Council of the Corporation of the City of Peterborough intends to construct sewers on the streets or parts of streets named below and intends to assess the final cost thereof upon the real property to be immediately benefitted thereby fronting or abutting upon the said part of the said street, the number of annual assessments to be thirty. A statement showing the lands liable to and proposed to be specially assessed for the said works, and the names of the owners thereof, so far as the same can be ascertained from the last revised assessment roll and otherwise is now filed in the office of the Clerk of the Municipality and is open for inspection during office hours:—

Reid street, from McDonnelnl St., to a point 350 street south of McDonnell street, estimated cost of the work $387.11, of which $77.04 is to be provided out of the general funds of the Municipality, annual rate per foot frontage $0.0285.

Romaine street, from Lock street to Cresent street, estimated cost of the work $380.84, of which $127.99 to be provided out of the general funds of the Municipality; annual rate per foot frontage $0.0?.

Cresent street, from Romaine St., to Haggart street, estimated cost of the work $1,622.60, of which $766.79 is to be provided out of the general funds of the Municipality, annual rate per foot frontage $0.0?43.

Wolfe street, from Reid street to Rubidge street, estimated cost of the work $283.65, of which $124.66 is to be provided out of the general funds of the Municipality; annual rate per foot frontage $0.0254.

A Court of Revision will be held on the 28th day of September, 1909, at the hour of 8 o'clock in the evening at the City Council Chambers, for the purpose of hearing complaints against the proposed assessment or the accuracy of frontage measurements or any other complaints which the person interested may desire to make and which is by law cognizable by the Court.

Dated at Peterborough the 13th day of September, 1909.

S. R. ARMSTRONG,
Clerk.

Ratepayer's Ignorance of Municipal Matters

(To the Editor of The Times.)

Dear Sir,—In the Examiner last night appeared a letter signed Ratepayer, which protested against what he called a thirty-year contract for street lighting. A finer display of ignorance and inability of comprehension very seldom appears in a local newspaper. But what is even more surprising than Ratepayer's ignorance is that the Examiner permitted such a communication to appear in its columns, for the Examiner knows better. The council is not making a thirty-year contract for street lighting and the company is not even asking for it, nor would they think of asking for it, much less would the council or any one else grant it. What the company asks is a franchise to do business in the city for thirty years. They don't ask for even an exclusive franchise, nor has the franchise anything to do with the street lighting contract which will expire at the end of four or five years. The company is granting the city several concessions and the city is gaining a valuable advantage. If Ratepayer wishes any information he should read the newspapers and especially The Times, as the latter paper gives the fullest and most accurate reports of municipal business. If Ratepayer cannot buy a paper the city clerk will give him information and be glad to do so.

Yours truly,
CITIZEN.

Lame Back

Just the Sort of Case That Proves To the World That the Best Liniment Ever Made Is

NERVILINE.

When it comes to determining the real merit of a medicine, no weight of evidence is more convincing than the straightforward statement of some reliable and well-known person that has been cured. For this reason we print the verbatim statement of Juan E. Powell, written from his home in Carleton. "I am a strong powerful man, six feet tall, and weigh nearly two hundred. I have been accustomed all LETTER my life to lift great weight, but one day I No. overdid it, and wrenched my back 4769 badly. Every tendon and muscle was sore. To stoop or bend was agony. I had a whole bottle of Nerviline rubbed on in one day, and by night I was well again. I know of no liniment possessing one-half the penetration and painsubduing properties of Nerviline. I urge its use strongly as an invaluable liniment and household cure for all migor ailments, such as strains, sprains, swellings, neuralgia sciatica, lumbago, rheumatism, and muscular pain."

No better medicine for curing pain was ever put in a bottle than Nerviline—over one million bottles used very year—better try it yourself. 25c or five for $1. At all dealers or The Catarrhozone Company, Kingston, Ont. 24

AND STILL THEY COME.

We clip the following from an esteemed American contemporary:—

"It is now estimated that emigrants from the United States into Western Canada may number 80,000 this year. Canadian officials are incessantly advertising the virgin farm lands of their prairie provinces in our Northwestern States, and they look for a movement in the immediate future that will overshadow that in the past. There are 200 firms in Minneapolis dealing in Canadian lands, and last year the same city lands, and last year the same city had but fifty. The big crop now being harvested in Manitoba will still further advertise the country among our Western farmers, who cannot visit a State fair or a county cattle show without facing the allnring Canadian posters and hearing the paid lecturer grow eloquent over the wonders of the far North, where 'Old Glory' is never seen. The Superintendent of Canadian Immigration reports that he finds no opposition to his efforts in this country. The Washtoo Government shows no unfriendly feeling, and the only competition encountered is that from the Southern States."

The farmers of the Northwestern States are an intensely practical lot of men! They are tired of seeing their substance eaten up by speculators, transportation companies and middlemen. They are, therefore, em grating to a country whose laws will protect them in the enjoyment of the fruits of their labor.

BERESFORD'S PLAIN WORDS.

There is something characteristic of the sailor in the straightforward hit from the shoulder Admiral Beresford has told of the condition of the British navy and the possibilities attendant on the nation's apparent failure to see the gravity of the present state of affairs. This statement of his somehow or other sounds convincing.

"A crisis has arisen because the British fleet is not in the unaccessible position it should be.

"I am a very practical man. I don't believes in theories one word. I don't believe in what might, could, shouldor would be, but what is. We must be supreme on every ocean. The others will begin when they are ready. The characteristic of our race is never to begin. We are like the bulldog. You have to bite his tail and kick him in the stomach to make him fight.

"The real danger is that the shipper won't ship when the trade route is in danger. The insurance rate would be prohibitive. The shipper is a most nervous man. From the time his ship sails till he hears of its arrival he is generally in b perspiration. If you trade routes were in danger the shipper would cease to ship. Then the whole of your securities would tumble down to nothing just when you most needed money.

"The enormous losses attending the fall of securities and the high rate of insurance would be ruinous. Why run this risk? Even if you have a few battleships too many, isn't it wiser than to take any chances?

"We must do what we can to prevent war. We can only do that by being absolutely supreme.

"There is no threat to other nations and no pomp or bombast of war in protecting trade routes.

"I don't care one fig about the susceptibilities of other nations. If you go messing about their affairs you lose their respect and their fear. If you stand up in the ring with a man you don't say you are not going to hurt his susceptibilities. If a nation builds four warships you should build eight, and if it meets you eight then build sixteen.

"We talk about the generosity of other nations. A fig for their generosity. Their generosity means adherence to treaties. We have seen in the last year treaties torn up and cast to the winds.

"Stick to the Union Jack. Have your designati8on flag for Canada if you will, but keep the Union Jack."

Drive Rheumatism out of the blood with Dr. Shoop's Rheumatic Remedy and see how quickly pain will depart. Rub-one never did reach the real disease. Rheumatism isn't in the skin. It's deep down—it's constitutional. Getting rid of the pain, is after all, what counts. That is why Dr. Shoop's Rheumatic Remedy goes by word of mouth from one to another. And herein lies the popularity of this Remedy. It is winning defenders everywhere. Tablets or Liquid. Sold by all dealers.

TREATING WALLS.

Messrs. Brown & Aylmer have been hard at work for several weeks past, treating the walls of the power house with concrete so as to render them water proof. One day last week the water was allowed to flow into the pressure chamber which had as yet not been veneered with concrete, in order that a test might be made of the wall left by the original contractors. The result was that although the wall was several feet thick, the water rushed through it in large quantities, showing the necessity of going over this part as well as the rest of thefoundation wall with a good quality of cement. Besides treating the walls in the maenmer manner indicated, which was done on the advice of eminent engineers, the whole superstructure of stone had to be taken down as it was in danger of falling. In January last one of the gables fell, and it was found necessary to support the walls with props. Engineers engaged by the town advised that the stone work be taken down and rebuilt, which has been done. Messrs. Brown & Aylmer will continue treating the walls which are to be subjected to water, and will have the whole str water, and will have the whole stru water, and will have the whole struc ture ready for use in a few weeks.

The appearance of the job when completed by Brown & Aylmer, would indicate that it is a good piece of workmanship. Much credit is due to the efforts of Messrs. Francis & Gillespie for the care taken to make everything substantial.

The people of Campbellford have for a long time been anticipating the beginning of a new era in the matter of power for electric light and industrial purposes in the town and we hope to see their hopes soon realized.—Campbellford Herald.

IF SICK--WHY PAY

Unless Health First Returns.

Here is what should and can be done!

Now you would not willingly pay for food that was worthless—would you?

Then why pay for medicine until that medicine first proves to you its actual worth?

Positively knowing what Dr. Shoop's Restorative can do for the sick, I say to all: don't pay unless health first returns". And I back my Restorative with a signed and sealed 30 day "No Sale, No Pay" contract.

I ask you, reader, to do the only reasonable thing when you say that "Dr. Shoop's Restorative is absolutely free if it fails". Let others do the same or else point their prescriptions by.

If you need more strength, more vim, more vigor or more vim, use my Restorative a few days and note the immediate improvement.

Then the Stomach, Heart, or Kidneys are weak, then test Dr. Shoop's Restorative. I do not claim the Stomach nor stimulate the Heart or Kidneys, for that is wrong. Years ago I cast away that old-fashion idea in medicine. The books below will best tell you how I am succeeding.

These books also tell of a they hidden "Double nerve," no larger than a silken thread. These tell how that nerve, until it fails, normally gives to the Heart its power, its tone, its never-ceasing motion or impulse.

These books will open up new and helpful ideas to those who are not well. They tell how the Stomach, and Kidneys each have their "double" or power nerves. They tell how the Restorative was especially made to vanish and revitalize these weak or failing inside nerves. All of these facts tell why I am able to say: "It is Dr. Shoop if it fails".

This is why I say "Take no chances on a medicine whose maker dare not back it just as I do by this remarkable offer".

So write me today for the order.

I have appointed honest and responsible druggists in nearly every community to hand my medicines to the sick.

But write me first for the order.

All druggists sell Dr. Shoop's Restorative, but all are not authorized to give the 30 day test. So drop me a line right away—and then avoid disappointment and delays. Tell me also which book you need.

A postal will do.

Besides, you are free to consult me on any question about home physician. My advice and the book I know are yours—and without cost.

Perhaps a word or two from me will clear up some nerve-ailment. I have helped thousands upon thousands by my private prescription or personal advice plan. My best effort is ready to watch your simple request. So write now while you have it fresh in mind, for tomorrow may mean, Dr. Shoop, Box 33, Racine, Wis.

COBALT WILL GET BUMPED.

Hon. Mr Hanna is Determined to Straighten Out the Silver City.

Toronto, Sept. 11.—Hon. W. J. Hanna, the Provincial secretarfy, has just returned from a little jaunt up to Cobalt. This morning he had many things to say concerning Cobalt, concerning the way some people stand in the way of a town's progress by enduring bad sanitation and concerning the tigs that have caused so much typhoid fever in Cobalt recently.

"I do not wish," said the Provincial Secretary. "I—I don't wish to be a knocker. I realize that the town has had a wonderful history, and that it had grown up under very difficult conditions, but, honestly, on arriving there I found a very alarming situation.

CRIMINAL GREED.

"The story told in a nut-shell, is that there are a number of men in Cobalt who are criminally liable, men who own properties which they rent for an annual sum ranging from 60 to 170 per cent. of the actual value of the structures, and who utterly disregard every— not every sanitary provision, but every provision of common decency.

"There is, for instance, one big building in the heart of Cobalt, where people are being bhout out almost daily with typhoid fever. This is because the landlord utterly disregards the rights of those who may be his guests, those who work for him, or those who are forced to live near his place. He has been fined, I believe, but I'm told that in a few days he just repeats the offences against hygiene.

EXTORTIONATE RENT.

"Then there's another case where I found ten or twelve double houses in the course of erection, which are imported ready made and erected on the ground. I understand that the cost at the factory is $260 for this splendid double house—think of it! And the freight is only another $20. One house consists of one room, I should judge about 10x12, and a kitchen about 6x8. It rents for $15 a month, or $30 a month for the two halves of the building. That is just $360 a year, and the cost for the whole building was about $280. Think of that!

"There are bylaws in Cobalt. I understand, that would make it impossible for a man to get a permit for a house of this kind. I do not know whether they are respected or not, but it is positively criminal to allow such a collection of shacks to be erected and to allow people to live in them without any sanitary provision.

"I don't want to be a knocker, but I wired at once for Dr. Hodgets and he made arrangements to bring up a staff with him. The people in Cobalt seem to have the idea that the Provincial Board can do all that must be done to remedy the conditions. That is a mistake. The people up there are anxious for the reform, I feel sure, and would have it but for some of the interested men. They all seem to think, though that the Province can step in. That is not right. The Provincial Board of Health has no such authority except in an unorganized district, but Cobalt being an organized district action must be initiated and carried on by them and through them alone

MAY QUARANTINE PLACE.

"All we have done and all we can do is to assist them by lending the do is to assist them by lending them men of experience. Of course that is unless the situation becomes so alarming as to necessitate a quarantine of the whole place. In that event the Provincial Board would step in. People would then not be able to get off at Cobalt or to leave it without permission.

"Now, just look at this. On Tuesday there were 96 cases of typhoid fever in the hospital and 40 or 50 around the town. Wednesday morning there were five more cases admitted to the hospital, and one diphtheria case had developed. Outside of these there were many cases taking the train for their old homes in Southern Ontario, or for the hospitals of the south every day.

TAKE IN THE TOWNSHIP.

"The situation is bad. There is no doubt that the council and the Board of Health have been confronted from the outside with great difficulties. In the first place the town consists of a few acres on a hill serving the whole country for miles around. The town should have taken in the whole township rather than just those few acres. This place is a mining camp pure and sim the little places the little place called the town proper has to bear the burden of the whole district. Any attempt to give the people of Cobalt proper water and sanitation means that that little area must beasddled with the cost of accommodating the whole district. The conditions are unusual and probably call for action outside the present law, but if they are to be solved I don't see any solution outside of taking in the whole area. I think I may safely say that the situation is one that should not have existed had some attention been paid to the report of a special committee of the Board of Trade of the town and resrtain citizens. That report was made last spring, but it apparently did no good."

Sculptural Competition of Designs for Two Monuments.

1. Competitive designs are invited for two monuments, one to the memory of the late Honourable George Brown and the other to the memory of the late Honourable Thomas D'Arcy McGee.

2. Each monument is not when completed and in position, to cost more than two thousand dollars, including pedestal from the level of the ground.

3. The competition is open only to artists resident in Canada, and artists of Canadian birth residing elsewhere.

4. The site will be at a point in the Government property at Ottawa, to be hereafter decided.

5. Designs shall be in the form of sketch-models, in plaster, made at a uniform scale of one and one-half inches to the foot. A description of the design shall accompany each model. No name motto or other distinctive mark thereon.

6. The author of the best designs will be awarded the commission of the work, the second best $500.00 and the third best $300.00.

7. The models and all communications regarding this matter shall be addressed to

Advisory Art Council,
C—o, Department of Public Works,
Ottawa, Canada.

The designs must be delivered before the 1st day of February, 1910. They will be kept from public view until the reward has been made. All expenses of delivering the sketch-models and accompanying descriptions shall be paid by the competitors. Sketch models will, after the award at the expense of the department be returned upon the request of competitors, but at the risk of the competitors.

Notice of the award will be sent to each competitor.

The award will only be binding provided the successful competitor is prepared to furnish satisfactory evidence, with security if demanded, that he can execute the work for the sum mentioned above.

LONE ST. KILDA.

How the Inhabitants Live on Isolated Little Island.

Surrounded for eight months of the year by an isolating veil, which hides it almost impenetrably from the outer world, St. Kilda casts its mists in May, and comes forth to join the chorus of the isles again. With the resumption of the tourist traffic, the furthest fling of the Western Hebrides enters upon its summer "season." From now till August its people live in the stir of coming and going steamers. It is only within the last 15 years (says The Scotsman) that the Lone Isle began to be included in the itinerary of the tourist. In earlier days the islanders had to be satisfied with the certainty of a call from the factor's smack once or twice a year. It brought the factor on board. He came, as he comes yet, to collect the rents in kind—cattle, grain, cheese, sea bird feathers, fulmar oil, dried fish, and other limited products—and he supplied them with their fresh stock of meal, flour, salt, tea and sugar, and shawls. Tea and sugar are still comparatively modern luxuries, with only 20 years' familiarity to spice their pleasure. Shops are unknown on the island, so each householder must calculate the exact quantity of goods and merchandise he will require to tide him over the winter. There remain, of course, the dairy produce of the island, and the mutton which its sheep supplies. Beef or pork are never eaten.

The St. Kildians give all their cattle to the proprietor for rent, and, unlike the Irish, they don't keep pigs. Comparatively modern illustrations show the fashion in dress to have been distinctly bizarre, but it is much more up to date now. The men manufacture their own tweed and act as their own tailors. Occasionally, indeed, they ply the needle on behalf of the women, who are fond of bright colors, a not unknown feminine idiosyncrasy. Scarlet is their favorite shade. Imported shawls are worn on the head in winter time, and Turkey red napkins in summer. Some of the younger women order their costumes from the "mainland," but the majority are content with dresses of their own making. Education is now on an organized basis, although it is only within recent years that the Ladies' Association in Edinburgh began to send students to teach English to the children. Previously the children were taught Gaelic by the most proficient individual among the adults; obviously a haphazard method.

There are about 1,000 sheep scattered over the islands on common pasturage, and every owner has his private mark on his possessions. The sheep are small and wild, and can only be caught by dogs. That accounts for the number of dogs which are kept. In June, the shearing season, all the sheep are driven to ledges on the rocks, where they have a choice of being caught, or of jumping over the precipice. The latter alternative is not infrequently accepted. Tweed making is the principal industry, and it provides the women with the classic occupation of spinning the wool derived from their own sheep. The men do all the weaving, contrary to the custom in Egypt, where the women weave as well as spin. At this work the long winter nights are spent, spiced with rivalry. The spinners and weavers of one house vie with those of others as to the quantity and quality of the tweed which will be produced, and it is a case of sitting up and rising early almost to the limit of endurance. In April the land claims attention, and the tweed is laid aside pending the arrival of the Glasgow steamers in May. With the first boat this year has gone out the Glasgow agent, who disposes of the manufactured tweed.

Shipwrecked Thirteen Times.

Mr. John Beveridge, of Kirkcaldy, who recently passed away, had an unusually adventurous career, and was quite a "character." At an early age he ran away to sea, and started as a ship's boy. For the forty-two years following he was only on shore for short periods and at long intervals, and thirteen times suffered shipwreck. Once, when wrecked in St. Andrew's Bay, he saved his life by swimming ashore, hanging to a live sheep. Beveridge sailed in many of the vessels which belonged to the Kirkcaldy whaling fleet, and when the last of the whalers belonging to that port was wrecked he was a member of the crew on each occasion. For fifteen years he was a naval reservist, and twenty years ago he sailed his last voyage as the engineer of Dundee to the Arctic. To the last he always wore his sealing garb.

CARE OF FLOWER BEDS.

How to Keep Them Beautiful All Through the Summer.

All flower beds should at this season of the year be kept in proper shape and condition. All seed pods and withered and yellow leaves should be carefully cleaned and picked off. Frequent stirring with the hoe is good, but not deep enough to in any way injure the roots. It is a good idea every time you mow the grass to take a sharp spade and cut the edge of all your flower beds. It keeps the grass from encroaching on the beds and also keeps the beds in their proper shape and form and makes them have a fresh and neat appearance.

By August many of the soft growing foliage bedding plants, such as coleus, alternantheras achryanthus, etc., will be growing freely and should be kept cut back and not allowed to become straggling. To be pretty, beds having plants of this kind should be uniform. The various colors should not be allowed to intermingle. Golden colored plants should not have red foliage ones sticking their shoots up through the yellow, etc. This is easily prevented by constantly pinching. The main point is to commence pinching early and take the tip out of the young growth. In this way you can scarcely see that the work is going on. If, however, you neglect them until the plants are very tall then you leave stems showing, and the beds are unsightly for awhile.

Some beds are greatly benefited by a mulching of well rotted stable manure. It is necessary to shake out all the long straw before using, and if the manure is in large pieces chop it with a spade. Rose beds, cannas, hardy herbaceous and berbena beds are all benefited by mulching. We do not believe it is necessary to thus mulch soft plants, such as the coleus and geraniums, as they grow very well without it. The work of mulching is very simple. All you want to do is to spread the manure over the bed carefully to the depth of about one inch.

How often flower beds in the open air should be watered depends to a great extent upon the character of the soil and variety of plants. If the soil is good stiff loam and you have frequent showers you do not need to water at all. If it is sandy, as near the coast, and the weather dry it is beneficial to water every day. Geraniums seldom need watering when growing in good garden soil. With much water they grow too much to foliage. Cannas and plants of this character do not require much water. For them and geraniums we prefer much hoeing.

If using a hose sprinkler to water have just force enough to water with out washing the ground. Hold the sprinkler near the ground so the water goes first where you want it. Geraniums should not have the flower heads watered if you can avoid it, as it spoils them completely. The evening, after sundown, is the best time to water, as the plants have all night to take up the moisture, and artificial watering is soon evaporated under the combined effects of wind and hot summer sun.

Rainbow Tinted Fishes.

The remarkable brilliancy of color in the fish living about the coral reefs in tropical regions has been often noticed. Brilliant blue with fins and tail of bright yellow, vivid crimson shading off into a more subdued hue, bright green spotted and banded with red, green with long parallel stripes of blue and red, green marked with red above and bright blue below—such are some of the colors displayed by the fish of the Great Barrier reef of Australia. In order to explain such brilliant hues on the principles of natural selection they have been described as "warning colors." The fish are thought to be nauseous or poisonous and to proclaim this by their bright colors. As regards those of the Australian coral reef, however, many of them are said to be excellent eating.

A Bold Defence.

"An enlisted man once put the president of a court-martial in a difficult position," says a writer in Cassell's Magazine. "The court-martial was trying the soldier for some fault or other. When the evidence—and it took an unusually long time—had been given, the president asked the prisoner if he had anything to say in his defence.

"'Well, sir,' said the man, 'I can't see how this 'ere court can sentence me, for Major Jones 'as been reading a paper under the table the 'ole blooming time, and Captain Smith 'as been making me into karicatoor on the blotting pad, and, as for Lieut. Brown, 'e 'asn't 'ad his commission a year and don't count anyways!'"

Casting Metals.

As is well known, some metals are unsuitable for casting, while others, like iron, can readily be cast in any desired shape. The property of casting well is said to depend upon whether the metal contracts or expands on solidifying from the liquid form. Iron, like water, expands in solidifying, and hence the solid metal may be seen floating in the liquid iron about it. The expansion causes it to fill the die into which it is poured, and so it can be cast easily. Gold and silver contract in cooling and therefore are not suitable for casting.

The London Pageant.

The site selected for next year's London pageant in that part of Chingford Plain which adjoins Connaught Water has been approved by the pageant authorities. Between the lake and the old hunting lodge of Queen Elizabeth a great horseshoe stand will be built, three times the size of that erected at Fulham for the church pageant. There will be 15,000 performers.

Canadian Securities.

The quiet but successful placing of $5,000,000 of Dominion Iron and Steel Co. bonds with English banking houses affords another demonstration of London's capacity for the absorption of Canadian securities.—Toronto

PROFITS—There is a good profit in this Ink. There are 12 or 15 Ink Companies in the United States paying dividends of from 12 to 20 per cent. per annum.

THE KEARN'S INK CO. of Toronto was organized two years ago to manufacture the new CANADIAN WRITING INKS, invented by J. J. Kearns. The past two years has been spent in experimenting and improving quality and today it stands among the top notchers in the ink world. This ink has met with such spontaneous approval from users, and the trade has shown such willingness to buy in quantities, that the management deem it wise to enlarge their operations and make a big staple business enterprise out of this Company hence offer to the public.

The total capital is only $40,000, so that you can see that this is no inflated and watered wild cat scheme but a first-class legitimate investment offered to you—one where a dollar invested today will be worth at least two in a year and will pay 10 per cent. income on this.

Some Orders that We Received as to the Sale of Kearn's Ink

We found the demand practically without limit; we receiving orders and inquiries far beyond our ability to supply the goods. Orders came from such houses as Parson's Fair Syndicate 17 stores in Ontario, Central Business College, Ontario Government, King Edward Hotel, Grand Trunk Railway Co., National Trust Co., Toronto Railway Co., Separate Schools of Toronto and Peterboro', Imperial Accident & Guarantee Co., Central Canada Loan & Savings Co., Consumers Gas Co., Toronto Elec. Light Co., all of Toronto.

A SAFE MANAGEMENT

The entire management is in the hands of a Board of Directors of leading business men— men of executive and financial ability, men of "made reputations," men who can be counted upon to capably and honestly direct the affairs of the enlarged Company, and see that each and every stockholder receives every dollar of the earnings of his stock.

400 FOOT TUNNEL—140 FOOTSHAFT

Mines located near Valardena, Durango, Mexico, only six miles by wagon road and three miles straight line from the property of the Guggenheims upon which they have recently erected a $2,000,000 smelter. Sample assays have averaged from $54 to $103 per ton.

Up to the present time, the Turquoise Copper Co., has been practically a close corporation; an initial offering of 100,000 shares has just been made at 25 cents, par value $1.00, full paid and non-assessable. Proceeds will be used to further continue the development work already begun.

We have options on 50,000 shares of this stock and advise immediate purchase at 25 cents per share. It is the intention of The Board of Directors to list the stock on the New York Curb and it should sell at $1.00 per share by the first of the year.

A TERRIBLE TOLL.

7,000 Men Will Vote Today to Return to Work.

Pittsburg, Sept. 9.—The great strike of the Pressed Steel Car Company workers is passing into the history of industrial struggles. The 7,000 strikers will return to the plant. They signified this determination at a mass meeting by raising their hands.

For fifty-eight days the strikers have kept the plant closed. Eleven men have been killed. Several hundred were wounded two score by gunshot wounds.

Tickling or dry Coughs will quickly loosen when using Dr. Sheop's Cough Remedy. And it is so thoroughly harmless, that Dr. Sheop tells mothers to use nothing else even for very young babies. The wholesome green leaves and tender stems of a long healing mountainous shrub give the curative properties to Dr. Sheop's Cough Cure. It calms the cough and heals the sensitive bronchial membranes. No opium, no chloroform, nothing harsh used to injure or suppress. Demand Dr. Sheop's. Accept no other. Sold by all dealers.

OUT ON THE COD BANKS

A DAY IN THE LIFE OF THE LUNENBURG FISHERMAN.

The Men Who Supply the World With Its Codfish Have a Hard and Dangerous Life—Fifty Tons Is the Average Size of Schooners—Squid Is the Favorite Bait—Casting Is All Done From Dories.

Like that of a policeman, the life of a "Banker" is not a happy one. It is a long record of toilsome endurance, of simple heroism, of the bearing of incredible hardships, of but scant reward.

The great banks of Newfoundland are a rich harvesting ground, and year in, year out, thousands of men exploit them to the full. Not alone do the fishing towns of Canada and the United States send their representatives to the warfare of man against nature; Scotland sends its quota, so does France; in fact, during a good season few seafaring countries but are represented there in some form or other. Cod is the spoil, the wily, elusive cod; valuable as a food, exacting of chase; cheap as to price.

On the principle of fitting the back to the burden, Bankers do not fare forth in little luggers or smacks. They ship themselves aboard large, seaworthy schooners, capable of weathering the hardest gales that ever blow.

These schooners vary in tonnage, but fifty tons is a fair average size. They are manned by eight men usually, sufficient to handle the vessel comfortably in going from port to fishing ground and back, and also in following the fish as they travel from point to point. But this is not their only work; it is a very small part of it. Their real work is to catch fish.

Imagine yourself for the nonce aboard a schooner out of Lunenburg. She is well-found, a comfortable vessel, once possessed of a good turn of speed, for she has been a racer in her day, though now her glory has departed. This speed will serve her in good turn when the holds are full and the homeward race for market commences. The captain is a grizzled veteran, with a down east drawl that you could cut with an axe. But he has a reputation for being able to play the elusive cod at his own game; to "think cod," in short, which means that he can place himself in the position of the fish, and meet every move easy thusly.

It is not a very long journey to the Banks, for the schooner is fast. Once there, the skipper begins to cast about for fish, watching the crested waves narrowly as if he could read their most cherished secrets, as indeed he can. There are certain signs and tokens, known to the Banker, which indicate the presence of cod, or, failing their presence, the direction in which they have traveled; and these signs your skipper reads as an open book. The schooner slips away on its own appointed course, and morning shows a deserted sea.

"Waal, I guess we're here or hereabouts," says the skipper, and the word is passed for work to commence. The schooner's decks have been filled with a number of small boats called dories; double-ended craft, a cross between a ship's dinghy and a Canadian canoe; easily managed by one man, fairly safe in rough weather, and as light as a feather.

Meanwhile the spare hands have been busy for days in baiting vast lengths of cod-line—stout, tough stuff, strong enough to hold a runaway whale in its flurry. Squid or cuttlefish is the favorite bait, for cod loves squid as a trout loves the May fly. At stated intervals along the line hooks are firmly hitched, and each hook receives its piece of bait, after which the line is coiled away into shallow tubs; one tub to each dory, and the material is ready.

The complete equipment of a dory consists of a small anchor, a coir cable, for anchoring the boat; a heavy maul for stunning big fish as they are hauled aboard; a gaff, an axe; a compass, a stock of provisions, a tin horn for fog signals, a pair of sculls, and rowlocks, lamp and oil. All is in readiness, and a start is made at once, for the longer you wait the greater possibility of other schooners encroaching on your chosen ground. Each line is fitted with floats and sinkers at intervals, and your dory is swung outboard by a single whip from the masthead. You lower yourself into it as it touches the water, fit bottom boards and thwarts in place, receive your impedimenta, and start off.

Arrived at the spot you have selected, you commence to throw out your lines, which sink from sight as you pull back on the way you have come, until the entire line is submerged, after which you pull along to your first float, grapple the line—and probably receive some cruel jags from the hooks in so doing, and under-run the apparatus; pulling your dory along by the line, hand over hand, and as each hook comes into view it is more than likely that it holds a big fish.

One by one you pick off the spoil, fling them carelessly into the dory, until you are up to your knees in fish, and when the last hook has been reached you are ready to go back aboard, though as you unhooked each fish you rebaited the hook from the bait tub in the bows, and let the line drop out of sight again.

Such is the Banker's life in fine weather; but in a storm it is full of the grimmest dangers. The blinding blizzards of the Banks sweep down in howling fury, and woe betide the ship that is caught unawares. The mighty Atlantic seas rage on crashingly, and the spray freezes where it falls, so that the schooner becomes but a floating mass of solid ice.

But no matter what the weather the work goes on.

England Increasing.

In England births outnumber deaths by 3 to 2.

It's a pity when sick cause drug the stomach or stimulate the heart and Kidneys. That is all wrong! A weak Stomach means weak Stomach nerves, always. And this is also true of the Heart and Kidneys. The weak nerves are instead crying out for help. This explains why Dr. Ferguson's Restorative is promptly helping the Stomach, Heart and Kidneys. Almost the Restorative reaches out for the actual cause of these ailments—the failing "inside nerves." Anyway test the Restorative 48 hours. It won't cure as soon as that, but you will surely know that help is coming. Sold by all dealers.

HUNTING THE RHEA.

Ostrich-like Bird Furnishes Exciting Sport in Patagonia.

Down in Patagonia one of the principal sports is the chase of the rhea, a member of the ostrich family, but not quite so large as the ostriches we see in the circuses and the zoological gardens. The bird, however, is a swift runner and can set a fast pace for a horse or a greyhound. It has also some sagacity, for frequently it will double on its course and sometimes in that way succeeds in eluding its pursuers altogether. The requisites for the rhea hunter are a horse, a fast dog and a bola. The dog finds the scent of the bird, and the hunter pursues as fast as he can on the horse. When he comes close enough he makes use of the bola. This instrument is made of two or three balls of lead or stone attached to a throng which is six or eight feet long. When it is hurled at the fleeing bird the balls wind about the part where the bola strikes and serve to impede its progress. The hunters and dogs then rush forward and dispatch the rhea.

When the bird sees that it is in danger often it will crouch down flat on the ground and stretch its neck out under the grass and wait until the dogs pass. If the wind is blowing against the scent this ruse often saves the life of the game. If it is discovered it usually is so startled that it makes no effort to escape. The rhea will run for five or six miles on a stretch, and it gives dogs and riders all they can do to keep up with it. But when the game is captured the hunters feel that the chase is worth while, for the wings of the birds are not unlike turkey meat in flavor, and the meat of the thigh has a taste not unlike that of horseflesh, which connoisseurs pronounce very fine.

THE PIPE OF PEACE.

Etiquette of the Calumet Observed by the American Indian.

When you read an account of the conclusion of a treaty with the Indians you are pretty sure to find that the calumet was brought out and handed around. The calumet is a pipe of peculiar construction. The bowl is of red sandstone, and the stem is of reed, about two and a half feet long. The stem is decorated with women's hair and feathers, which hang from it like a fringe.

This pipe is the famous "pipe of peace," used by the American Indian. After a treaty has been concluded the pipe is produced and filled with tobacco. It is then handed to the representatives of the party with whom the treaty has been made, and they must take at least one whiff of it. It is afterward passed around among the Indians present, who also take a whiff of it, and that ceremonial ratifies and makes sacred the compact that has just been entered into. The passing around of the calumet is an act of hospitality, and a refusal to take it is considered a dire offense.—Chicago News.

A Fireside Game.

Word guessing is a good game to play in the evening. One of the players thinks of a word and says, "I have a word of six letters; the first letter is 'g' and the last is 'a.'"

The guessers are allowed to ask any questions they like, which the leader is bound to answer, if he can do so without actually telling the word. The player who guesses the word correctly chooses the next one, and a prize is won by the player guessing the largest number of words.

An Order For the Grocer.

Good morning, Mr. Grocer Boy! My order's long today.
My pantry's nearly empty now, because I've been away.
I want a pound of this white flour and yeast to make some bread,
Ten pounds of currants for a cake, some baking powder red.
Of butter give me half a pound, of sugar most a ton.
I must make candy right away, before the morning's done.
Potatoes? Why, of course I don't. And cabbage? No, indeed!
You interrupt and bother me. I know the things I need.

A quart of strong vanilla bring, and honey, too, and spice.
A pound of nutmegs—don't forget—it makes things taste so nice.
I want ten dozen freshest eggs, some unpasteurized cream
And apples, "least a peck or two; some dumplings I must steam.
I'll take a box of oranges and chocolate, five cakes,
And cottonseed ointment—such lovely things it makes!
Now, hurry up my order, please. I want them very soon,
So I can get them all cooked up for luncheon time this noon.
—Smith's Companion.

Fought Under Nelson.

The name of James Hexton, who for seventy-six years has resided in Queensland, was among the list of old-age pensioners recently approved by the Home Secretary. Hexton is said to be the first white man born in Queensland, first seeing the light at the home of Dr. Ballow, whose residence stood on the site of the present Royal Navy, and fought under Nelson, and also had the honor of being the first pilot in Moreton Bay. He met his death by being taken by a shark.

Noisy Avians.

The bellbird, which makes perhaps in its natural state the greatest noise of any known avian, is found both in South America and certain parts of Africa. Its voice will carry on a still day a distance of quite three miles. Its note is like the tolling of a distant church bell and is uttered during the heat of the day, when every other bird has ceased to sing and nature is hushed in silence. The hornbill, a bird which is widely distributed in India, the Malay archipelago and Africa, has also a very loud note. Its call has been described as "between the shriek of a locomotive and the bray of a donkey" and can be heard a distance of a couple of miles.

Papa (who is reading an account of the latest heavyweight fight)—Alfred, you would better employ yourself with your Sunday school lesson. I'm too busy now to explain.

Alfred (still thirsting for knowledge)—Did it mean the same as bees on bicycles when you telephoned last night that as mamma was away you were going out on a bat?

Mamma (who is always listening)—Reginald Ridgely, you will take three nights now to make two explanations, with the most important one coming to me.

A Mild Reproach.

One cold morning little Elsie was being bathed by her mother, and usually her bath was a great delight to her. But this morning her mother talked incessantly while she worked.

Elsie loved her dearly and tried hard to be patient. But the lecture was so tiresome! Her mother was laying out a course of conduct for the day, and it was all so old. She had heard it over and over again.

Finally she said very sweetly, but very wearily: "Please, mamma, don't talk any more. You do make such a draft!"

Jerry Needn't Bother.

It was the beloved and lamented Monsignor Connolly, of the Church of St. John the Baptist, at St. John, N.B., who noticed an old parishioner stealing a glance at his watch as the text was read out one fine summer morning.

"It's just twenty minutes past eleven, Jerry Callahan, and at a quarter to twelve I'll be through, so you can save yourself the trouble of taking your watch out of your pocket," said his reverence, and proceeded with the sermon.

HISTORIC WEAPONS.

Trophies Wrested From the Crusaders Found in the Sudan.

Among the trophies of arms displayed on the walls of Windsor castle one of the most interesting of the long series is a group of weapons and armor sent to Queen Victoria by Lord Kitchener after the Dongola campaign on the upper Nile in 1896.

The trophy consists of a coat of chain mail, a number of spears and a long cross hilted sword. On the straight steel blade of the sword there is an inscription in odd fashioned letters: "No me saques sin razon. No me entraines sin honor."

The words are Spanish, but the same motto was inscribed on sword blades in the days of chivalry in most of the languages of Europe. Its meaning is the knightly rule for all who bear the sword: Do not draw me without reason. Do not sheathe me without honor.

The weapon was taken from the abandoned camp of Wad Bishara, the dervish general, after the battle of Hafir (Sept. 23, 1898). How came a blade with such a motto to be found in a Moslem bivouac in the heart of the Sudan?

The presence of these crusader swords in the Sudan is not so difficult to explain. In the thirteenth century the Mohammedan caliphs of Egypt not only carried on successful wars against the crusaders in Syria, destroying the last vestiges of the Latin kingdom of Jerusalem, but also defeated two attempts of the Europeans to invade Egypt itself, one of them led by St. Louis of France.

Enormous quantities of western arms and warlike equipments must have thus passed into the possession of the Mohammedan conquerors.—Chambers' Journal.

A Way Out.

Servant—A newspaper reporter wishes to interview your sir.

Great Man—Did you not tell him I was hoarse—could hardly speak?

Servant—Certainly, sir! But he assured me he would only ask questions which you could answer by a nod or a shake of the head.

Great Man—Then tell him I have a stiff neck.

PERSONAL

Mr. Howard Chambers of the Examiner staff, has severed his connection with the mechanical department and is leaving for the United States.

Dr. and Mrs. Nulty leave today for St. Catharines to attend the wedding of Dr. McNulty's brother to Miss Lena McLean, daughter of Mr. John McLean of Merriton, after which the doctor and his wife will visit New York City. The doctor will resume practice on October. 1.

Mr. Max Hamilton, second son of Mrs. Hamilton of Auburn, is in the city on a visit to his mother. Mr. Hamilton, who is manager of the Hudson Bay post at Great Slave Lake, made the long distance journey from that far away point to Peterborough. He speaks well of the prospects of the west which this year are an improvement over recent years.

Rev. E. A. Pearson, pastor of George street Methodist church, who has been on a trip to the Old Country, is expected home today. He will be tendered a congregational reception at the church on Wednesday evening.

Mrs. C. E. Sisson (nee Miss Mabel Gillespie) will receive for the first time since her marriage on Thursday afternoon and evening, September 17th, at her residence, 546 Gilmour street.

Mrs. H. Bradburn and daughter Thelma, of Winnipeg, who have been the guest of friends here, have gone to Toronto, where they will join Mr. Bradburn. Miss Thelma will remain in Toronto at the Veal's College as a student.

Mrs. J. M. Stewart, C.S.D., who is the pioneer Christian Scientist in Ontario, and who was called by Mrs. Eddy to Boston to assist in the work there three years ago, has returned to Toronto, and is residing at her former residence on Walmer road.

Mr. and Mrs. Archie Lang of Montreal, Que., are visiting in the city.

Dr. Joe Middleton and Mr. Jas. Middleton returned from a trip to Edmonton yesterday morning.

T. Donaldson, H. McCullough, J. Tromblin and J. Cox, have returned from Toronto, where they spent a few days taking in the sights of the big fair.

Mrs. R. R. Hall returned on Saturday after a month's visit to the seashore and with friends in Boston.

Roy Kennedy of Parry Sound Bank staff, visited his aunt, Mrs. J. Tomblin, 223 Antrim street, the last of the week.

Miss Jennie Lundy has returned to her home in this city after spending an enjoyable holiday in New York and Toronto.

Mr. T. Mullett, district agent for the Policy Holders' Mutual Life Assurance Company, has moved from 392 Rogers street, and is now living at 709 Aylmer street.

Mrs. W. A. Greenslade has returned from a short vacation among friends in Toronto, and will resume her class in pianoforte, harmony and theory, at her studio, 189 King street.

ILL HEALTH, ITS CAUSE.

Sluggishness of Liver and Bowels.

It took me a long time to learn, and big doctors' bills in the bargain writes Mr. Ogilby, of Winnipeg, that the disturbance of my system was due simply to liver and bowel inactivity. A sleepiness and languor extinguished my old time ambition. I fear irritability of temper added little to the comfort of my family, yet the headaches, general misery and melancholy forebodings that weighed me down ought to be considered. Tonics, electric treatment and mineral waters in turn failing to cure me, the advertising of Dr. Hamilton's Pills and the testimonials supporting the claim of great medicinal virtue induced me to try them. The result of even the first box made clear that my own body was making its own poison, that by driving it from the system and removing the cause which undoubtedly resided in the liver and bowels, by Dr. Hamilton's Pills, my health would be as good as ever.

It seems certain to me that more than half the sickness we see about us is caused by carelessness in keeping the bowels open and the liver active. Dr. Hamilton's Pills I found do both, and do it better than other remedies. 25c. per box, at all dealers or The Catarrhozone Co., Kingston, Canada.

Board of Health Were Offended at Council

The Board of Health did not make any motion to the effect that they approved of the expenditure of $12,000 for the building of a new isolation hospital. The members of the Board feel that they have not been fairly dealt with in connection with the matter. They were never shown the plans, and at the metting yesterday morning the Board decided not to express any opinion, as asked for by the council.

The members present at the meeting yesterday morning were the chairman, Dr. Burnham, Mayor Rush, and Messrs. Johnston, Murty and Edgar.

The minutes of last meeting were read and confirmed.

The following communications were read and acted upon.

From J.A.Ash, asking for permission to build cesspool in front of his residence, 711 Bethune street, the same to do for two houses.

On motion of Messrs. Johnston and Murty, the request was granted on condition that the cesspool be built under the supervision of the health authorities, and that in the event of a sewer being constructed at the point connections to be made.

From W. H. Walkey and John Mathieson asking that they be given sewer connection on Benson street.

On motion of Messrs. Johnston and Edgar the request was granted.

From City Engineer Hay, giving his report on the proposed sewer to be built on Romaine and Crescent streets.—Received.

From S. Clegg, asking that a sewer be built on Antrim street, west of the Grand Trunk Railway tracks for a distance of 160 feet.

On motion of Messrs. Johnston and Murty, the board will recommend that the request of Mr. Clegg be granted on sanitary grounds.

WANTS EXPENSE MONEY.

A letter was read from Mr. R. L. Sargrinson asking payment of account amounting to $6.58 for provisions during the term he was quarantined, and an account for $30.60 for wages lost.

What Proposition Has C.P.R. Got for Gity

His Worship the Mayor brought up the matter of the water front at the Committee of the Whole Council. He reminced the council that the C.P.R. had requested the city not to dispose of the property until the C.P.R. was heard from. That 'was some weeks ago and nothing has been heard ofsince. The Peterborough Canoe Company are very anxious to get that portion of the land at the rear of their factory, so that they can go ahead with the enlargement of their factory.

The committee, however, decided that the mayor should write Mr. Leonard of the C.P.R., and ask him for the company's proposition re the water front to be submitted at once.—Carried.

The fruits of the city's efforts towards improving the fire protection of the city have finally ripened. City Clerk S.R. Armstrong made the joyful announcement to the Manufacturers' Committee on Monday night. He received a letter that day from Mr. John A. Robertson, secretary of the Canadian Fire Underwriters' Association, stating that Peterborough had been given a cut in their key rate of insurance of 25c. per $100. This it is expected will affect every person in the city who is carrying fire insurance to an extent corresponding with the amount of insurance carried.

The old key rate was 60c. for Peterborough and 75c. for Ashburnham. Now that Ashburnham is part of the city they will receive the new rate takes effect with committee of 1908 had to do the same rate as Peterborough proper, thus making a reduction of 36c. for Ashburnham, while the city's rate is nearly cut in half.

each policy holder upon his renewal and will affect those adding to the amount already carried. What this means to each policy holder can easily be figured out for themselves. To the large property owners in the business districts and to the manufacturers, except those with a sprinkler system, it will mean thousands of dollars per year, while the householders will get the same benefit every three years in proportion to the amount of insurance carried. Thus it will be seen that where the great benefits of the paid and modernly equipped fire brigade come in. Financially, it is an immense saving while as a protection of property against fires it is a great improvement.

The people, as a whole, will now begin to, not only realize, but appreciate the wisdom of last year's council in making the improvement to the fire department and this year's council in following up the case and securing this big reduction from the Underwriters' Association. The Fire, Water & Light Committee of last year and this year especially deserve credit for the part they took in this campaign. While the bulk of the work the committee of 1909 followed in their wake and wound the matter up. Several deputations waited upon the officers of the Underwriters' Association and urged the city's claims. Fire Chief Howard also took in active part in this part of the campaign, and on two occasions met Secretary Robertson in Toronto, and urged upon him the advisability of dealing generously with Peterborough for the influence it would have upon other municipalities who would quickly see the advantage of building up and equiping their fire departments.

It is also understood that a still further reduction will be granted when the water works improvement are completed. By that time Peterborough will have a fairly respectable key rate of insurance and the people will not begrudge the money spent on the fire department and the water works.

This will also be an extra inducement to manufacturers to locate in Peterborough—the city of cheap electrical power, good transportation facilities and the lowest key rate of insurance in the Province.

Electric Lights for Riverside Park for The Rugby Practices

A good meeting of the Rugby Association was held at the Armories last night when most of the teams in the City League as well as the members of the executive committee and of the Senior O.R.F.U. team were present President D. Walker was in the chair. The senior teams represented were the Stratheonas and T.A.S., and the juniors were T.A.S., Collegiate Institute, Rough Riders and Y.M.C.A. The age limit of the juniors was fixed at under 21 years on the 2nd of October next.

The offer of the Riverside Park people for the use of their grounds was accepted and the practice games will be started on Saturday after the ball game when the O.R.F.U. team will have their first work out. Four poles have been placed at one end of the grounds and at least four arc lamps will be hung so that the boys can practice after dark. This will be a great feature this year. It is a new thing and as the boys are out to win the O.R.F.U. senior championship they intend to practice every spare hour they have. The lights will be strung as soon as possible.

The matter of drawing up the schedule for the City League was left in the hands of the secretary Mr. Fred Craig, and he will have it ready by tonight.

A meeting of the O.R.F.U. team will be held on Saturday night at the armories and all the players are asked to be present.

Who Will Build New Smith Street Bridge

Who will build the Smith street bridge? It has not been definitely settled yet. Messrs. Begy & Co., of St. Catharines, have been relieved of their tender, and the committee decided to give the contract to Messrs E. & F. Conroy. Those gentlemen would not state off hand whether they would accept the contract or not but promised to do so by noon today.

The matter was taken up by the Committee of the Whole Council last night.

Those present were Mayor Rush, Aldermen Duncan, Metheral' McIntyre, Morgan, Phelan, Duffus, Turner, Hicks, Gillespie, Bradburn and Morrow.

The first matter taken up was the Smith street bridge contract, which was awarded to Messrs. Begy & Co., of St. Catharines. It will be remembered that this firm requested to have their tender withdrawn and their cheque returned. Mr. Begy was present and again told the aldermen his reasons for making the request; the reasons were entirely uncontrollable so far as he was concerned.

After Mr. Begy had retired Ald. Turner stated that this was probably the best thing that could have happened the city as it is posible to build a bridge 200 or 300 feet further up the stream and it would cost several thousand dollars less.

Other aldermen said that that was looked into before and it would cost a big sum of money to purchase rights of ways and to fill up a narrow lane.

The mayor asked what the council intended to do with Mr. Begy.

The city solicitor said the council could return the cheque to Mr. Begy so far as the legal part was concerned. He could not see, however, how the council could justify its action.

Ald. Turner said he was glad Mr. Begy had not signed the contract it meant much to the city as Mr. Begy was not in a position to make good in case any inferior work was done. It would be better to have the work done by a responsible firm. So far as returning Begy's cheque the alderman said if he consulted his own feelings he would return it.

The aldermen considered the matter thoroughly, and it was decided that:—

Moved by Aldermen Turner and Duffus, that in view of Messrs. Begy & Co., having withdrawn their tender, that the contract be awarded to Messrs. Conroy and if the moving of the bridge a few feet as pointed out by the Messrs. Conroy letter would save the city $1,000, and the bridge would not be injured that the bridge be so placed. —Carried.

Mr. E. Conroy was present and he was asked to explain his letter re the moving of the location of the bridge. He said that he wanted to move it east and south. This, however did not suit the council and the bridge will likely remain as the plans call for.

Mr. Conroy was asked if his tender was good. He said yes, but that he should be allowed something on account of the advance in cement. He would give a decided answer on Wednesday noon. If he could still get cement at $1.10 he would be ready to start the work at once.

There was some talk about the motion being withdrawn but no action in that matter was taken.

Mr. Conroy was again heard. He said that if the city would guarantee him cement at $1.25 and that if the engineer would allow him to use the timber in the pier he would accept the contract. This the committee could hardly do right off give his answer at noon on Wednesday.

BROCK STREET ROLLERS.

Handsome New Rink was Crowded on the Opening Night.

Hundreds of people flocked to the new roller rink at the Brock street rink last night. It was the opening of the season, and it was the first night for the Brock street Roller Rink Company, of which Prof. Genno is the general manager. That gentleman and his associates are to be congratulated upon furnishing so fine a place of amusement for the people of Peterborough. The Brock street rink is an ideal place for roller skating and it is beyond all expectations. The floor is as near perfection as it is possible to get it. There is practically no noise caused by the skaters and the place is so large and airy that it is a real pleasure to be there even on a hot night as last night was. Then the rink is very prettily decorated which adds to the attractiveness of it and the music furnished by the band was of a high order.

The opening night was a decided success, some four hundred skaters being on the floor as well as a large crowd of spectators. The Brock street roller rink promises to be the most popular place of amusement in the city for the next few months.

HAZEL STAYS HOME.

Police Court Case at Havelock Clears the Parents.

Hazel Brennan, the young girl taken from her home in Havelock a short time ago by the Children's Aid Society will remain at home in future. She states that she is quite contented there and happy, and that she was not punished any more than she deserved.

As a result of the Children's Aid Society's action a police court case was held in Havelock yesterday before Magistrate Edmison. Mr. and Mrs. Reginald Brennan were acquitted of abusing their daughter Hazel. Mr. Basil Hall apeared for the society and Mr. Gordon for the defendants. The magistrate after hearing the evidence of the prosecution, decided that it was not sufficient to make an order committing the girl to the care of the society. Mr. Gordon put Hazel in the box and she said she was happy and contented at home, and was not punished more than she deserved.

The witnesses were cleared and it was found that there was not any grounds for the action.

As a result of the case Mr. and Mrs. Brennan's names and characters are cleared.

CANADA CLAIMS ALL.

All Land Lying at Pole Belongs to Us.

Ottawa, Sept. 14.—It is understood that at recent meetings of the Cabinet Council the discovery of the North Pole, and the planting of the Stars and Stripes thereon, has been a subject of discussion. A question as to the ownership of all the land intervening between the pole and the territory now marked as Canadian on the map has been put by Sir Gilbert Parker in the British House, and the answer will be given today. It is understood that the Canadian Government has sent to the Colonial Office a statement intimating that Canada claims all the land intervening between the American border and the North Pole.

All the known islands in the Arctic ocean west of Greenland were formally taken possession of for Canada two years ago by Captain Bernier, Commander Peary in his report of his trip does not tell of finding any land north of Grant Land, which is recognized as Canadian territory. From there to the pole is evidently an ice covered ocean. Consequently although Canada claims all land as far north as the pole as being part of the Canadian Hinterland, there is not likely to be any basis for any rival United States claim to ownership.

THE BIG COMIC OPERA

At the Russell Theater, Ottawa, all Fair Week—The "Gay Musician

Of the many musical attractions presented in Ottawa last season, the most popular was the charming Comic Opera "The Gay Musician" by Julian Edwards, and presented by John P. Slocum's Company.

Nothing but praise was heard after "The Gay Musician" was sung and many inquiries were afterwards made as to whether the comic opera would be heard again in Canada.

After considerable nevotiation, Manager Slocum has been induced to bring his Company this season and "THE GAY MUSICIAN" will be the attraction at the Russel Theater for Fair Week, opening Monday evening, Sept. 13th, with matinees on Wednesday and Saturday afternoons.

An entire new scenic production and the most costly costuming will be presented with a superb singing company of principals, the most beautiful of showgirls, a remarkable posy ballet and the best singing in America. Manager Slocum is known for "doing things lavishly" and this season is no exception for he has excelled himself in presenting to the public the best company which numbers 75 people, that could be secured in the theatrical field.

The entire press of Toronto say that the "GAY MUSICIAN" is the very best Comic opera seen there in years.

Visitors to Ottawa Fair are certainly in good luck in having a chance of hearing this excellent organization.

OBITUARY

ALEX. TURNER.

Alexander Turner, a pioneer resident of Otonabee, passed away Monday morning at his home in that township. He was eighty-one years of age, and a native of Scotland. He settled in Otonabee when a young man and had lived in that township all his life. He first owned a farm near Blezard's, and later moved to the farm where his death occurred, near Drummond's station, between the tenth and eleventh lines of Otonabee. He was a member of the Westwood Methodist church.

The late Mr. Turner is survived by a widow, one daughter, Mrs. Frank Pratt of Peterborough, and one son, Mr. Alex. Turner of Otonabee. The funeral took place yesterday afternoon at three o'clock to the Methodist church at Westwood, and the remains were interred in the Westwood cemetery.

MRS. JOHN MOFFAT.

Mrs. John Moffat died yesterday morning at 10 o'clock at the residence of her son-in-law, Mr. Alex. Gibson, 585 George street, at the advanced age of 83 years. While summering with the famiit at Stony Lake she was taken suddenly ill last week, and was removed to her home, but she never rallied. The deceased was the daughter of the late Archibald Haggart, and the relict of the late John Moffat. She came to Peterborough with her father over 70 years ago, when this city was a very small hamlet. She leaves to survive her three daughters, Mrs. C. E. Starr and Miss Violet Moffat, both of Toronto, and Mrs. Alex. Gibson of this city. Her only brother, Mr. Alex. Haggart, K. C., M.P., of Winnipeg, has arrived the day previous to her demise.

The funeral will take place Thursday afternoon at 2.30 o'clock from the residence of Mr. Gibson.

MADE PRESENTATION.

Honor Due to Stewart Laing, Who is Leaving for Queen's.

A special meeting of St. Andrew's Sunday School Association was convened last night to bid farewell to Mr. Stewart Laing, who for some years has been the most efficient secretary of the Sunday school. Mr. Laing leaves on the 11.26 train for Queen's University, Kingston, where he enters upon the science course.

The Rev. J. G. Potter presided the teachers' meeting and the following address accompanied the presentation of a handsome copy of the Scriptures, the presentation being made by Mr. Cornish.

Dear Mr. Laing—

On the eve of your departure for Queen's University we deem it our privilege to meet as teachers and officers of Saint Andrew's church Sunday School Association to give some expression to our sense of loss at your departure, and to assure of our hearty good wishes for your abundant success in your university work, and in the department of active life to which you have decided to devote your attention. We desire you to carry with you the esteem of all the officers and teachers of our Sunday school, who have been associated for some years with you, and may you always know that your devotion to duty, your ever abiding interest in the welfare of the school, and your uniform kindness and courtesy have always been recognized and appreciated.

MAROONED IN NIAGARA.

Quartette for 18 Hours Live in Agony of Doubt.

Niagara Falls, N.Y., Sept. 13.—For thirteen hours, George Feiz and Harry Porter with two companions, were marooned in a smak launch on a bar out in the river less than a mile from the point where the river breaks into the turnulent rapids.

The boat went aground about 7 o'clock last night, and it was not until 8 o'clock this morning that it was released, and the party, half dead from cold anf fright, taken off.

The absence of a wind was all that saved the boat, and its four passengers from being swept over the falls.

Just off the spot where the boat grounded the water is deep and the current very swift. There was a dense fog over the river all night, and even if the launch had lifted off the reef, the men would have been in a worse plight than before, for it would have been a hard matter to make shore with the lights obscured and a margin of only a quarter of a mile between them and the rapids.

All throughthe night the men kept calling for help, but their voices failed to reach any ear along the shore.

When John W. Broderick, a riverman, went out early today, and pulled them in the men were in a state of collapse.

Several years ago the Ella H. went aground on the same reef and ponded to pieces.

CADETS ORGANIZED.

A Hundred and Fifty Collegiate Boys in Line for the Drill.

The organization of the Peterborough Collegiate Institute Cadet Co., took place Monday afternoon at 3.30 there being 150 boys in the turnout. A few of the first instructions were given by Lieut. Hodgson. Mr. Hodgson laid special stress on the fact that the boys should walk with their heads erect and procure caps that will enable them to face the sun and carry out this order.

The next drill will be held on Wednesday, and the officers will be assigned to their positions.

Why the flag was up at the Institute Monday, was a subject of much discussion and debate, the debaters evidently did not remember that Monday was the 105th anniversary of the Battle of the Plains of Abrahma.

The annual meeting of the Girls' Athletic Association of the Collegiate Institute for the nomination of officers was held in the Assembly Hall yesterday evening.

Harvest Home.

Annual harvest home services will be held in Park street Baptist church on Sunday next. It will include the Sunday school rally as well and great preparations are being made for the event.

CAMEL FLESH A DAINTY.

Likely to Become Popular Among Wealthy in Paris.

Paris Sept. 13.—Camel flesh is to become the most fashionable dish for the tables of the very wealthy during the coming winter.

The purveyor who last spring first introduced camel to the Parisian dinner table has received instructions to supply camel once weekly to a score of Paris millionaires.

Interviewed today he said: "By way of a trial we brought camel flesh to Paris last winter. It has become so much in request that we have cut up and sold no fewer than four entire camels. We have placed orders with our camel butchers in Africa for the fatening of a number of the animals for next winter. It is in winter that camel has its best flavor."

Camel flesh is very expensive. A leg cannot be sold for less than $5 a pound.

When the stomach fails to perform its functions, the bowels become deranged, the liver and the kidneys congested, causing numerous diseases. The stomach and liver must be restored to a healthy condition and Chamberlain's Stomach and Liver Tablets will be found equal to the task. They tone and invigorate

PUBLIC MEETING.

Rev. Mr. Crafts Will Address Meeting on Moral Reform Bureau.

The Rev. Dr. Wilbur F. Crafts, M. A., superintendent of the International Reform Bureau, with headquarters in Washington, D.C., and who has just returned from the World's Congress of Moral Reform, recently convened in the Old Land, will visit Montreal, Kingston, Belleville Peterborough and Toronto, during the first week in October.

As it will be a particular privilege to hear Dr. Crafts, his advent will be looked forward to with great interest and pleasure.

The public meeting will be arranged for Friday, October 8, and will be held in a central auditorium.

CATCH BASIN.

Work was started yesterday on the catch basin in front of Mr. Barrie's store to carry off the surface water in the time of heavy rains and spring floods. This is a good piece of work and will save the city considerable money in future as there will not likely be any more claims for damages from the stores in that neighborhood from flooding cellars. There are several other catch basins needed for similar purposes in other parts of the city.

Chamberlain's Stomach and Liver Tablets gently stimulate the liver and bowels to expel poisonous matter, cleanse the system, cure constipation and sick headache. 3

FAIR FOOTBALL.

R. R. Hall Trophy to Be Competed for by Brintons' and Havelock.

Havelock Football team, champion of the Midland League, have accepted the defi of the Brinton Carpet Company eleven, and the two teams will meet at the Peterborough Fair to struggle for the possession of the R. R. Hall Trophy. The game will be played either Friday or Saturday afternoon. The Havelock boys want to play on Friday but the program for that day is pretty well filled up and Secretary Hall is trying hard to arrange the game on Saturday. The Havelock team is one of the strongest in the Province and they expect to defeat the Brinton aggregation, which is composed largely of Old Country players. It should be a good match.

DOWNIE STREET CREEK.

The Board of Works visited the Downie street creek in the neighborhood of Mr. Tomlin's property yesterday morning in automobiles. They saw the creek and found it in a mixed up condition. They saw the property owners and the probability is that the matter will soon be settled.

Excavations Started On $22,000 Church

A construction permit was taken out at the city clerk's office yesterday for the new church to be built by Knox congregation. It is estimated the cost will be $22,000, and it is expected that it will be completed by September of next year. The basement is to be of concrete and brick, and the walls of brick about 16 inches thick. It will be 120x80 feet and will contain six rooms. Simpson and Young of Toronto, are the architects, but the name of the contractor has not yet been announced.

The first sod was turned yesterday and the excavation will be proceed with as rapidly as possible. It is expected that the foundation will be completed this year and the brick work will be started next spring.

The work is being done by day labor and is in charge of Messrs. McCannon and Stuartes.

100 New Steel Lockers for Y.M.C.A.

At a meeting of the Board of Directors of the Y.M.C.A., last night it was decided to install 100 new steel lockers of the latest design in the small locker room in the basement. These lockers are made of steel by the Federal Steel Fixture Company of Chicago to whom the contract was awarded. They are 42 inches high, 12 inches wide and 14 inches deep. They are fitted with three-way locker attachment and combination locks so that it will F.U. team was present. President owner to get into them. They are also well ventilated and afford lots of room. The members of the association who use the lockers will be glad to learn of the board's decision in this matter.

The secretary, Mr. Hassard, notified the board that thus far he has been unable to secure a physical director of the standard required to take charge of the department this season. He will however continue his search and hopes to be successful shortly.

Too Hoarse to Speak

An American Doctor Tells of the Grand Results Achieved With "Nerviline."

"I had a patient with Quinsy that I found great difficulty in curing," states Dr. Wilson. "Every time he caught cold or got chilled he suffered intensely from sore throat, huskiness, throat and chest soreness. After every attack his throat and chest seemed more sensitive. This patient lived in the country, and couldn't come to the city for treatment. I concluded that the NERVILINE best remedy would CURES be an honest Lini- ment, and because of its enormous sale QUINSY and well-known merit, I advised 'Nerviline'. Morning, noon, and night Nerviline was rubbed over the neck and once a day diluted with water it was used as a gargle. In a day or two my patient reported an improvement, and by continuing the treatment with Nerviline he was cured. I can recommend Nerviline for breaking up colds, for chest tightness, throat inflammation, quinsy, tonsilitis and similar conditions."

Not a druggist or doctor who has examined the formula of Nerviline who won't tell you how good it is—why it contains the best medicaments known to science and for general family use has no equal. 25

WEDNESDAY, SEPT. 15, 1909.

NO SELF MADE MEN.

It is a sign of the times that the pleasant little fiction comprised in the term "self-made man" is in much less general use than it was a few years ago.

Either folks are beginning to believe that there is no such thing as the self-made man, or else all of the so-called self-made men are too busy at some useful or other occupation to spend any time in self-congratulation.

As a matter of fact, there are no self-made men in the full sense of that term. We are each of us the sum of traits received from our ance-tors from our environment, from our associations.

Many of our ambitions and longings that lead us on to earnest endeavor are instilled into us by others or are given by inheritance.

Some men are less the procuct of environment than others. There are men of genius, a genius received perhaps from a long line of fine ancestors, who rise superior to their environments.

There are some men who carve their way into a new and better environment. But however far one may wander from his primary surroundings, the trend and direction of his path is likely to be shaped by them.

The young Hindu naturally becomes a Buddhist, the young Turk a Mohammedan. They adopt the religion, the politics, the customs of their fathers because they know, and did they have the choice, they might perchance become something different, tho not likely.

So even in the more enlightened countries, tho less so than in others, influences outside ourselves make for greatness or our downfall. Many a self-made man is really made what he is by a devoted wife or mother.

There is nothing hopeless in this doctrine. There ought to be every inspiration to make the most of what is given to us as a heritage, and which then becomes ours.

No one can become a self-made man but everyone may build the finest possible structure of character with the material that is brought to his hands by others, and that is better than being a man apart, and owning no obligation to anyone or anything.

ELIXER OF LIFE.

"Resting is rusting", declared the late Sir Theodore Martin, who recently died at an advanced age. Sir Theodore Martin was practically the last of the mid-Victorian courtiers. He wrote the life of Prince Albert and had access to private correspondence of Queen Victoria, by whom he was greatly trusted. There is a great deal of talk about this being an age of hurry, unrest and strenuous labor, but there seems to be more holidays and recreation than was formerly the case, and it is a question whether the present generation does work as hard as did their ancestors. Sir Theodore has no sympathy with what he termed the "restlessness" and slackness' of modern times and he believed the best elixir of life was work, and nothing picks up a man or woman so well as a little extra work. As a young man he placed extra irons in the fire and as he grew old he never allowed his interest to wane in the movements of the time, and he wrote and read and actively engaged in various duties which he had undertaken with as much zest as if his future depended upon it. He always found time for social life, and never took much sleep Whether his enemas of action could be generally adopted with success may be a question of doubt, but experience teaches an indisputable fact that is that idleness works mental and physical destruction, and that the wider one's interests and the more actively pursued, the better it is for his health, mind and morals.

"You may diet, you may spend a fortune in cures, you may obey every new rule of health laid down, but you will neither keep well, nor amiable, nor agreeable, nor will you achieve exceptional length of days, unless your mental machinery is kept in constant use." There is too much clamor about the strenuousness of modern life, and it is apt to lead to poverty, discontent and degeneracy. Healthful activity of mind and body is the best panacea against the ills which are apt to fall to the lot of humanity.

Drive Rheumatism out of the blood with Dr. Shoop's Rheumatic Remedy and see how quickly pain will depart. Rub-ons never did reach the real disease. Rheumatism isn't in the skin. It's deep down—it's constitutional. Getting rid of the pain, is after all, what counts. That is why Dr. Shoop's Rheumatic Remedy goes by word of mouth from one to another. And herein lies the popularity of this Remedy. It is winning defenders everywhere. Tablets or Liquid. Sold by all dealers.

MAN SWELLS WITH AIR.

Inmate of Passaic Hospital Cannot Exhale Freely and Grows Larger With Every Breath.

With one lung punctured by a broken rib Anthony Nato of Passaic N. J. is puffing up like a bellows with every breath of air he takes, and the physicians of the General Hospital there, who have been thus far unable to remedy the extraordinary condition, are perplexed and alarmed as to what the result will be.

Nato was driving with some friends in New York when their horses bolted, and he was thrown from the carriage, the wheels of which passed over him. He was seriously hurt and was hurriedly taken home by his companions. Soon after they reached Jersey City Nato's arms and face began to swell, and he was conveyed quickly to the hospital in Passaic.

There the physicians were amazed to find that his whole body was puffed out, as if air had been pumped into him. A careful examination was made and then it was discovered that several of his ribs had been fractured and that part of one of them had penetrated the right lung. As a result every time he took a breath a quantity of the volume of air was unable to find exit, the consequence being that the more he breathed the larger he grew.

The case is a rare one, and it is believed that only a delicate operation, involving the removal of the injured rib and the restoration of the breathing functions to their normal capacity can save the man's life.

Soreness of the muscles, whether induced by violent exercise or injury is quickly relieved by the free application of Chamberlain's Liniment. This Liniment is equally valuable for muscular rheumatism, and always affords quick relief. 4

HEN WITH SNAKE'S HEAD.

Freak in Possession of Peoria Horseshoer Attracts Many Visitors.

A chicken with a head like a snake's, that hisses, darts its tongue like a snake, its beady dyes glistening with horrible fascination, is in possession of Dick Grider, the horseshoer at Peoria, Ill., and is one of the most remarkable freaks ever turned up in that vicinity. Mr. Grider purchased it from a man who bought it from a Hebrew chicken buyer, the buyer gladly selling it cheap to get rid of the clammy thing.

The freak is a large blue barred Plymouth Rock chicken, and was hatched out one and a half years ago in the country near by. It is a hen, and aside from its remarkable head and stub feet, is the same as any other chicken of its species.

The head is of the usual size, but it is a snake's head. Where the bill should be is a snake's mouth, out of which its tongue is continually darting. The tongue is solid and not divided like those of a snake. The inside of the mouth is exactly like that of a snake. The head is almost entirely devoid of feathers. When walking around the extraordinary chicken hisses when any one approaches. When it eats or takes water to drink it eats like a snake.

Another peculiar thing about the chicken is that when it is on the ground the head is a bright, rosy red. But as soon as it is picked up the head turns to a sickly yellow, while the jaws vibrate like those of an adder. The hen never laid an egg, and when it is with other chickens the others of the flock avoid it and will not alloow it near.

If Sick

Don't risk even one single penny!

And I will tell you why I say this.

It is because every package of Dr. Shoop's medicine is absolutely free if it fails.

No one need risk even one single penny.

Just think what this means to the suffering sick!

No pills, no dopes, nothing whatever unless benefit is apparent after 30 full days, and without the asking of a penny, you can use either of my remedies—Dr. Shoop's Restorative or Dr. Shoop's Rheumatic Remedy.

Why take any chances whatever?

Why purchase any medicine whose maker does not back it just as I do by this remarkable offer?

And besides, I am no stranger to you.

My No Relief—No Pay Book is inside Dr. Shoop's Restorative bottle, for sale at every drug store in the land. The Restorative, I said. We take no chances whatever here.

For twenty years Dr. Shoop's medicines have become thoroughly standardized all over America.

And I have permitted honest and responsible druggists in every city, village every where to sell my remedies on this plan. Thus satisfied druggists are glad to buy medicines with the risk—and the entire risk is mine alone.

Just write me first for an order.

I have an agent in almost every community—but all druggists are not authorized to grant the 30 day test.

So drop me a line, please—and thus save all disappointments and delays.

Besides, you are free to consult me by letter as you would your home physician. Do so freely and fully—if you desire. My advice and the book letters are yours—and without cost. Perhaps a word or two from me will clear up some baffling ailment. I have helped thousands upon thousands by my private prescription or personal advice alone.

Besides, the books will open up new and helpful ideas to you. They tell of my 39 years experience at the bedside. All about the symptoms, the cause, the right and wrong methods of treatment are told of here. They tell of the home treatment of many ailments. They point the way to health for many sufferers. They prove to the utmost the truthfulness of my statements. How the Stomach and Kidneys each have their inside or power nerve. How these organs send a failure when their nerve power runs low. How to bolster up these nerves and thus help the organs to health. How Dr. Shoop's Restorative gives to the inside nerves the health and vitality which alone makes them able to do their work. And prices! I cannot tell you here what they are, but I can say that they are within the reach of anybody. My book is worth a fortune to any sick man or woman, and it is yours, while it is fresh, for the asking. Just address me personally, Dr. Shoop, Box 5, Racine, Wis.

WHAT GREAT NORTH MEANS

Impressions gained on a Trip with the Legislative Party.

A million dollars a year are spent by the Dominion Government for the encouragement of immigration. Ontario pays well on to half that amount. It is a peculiar situation to say the least of it, when Ontario pays $500,000 in order to divert settlers brought from Europe to the northwest, and not only that, but by example and custom to send her own best blood and sinew on the long trip after the foreign legion. Ontario is being drained of her strongest sons to build up the prairie provinces. The problem is too serious to neglect and it was forces upon the great party of the members of the Ontario Legislature which spent most of last week in the northern portion of their jurisdiction. It would be truer to say the central portion for Ontario stretches away north far beyond any point reached by the parliamentarian tourists. In this middle region, 500 miles north of Toronto only one-quarter of the distance to Central Alberta, lies a tract of land which is destined to become one of the most fertile and beautiful of the agricultural regions of the world. Here are 20,000,000 acres at the disposal of Ontario's sons and neighbors and guests. part of the great province whose territory exceeds that of the German Empire, tho its present population is not equal to that of the City of Chicago. Only one-fifth of the west north of the province can be said to be populated in any sense and the inhabitants can be increased 25 times over without crowding.

LAND OF GOOD QUALITY

Above the height of land in this upper middle region the glacial action of past millenniums has deposited, probably over the bottom of a glacial lake, an immense deposit of clay soil of the richest quality. There is no question about the quality of the land. The vegetables and cereals grown during the present year and on exhibition at Cochrane proved that what could be grown on an Ontario farm elsewhere could be grown there. Examples were not wanting, even in the short time the country is open, to show what can be accomplished. Let it be granted that it is not a region, any more than any other farm region, for the city clerk, or the slum loafer who has never been subjected to the disciplinary duties of seedtime and harvest, but for the Ontario man, for the hardy toilers of Scotland and Ireland, for the sturdy English yeoman, for the thrifty German or the hearty Scandinavian, here is a land flowing with milk and money.

Register Lalonde, who took up a farm at Cochrane on May 10 last, cleared three acres in two weeks with the help of his 19-year-old son, and now after four months has 65 acres under cultivation, with his barns up, and stables for four cows, two horses twenty hogs and poultry.

NETTED GOOD PROFIT.

A little further south another settler went in a year ago, cleared up a large part of his homestead, sold the lumber for $5,000 and showed samples of his produce at the fair at Englehart. He had cleared $800 additional out of his farm products for the first season.

Finer potatoes were never shown and the rapidity of growth appeared phenomenal. Six weeks from planting the tubers were fully matured. At Cochrane were shown grain, onions, carrots, beets, turnips, squash, cucumbers, potatoes, beans. Anything would grow as under ordinary conditions in Lower Ontario. The long days, the rich heavy soil, the propitious moisture all appear to provide perfectly favorable conditions of growth.

The coldness of the climate is exactly what Lower Ontario furnished the early settlers with a century ago As the land is cleared and drained and cultivation proceeds the ground ceases to hold the frost. The excess moisture which by its evaporation chills the air and lowers the temperature will disappear with cultivation. The muskeg region which lies around Matheson can readily be drained by a cross-cut from the Abitibi to the Frederick House River, and cultivation generally will effect the same result that has been attained in lower Ontario. There is nothing in the climatic problem differing from the more southern district. The whole of the territory in question lies south of the parallel of Winnipeg.

It does seem strange that Ontario men will desert the great opportunities thus offered in their own province to go two or three days' journey farther west and north.

The government perceives the necessity of getting the land settled, and it has been announced that the regulations governing intending settlers, in respect of the clearing and building restrictions, will be relaxed to some extent. Full details can be had from the crown lands department at the parliament buildings, or John G. Campbell, crown lands agent at Cochrane.

A NEW MODEL TOWN.

At Englehart, which is a divisional point on the T. and N. O. Railway, a model town is growing up. The railway station is more than handsome, and on stepping outside the first thing that meets the eye is the town park, with its fine greenhouse. In this beautifully kept space will be found grown every variety of tree that can be found in Ontario as a demonstration of what can be done. The fair brought together a large display of animals and farm produce, and in quality it not in quantity the exhibits would run any county fair in the country close up.

The genial chairman of the railway commission takes a particular interest in his name-town, and the people who live in the district. Many stories are told of his generosity and helpful attention to settlers. The example of a wealthy man devoting himself unremittingly to the heavy labors which Mr. Englehart has undertaken, working early and late, without a holiday in years, and practically for nothing but the love of the work, must infuse a fine spirit everywhere thruout the land of the government railway. The settlers cannot easily forget that the railway furnishes them with lower rates than any corporation would, for nothing beyond the interest on the investment All surplus goes back for equipment and improvements, and lowering of rates. The longer it runs the cheaper it will be.

The world's most successful medicine for bowel complaints is Chamberlain's Colic, Cholera and Diarrhoea Remedy. It has relieved more pain and suffering, and saved more lives than any other medicine in use. Invaluable for children and adults. 4

Sculptural Competition of Designs for Two Monuments.

1. Competitive designs are invited for two monuments, one to the memory of the late Honourable George Brown and the other to the memory of the late Honourable Thomas D'Arcy McGee.

2. Each monument is not when completed and in position, to cost more than ten thousand dollars, including pedestal, above the level of the ground.

3. The competition is open only to artists resident in Canada, and artists of Canadian birth residing elsewhere.

4. The site will be at a point in the Government property at Ottawa, to be hereafter decided.

5. Designs shall be in the form of sketch-models, in plaster, made at a uniform scale of one and one-half inches to the foot. A description of the design shall accompany each model, no name motto or other distinctive mark thereon.

6. The author of the best designs will be awarded the commission of the work, the second best $600.00 and the third best $300.00.

7. The models and all communications regarding this matter shall be addressed to

Advisory Art Council,
O—o, Department of Public Works,
Ottawa, Canada.

The designs must be delivered before the 1st day of February, 1910. They will be kept from public view until the reward has been made. All expenses of delivering the sketch-models and accompanying descriptions shall be paid by the competitors. Sketch models will, after the award at the expense of the department be returned upon the request of competitors, but at the risk of the competitors.

Notice of the award will be sent to each competitor.

The award will only be binding provided the successful competitor is prepared to furnish satisfactory evidence, with security if demanded, that he can execute the work for the sum mentioned above.

FAMOUS WAX ARTIST

Mme. Tussaud Had an Exciting and Dramatic Career.

IN THE FRENCH REVOLUTION.

During That Era of Bloodshed She Modeled Some of the Heads That Fell by the Guillotine and Was For a Time in Prison Herself as a Suspect.

This is the story of Mme. Tussaud, who was born in Berne in 1760 and died in London in 1850, and who, during the stormy time of the French revolution, modeled in wax some of the heads that fell by the guillotine.

Marie Gresholts was the daughter of an aid-de-camp of General Wurmser in the Seven Years' war. She was born after the death of her father.

Her mother was the sister of Dr. John Christopher Curtius of Berne. This Dr. Curtius had made many anatomical and other models in wax and had attracted the attention of the Prince de Conti. This nobleman urged Curtius to come to Paris and establish himself as a modeler in wax.

The Curtius studio became the rendezvous of the fashionable world, and in connection with this he had a museum of curiosities. Among his patrons were Voltaire, Jean Jacques, Rousseau, Mesmer, Mirabeau, Diderot, Benjamin Franklin, Paul Jones and many other notable persons.

In his visits to his sister at Berne Dr. Curtius had taught his niece, Maria, many of the secrets of modeling in wax. She showed such ability in this that her uncle urged her mother to make a home with him in Paris and to allow him to adopt Marie as his daughter.

Marie began earnest study with Dr. Curtius, and she was so skillful in the modeling of wax flowers that this art became a craze. Even the royal personages in the palace took it up, and Marie spent some time giving lessons to Mme. Elizabeth, the young sister of Louis XVI.

When the revolution broke out Dr. Curtius took the side of the people and sent for Marie to come from the palace. It was rather singular that two of his wax models should have played a foremost part in the opening scenes of that awful period. In his collection of models was a bust of the minister, Necker, father of Mme. de Stael, and one of Philippe, duke of Orleans. Two days before the storming of the Bastille a mob took these two busts from his museum in the Palais Royal, draped them in black crape to show their sympathy and started to parade the streets with these.

As the procession filed across the Place Vendome a troop of dragoons and one of the regiments charged. A sword stroke cut the bust of Necker in halves, and the man who was carrying it was hit by a musket ball in the leg and received the thrust of a sword in his breast.

The bust of the Duke of Orleans escaped injury, but in the fight to defend it several persons were killed. The soldiers made desperate efforts to demolish it.

At the taking of the Bastille Dr. Curtius was active and for his services to France was rewarded by the national assembly. A badge of honor was presented to him, and this was inscribed with the famous date and a memorial of his bravery and patriotism. His house was a favorite place of meeting with the leaders of the revolution, so Marie had an opportunity to see them all.

There was only one time when Marie was in any danger during this desperate period. She was "suspected" and sent to prison. Here at the same time was Mme. de Beauharnais, who had barely escaped the guillotine and who was later the Josephine of Napoleon Bonaparte. Her uncle was able to get Marie's release from prison, and she came out in time to see the downfall of Robespierre, Danton and Desmoulins.

In the days of their power she had been called to model the heads of many who fell by the guillotine. She was obliged to take them just after the fall of the fatal knife. She did this awful work with the heads of poor Marie Antoinette and of the Princess Lamballe, the queen's friend. When the leaders suffered by the guillotine in their turn she modeled their heads.

After the revolution her uncle died, and in 1795 she married M. Tussaud. She could not overcome the shock of her experiences during the revolution, and she persuaded her husband to take her and the valuable collections of wax models left her by Dr. Curtius over to England.

They established this collection in the Strand. The collection was taken all about the country, and in 1833 it was brought back to London and made a permanent exhibition. Her sons conducted the business, and she took an active share in this till she was eighty years of age.

Naming Their Children.

It was a musical man who gave his four daughters the following names: Do-re, Mi-fa, So-la, Ti-do. The first escaped with the nickname Dora, the second answered Miffy, the third owned up to Solly, while the youngest generally got Tiddy.

The case of the musical man is matched by that of the provincial printer who named his children from the type fonts he used—Ruby, Pearl, Diamond. The first two are no uncommon names for girls, only Ruby happened to be a boy. He followed in his father's footsteps and afterward became a printer's manager in London.—London Chronicle.

BARNUM'S METHODS.

The Showman Always on the Alert For an Advertisement.

One morning the newspapers announced that grave fears were entertained for the safety of an agent of Barnum's big show who had gone to Africa to seek attractions for it in their native lairs. News had come, it was said, that he had last been heard from in a predicament from which escape was practically impossible. It was a very sad piece of business altogether.

Mr. Barnum was at a hotel in New York city at the time, and there a relative of the unfortunate agent found him entertaining a squad of reporters with a most interesting version of the African tragedy. The caller knew his man and waited patiently until the interviewers had departed. Then he anxiously asked for news.

"Oh, don't be worried," said the showman. "I've just got intelligence that he's safe and sound and will be back here in a few weeks."

"But he has a great many friends here," objected the visitor, "and this report of his death will cause them much sorrow."

Mr. Barnum looked solemn for an instant, and then he chuckled. "Well," he exclaimed cheerfully, "just think of this—they'll be all the happier when he gets back here alive."

SEA MONSTERS OF OLD.

The Marine Monster That Was Thought to Cause Tidal Waves.

The kraken was one of the sea monsters of old, and if all the stories told about its wondrous size and doings are true it overshadowed the serpent as much as the latter does the common garter snake. An old writer says that this marine giant caused tidal waves by swallowing a goodly part of the waters of the ocean and then belching them out again. He also makes mention of the fact that its gigantic bony beak was often mistaken for mountain peaks suddenly shoved into sight by the internal convulsions of the earth.

Bishop Pontoppidan, a truthful member of the Copenhagen Royal academy, is much more conservative in his estimates of its size, giving it as his opinion that they were seldom found more than "the half of an Italian mile in length and not larger in diameter than the cathedral at The Hague."

He also says that its body was frequently mistaken by sailors for an island, "so that people landed upon it and were engulfed in a maelstrom of water when the creature sank to its hidden ocean den." Other authorities testify that its beak from the eyes to the point "was longer than the mainmast of a man-of-war."

Wasting Valuable Time.

An old farmer died in a little village in the neighborhood of Paris. His fortune, the fruit of years of patient toil, was invested in a nice compact little farm. A nephew of the departed, believing himself to be heir, called a few days later on the lawyer and before saying a word about the succession thought it only right and proper to shed a few tears.

"Poor uncle!" he murmured. "So kind, so affectionate—to think that I shall never see him again!"

The notary allowed the young man to give full vent to his sorrowful emotions, after which he quietly observed:

"I suppose you are aware that your uncle has left you nothing!"

"What!" exclaimed the nephew, suddenly changing his tone. "I'm not down in the will? Then why on earth did you let me stand weeping there and making a fool of myself for a good half hour!"

An Editor's Woes.

Editing a paper is a nice thing and no mistake. If we publish jokes people say we are rattle-brained. If we don't we are fools. If we publish original matter, they say we do not give them enough selections. If we give them selections, we are too lazy to write. If we don't go to church we are heathens. If we do we are hypocrites. If we remain in the office we ought to be out looking for news. If we go out, then we are not attending to business. If we wear old clothes, they laugh at us. If we wear good clothes, they say we are extravagant. Now, what are we to do? Just as likely as not someone will say that we purloined this from another paper. So we did.

KEARN'S INK LIMITED

OF TORONTO

A Safe Industrial Stock Investment

WHICH WILL PAY AT LEAST

10% Per Annum

PROFITS—There is a good profit in this Ink. There are 12 or 15 Ink Companies in the United States paying dividends of from 12 to 20 per cent. per annum.

THE KEARN'S INK CO. of Toronto was organized two years ago to manufacture the new CANADIAN WRITING INKS, invented by J. J. Kearns. The past two years has been spent in experimenting and improving quality and today it stands among the top notchers in the ink world. This ink has met with such spontaneous approval from users, and the trade has shown such willingness to buy in quantities, that the management deem it wise to enlarge their operations and make a big staple business enterprise out of this Company hence offer to the public.

The total capital is only $40,000, so that you can see that this is no inflated and watered wild cat scheme but a first-class legitimate investment offered to you—one where a dollar invested today will be worth at least two in a year and will pay 10 per cent. income on this.

Some Orders that We Received as to the Sale of Kearn's Ink

We found the demand practically without limit; we receiving orders and inquiries far beyond our ability to supply the goods. Orders came from such houses as Parson's Fair Syndicate 17 stores in Ontario, Central Business College, Ontario Government, King Edward Hotel, Grand Trunk Railway Co., National Trust Co., Toronto Railway Co., Separate Schools of Toronto and Peterboro', Imperial Accident & Guarantee Co., Central Canada Loan & Savings Co., Consumers Gas Co., Toronto Elec. Light Co., all of Toronto.

A SAFE MANAGEMENT

The entire management is in the hands of a Board of Directors of leading business men—men of executive and financial ability, men of "made reputations," men who can be counted upon to capably and honestly direct the affairs of the enlarged Company, and see that each and every stockholder receives every dollar of the earnings of his stock.

400 FOOT TUNNEL—140 FOOTSHAFT

Mines located near Valardena, Durango, Mexico, only six miles by wagon road and three miles straight line from the property of the Guggenheims upon which they have recently erected a $2,000,000 smelter. Sample assays have averaged from $64 to $163 per ton.

Up to the present time, the Turquoise Copper Co., has been practically a close corporation; an initial offering of 100,000 shares has just been made at 25 cents, par value $1.00, full paid and non-assessable. Proceeds will be used to further continue the development work already begun.

We have options on 50,000 shares of this stock and advise immediate purchase at 25 cents per share. It is the intention of The Board of Directors to list the stock on the New York Curb and it should sell at $1.00 per share by the first of the year.

A TERRIBLE TOLL.

7,000 Men Will Vote Today to Return to Work.

Pittsburg, Sept. 9.—The great strike of the Pressed Steel Car Company workers is passing into the history of industrial struggles. The 7,000 strikers will return to the plant. They signified this determination at a mass meeting by raising their hands.

For fifty-eight days the strikers have kept the plant closed. Eleven men have been killed. Several hundred were wounded two score by gunshot wounds.

Tickling or dry Coughs will quickly loosen when using Dr. Shoop's Cough Remedy. And it is so thoroughly harmless, that Dr. Shoop tells mothers to use nothing else even for very young babies. The wholesome green leaves and tender stems of a hoarhound mountain shrub give the curative properties to Dr. Shoop's Cough Cure. It calms the cough and heals the sensitive bronchial membranes. No opium, no chloroform, nothing harsh and no injury or suppress. Demand Dr. Shoop's. Accept no other. Made by all dealers.

VISCOUNT KITCHENER.

A Brief Biography of Soldier Who May Visit Canada.

General Horatio Herbert, first Viscount Kitchener of Khartoum—who has just completed the great work he undertook in 1902 of reorganizing the British Indian Army—was born on Midsummer Day at Ballylongford, in the County Kerry.

During his exceptionally brilliant military career the retiring Indian commander has asserted himself with characteristic confidence and unbending will, and Lord Kitchener must be accounted one of the most strenuous soldiers that the British Empire has ever possessed.

Coming of a military family, Lord Kitchener passed thirty-eight years ago from Woolwich into the Royal Engineers. Since then his career has been one of scintillating brilliance, for "K. of K."—as he is now often called "for short"—has been to the fore in many expeditions and campaigns, and has "built himself an everlasting name" for thoroughness in the profession of arms.

A veritable "glutton for work," he assisted in the Palestine survey in 1874-79, and that of Cyprus of 1878-82.

Then he was sent to Egypt, and entrusted with the command of the Khedive's cavalry and the remodelling of the native army. Having effected this to his own exacting desiring, he, as Sirdar, conducted a vigorous opposition to the forces of the Khalifa. He found it necessary to build a railway to Omdurman before he finally broke the power of the prophet, annihilating the Khalifa's army in 1898.

By this time he had reached the rank of major-general and been made a K.C.B., and he came home covered with Egyptian honors, to receive the thanks of the British Parliament, a peerage, and a grant of £30,000.

In the year following, when matters seemed to be going wrong with our forces engaged against the Boers in South Africa, Lord Kitchener was sent out as Chief of Staff to Lord Roberts. Here, again, he distinguished himself for determination and dash in combination; and when Cronje had been circumvented at Paardeberg and the British flag hoisted in Pretoria, he was promoted to the commandership of the forces in South Africa on Lord Roberts' return to England.

Kitchener brought the long campaign to a close. Again the gallant fighter and fine organizer was thanked by Parliament, given a further £50,000 from the country's public purse, and raised in the peerage to a viscounty.

As a full general he was sent out in 1902 to India as Commander-in-Chief, with practically a free hand to reform the army of our great Empire of the Orient. His ideals of duty brooking no civilian interference in matters military, Viscount Kitchener soon came into conflict with the then Viceroy, Lord Curzon, and the friction ensued in the resignation of that able statesman in 1905.

Since then Lord Kitchener has practically been permitted to have his own way at headquarters in India; and on the completion of his task in the Orient, he is credited by some with hankering after overthrowing the influence of the non-military element in the War Office for good and all.

Barrister's First Brief.

My first brief I have the best of reasons for remembering particularly clearly. I was engaged for the defence in a case of robbery. Two men, the prisoners, had seized the prosecutor on the platform of Shrewsbury Station, and while one of them held his arms the other quietly rifled his pockets.

They were caught red-handed, and I had a brief to defend the prisoner who had held the prosecutor by the arms. I made the obvious defence. I urged that it was vindictive to sacrifice two victims to justice when one would suffice, that the distinction between the two prisoners was manifest, and as the one I defended had not taken any money at all it was impossible to pretend that he was as guilty as his companion.

To the amazement of everybody, not excepting the chairman—who had been careful in his summing up to sweep away my sophistries—the jury made the distinction I suggested to them, and returned a verdict of "Not guilty" against my prisoner.—"Reminiscences of Mr. A. C. Plowden," in The Strand Magazine.

A Pageant of Priests.

Pageants have so far illustrated the history of a single town or city, but the one held recently in the grounds of Fulham Palace, London, was unique. It depicted the growth and history of the Church of England.

It was split up into a number of episodes, and, beginning with the publication of the Edict of Emperor Constantine, came right down through the ages to the acquittal of the Seven Bishops in 1688. A final tableau, representing the church "throughout the world," concluded the gigantic spectacle.

The grounds of Fulham Palace, lent by the Bishop of London, were well fitted for such a purpose.

The spectators were housed in a grand stand, 294 feet in length, 80 feet in depth, and covering an acre of ground. In addition to a large royal box, there was seating accommodation for 6,750. His Grace the Archbishop of Canterbury performed the opening ceremony.

An Amiable Violinist.

Robert Browning and Joachim met one evening at a friendly gathering in London. The violinist had "obliged" without satisfying certain ladies, who entreated the poet to obtain from him another solo. Browning, feeling the delicacy of his task, discharged it diplomatically and spoke, as sometimes he wrote, so as to conceal his thoughts, while the violinist, not understanding, bowed and smiled and did not play.

As they left the house Joachim asked, "What did you mean just now?"

"Oh," said the poet, "I wanted you to give us some more music."

"Then, why did you not come and say, 'Joe, old boy, give us another tune?'" returned the amiable violinist.

It's a pity when sick cause drug the stomach or stimulate the heart and Kidneys. That is all wrong! A weak Stomach means weak Stomach nerves, always. And this is also true of the Heart and Kidneys. The weak nerves are instead crying out for help. This explains why Dodd's Kidney Restorative is promptly helping the Stomach, Heart and Kidney ailment. The Restorative reaches out for the actual cause of these ailments—the ailing "inside nerves." Anyway test the Restorative 48 hours. It won't cure as soon as that, but you will surely know that help is coming. Sold by all dealers.

A WELSH FESTIVAL.

Eisteddfod is Opened by Musicians in London.

In a pretty glade in Kensington Gardens, in London, near the Serpentine, the Welsh bards celebrated recently the ritual of the Gorsedd which marks the opening of the national eisteddfod.

According to the ancient tradition, the rites must be performed "in the face of the sun, the eye of light," and though the somber skies made it impossible to carry out the letter of the law, it was fulfilled sufficiently in the spirit by the performance of the rites in a druidical circle erected in the open air.

The circle consists of unhewn stones, outside of which three other stones are placed. In the centre of the circle is the Maen Llog, a large stone supported on three others.

A trumpeter, standing upon this stone, sounded the Corn Gwlad, thus formally opening the Gorsedd, and the prayer of the Gorsedd was recited in Welsh.

The bards, in their blue, green and white robes, presented a striking spectacle, and the insignia of his office rendered Dyfed, the archdruid, a notable figure. With his flowing white robe, oakleaf crown, and golden torque of horseshoe shape, he was impressive indeed as he mounted the Maen Llog and cried aloud thrice in a voice of thunder the formal challenge, "A oes Heddwch?" (Is it Peace?).

"Heddwch!" the assembly shouted, and Dyfed sheathed again the eight-foot sword which, in symbolic rite, he had half drawn from its scabbard.

Speech-making in Welsh followed, and then the bards and onlookers trooped off to the Albert Hall, where the eisteddfod met.

The proceedings at the hall during the morning were disappointing in a great many ways, and there appeared to be a deplorable lack of organization.

The best singing was heard in the chief choral competition, in which the first prize went to the Carnarvon Choral Society, and the second to the Llanelly Choral Society.

At the afternoon meeting Mr. Balfour made a most interesting speech in praise of music.

"Music has ever been one of the great arts in which Welshmen have excelled," he stated. "There cannot be a gift which carries with it higher pleasures—pleasures more easy of attainment, pleasures which leave no after-ating, no after-taste of evil, but which raise and must raise the whole level of civilized pleasures among the people who practice them.

"Music knows no national barrier; music is not subject to the limitations which unhappily beset language. Music speaks to men of all races and of all tongues."

Costly Pennies.

Who was Wigla? Numismatists know, and gave £449 for two of his silver pennies at Sotheby's. Wiglaf, or Withlafe, as his name is sometimes spelt in the old chronicles, was that King of Mercia tributary to Egbert, first King of England, and held nominal sway between 826 and 839. His silver penny, without bust, with a cross in centre and a pellet in each angle within a beaded centre on the obverse, and lunettes and pellets on the reverse, caused exciting bidding, which reached £275 (Spink). Only one other of this particular type is known, and it is fortunately in the British Museum. Another Wiglaf penny, with a rude head in a circle and a cross-crosslet in centre of reverse, realized £174 (Lincoln). This was found at Dorking in 1817. The sale was that of the famous Rashleigh collection. A penny of Egberht (765-791)—not to be confounded with Eogberht, son of Offa of Mercia, but the King of Kent mentioned in old charters—without a bust, but with the King's name, made £153 (Lincoln). Only three other coins of this type are known, two being in the Hunter Museum, Glasgow. An East Anglian penny of Eadvald, 819-827, realized £52 (Lincoln), and one of Jaenberht, who was Archbishop of Canterbury between 766 and 190, £93. This was discovered near Netley Abbey, and wears the names of Offa and the Archbishop. In the digging of the foundation for the Martyrs' Memorial at Oxford, another of this prelate's pennies was found, and this fetched £20. A penny with the diademed bust of Cynethryth, who was Offa's Queen, made £30 (Spink).

Lord Balcarres as a Walker.

It was Lord Balcarres, a trustee of the National Portrait Gallery, who announced the saving to England of Holbein's picture, "The Duchess of Milan." His lordship has crowded much good work into his thirty-seven years of life. Not only has he distinguished himself in the cause of art and architecture — he is a trained architect—but he has also served the state in the House of Commons as one of the Unionist Whips. A notable characteristic is his rapid walk. "Burns' gallop is nowhere in it with Balcarres' walk," growled a recalcitrant member on one occasion after being fetched back to the never-ending divisions while trying to escape. "It's no good unless you are streets ahead."

Helping the Enemy.

A coal heaver was getting in a load of coal in the suburbs of London. He was shoveling in the coal at a good rate when he was startled by a terrific yell from the house adjoining.

"Wot the dickens is the matter?" queried the coal man, starting up.

A disheveled looking individual made his appearance at the door.

"Matter, you thickhead!" shouted the man, frantically endeavoring to pull his hair up in clots by the roots. "You are putting the coal down the wrong hole. My wife's people live there!"—London Tit-Bits.

Self-Supporting Blind.

Of the students at the Royal Normal College for the Blind, South London, Eng., nearly 90 per cent. are self-supporting.

"Sausages Grown Here."

One of the natural curiosities of South Mashonaland is a "German-sausage-tree." It bears deep-crimson flowers, 2 inches long, in hanging bunches of twelve; but when the tree trades into fat, substantial, sausage-like pods, there remains no leaves, and it looks like a sausage larder indeed.

These beans are 20 inches long, and 12 inches in girth, and are beloved of the native tribe of Shangaans and baboons. But the tribe of the Karanga are a very superior people, and would never deign to eat them. There can be no reason for this, as, at least, no one can accuse these "sausages" of being connected in any way with dogs or cats!

"Time flies," they say, my dear, and I
Am satisfied it's true.
But, goodness me, what makes it fly
So fast when I'm with you?

The Voice of the Consumer.

"What difference can a new deal make,"
They heard him tearfully exclaim,
"If still the same old people take
The same old raisins in the same?"

Misgivings.

"That was a very lucid document you prepared,' said the friend.

"Yes," answered the statesman dubiously. "I made it so lucid that I am afraid the public will fail to regard it as able and profound."

Explanation Called For.

Alfred (whose sporting opportunities have been limited by parental decree)—Papa, what does it mean by base on balls?

Papa (who is reading an account of the latest heavyweight fight)—Alfred, you could better employ yourself with your Sunday school lesson. I'm too busy now to explain.

Alfred (still thirsting for knowledge)—Did it mean the same as base on balls when you telephoned last night that as mamma was away you were going out on a bat?

Mamma (who is always listening)—Benjamin Ridgely, you will take time right now to make two explanations, with the most important one coming to me

A Mild Reproach.

One cold morning little Elsie was being bathed by her mother, and usually her bath was a great delight to her. But this morning her mother talked incessantly while she worked.

Elsie loved her dearly and tried hard to be patient. But the lecture was so tiresome! Her mother was laying out a course of conduct for the day, and it was all so old. She had heard it over and over again.

Finally she said very sweetly, but very wearily: "Please, mamma, don't talk any more. You do make such a draft!"

Jerry Needn't Bother.

It was the beloved and lamented Monsignor Connolly, of the Church of St. John the Baptist, at St. John, N.B., who noticed an old parishioner stealing a glance at his watch as the text was read out one fine summer morning.

"It's just twenty minutes past eleven, Jerry Callahan, and at a quarter to twelve I'll be through, so you can save yourself the trouble of taking your watch out of your pocket," said his reverence, and proceeded with the sermon.

MERELY AN EYE WASH.

The Chemical View of Tears Differs From the Poetical View.

Tears have their functional duty to accomplish, like every other fluid of the body, and the lachrymal gland is not placed behind the eye simply to fill space or to give expression to emotion.

The chemical properties of tears consist of phosphate of lime and soda, making them very salty, but never bitter. Their action on the eye is very beneficial, and here consists their prescribed duty of the body, washing thoroughly that sensitive organ, which allows no foreign fluid to do the same work. Nothing cleanses the eye like a good salty shower bath, and medical art has followed nature's law in this respect, advocating the invigorating solution for any distressed condition of the optics. Tears do not weaken the sight, but improve it. They act as a tonic on the muscular vision, keeping the eye soft and limpid, and it will be noticed that women in whose eyes sympathetic tears gather quickly have brighter, tenderer orbs than others. When the pupils are hard and cold the world attributes it to one's disposition, which is a mere figure of speech implying the lack of balmy tears that are to the cornea what salve is to the skin or nourishment to the blood.

The reason some women weep more easily than others and all more readily than the sterner sex has not its difference in the strength of the tear gland, but in the possession of a more delicate nerve system. The nerve fibers about the glands vibrate more easily, causing a downpour from the watery sac. Men are not nearly so sensitive to emotion. Their sympathetic nature—that term is used in a medical sense—is less developed, and the eye gland is therefore protected from shocks. Consequently a man should thank the formation of his nerve nature when he contemptuously scorns tears as a woman's practice. Between man and monkey there is this essential difference of tears—an ape cannot weep, not so much because its emotional powers are undeveloped as the fact that the lachrymal gland was omitted in his optical makeup.—Exchange.

A Matrimonial Catch.

A remarkably active peer in the Commons is Earl Winterton, the "baby" of the last Parliament, so called because he was elected, while Viscount Turnour, when he was only twenty-one. His lordship has proved himself a young man of energy and vigilance in the House, but apparently politics do not allow him sufficient scope, for it has just been announced that he is to fill the editorial chair of The World. The earl writes as well as he speaks, and in addition is a keen sportsman. Furthermore, he possesses the distinction of being a grandson of that social queen, the late Dowager Duchess of Abercorn. In fact, someone who has counted up says that his lordship has more relatives of exalted rank than anybody else in the United Kingdom, and that the woman who wins him—for he is still a bachelor—will be related by marriage to three dukes, two marquesses, two earls, several barons, and a corresponding number of marchionesses and countesses.

AUTOGRAPH PRICES.

Regular Figures Are Quoted on Celebrated Signatures.

Whose signature, amongst those of celebrities of to-day, is worth most from the point of view of the autograph dealer and collector? The question is a difficult one to answer, for the simple reason that so much depends on the character and importance of the letter or document to which the signature is attached.

For instance, according to a catalogue issued a short time ago by a London dealer in autographs, while a Kipling letter referring to his writings is worth two guineas, an ordinary epistle of the same writer would be sold at half a guinea. The signature of Queen Alexandra can be bought for a guinea, but attached to a letter written in her girlhood days would fetch five and probably ten times that amount

Here are a few of the market prices, so to speak, of other celebrities: Sir L. Alma-Tadema, 10s. 6d.; Sir Squire Bancroft, 3s. 6d.; J. M. Barrie, 5s.; Max Beerbolm, 10s. 6d.; Sarah Bernhardt, £1 5s.; Mr. Birrell, 2s. 6d.; Miss Braddon, 5s.; Hall Caine, 10s. 6.; Mark Twain, £2 2s.; Sir A. Conan Doyle, 7s. 6d.; Sir W. S. Gilbert, 5s.; Rider Haggard, 4s.; and Sir Charles Wyndham 5s.

With regard to famous men of the past, it is interesting to note that, while £63 was asked for a Tennyson letter, a Byron was only priced at 18 guineas, and a Cowper at 10 guineas. Twenty one pounds would have bought the signature of George Washington, and £12 that of Queen Victoria. Thirteen and fourteen guineas was asked for the autographs respectively of Dickens and Thackeray, while that of Edward Fitzgerald was priced at £21.

It is curious to note how variable are the prices of royal signatures. While, as already mentioned, £12 is asked for a Queen Victoria letter, a two-page epistle by the late Empress Frederick of Germany only realized a guinea. The sign-manual of George I. has been sold for 8s., that of George III. for £1 6s., and that of George IV. for 11s.; and it is an interesting fact that, while at one sale a letter from Charles I. to the Earl of Kingston, dealing with the request for a loan of £5,000, only fetched £31 10s., Cromwell's signature went for £80.

After contracts are awarded the successful tenderers must submit designs of all superstructures with stress sheets all to be in accordance with the Specifications of Department of Railways and Canals of the Dominion Government, 1903. The class of load to be used is that designated "Heavy" in the said specifications.

Tenders will be received for one or more of the structures required.

Each tender must be signed and sealed by all the parties to the tender, and witnessed, and be accompanied by an accepted cheque on a chartered Bank of the Dominion of Canada payable to the Commissioners of the Transcontinental Railway, for a sum equal to five per cent (5 p. c.) of the amount of the tender.

The right is reserved to reject any or all tenders.

By order,
F. H. RYAN,
Secretary.

The Commissioners of the Transcontinental Railway.
Dated at Ottawa, August 31, 1909.

SEALED TENDERS addressed to the undersigned, and endorsed "Tender for Lease of Kingston Graving Dock," will be received at this office until 5.00 P.M., on Monday, October 11, 1909, for the Lease of the Graving Dock, and property connected therewith, at Kingston, County of Frontenac, in the Province of Ontario, for a period of 21 years.

Plans and specification describing property, and form of contract can be seen and forms of tender obtained at the Department of Public Works, Ottawa, and at the offices of F. S. Rees, Esq., Dock Master, Kingston, Ont., J. G. Sing, Esq., District Engineer, Confederation Life Building, Toronto. J. L. The engagement is the sequel of an acquaintance formed on board the SS Maure tania, when the young lady was returning from Europe with a party of friends last June, and Dr. Grenfell was travelling with his mother to Canada, where she visited Miss Greenshields at her summer home in Port Hope. Dr. Grenfell and Miss McLanagan, it is reported, will be married in November, when the doctor returns from the Labrador.

WHY MANY A MAN MAKES A FAILURE OF LIFE.

Not Because He Lacks Brains or Ability, But Because His Liver is Slow.

An inactive lazy liver makes plenty of men and women seem intellectually dull. They really have the "go," but are weighed down, pulled down by a sluggish condition of the system. In consequence lots of good chances are lost, enjoyment missed and pleasures refused—all because of a poor working stomach and a disordered liver.

Men and women, wake up your livers, give relief to sluggish kidneys—they are working hard, but can't keep on forever doing duty for both the kidneys and liver.

Let Dr. Hamilton's Pills help you—let them drive those poisons from the blood that depress your mind and brain.

Let Dr. Hamilton's Pills give you such inward wholesomeness that body and spirit will tingle and glow with health and ambition.

You can depend on this—that Dr. Hamilton's Pills clear the skin, brighten the eyes, purify the blood send energy, vim and good spirits circulating to every part of the body!

No other medicine makes people so healthy or keeps you at your best like Hamilton's Pills. They are mild, curative and safe. 25c. per box at all dealers, or The Catharrhozone Co., Kingston, Canada.

Synopsis of Canadian Northwest Land Regulations.

ANY PERSON WHO IS THE sole head of a family, or any male over 18 years old, may homestead land in Manitoba, Saskatchewan or Alberta. The application must appear in person at the Dominion Lands Agency or Sub-Agency for the district. Entry by proxy may be made at any agency, on certain conditions, by father, mother, son, daughter, brother, or sister of intending homesteader.

Duties—Six months' residence upon and cultivation of the land in each of three years. A homesteader may live within nine miles of his homestead on a farm of at least 80 acres, solely owned and occupied by him, or by his father, mother, son, daughter, brother or sister.

BOLLARD'S DEATH WAS DUE INDIRECTLY TO THE STRUGGLE IN CHEMONG PARK

Now is the Time to Buy Crawford Peaches

Now is the time to buy peaches. A week from now will be too late. The growers all through the fruit belt are devoting their entire attention to harvesting the peach crop. All other fruits are being left on the trees and vines. The extremely warm weather of the past few days has caused this rush on the favorite fruit. They have and are ripening so fast that it will be only a few days until it will be impossible to ship.

The growers have made a lot of money this year out of fruit as the season has been particularly favorable, and they will rush the balance on the market at a sacrifice rather than take a chance on losing them all. For that reason the peaches, and especially the famous Crawfords, will be cheaper now than at any time this season, and they will last only a few days more unless the weather turns cold again, and that is too big a chance to take.

Because there is a rush of peaches at the present time it is idle to think that the price will be down to 50c. a large basket or anything like that. The canning factories are paying 45c. a basket right on the grounds, and they take large and small, good and bad, and return the baskets. The baskets are 5c. each, the freight is 10c. a basket, bringing the price up to 60c. a basket before they land here, and without allowing anything to the grower for sending only first grade fruit. Therefore if the housewife of Peterborough can buy good Crawfords for anything less than $1 a large basket or even $1, she is getting cheap peaches, and cheaper than she could get them from the growers on their farms and bring them down These are facts which it is impossible to get away from, no matter what the would-be wise ones say to the contrary.

Of course other varieties than Crawfords can be bought for less money and later than Crawfords, but outside of one or two varieties of white flesh peaches there is nothing to touch the fine yellow Crawfords. It is for these reasons the adnice is given to buy Crawfords now.

Conroy's to Build Smith Street Bridge

Messrs. E. & F. Conroy will build Smith street bridge. They were awarded the contract by the council last night and a bylaw passed confirming the same. As a result the work will be proceeded with at once. Messrs. Begy & Co., of St. Catharines, are relieved of their tender and the cheque returned to them.

The contract for the building of the new Smith street bridge was finally awarded to Messrs. E. and F. Conroy at the meeting of the council last night. The matter was followed by a discussion among the members present as to what should be done with the checks furnished by the other firms who had tendered to do the work. The check of Begy & Co., proved to be the stumbling block. Several of the aldermen thought that no action should be taken in the matter at present, while others were of the opinion that it should be returned at once. Finally a motion by Aldermen McIntyre and Duffus to the effect that all the checks with the exception of Conroys, be returned, settled the matter. Ald. Bradburn moved in amendment that the question be laid over for consideration, but the vote went against it.

AYLMER STREET EXTENSION.

The demand of Mr. Best for $500 for his property to allow Aylmer street to be extended was next considered by the council. There was a feeling among some of the members that the prise asked by Mr. Best was too high, while others thought that he was justified in his demand. One member mentioned arbitration, but Ald. Duncan jumped on the suggestion giving as his reason for so doing that if the price was in the judgment of the council toohigh, this sum would be expended by pursuing the course mentioned.

Ald. McIntyre moved that the city sonlicitor be notified to make an offer of $500 to Mr. Best for his property and if not accepted the solicitor to take steps to exappropriate the land. The motion was seconded by Ald. Turner and carried.

BERESFORD'S PLAIN WORDS.

There is something characteristic of the sailor in the straightforward hit from the shoulder Admiral Beresford has told of the condition of the British navy and the possibilities attendant on the nation's apparent failure to see the gravity of the present state of affairs. This statement of his somehow or other sounds convincing.

"A crisis has arisen because the British fleet is not in the unnecessarilable position it should be.

"I am a very practical man. I don't believes in theories one word. I don't believe in what might, could, shouldor would be, but what is. We must be supreme on every ocean. The others will begin when they are ready. The characteristic of our race is never to begin. We are like the bulldog. You have to bite his tail and kick him in the stomach to make him fight.

"The real danger is that the shipper won't ship when the trade route is in danger. The insurance rate would be prohibitive. The shipper is a most nervous man. From the time his ship sails till he hears of its arrival he is generally in b perspiration. If you trade routes were in danger the shipper would cease to ship. Then the whole of your securities would tumble down to nothing just when you most needed money.

"The enormous losses attending the fall of securities and the high rate of insurance would be ruinous. Why run this risk? Even if you have a few battleships too many, isn't it wiser than to take any chances?

"We must do what we can to prevent war. We can only do that by being absolutely supreme.

"There is no threat to other nations and no pomp or bombast of war in protecting trade routes.

"I don't care one fig about the susceptibilities of other nations. If you go messing about their affairs you lose their respect and their fear. If you stand up in the ring with a man you don't say you are not going to hurt his susceptibilities. If a nation builds four warships you should build eight, and if it meets you eight then build sixteen.

"We talk about the generosity of other nations. A fig for their generosity. Their generosity means adherence to treaties. We have seen in the last year treaties torn up and cast to the winds.

"Stick to the Union Jack. Have your designation flag for Canada if you will, but keep the Union Jack."

AND STILL THEY COME.

The farmers of the Northwestern States are an intensely practical lot of men! They are tired of seeing their substance eaten up by speculators, transportation companies and middlemen. They are, therefore, on grubbing to a country whose laws will protect them in the enjoyment of the fruits of their labor.

OBITUARY

GEORGE HUNTER.

The death occurred in Otonabee on Tuesday of George Hunter. He passed away at his home, lot 11, con. 8. He was 69 years of age.

The funeral will leave the family residence this afternoon at two o'clock, and proceed to the Keene cemetery for interment.

MRS. W. PARNELL.

Word has been received in the city that Mrs. Mallie Parnell of this city died in Toronto at the home of her father, Mr. Chas. Goodacre.

The body will arrive on the noon train today and the funeral notice will be given later.

NEW HYMNAL.

For Church of England May Be Adopted by Local Churches.

During the next few weeks the question of introducing the new Anglican Hymnal in the Anglican churches of Peterborough will be considered by the three congregations. The hymnal is now on sale in the book stores in the city.

Rev. Canon Davidson stated yesterday that the Hymnal will likely be introduced in St. John's, although the matter has not been definitely decided. It will be settled in the near future.

Rev. R.H. Trumpour said the congregation of AllSaints, had not yet decided to adopt the new hymn book, but was of the opinion that they would decide to use it.

Rev. Dr. Langfeldt would not express an opinion as to what would be done at St. Luke's. "An announcement will be made in due time," he said.

CAMEL FLESH A DAINTY.

Likely to Become Popular Among Wealthy in Paris.

Paris Sept. 13.—Camel flesh is to become the most fashionable dish for the tables of the very wealthy during the coming winter.

The purveyor who last spring first introduced camel to the Parisian dinner table has received instructions to supply camel once weekly to a score of Paris millionaires.

Interviewed today he said: "By way of a trial we brought camel flesh to Paris last winter. It has become so much in request that we have cut up and sold no fewer than four entire camels. We have placed orders with our camel butchers in Africa for the fattening of a number of the animals for next winter. It is in winter that camel has its best flavor."

Coroner's Jury Gives Verdict Fred Jopling Tells His Story

Vigorous Protest from Mr. D. O'Connel—Dr. Grey Refused to Note His Objection—Warm Argument—Dr. Greer Was Recalled—Gravell a New Witness—Evidence All In.

THE VERDICT.

Thirteen of the fourteen jurymen signed the following verdict:—

"That Arthur Bollard came to his death indirectly from the effects of the struggle he had in Chemong Park on the night of August 23rd, 1909."

The verdict of the coroner's jury on the inquest into the death of Arthur Bollard was not unexpected. The public generally were prepared for it, but when it was read by the coroner it had a decided effect upon the large gathering present. The people seemed to realize then more fully the seriousness of the affair.

The County Crown Attorney, R. E. Wood, K.C., had nothing to say. The other members of the bar connected with the case said nothing.

The fourth and final session of the Bollard inquest was held last night in the court room. It opened after eight o'clock and the court room was crowded to the doors. There was not even standing room, and the constables on several occasions had to restore order on threats of clearing the court room. Interest in the case is high. Many friends of the Jopling boys were present.

The features of the session was the calling of Fred Jopling as a witness; his protest against answering questions; the coroner's decision that he should tell his story and the protest of Mr. D. O'Connell against this decision, and later Mr. O'Connell's protest against the coroner cross-examining the witness and the heated argument between them.

Fred Jopling gave his story in a straightforward manner. It was a good version of the affair, although it differed somewhat to the evidence of other witnesses.

THE EVIDENCE.

The first witness was called shortly after eight o'clock and it was a quarter to ten when the last witness, Dr. Greer, was finished.

PETER GRAVEL.

The first witness called was Peter Gravell of Bridgenorth. He saw part of the trouble on the Monday night He saw four or five fellows run past him while he was standing near the hotel. He did not know any of them. He went after them for a distance and then stopped and listened and then went on further, until he was within ten feet. He saw two men down, Fred Jopling and Bollard. Jopling was on top. He did not hear anyone speak as he was not paying much attention to them. He heard nothing until Mr. Hartshorn tried to make peace. Mr. Hartshorn told Harry Jopling to apoligize to Bollard for the vile name he called him. Harry denied calling the name but afterwards decided to apologize. Gravelle's evidence was vague but he claimed that he told all he knew.

To the coroner the witness said he and Fred Jopling came up to the park about 8 o'clock, and Fred was there from that time on.

To Mr. Wood, witness admitted that he tried to seperate them. This was after they were standing up and shaking hands. As he was doing this Short Long touched him on shoulder and laughed at him. Witness also told the fighters that they should know what they were fighting about before they started a row Gravelle's evidence caused considerable amusement for the audience, and order had to be called several times.

GORDON LONG.

Gordon Long was recalled in connection with Gravelle's evidence re touching Gravell on the shoulder and laughing, Long said it was correct and that he touched him in a joking way.

FRED JOPLING.

The next witness was Fred Jopling, the young man who was in the scrape with Bollard. He objected to answering any questions on the grounds that his answers might incriminate him.

Mr. Wood said that he was entitled to his plea but that his evidence would not be used against him in any court.

Coroner Grey said that the witness must answer all questions.

Then the coroner and Mr. O'Connell got into a warm argument over the propriety of the coroner's action against cross-examining the witnesses. Mr. O'Connell entered a public protest against it. The coroner said he would not have Mr. O'Connell or anyone else dictate to him. He knew when he was right and when he was wrong. He wanted this trouble to cease.

Mr. O'Connell was then overruled, and the examination of Fred Jopling was proceeded with by Mr. Wood.

Witness said he did not know Bollard and had not seen him until the night of the fight about ten o'clock. Blake Cullen told him that two fellows were laying for his brother down in the park. Witness then left the hotel verandah and called Harry and asked him who the fellows were who were laying for him. Harry did not know so witness said come on down and we'll see. They both then went down into the park. Harry was with two girls who belonged to the park. The three were at the swings. Witness' intention was to go and protect his brother. They were going at least 100 yards down to the park. Witness told Cullen to stay back. Then he and Harry started to run after them. When they caught up to caught up to them there were four together, three gentlemen and a lady. They seemed to be standing on the road, he could not tell whether the Bollard party was walking or standing still. When they got close, Harry said, "I think that's him now." He stuck to his story that he couldn't tell whether Bollard was walking or standing still. Then Bollard jumped onto Harry and crushed him to the ground. Witness then told Bollard to get up but he didn't and kept on hitting his brother. Witness said he put his arms around Bollard's neck and pulled him. Then he said "I will take you instead of my brother. Bollard said I can trim you or anything you got here. Witness said all right. Bollard said are you ready? Witness said, "Well let her go." Then witness and Bollard started in. Witness got hold of Bollard under the arm and between the legs from behind. Bollard went down and they took a turn over into the ditch. Bollard cried out but witness did not hear what he said. He denied having caught hold of Bollard's privates. Witness is quite a wrestler and not many around the village could throw him. Witness hit Bollard a hard blow in the face After that Bollard seemed to give up. They both got up immediately. Witness did not hear Bollard say "dirty," or let go. Mr. Hartshorn did not seperate them. No one touched him while he was on the ground. Witness asked Marks what ground. Witness asked Marks what it was all about. Mr. Marks explained the beginning of the trouble, which included Harry calling Bollarh a vile name. Witness did not know how he got his hand hurt. He said he did bite Bollard's finger. Witness asked Harry if he called Bollard a name. Harry denied it but witness insisted on Harry taking it back. Then they shook hands.

Bollard said that was a nasty hold you got on me. You got me by the privates. Witness denied this and showed Bollard how he got hold.

Bollard then offered to wrestle with witness for $5. Witness agreed and they started. They had a hard wrestle but Bollard was thrown. Then they had another and Bollard got him by the hold under the crotch and threw him quickly No one was hurt. Then they got up and witness wanted another but Bollard said he was all in and went over to a tree and vomitted. Then he lay down on the grass on his back. Then he complained of his shoulder. Witness lit a match and found that it was where Bollard had struck the gravel as he fell. Witness cleaned the dirt out and expressed regret that they got in all that trouble. Witness then asked Bollard if he was all right and Bollard said yes. Witness then bid all good night and went home.

It was the witness who proposed following Bollard. No one went with him except Harry. After it was all over he saw Cullen and Forsythe standing around. Witness said that after the fight was all over the young lady with Bollard, Miss Minns, wanted the fight to continue and said that "Dutch" could lick any of them yet.

The coroner then asked the witness some questions and Mr. O'Connell again protested and objected to the coroner's proceedings. Dr. Grey asked Mr. O'Connell to sit down. Mr. O'Connell refused to sit down and insisted upon his objection being noted. The coroner refused to note it and again said to Mr. O'Connell, "Will you take your seat?"

The coroner asked the coroner if he acquesed the witness of waylaying Bollard.

The coroner asked Mr. O'Connell to keep quiet.

Mr. O'Connell then said that if his objections were not noted he would make representations to the department.

Dr. Grey said he might do so but he would take no dictation from anyone. He told Mr. O'Connell that he respected him and for him to take his seat.

The coroner then concluded his questioning.

DR. T. N. GREER.

Dr. T. N. Greer was recalled and asked to state the cause a little more clearly. The primary cause was inflamation of the bowel and stomach. A contributory cause was the injuries he received on Monday night, or the condition his body was left in as a result of the fight. The only external injury was the discoloration of the private part. That itself would not cause inflamation but that in conjunction with the lessening of the vitality would bring on the inflamation. The struggle would also cause indigestion and this culminated in inflamation of the bowels. This in the course of events caused septic poisoning from which Bollard died. Witness could not understand any other cause of the inflamation in the bowels and stomach.

To the coroner the witness said septic poisoning could not start Thursday night and cause death on Friday. The struggle resulted in septic poisoning.

DR. MORGAN.

Dr. Morgan was called but was not present.

In addressing the jury Dr. Grey said that he did not take any account of Fred Jopling's story without saying anything about whether it was true or false. But take Harry Jopling's evidence which clearly pointed to the fact that the young men had been invited to come there and protect him. Then Fred and Harry clearly followed Bollard and his two friends, which is clearly against the law. The doctor's evidence clearly states that that struggle was contributory to Bollard's death. Now I will dictate nothing to you. You are all sensible men and can realize the seriousness of this affair. I leave to you knowing that you will do what is right.

The jury then retired to consider the evidence.

THE VERDICT.

The jury was out an hour and a quarter, having returned to the court room at eleven o'clock. The foreman, Warden Robt. Scott handed the following written verdict to the coroner:—

Arthur Bollard came to his death indirectly from the effects of the struggle he had in Chemong Park, on the night of August 23, 1909.

To this there was only one dissenting voice. Thirteen signed the verdict.

Those who signed the verdict were Thos. Edgar, N. Blewett, Robt Scott, Herb. Scott, Robt. Telford, John Andrews, Alex. McGregor, J Young, Samuel Stinson, Robt. Bell, Ed. Archer, Thos. Graham, Jos. Archer, M. Fall.

Samuel Stinson was the only one who did not sign the verdict.

CATCH BASIN.

Work was started yesterday on the catch basin in front of Mr. Barrie's store to carry off the surface water in the time of heavy rains and spring floods. This is a good piece of work and will save the city considerable money in future as there will not likely be any more claims for damages from the stores in that neighborhood from flooding cellars. There are several other catch basins needed for similar purposes in other parts of the city.

Crown Attorney Had Not Decided Upon Any Action to Be Taken

After the inquest last night The Times called up County Crown Attorney, R. F. Wood, K.C., at his hotel, and inquired what action, if any, would be taken by the crown as a result of the inquest and 'the coroner's verdict.

Mr. Wood had retired for the night but through his son and partner, The Times learned the Crown attorney had positively nothing for publication. He even refused to state, whether or not, he had decided to take action.

The Exhibition Opens To-Day for Three Days

Today's the day. The great Peterborough Industrial Exhibition opens this morning and will continue for three days, the biggest three days the society has ever seen. The shower of rain last night will do a world of good. It laid the dust and promises to cool the air, so that if the clouds roll by, the sun shines forth, nothing can stop the show this year breaking all previous records.

The directors have completed all details. They are ready for the exhibitors and the crowds. The buildings are in good shape and the grand stand is as solid as rock. The race track was never better and the dust will be kept down either by rain or by the watering carts. If the directors have forgotten anything they will be glad to hear of it at once.

The exhibition itself will be a credit to the city and the county. The farmers have had big crops and they have all stuff to show. The hall exhibits will be better than ever and more merchants than ever are making a display. The live stock entries are large and are made by breeders whose very names mean that the best animals will be here.

Then for special attractions nothing has been missed. The exhibition at night will be fine. Many things which are really good will be seen. Anyone who does not go down Friday night and hear the band concert and see the performance will lose a great deal more than will the directors who will be out only your individual 25 cents. Get in the game and go with the crowd and see the big show.

Thirty Year Franchise Is Not Yet Granted

The 30 Year franchise for the Peterborough Light & Power Co., has not yet been settled. The council had another tussle with it last night but got no further ahead. The company objected to some changes made in the agreement so now each alderman must get a copy of that agreement and study it thoroughly, so that they will know where they are at before the next meeting a week later.

The clerk read a letter received from the Otonabee Power Company in which was expressed a request for a 20-year franchise. Ald. Gillespie was not in favor of discussing the question at present, and allowing Mr. Larmonth to be heard in regard to the 30-year franchise of his company. This was for the reason of endeavoring to come to some agreement in connection with the objected points. Ald. Morgan moved that the matter be left over, and Ald. Gillespie moved that Mr. Larmonth be heard and the latter motion carried.

The disputed clauses were brought up but little headway was made. Mr. Larmonth was willing to grant a concession in regard to the price of poles but remained firm on all others. He said that the agreement was a fair one in his opinion and his instructions were not to grant any concessions. In the matter of appointing an arbitrator as suggested by Ald. Hicks in case of accidents, he thought that it would be difficult to secure accident insurance, should the decision rest with one Person. Furthermore he explained the case in which the team of horses were killed. An investigation made by the company showed just exactly how the accident occured and it was of such a character that an arbitrator or board of arbitrators would have been deceived as to the correct cause had they investigated at the time.

Ald. Gillespie said he would like to have an agreement reached or the matter dropped altogether, but as a final effort Ald. Hicks moved that a copy of the proposed agreement be sent to each member of the council for a thorough study of the clauses and that another meeting be held next Wednesday evening. This was seconded by Ald. Duncan and the meeting adjourned.

Wedding Bells

GAHAGAN—RAYMER.

A very pretty wedding took place Wednesday morning at 8 o'clock, at St. Peter's cathedral, the contracting parties being Mr. Martin Gahagan and Miss Georgina Raymer, both of town. The bride was attended by Miss Mary McEntee, while the groom was supported by Mr. Will Anglesey. The bride looked charming in a suit of taupe, with satin trimmings and buttons, while the bridesmaic was attired in a green suit.

After the wedding ceremony a sumptuous breakfast was partaken of at the residence of Mrs. John McEntee, 671 Reid street.

The bride was the recipient of many beautiful and costly presents, showing the high esteem in which she is held.

WEST—DWYER.

A quiet wedding was celebrated at St. Peter's Cathedral on Tuesday morning at 7 o'clock, when Miss Josephine Dwyer, the eldest daughter of the late Mrs. Ellen and John Dwyer, was united in the holy bonds of matrimony to Mr. William Robert West. The bride was assisted by her sister, while the groom was supported by Mr. Fred Collins.

The young couple will reside in the city.

McBAIN—FAUX.

A very pretty wedding was solemnized Wednesday morning at 9.30, at the residence of Mr. John Faux, 217 Rubidge street, when his youngest daughter, Miss Beatrice Lillian, was united in marriage to Mr. Jas. Marshall McBain, second son of Mr. John R. McBain, 107 Aylmer street The ceremony was performed by Rev G. W. Henderson of Charlotte street Methodist church in the presence of only the immediate friends and relatives of the contracting parties. The parlor was beautifully decorated for the occasion. The bride was given away by her father, and entered the parlor to the strains of Mendelsohn's Wedding March, played by the groom's sister-in-law, Mrs W. H. McBain of Madoc. The young couple was unattended. The bride's little nephew, Master Harold Forsythe, was flower bearer. The bride looked handsome in a princess gown of navy blue silk trimmed with all-over lace and chiffon ribbon. After the ceremony and hearty congratulations had been bestowed upon the young couple the guests entered the dining room where a dainty dejeuner was served. Mr. and Mrs. McBain left on the 11.26 C.P.R. train for a trip to Montreal. On their return they will reside at 217 Rubidge street. The bride's going-away suit was of dark green cloth, with hat to match. The bride was the recipient of many beautiful gifts, among which was a splendid oak rocker from the packing department of the Quaker Oats Company. They carry with them the best wishes of a large circle of friends for future prosperity and happiness. The groom's gift to the organist was a beautiful sugar castor.

DAVIS—ROLLINGS.

A pretty wedding was solemnized Wednesday morning at 9.30, at All Saints' church, when Miss E. Rollings, late of Kidderminster, England was united in marriage to Mr. Harry Davis, Head dyer of the Brinton Carpet Works. The ceremony was performed by Rev. H. R. Trumpour, and the young couple were unattended. The bride was attired in a suit of cream serge with hat to match.

Mr. and Mrs. Davis left for a trip to Toronto and Niagara Falls.

MAN SWELLS WITH AIR.

Inmate of Passaic Hospital Cannot Exhale Freely and Grows Larger With Every Breath.

With one lung, punctured by a broken rib Anthony Nato, of Passaic N. J., is puffing up like a bellows with every breath of air he takes, and the physicians of the General Hospital there, who have been thus far unable to remedy the extraordinary condition, are perplexed and alarmed as to what the result will be.

Nato was driving with some friends in New York when their horses bolted, and he was thrown from the carriage, the wheels of which passed over him. He was seriously hurt and was hurriedly taken home by his companions. Soon after they reached Jersey City Nato's arms and face began to swell, and he was conveyed quickly to the hospital in Passaic.

There the physicians were amazed to find that his whole body was puffed out, as if air had been pumped into him. A careful examination was made and then it was discovered that several of his ribs had been fractured and that part of one of them had penetrated the right lung. As a result every time he took a breath a quantity of the volume of air was unable to find exit, the consequence being that the more he breathed the larger he grew.

The case is a rare one, and it is believed that only a delicate operation, involving the removal of the injured rib and the restoration of the breathing functions to their normal capacity can save the man's life.

Harvest Home.

Annual harvest home services will be held in Park street Baptist church on Sunday next. It will include the Sunday school rally as well and great preparations are being made for the event.

THE WEATHER.

—Fine and cool.

"Sick Man's Friend"

That's the Name Given by Thousands to the old Family Standby, "Nerviline."

1,000,000 Bottles Used Annually.

No better known or more popular family remedy has ever been compounded than "Nerviline." During the past half century its success has been phenomenal—due to the fact that it always cures.

"No one could get him go to bed at night unless I was sure we have Nerviline in the house," writes Mrs. R. R. Weightman of Bolton P. O. "Six years ago my husband was taken badly with rheumatism, which affected his right arm and shoulder. It was so sore and stiff as to be almost helpless for four years. I read of the cure of James E. Everett, and felt sure that when Nerviline cured a case like his, it would cure my husband. I got a dollar's worth of Nerviline, five bottles, in Buffalo, and am pleased to write you that the fourth bottle cured. We have since used Nerviline for Lumbago, Neuralgia, Colds, Chest Tightness and other minor ailments in the family and found Nerviline to be the 'Sick Man's Friend.' No other remedy is so useful in the home, so universally employed to alleviate pain and curing the sick. Refuse anything offered you instead of Nerviline, which is sold: Large 25c. bottles or five for $1 00. By all dealers, or The Catarrhozone Company, Kingston, Ont. 26

Room For Canadian Coal.

Of the large coaling trade of the West Indies, Canada gets practically no share, and yet there appears to be no reason why some of the coal might not be imported from Canada, as the greater part of it is steam coal. Trinidad and Barbadoes divide their importation of this article equally with the United States and Great Britain, while St. Lucia, which has the largest bunker coal trade, takes all its coal from the United States, reports the Canadian commissioner at Barbadoes He adds:

"It may be remarked that Canada last year, as during the last few years has taken the greatest share of the exports of sugar and molasses, amounting to about 55 per cent. of the total export. Up to June 3 of the present year, exports of sugar, as taken from the records of the chamber of commerce, were 5,258 tons 4,425 of which went to Canada; and of the total export of molasses—34,040 puncheons—18,092 puncheons went also to the same market.

New Forest Atlas.

The Forestry Branch of the Department of the Interior has issued the first sheets of a new "forest atlas," which will include plans of the Dominion Forest Reserves, of which the surveys are now being carried on. The "legend" is now being sent out; this designates the marks used to denote natural features, the different species of trees and the amounts of timber that can be obtained per acre from timbered areas, entries of various kinds (such as homesteads, mineral lands, etc.), burns or brules, cuttings of sales, roads, trails, railways, canals, flumes, telegraph and telephone lines, buildings, etc. One of the smaller forest reserves, that known as "The Pines," situated near Prince Albert, Sask.—has already been mapped, and the map of the Riding Mountain Forest Reserve, in northwestern Manitoba, is now in preparation. As surveys of the forest reserves and other forested districts are completed, maps of these will be prepared and added to the atlas.

Another Ice-Breaker.

The Lady Grey, the ice-breaker of the Dominion Government, is to be given a consort, and the Earl Grey has just been launched from the shipbuilding yards of the Vickers Company at Barrow-in-Furness. The new boat marks a considerable advance in size and speed, and it is hoped that it will prove even more successful than the Lady Grey, though the older boat has done good work in her three years of existence. Although the new vessel is built very powerfully and with a special view to the breaking of ice, the makers promise that she will be able to make seventeen knots an hour.

Drive Rheumatism out of the blood with Dr. Shoop's Rheumatic Remedy and see how quickly pain will depart. Rub-ons never did reach the real disease. Rheumatism isn't in the skin.
